Socially we saw eye to eye. Neither Mrs. —— nor I cared for pink teas and a slave attachment to card playing. The open range, great stretches of country where things grew and birds were not afraid to sing, attracted us. Our husbands shared all this with us.

Politically, our debating team took this order—my family on the Republican side of the discussion, while my friend and his charming frau were strong exponents of the Democratic faith.

At the time of these political discussions, like many people of today, I had been psycholized into believing that because of such Southern Democrats Bilbo, Talmadge and Rankin, everything Democratic was bad — and, on the other hand, because Abraham Lincoln had taken the correct stand on the slave issue, Lincoln became for me, and I think many others of my racial group, the symbol of the Republican Party, and we followed blindly.

BUT now I have come of age. When I was a child, I thought and acted like a child. Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition—I am no longer circumscribed by political party idiosyncrasies. I see one picture for my country and my world—:

I am part of the people in all the lands who are demanding full, complete freedom for the peoples of Colonial Africa, India, China, Spain, Palestine, and the United States.

Sunday night, my friend suggested that the Constitution of the United States was the best in the world, to which I readily agree—but with a piercing look and a tint of irony in his voice, he again suggested that I should find no fault with it.

At this point we crossed verbal swords, and after you hear what I have to say, you will agree, I am sure, that while my loyalty to my government is a different brand than my friend's, it is the kind this bleeding nation needs to heal its wounds received at the hand of two world wars, and the racial superiority battle raging within our borders now.

MONDAY morning papers all over the nation described the Jackson, Miss., trial of Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, accused of intimidating Negroes and preventing them from exercising their right to vote guaranteed by our Constitution. In the same day's news, I read this in one of the Daily News editorials:

"California is still going around in circles on the race problem,"—"the current hullaballoo over the place of the Negro in plans for re-activation of the California National Guard serves as a painful illustration."

The editor observes further—and this is what I hope you read carefully, my friend—

"Plainly, we can begin with a reasonable postulate formulated the other day by the California Citizens' Committee on Military Affairs. The Committee is a self-appointed, state-wide panel of substantial and influential Negro cititzens. The postulate is that the Negro citizen has a right to expect participation in any plans for re-activation of the National Guard.

UNFORTUNATELY, however, because the National Guard is an adjunct of the Army and the Army has not yet approached the enlightened policy of the Navy in outlawing Jim Crow, the Committee has had some tough sledding. Thus far, State Adjutant General O'Sullivan has not only been sidestepping the Committee's recommendations, but according to the Committee's statement, has been recruiting a few dissident officers and men, who, for self-gratification and avarice, are willing to swallow their pride and accept a Jim Crow status without any alleviation."

The editor who wrote this, I am sure, did not realize how many ways this last paragraph hit a devastating blow at the evils that tend to keep a segment (15 million) Americans in political chains, bound to a prescribed economic status, and socially oustracized.

MY FRIEND, we who represent this order, under the Constitution and the grand old flag, must not become smug in our self-styled securtiy—one Negro in Mississippi denied his Constitutional right is a denial of that same right to you. One Negro who sells his political birthright for a political mess of porridge, sells yours also.

We must make up our minds to s'erve as free men, rather than grow fat for the slave slaughter.

Negro Air Group Plays Prominent Role in Army-Navy War Games

BLYTHE, Calif.—Twenty-four planes of the 477th Composite Group from Blythe joined with other 12th Air Force units in the invasion of Aliso Canyon just off Oceanside, Calif., as the joint army and navy maneuvers entered the final phase of post-war games on the coast. Designated as "D Day", the landings were similar to those made on the Normandy coast June 6, 1944.

The 9th Fighter Squadron escorted the 62nd Troop Carrier team and the 47th Bomb Group. A squadron of P-47's made a rendezvous over March Field with the troop carriers at 10,000 feet, covering the transports to the target and return. Strafing at low level, the fighters made two attacks both on the Pendleton airstrip and the beach. Heavy flak from Point Topaz was encountered, with light to heavy AA in the target region around the airstrip and over Oceanside. 40 to 90 MM gunfire was also encountered.

Observers reported to intelligence that approximately 200 seacraft were in the Aliso Beachhead area, barges, PT's and destroyers were noted. It was also disclosed that landing craft were on the beachhead and were covered by support fire. Despite the fact that little or no activity was noticed on the roads in the immediate vicinity of the beachhead, auth-

Jewish Congress, NAACP Join Mexicans in Legal Attack on Segregation

A legal attack aimed at the elimination of segregation of Mexicans, Negroes and other minorities was launched here by the American Jewish Congress in a brief amicus curiae filed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The case, Westminster School Board vs. Mendez, involves an appeal by the local school authorities of Orange county, California, from a Federal district court ruling that segregating school children of Mexican or Latin descent into separate schools is a violation of the 14th amendment.

The significance of the American Jewish Congress' brief rests in its argument that segregation per se, irrespective of the so-called equality of the facilities involved, is discriminatory and therefore unconstitutional. Since 1896, so-called Jim Crow segregation laws, state-enforced, have been upheld where the facilities for segregated groups are considered equal to those provided others.

The American Jewish Congress' briefly attacks the doctrine of "separate but equal facilities." It argues that segregation, even when equal facilities are provided, transforms a social, community-sanctioned "inferiority" into a legally-sanctioned "political inequality."

Leaders in the fight against discrimination believe that a favorable court decision on the constitutional issue of the case would represent a long step toward the ultimate invalidation of all racial segregation laws. In addition to American Jewish Congress, the local Mexican community and the National Association for

Sees Minority Housing Tied to Outcome of Row Between Wyatt, Allen

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Minority groups will be the losers if President Truman decides against Wilson W. Wyatt, national housing expediter, in his "total disagreement" battle with George E. Allen, director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Technically the battle between the two administrators is a fight to determine whether Wyatt has the power to order the RFC to approve loans to private builders. Actually the issue has boiled down to the question of whether the government will continue to exercise control of the channelling of building materials into low priced industrial housing or revert back to the pre-war "business as usual" policy with no controls on scarce building materials and no ceilings on new houses.

Wyatt yesterday indicated he would resign within 48 hours as a result of Truman's failure to back Wyatt's housing program.

Housing authorities predict that an Allen victory over Wyatt will virtually see an end to the building of new homes for Negro occupancy.

Under existing provision of the emergency housing bill, scarce building materials are channelled into the construction of low priced homes under the $10,000 ceiling placed on new homes. Regulations also require that a fair portion of this material be used in the building of new homes for occupancy by minority groups.

A victory for Allen would put an end to such controls and create what housing officials term a "luxury market."

On a luxury market, the officials argue, big builders who do not consider building new homes

Sen. Kilgore Denounces GOP-Sponsored Charges Against Negro Soldiers

WASHINGTON — Alleged misconduct of Negro troops in Germany was involved in the demand of Senator Joseph H. Ball, Republican, of Minnesota, for an investigation into the operations of the American military government in Germany and Austria. The demand was defeated in the senate war investigating committee by a vote of six to four.

Senator Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat, of West Virginia, chairman of the committee, announced the vote which was strictly along party lines with Democrats casting all six votes against the inquiry and Republicans voting for it.

George Meader, chief counsel of the committe, visited Germany and made a "prellminary" investigation. He made a secret report to committee members when he returned and in it emphasized the alleged misconduct of colored American troops. He also criticized the state department, the army, and the American military government.

According to Senator Owen Brewster, Republican, of Maine, information given the committee indicated that Negro troops had been involved in several incidents. Reported conditions in the relations of American occupation troops with the German people threaten defeat of the purpose of the American occupation, Brewster said.

War Veteran Tells of Being Stripped, Flogged For Trying to Register

JACKSON, Miss.—Negro witness this week braved threats of reprisals to testify before the senate campaign investigating committee that Senator Theodore G. Bilbo appealed to violence and intimidation in white supremacy speeches to prevent Negro Americans from voting in last summer's state Democratic primary.

Etoy Fletcher, young war veteran, told the five-man committee that he was disrobed, lashed and beaten by a group of six or seven white men because he attempted to register to vote.

Rev. William Albert Bander, 60-year-old Congregational pastor at Tougaloo college, scene of recent fiery cross burnings about 15 miles from Jackson, told the committee that a "deputy sheriff cursed me and prevented me from voting, although I was a registered voter and exempt from the poll tax because of my age."

Percy Green, Jackson publisher, and T. B. Wilson, Jackson realtor, charged that Bil-

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Sixteen Negro passengers and seven white crewmen are missing aboard an army air forces C-46 Commando which crashed into the ocean off the coast of Iwo Jima November 16, the War Department announced yesterday.

The plane was transporting the passengers from Guam to its home base at Iwo Jima. The pilot contacted the Iwo radio station five miles out and the plane was followed by radarscope through a 360-degree turn until it crashed. The cause of the accident is unknown. An investigation is under way.

1000 Tan Yanks Shipped Home After Armed Clash With White Troops in Italy

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The entire 838th aviation engineer battalion, consisting of about 1000 men, has been returned to the United States from Italy because some of its members were involved in a clash with white American soldiers in Caserta, it was larned here yesterday.

Twenty-eight members of the 838th battalion were reported to be held in confinement at Liverno, Italy as a result of the clash. A Negro woman Red Cross worker, Mrs. Mildred A. Fortson of Youngstown, Ohio, also was reported to have been taken into custody. The American Red Cross said, however, that she has returned to this country. She is the daughter of Mrs. Estelle Clark, also of Youngstown.

According to information received here, the trouble began when 800 replacements were assigned to the 838th, which was stationed near Caserta.

Army Information and Education officers immediately set about arranging suitable recreational facilities for the troops within their camp in order to prevent their crowding into Caserta on leave. To carry out their arrangements Italian women were transported from Caserta to take part in activities at the camp.

This plan worked well, it was reported, until a sudden change of officer personnel in the 838th took place. According to reports, the new white officers immediately barred the Italian women from attending affairs at the camp and when the Negro soldiers sought entertainment in Caserta a clash with white troops over the women followed.

The conflict reached a climax when white troops are alleged to have gone to their area after several fist fights, armed themselves, and returned led by their company officers.

The Negro troops are reported to have gone to their area, broken into their supply room and obtained arms.

No report on the outcome of the battle was available, but immediately following the incident the battalion was placed oboard ship and returned to the United States. Members of the battalion said the outfit was returned to the States so suddenly that port authorities in this country had not been notified of the time of the arrival and the unit's ship was forced to wait in the harbor several days before the troops could embark.

The war department admitted that the unit had been ordered back to the States but would not comment on the cause. The 838th was overseas almost two years.

Information concerning the unit was given to William A. Hill, executive secretary of the District of Columbia branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who communicated with the war department.

Hill was informed that the information had been transmitted to Marcus H. Ray, civilian aide to the secretary of war, who is touring United States army installations in the European theatre, and he in turn had notified the department that he would look into the matter.

Noted Boston Attorney Here; Stay 'Indefinite'

Atty. Julien D. Rainey, of Boston, Mass., who has filled many offices of national scope during his career as a trial lawyer, is in town for an "indefinite" stay.

While an assistant to the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in charge of the Negro division during the presidential campaigns of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Rainey was special adviser to the late President on Negro affairs. More recently, the Boston attorney served as regional appeal attorney for the OPA, covering the entire New England region.

Among the more prominent men in law the nation over, Rainey has held many prominent positions in his native city. For seven years, he was the attorney for the Boston street railway, later becoming corporation counsel for the City of Boston. He was also engaged as counsel to the receiver of the Exchange Trust Co., the largest banking trust company in New England.

During FDR's presidency, he served as special assistant to three different attorney generals of the United States. He is stopping at the residence of Atty. Walter L. Gordon.

Have That C-Number Handy, Buddy When Visiting VA Office

(SCP) — The C-number, it seems, is something the Veterans Administration wants an ex-GI to remember. Get it tatooed on your chest, stamp it on your dog tag, forget your own name, but don't come to a VA office to inquire about your case without that C-number, VA officials here said yesterday.

C-numbers are assigned every vet who applies for pension, compensation, schooling, or on-the-job training, and it's just as important to the veterans as his serial number was while in the service.

Even if your name is Asa P. D. Q. Opendorfgrugger, it means little. At least seven other Asa P. D. Q. etceteras are certain to be found in the files of the VA, claims officers maintain.

To save time for yourself, know your C-number, the VA strongly advises.

New vice-presidents installed were Leonard Chudacoff, president of the Jewish Welfare Federation; John Anson Ford, member of the board of supervisors; Dr. E. C. Farnham, secretary of the Los Angeles Church Federation; and George Beavers, Jr., housing commissioner.

Dr. Maurice J. Karpf, executive director of the Federation of Jewish Welfare Funds, took over the post of secretary, and Ben Beery, prominent local attorney, was installed as treasurer.

CIO Starts Drive to Organize Airlines Service Employes

CHICAGO—A drive to organize the nation's 15,000 air line service employes into the CIO United Transport Service Employes was announced yesterday by Willard S. Townsend, president of the CIO union.

Townsend also announced that Vice-President Eugene E. Frazier has been placed in charge of the drive. For the past three months preliminary investigations and surveys have been conducted by the union to determine general conditions and the extent of organization among this group of air line workers.

"Air transportation," Townsend declared, "has passed its luxury and novelty stage. Projected postwar developments in air passenger travel indicate the important functional role this form of transportation will play in the future economic and industrial life of the nation."

Hails Election of Ferdinand Smith To CIO Board

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Revels Cayton, executive secretary of the National Negro Congress, has sent Philip Murray congratulations on his re-election to the presidency of the CIO and praised the Tenth CIO Convention for electing Ferdinand Smith to the national executive board of the CIO. Smith, secretary of the National Maritime Union, and well known in civic and labor circles, is vice-president of the (NNC) National Negro Congress.

The convention placed minority rights high on its program, served notice on employers that CIO intends to wage a relentless fight to end discrimination and secure a better living standard for Negro and white workers alike. The resolution labeled the U.S. congress a forum for un-American hate declarations and called for special vigilance to protect and expand democracy in this country.

It called on the U. S. attorney general to prosecute all law officers and mobs who engage in terroristic acts against any American, and who seek to deprive any group of basic rights. It further demanded federal, state and local FEPC legislation, a federal anti-lynch bill, anti-poll tax legislation, an end to restrictive covenants, and federal, state and local laws guaranteeing suffrage.

In the name of the NNC and the 13 million Negroes in America, Cayton hailed the resolutions passed by the CIO to combat racism in America. "Never before has there been such a dangerous threat to American liberties, and never before has there been such an imperative need for the unity of the Negro people and organized labor to meet this threat," Cayton wrote Murray. "The race haters in America are the labor haters, and both labor and all minorities must close ranks to beat off the wave of reaction now spreading its ugly poison in America."

The NNC also praised the CIO stand on increased wages to meet the soaring prices, pointing out that the thousands of Negroes in the ranks of the CIO who have benefited from the non-discrimination policy of the CIO need higher wages, as Negroes are always the first, and the hardest hit by inflation.

"The CIO has always been in the forefront in the fight for justice," Cayton concluded, "and all freedom loving people in America will look to the CIO for continued effective leadership in the struggle for democracy."

A two-day bazaar will be held by the Los Angeles Chapter of the American Committee for European Workers' Relief this week end in Room 2, 316½ West Pico blvd., according to Lillian Curtiss, director of the Los Angeles Chapter.

"The bazaar will provide an unique opportunity for many persons to aid the victims of European concentration camp tortures and their families, while doing some very economical Christmas shopping," Mrs. Curtiss said.

She added that valuable merchandise of all kinds has been contributed by local merchants, manufacturers, and friends. It will be available to the public from 7 to 12 p.m. Saturday, December 7, and from 2 to 12 p.m. Sunday, December 8. There will also be refreshments for the shoppers both days.

AVC Backs Wyatt Housing Program; Asks Passage of Wagner-Ellender-Taft Bill

(SCP)—An emergency meeting on housing, called Wednesday night by the American Veterans Committee, brought the promise of action—in the form of support of Federal Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt's housing program and petitions demanding allocation of building materials for construction of homes from 40 delegates representing AVC chapters in the Los Angeles area.

A delegate from the Hermann Boetcher chapter, citing the "miserable conditions" in housing prevalent in this area, urged revision of the petition to demand 100 percent allocation of materials to the housing program. The present AVC program calls for 85 percent to housing and 15 percent to commercial and industrial construction.

Other demands are strengthening of OPA rent regulations, congressional enactment of the Wagner - Ellender - Taft housing bill, and a state rent control law guaranteeing fair rentals, including control of currently exempt industrial and commercial property.

Circulation of a more strongly-worded petition will begin today, Dec. 5, it was decided. The AVC is also considering a mass rally on housing after the first of the year, it was announced.

Pete Gorman, state AVC housing director, stated:

"We are behind Wilson Wyatt and his program and are urging President Truman to alleviate the present housing shortage."

ADMITTED TO CALIFORNIA BAR — Charles H. Blagburn, who passed the California bar association, was admitted to practice as an attorney and counsellor-at-law in this state November 7, 1946. He is associated with Atty. J. C. Henderson of Oakland.

Local OPA Staff Reduced to 500

(SCP).—The local OPA staff has been reduced to less than 500 workers, the agency has announced.

The announcement stated that no cuts are likely to be in prospect for the 310 rent office employes who make up the largest part of the 500 workers who have not been given termination notices. During the wartime peak, 2000 persons were on the payroll here.

There are now four units comprising the local agency which had jurisdiction over 11 southland counties. They include an area rent office, an enforcement field station, and a sugar rationing branch office.

Sugar Stamps

An additional 30-day extension of the two home canning stamps for sugar—spares No. 9 and 10—has been announced by the OPA. Due to expire Nov. 30, 1946, both stamps, each good for five pounds, will be valid through Dec. 31, 1946.

Publish Lincoln Alumni Directory

LINCOLN, Pa.—With the publication of the Alumni Directory during the past week, Lincoln university signalized what has been one of the most rapid advancements by the graduates of any Negro college. The Lincoln Alumni at the present number are estimated as being the only Negro group which could support completely its Alma Mater. In the short span of three months during the past year, they contributed a total of $75,000 to the Lincoln University Building Fund. More than any other single collegiate group, Lincoln alumni have by their contribution to the ongoing process of American life, paid adequate testimony as to the worth of their Alma Mater. Editor and compiler of the Alumni Directory was Dr. Laurence Foster. Dr. Foster will soon release summary figures regarding Lincoln alumni on geographical and professional basis.

Auto Insurance Co. Holds Mass Meeting Tonight

Following a two weeks stock sales campaign during which many blocks of the $450,000 worth of shares have been sold, the Loyal Automobile Insurance Company will hold a public mass meeting tonight, Thursday, December 5, beginning at 8, at the Zion Hill Baptist church, 51st and McKinley sts. At this meeting the public will have an opportunity to continue subscriptions, hear and meet the five officers and directors of the company, the advisers, and participate in a question period relative to the company.

With over 100,000 Negroes and members of other minority groups in California unable to obtain automobile insurance due to wholesale cancellation by white firms and the number expected to increase with the expiration of many existing policies at the end of this month, the public is being urged by leaders of the community to intensify their subscriptions in order to make it possible for the Loyal Automobile Company to commence issuing full coverage policies at the earliest moment. Immediately upon the completion of the sale of the $450,000 worth of shares (150,000 shares at $3 per share), the company will issue automobile insurance policies.

Under the supervision of G. Rex Lee, a sales force of nearly 100 trained young men and women are canvassing the greater Los Angeles area and throughout the state to obtain sales for the securities in order that the much needed insurance company can become a reality. Since the public has been so outspoken in its desire for automobile insurance protection, it is hoped that the cancelled policy holders and others will join in putting over this drive.

The stock may be bought from the certified sales personnel that have been investigated and approved by the State or directly from the company headquarters, 4421 Avalon boulevard, phone CEntury 2-4246.

Bill of Rights Rally Sunday Will Review Forces Seeking To Destroy U. S. Magna Carta

The Los Angeles Branch NAACP will celebrate National Bill of Rights Week Sunday, 3:30 p.m., at Wesley Methodist church at 1029 E. Vernon ave. by reviewing active forces in the city and county which are pitted against the enforcement of that ancient American Bill of nuRights, according to Thomas L. Griffith Jr., NAACP president. Among the speakers will be Rev. J. Ogden Hoffman of Compton, Leon Washington, Charlotta Bass, and Lt. Roscoe C. Washington, who will tell what is being done to better police service in the area. Leon Steward, acting executive secretary of the NAACP, will report a new "wrinkle" in police brutality.

Fascism Brews in Compton

Appearance of cards in Compton addressed to Wilson Wyatt, "National Housing Administrator," and demanding that the Palmer Grant development in West Compton area, which is designated for "veterans," be limited to "whites," and branding the present Democratic plan of handling the project as "the rawest deal ever handed GI's, and whites by a political click," and demanding that "these Communist inspired ideas be stopped at once" will be discussed by Rev. J. Ogden Hoffman, who has talked with the distributors of the cards, and also with the veterans of Compton about the matter.

Among artists who will furnish special music for the occasion will be Doris Day, the talented young soprano of Jefferson, and the equally talented young pianist, Elaine Miles of USC. Mrs. Hazel Whitaker Moore is chairman of the program committee.

Chicago's Mayor Acts In Vets' Housing Row to Keep Interracial Set-up

By DON LORING

CHICAGO—(Special to EAGLE)—Following a near race riot last week at the Chicago Housing Authority's Airport Housing Project, Mayor Edward J. Kelly this week issued a forcefully worded statement expressing his determination that the issues raised at the project would be settled fairly for all veterans.

The 186-unit project was planned for interracial occupancy by the Chicago Housing Authority, and opened Sept. 15. White veterans have been living in it since its opening. Negro veterans were scheduled to move in about the middle of last month.

Raising the pretext that the veteran project would depreciate their property valuations, white property owners surrounding the project area were hostile to its establishment from the beginning. Attempts have been made to make an issue of the housing of Negro veterans in the project to cover up hostility to all veterans. This hostility was evidenced by the undercover campaign against white veterans who first moved into the project. The campaign took the form of nick-naming veterans' children, "Project Children," "Hill Billies," etc. Windows in 54 units in which white veterans already are living were mysteriously broken six weeks ago.

The project is located at 60th and Karlov avenue, in a predominantly white neighborhood. White property owners in the area have the support of Alderman Michael P. Hogan and other politicians in the 13th ward, who are seeking to curry favor with some of their constituents by playing race against race. Hogan has demanded that the project be restricted to "local" veterans only, thereby including Negro vets.

Last week, near violence broke out when Theodore Turner, a Negro vet, his wife and three weeks old son attempted to move into the project. Turner had a lease to an apartment by CHA authority. A crowd of more than 100 whites blocked the family's occupancy of the apartment.

With Turner was Kenneth C. Kennedy, national commander of the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America, who said he was on hand to "see that Turner and other Negro veterans get homes in the project."

Meantime, white veterans had illegally moved into most of the 54 units authorized for Negro occupancy. They did so without CHA authority.

During the melee a CHA official's car was overturned, and the cars of Negro veterans who had turned out to assist Turner in moving were bombarded by stones.

Following the disturbance at the project, a delegation from the UNAVA called upon Mayor Kelly, urged action to prevent future obstacles to the housing of veterans in general and Negro vets in particular in CHA housing projects. Another delegation, headed by Dr. Homer Jacks, director of the Chicago Council Against Racial and Religious Descrimination, also visited the mayor. This delegation included representatives of the Chicago Church Federation, the Anti-Defamation League and other groups.

TO UPHOLD CONSTITUTION

The mayor gave assurance that "full police protection" would be accorded all veterans following charges that Chicago police had collorated with the "squatters." He emphasized his determination to enforce the rights of eligible veterans to live in housing projects anywhere in Chicago.

"Chicago," the mayor said, always has welcomed people from all parts of the world to enjoy the advantage of citizenship here, regardless of race, religion or national origin. All of these people have contributed to make Chicago the great city that it is today, and the rights of one group cannot be violated without endangering the rights of all. In other words, our policy is now as always, to obey the constitution of the United States."

The mayor acted favorably on the following points raised by the UNAVA delegation:

●Assurance of police protection to Negro and other minority veterans to live peaceable in Airport project and other CHA projects;

●Issuing of a public statement on the policy of his administration;

The delegation led by the UNAVA included, Kenneth C. Kennedy, UNAVA national commander; George B. Murphy Jr., national adjutant, UNAVA; Col. Clifton E. Jones, president, Cook County Veterans Assn.; Mrs. Lavonia Brown, president, Women's Army for National Defense (represented also the Chicago Federation of Negro Women's Clubs; Sidney Ordower, executive secretary, Chicago Council, AVC.; Eugene Raleigh, Chicago Council of Labor Veterans; Steve Anderson, United Auto Workers Local 4535; William McGill, Independent Voters of Illinois; Lou Majors, international representative, UE CIO; Henry McGee, NAACP, Ira Latimer, Chicago Civil Liberties Committee; Leon Katzen, chairman, Veterans Committee, District 11, United Electrical Workers, CIO.

Truman Gets Plea to Restore Price Controls

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—A mile of names on a petition urging that a special session of congress be called to restore price controls was presented to the White House Tuesday. Walter Rogers, chairman of the New Orleans Price Control Committee, made the presentation.

The presentation climaxed an 81-day drive against high prices on the part of Negro and white citizens of New Orleans. Veterans, housewives, professional persons and members of both major labor groups were said to have participated in the campaign.

Booths were set up in the business section and in front of the Longshoremen's Hall, the union with the largest Negro membership in New Orleans. Leaflets, catchy slogans, and alert workers brought in many signatures in spite of intimidating disapproval of profiteering elements in the southern city.

In Washington Rogers received the cooperation of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, whose members in Louisiana worked on the campaign. Within the past few weeks an affiliate of the Southern Conference, the Committee for Louisiana, has been established in that state.

Gets Divorce From Wife Who Married 'For Convenience'

(SCP)—His wife married him for convenience and not for love, Walter Buckner, 25-year-old bartender, of 1404 E. 58th drive, East Los Angeles, told Superior Judge William J. Palmer in his divorce suit against Mrs. Susan Buckner, 25, of 890 E. 46th st. Judge Palmer granted the divorce.

"She got drunk all the time, stayed out nights, and wouldn't cook dinner," Buckner said. "She even burned holes in the rug."

Married last Jan. 13 in Tijuana, Mexico, the couple separated July 15. Buckner's attorney was T. G. Dalton.

NEW YORK—(Global)—James Suozzo, of 2904 Gilmore street, East Elmhurst, Queens, has sold his one-family brick dwelling to the Republic of Liberia. The purchase was completed through Dr. Federick Price, consul general of Liberia, according to the Corona Holding Co.

Police Victims to File Charges of Brutality Against Department

(SCP)—Sharp protest against the present wave of police brutality against minorities in Los Angeles will be lodged with the police commission as soon as preparation of affidavits by the victims is completed, the Civil Rights Congress announced yesterday.

Mrs. Edith Galloway, prominent and respected resident of the Negro community, who was acquitted Nov. 25 of an alleged drunk charge and then made countercharges of police abuse to Police Personnel Chief Herbert Walters. Tyre Williams, allegedly beaten by a police officer in downtown Los Angeles; and Oscar Moret, red cap who was acquitted of an alleged drunk charge Nov. 26, are among those expected to file affidavits.

Mrs. Galloway, 434 E. 48th st., was swiftly acquitted of the drunk auto charge in Municipal Judge Leo Aggeler's court. A singer in the People's Independent Church of Christ choir and a member of the NAACP, Mrs. Galloway charged that she was beaten and abused by white plainclothesmen who took her from her car at Turner and Alameda sts, Oct. 24.

Detective Patrick Grutsch is alleged to have beaten Mrs. Galloway when she asked for his identification. Detective R. Hanson is said to have cursed th woman, who was kept overnight in Lincoln Heights jail and not allowed to get in touch with her husband until the following morning.

Mrs. Galloway and her husband, Fletcher Galloway, war veteran and postal employe for 11 years, accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Slade of the Civil Rights Congress, had an interview with Capt. Walters of the police department last week, following Mrs. Galloway's acquittal. Capt. Walters promised an investigation.

Moret, who works at the Union Station, lives at 1047 E. 45th st. The civil Rights Congress reported that he was beaten in a police car near the station, Oct. 6. He was acquitted of a drunk charge the day after Mrs. Galloway's acquittal, and is also expected to file an affidavit for presentation to the police commission.

Williams, 1170½ E. 46th st., was allegedly beate by a police officer at 5th and Broadway on the evening of Nov. 2, when the officer ordered Williams to pick up an overturned "No left turn" sign, which Williams denied knocking down.

Hit Tardy Police Action in Hoodlum Attack on Home

Failure of police to respond promptly when informed by telephone of a hoodlum attack on the home of Rev. W. L. McKinley, 3014 Royal street, was the subject this week of sharp protests by civic, labor and church organizations here.

When white hoodlums, intent on furthering restrictive covenants, hurled rocks through the windows of Rev. McKinney's home, the family promptly summoned the police. It was not, however, until 90 minutes later that the police arrived to make a belated and wholly formal investigation. Protesting organizations point to the rapidity with which police radio cars are dispatched to scenes of trouble, when the police are interested in nipping disturbances in the bud.

The family reported that rocks were hurled simultaneously at many windows of the house, breaking seven windows. In one bedroom, which received a shower of rocks, two of the minister's sons, Willie 12, and Josea, 21, were asleep at the time. Broken glass sprayed their bed, hitting the elder son.

Rev. McKinney, pastor of the Church of God in Christ, 1237 East 21st st., moved into his present home several years ago. A restrictive covenant formerly blanketed the area, but it expired about four years ago, according to the family.

Rev. McKinney is now attending a convention in Memphis, Tenn.

Coroner's Jury Exonerates Cops Whose Blows Caused Death of 'Unknown' Man

(SCP)—Following an inquest in the death of Frank Barnes, 32, alias Harry Fisher, whose body lay unidentified in the morgue for 12 days, the coroner's jury yesterday exonerated police officer J. L. Nichols of all blame. It had been reported by the police that Nichols struck Barnes in the head with a revolver.

The report of the inquest stated that death was caused by cerebral contussions resulting from a fractured skull. Barnes died in Central Hospital, Nov. 17, following his arrest and reported beating by police officers Nichols and H. H. Bertch, both white, earlier that day. His body was not identified until Nov. 29 by a cousin, John Henry Fisher, of 411½ S. Central ave.

The original police report had indicated that Barnes was struck in the head by the barrel of Nichols' revolver when Barnes allegely struggled with the officers and tried to escape. He had been picked up on suspicion in an alley near 57th st. and Towne ave., and was given an absentee booking at Lincoln Heights jail on a narcotics charge when officers reported finding marihuana cigarettes in his pockets.

Fisher told officers he was not disturbed by his cousin's long absence because he frequently left the house for days at a time. The cousins lived at the same Central ave. address.

Georgia Congressman's Local Witch Hunt Assailed by Berman As Conspiracy to Break Unions

(SCP)—An unholy alliance of producers, gangsters and the law enforcing agencies . . . are out to break the honest democratic America unions," charged radio commentator Averill Berman yesterday following his testimony at what was characterized as a star-chamber session of the Wood-Rankin Un-American Activities Committee.

Berman, Herb Sorrell, president of the Conference of Studio Unions, and Roy Brewer, International head of the IATSE, had all been summoned to testify at the hearings, which were barred to the press and the public. Sorrell, who did not appear, and Berman are two of 14 defendants indicted for "criminal conspiracy" in connection with the Hollywood film strike.

Berman and Brewer both gave testimony behind barred doors to Congressman John S. Wood, D. Georgia committee chairman, here from Washington on a witch hunt.

After testifying for nearly an hour and a half, Berman emerged from the hearing room in the Federal Building and told reporters:

"It is no accident that these hearings are occuring at precisely this time. An unholy alliance of producers, gangsters, and the law enforcing agencies which do their bidding are out to break the honest democratic American unions of this era. At the moment they are out to smear all those men indicted on charges of criminal conspiracy, with the view to preventing a fair trial. Another Mooney-Billings case seems to be in the offing."

Bias, Not Veto, Peace Bar, Says Helen Douglas

NEW YORK—"The veto is no fundamental block to the realization of world peace, but prejudice and discrimination are," Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas told delegates to the United Nations general assembly who had gathered Thanksgiving Eve in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel for one of the most colorful events of the season.

"The struggle is not between ourselves as nations, but within ourselves as people," declared Mrs. Douglas, who was chairman of the dinner, sponsored by the World Education Service Council, an organization created last year by educators and youth leaders of 12 nations.

Fifteen New York school children later took over the meeting, with Bob Lasky, a 17 year old high school student, as their chairman and, after explaining the purpose of their organization, presented each of hte delegates with world friendship passports, made out in French, English, Russian and Chinese. Number one passport, issued posthumously to the late President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, was presented by the children to Mrs. Roosevelt, who was one of many distinguished guests at the dinner.

One of the most eloquent advocates of world amity was Jan Mazaryk, Czechoslovak foreign minister and leader of his country's delegation to the UN assembly.

"If freedom is to reign in a peaceful world," he said, "every child of God, regardless of where he is born, or his religion, or his color, must be given an opportunity for freedom, of carefree laughter, and to play," he said.

In a message to Mrs. Douglas, which was read at the dinner, President Truman congratulated the youth of the world for taking steps to help achieve permanent peace.

32 Nurses Graduated At Freedman's Hospital

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NNPA)—Federal Security Administrator Watson B. Miller told the graduating cadet nurses of Freedmen's Hospital that America is proud of the work of nurses during the war and urged them to seek employment at Freedmen's after graduation.

Addressing the class of 32 nurses in the highlight of the cadets' commencement exercises, Miller pointed out the many opportunities offered to nurses by the federal government and cited the Veterans Administration as a federal agency "seeking nurses who meet the qualifications and are willing to serve where they are needed."

Dr. Charles Hall, hospital director, later told a reporter that throughout his administration Freedmen's Hospital has usually placed more than half of its graduating nurses on its staff and that while he could not give a definite figure on vacancies now open, he hoped this year would be no exception to the past.

Big Shake-Up Predicted for CME Ministers

TYLER, Texas — Semi-official "inside" sources predicted here last night (Wednesday) that "there will be a big 'sakeup' and many 'shifts' made by Bishop R. A. Carted Sunday afternoon when he reads the appointments here at the Central Texas Conference," at the CMB Church. While refusing to make comment as to who and what might be involved in the predicted "shake ups" and "shifts", it was learned on the conference grounds that there are certain "pointers" upon which the predictions were based.

Some Transfers Come In

Three or four specific things combine to "influence" making changes, it was said. They are: (1) The fact that three ministers have been transferred from other annual conferences into the Central Texas Conference—Reverends Percy L. Gray from South Sherman in the Dallas-Ft. Worth Conference; R. C. Mask, former pastor of Hopewell church, Texarkana, in the East Texas Conference; and L. B. Ballard, also of the East Texas Conference; (2) the fact that to date no ministers of the Central Texas Conference have been "transferred to other conferences"; (3) the desire on the part of several churches and charges for "another minisetr"; (4) and the desire on the part of some ministers, themselves, to be changed from where they no wserve.

Rumors afloat around the conference, but which could not be established as fact, indicate that the "shifts" may be among the most important positions of the conference—even including one or two of the Presiding elder districts. General sentiment is that there will certainly be changes in the pastors at five or six of the important charges of the conference. In two or three instances these "changes" are mutually desirable on the part of both the congregation and the ministers. (See conference report on Church Page).

Court Suspends Sentence of Mail Robber

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

The biggest sigh of relief in town was emitted Monday afternoon by ex-postal clerk Edwin M. Morris when he was given a suspended sentence on a charge of theft from the mails.

The evidence that swayed Superior Judge Peirson M. Hall to leniency was brought out by Morris' attorney, Walter S. Gordon Jr., when he proved that the stolen money was used to pay for an operation on Morris' mother. The money has also been paid back, he stated.

"Under these circumstances," Judge Hall told the defendant, "I am unwilling to send you to the penitentiary, even though the offense is a grievous one."

Morris was given an 18 months suspended sentence, told to report every two months, and to seek a job.

The elation of both Morris and his attorney was evidenced by their big smiles.

Morris, 27, was formerly employed at Station K, Vernon and Central avenues. He resides at 1602 East 22nd street.

Two Bandits Hold Up Box Office for $105

Two men, who watched the cashier of the Kinema Theater, 8607 Compton ave., place the day's receipts in a money bag, then staged an armed hold-up last week, escaping with about $105, sheriff's officers reported.

The men escaped in a car parked half a block from the theater, according to Basil B. Finney, white, of 1635 E. 89th st., who was just coming out of the theater and noticed the men as they were leaving.

Asks Tax Cut For Little Man

WASHINGTON—Sen. Glen H. Taylor, D., Idaho, suggested this week that any moves for tax reductions by the incoming Republican-controlled congress should consider the lower income families and pay scant attention to the war-wealthy.

He pointed out that tax redustions contemplated by the Republicans offer little encouragement to the family of four trying to get along on $3000 or less a year.

He assailed particularly the GOP proposal for a blanket 20 percent reduction—first advocated by Rep. Harold Knutson, (R. Minn.)—as "unfair to the lower brackets."

Such reductions, he said, "will give millions to the millionaire and pennies to the poor. For example, under Rep. Knutson's 20 percent reduction proposal, a married man with two children who makes $3000 a year would have his taxes cut by $27.40 a year.

"An individual with a $1,000,000 income would have his taxes cut $167,683,55. This will give little or no help to the little man, but it gives a great bonus to the man whose bank accounts are swollen with war profits.

He said congress already has given a tax rebate to the wealthy through repeal last session of the excess profits tax.

"It would be grossly unfair," he continued, "to bestow an additional gift upon them at the expense of wage and salary earners."

Dixie Bus Companies Seen Violating High Court Ruling Outlawing Travel Jimcrowism

RICHMOND, Va.—(NNPA)—Although the United States supreme court has declared invalid state jim-crow laws requiring the seating of Negro passengers in the rear of buses in interstate travel, bus companies operating in the south continue to attempt to enforce such race segregation through company regulations with the aid of state courts.

The latest incident involved Samuel W. Tucker of Emporia, Virginia, a 33 year old lawyer and former army major, who was found guilty in police court here November 19 for "creating a disturbance" on a bus by refusing to move to another seat when ordered to do so by the bus operator.

His conviction was based on a provision in the Virginia Code which makes it a misdemeanor for any person to cause any unnecessary disturbance in a public conveyance by failing to move to another seat when lawfully requested to do so by the operator.

Justice Carleton E. Jewett imposed the minimum fine of $5, and Tucker was released on $100 bond when he noted an appeal.

Tucker, a veteran of five years' service as an army officer, boarded a Trailways motor bus in Washington on a trip to Emporia. He took a seat fourth from the front and seventh from the back and rode in that position from Washington to Richmond. At the Richmond terminal, some passengers got off but more got on and white persons occupied all the seats in front of him and the seat just behind him.

Roy B. Blaylock of Cary, North Carolina, the bus driver, asked Tucker to move two seats to the rear, directing attention to company regulations which state that Negro passengers shall occupy seats from the rear and white passengers from the front.

When Tucker declined to move, Blaylock left the bus, returning later with a policeman and a warrant. Tucker again was asked to move. When he again refused to do so, he was arrested.

The warrant charged that Tucker on October 28 violated Virginia law by causing "an unnecessary disturbance in a public conveyance, to wit, a Trailways motor bus, by failing to move to another seat when lawfully requested to so move by the operator."

John J. Wicker Jr., who acted as special prosecutor at the request of the Commonwealth's Attorney, told the court in his opening statement that signs are prominently displayed by the bus company in the Washington terminal and on the vehicles stating that the company reserves the right to change seating arrangements and also stating that white passengers should occupy space nearest the front and Negro passengers nearest the rear.

Defense Attorneys Martin and Oliver W. Hill took the position that it is "unreasonable and unconstitutional" to use the Virginia Code in enforcing segregation. They told the court that quiet refusal of a passenger to move from one seat to another does not constitute creating a disturbance.

Wicker tol dthe court that in the court that in the widely publicized Irene Morgan case, the United States supreme court ruled that public carriers are not bound by staate laws on segregation, but that it also ruled that the carriers can make their own rules and regulations governing their operation and concerning matters affecting the comfort and convenience of their passengers. He said an operator has a right to require a passenger to move in the interest of such comfort and convenience. He asserted the Tucker case and the Irene Morgan case were "completely different."

The defense declared that the cases were identical in circumstances; that both involved interstate commerce and that Tucker had a right to occupy all the way to Emporia the seat he took in Washington.

The Tucker case is one of several in which colored persons have been convicted in Virginia courts of creating a disturbance on an interstate but by refusing to move to a rear seat and in which appeals are now pending.

The State law governing disturbances on public conveyances has been in effect for some years. It did not apply, however, to buses until this year, when the 1946 General Assembly so amended it.

The defense attorneys in the Tucker case said they would fight it all the way to the United States supreme court, if necessary.

Court Orders New Election in Imperial Lodge

NEW YORK — Automatically lifting the suspension of Imperial Lodge No. 127, I. B. P. O. E. of W., of 160 West 129th street, in New York City, and holding the J. Finley Wilson-directed election of a group of alleged insurgent members which was held on August 20 in the lodge home, illegal, New York State Supreme Court Judge James B. M. McNally ruled that Imperial Lodge No. 127, of the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World should hold another election at which all of the members of the lodge would be present on December 3, at which the district deputy of the Grand Lodge must be present, and to be supervised by Judge John R. Davis, another judge of the New York Supreme Court.

In dispensing his Court Order for a new election, which would be representative of the entire membership of the lodge, Judge McNally tacitly ignored the frenzied pleas of Wilson and his counsel, Attorneys Perry Howard and Watts, that Imperial Lodge break down or dissolve their N. Y. state corporation immediately and turn over the members' property to Elkdom's Grand Lodge. Instead, he made the above ruling and adjourned the case until December 13. Imperial Lodge's property holdings, which are owned exclusively by the members, are listed at approximately $500,000, with a yearly revenue of over $100,000.

State Dept. Hits Election 'Terror' Outside of Dixie

WASHINGTON—"As a result of manipulations of the electoral registers, the procedures followed in conducting the balloting and the counting of votes, as well as by intimidation through terrorism of large democratic elements of the electorate, the franchise was on that occasion effectively denied to important sections of the population."

z The above could well be an indictment of Bilboism in the South, but it is instead directed against the recent elections in Roumania in which the government parties won an overwhelming victory against the former ruling parties, dominated by the feudals element for which the U. S. state department has, since the death of President Roosevelt, developed a powerful affection.

The statement was issued by acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson, following the wail of the discredited "opposition" parties in Roumania that the elections were "unfair" and "not expressive of the popular will."

Twenty Families Move Into Completed Tuskegee Units

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—In order to meet the needs of veterans with families attending Tuskegee Institute, special housing units are being constructed in the J. H. Washington project on Franklin Road. Last week, 20 veterans and their families moved into recently completed units which are completely furnished. As there are more than 1200 veterans alone attending the Institute, Tuskegee's housing situation is found to compare favorably with the rest of the colleges throughout the nation.

Because of these crowded conditions existing in the majority of colleges today, the American Red Cross has inaugurated a special training program to help the veteran adapt himself to his confined living conditions. Known as the Special Education Project for Veterans, its objectives are to train veterans and their families special techniques, in accident prevention and first aid, also to cook wholesome meals rapidly and, if necessary, on electric "hot plates," and how to care for sickness in their home before and after the doctor comes.

The American Red Cross has selected three schools, of which Tuskegee Institute is one, to start this program.

Byrnes' Right to Speak for Democracy Questioned by Speaker at Lawyers' Meet

DETROIT, Mich.—(NNPA)—Adopting resolutions condemning Senator Theodore Bilbo, Democrat, of Mississippi, and asking for his unseating, and urging President Truman to appoint a special assistant attorney general to investigate vote frauds in Mississippi in connection with the recent reelection of Bilbo, the 21st annual convention of the National Bar association came to an end here Sunday.

The members also adopted a resolution Friday urging Truman and Secretary of State James Byrnes to use their influence to check imperialism on the part of UN members, and that the National Bar association memorializes the legal talents of the UN to eliminate discrimination against minority groups in the United States.

President Earl B. Dickerson, member of the Chicago Bar, a former member of the FEPC, also said that "Secretary of State James F. Byrnes cannot plead the cause of democracy and seek free elections in other countries as long as he remains silent about the conditions in South Carolina, his native state."

Progress has been made in the judicial drive on discrimination in public transportation, said Attorney Richard Westbrooks, Chicago, chairman of the NBA civil rights committee, but Westbrook warned that all progressive forces must get behind legal forces to retain and further extend the victories

Theodore M. Berry, Cincinnati, in his talk on segregation in public places, said that although 18 states have civil rights laws of some kind, successful prosecution of violators is rare. Principal reasons, Berry stated, is the reluctance of jurors to serve in such cases and the high cost of litigation to plaintiffs.

In the restrictive covenants report, Loren Miller, Los Angeles, who presided at the discussion, urged that the United States be directed by the United Nations to establish and guarantee rights of minorities on a sociological basis.

C. LeBron Simmons, president of the Wolverine Bar association, host to the more than 300 delegates, welcomed the lawyers. The theme of the convention was "second class citizenship and mob violence must go."

The election of officers was held Sunday morning. Washington, D. C., was selected as the city for the 1947 convention.

Chest Smith, fourth vice president, presided at the final morning session of the convention Sunday, at which time the entire slate of officers was re-elected. Voted back into office were: Earl Dickerson, Chicago, president; J. Robert Booker, Loren Miller, J. Mercer Burrell, and Smith, first, second, third and fourth vice presidents respectively; Sadie T. M. Alexander, Philadelphia, secretary, and Harold T. Gassaway, treasurer.

Leads Chest Drive

The Adams Central district, Mrs. Josephine Brown, chairman, this week was still leading in the Community Chest drive, with $4894 from 769 contributions and 87 per cent of its quota.

South Park district, Mrs. A. Troy, chairman, reported $1342 from 440 contributions, or 79 per cent of the quota.

Klan Delaying Trial, Pins Hope On Talmadge

ATLANTA—(NNPA)—The Ku Klux Klan through a series of dilatory tactics appeared to have won assurance that the State's suit to revoke its charter will never come to trial and will be dropped when Governor Eugene Talmadge takes office January 14.

A similar suit against the Columbians, Inc., recently formed organization whose activities are directed against Negroes and Jews, was deferred for trial to the first of 1947 at the earliest when the new group filed a demurrer to the quo warranto action on last Friday's deadline for an answer.

Court officials said that a hearing on the legal questions in the suit against the Ku Klux Klan could not be scheduled until the week of December 16, and the earliest the case could go before a jury would be the week of January 13. Talmadge takes office on January 14, and he has announced that once he is in the governor's seat, he will order the suit against the Klan dropped.

On that same day Assistant Attorney-General Dan Duke, who has relentlessly pushed court actions against both the Klan and the Columbians, announced he will resign his office.

Klan Counsel Morgan Belser last Friday filed a plea claiming "traverse of service" and seeking dismissal of the suit on the grounds that proper service had not been made upon Klan officers. This would provide an additional delaying tactic should the case somehow get to court before Talmadge gets to the Capitol.

The Columbians' demurrer, filed by Counsel J. E. B. Stewart, contended that the State's suit was based on "conclusions of the pleader" without facts to support them. Appearing with Stewart for the filisg was Columbian President Emory Burke, wearing a purple eye hung on him by Duke in court two weeks ago when the State's prosecutor lost his temper at anti-racial remarks made by the head of the new organization.

Training of Police in Human Relations, Abolition of Church Jimcrowism Urged by Speakers

NEW YORK—(NNPA)—The training of police to deal with the basic problems of race relations as an efficient means of avoiding future conflicts was urged here by Dr. Will S. Alexander, vice president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund. He addressed leaders of social, educational and religious groups attending a conference on human relations.

The delegates met under the auspices of the American Missionary Association, as part of its 100th anniversary. The session was held in the Broadway Tabernacle, Broadway at 56th street, which was a center of anti-slavery agitation a century ago.

Dr. Alexander's proposal followed his reference to the subject under discussion as "a national problem" involving many minority groups. He made the further recommendation that all organizations engaged in the work should pool their experiences in the interest of progress. The actual training of police departments in large cities of the Middle West and California was the outgrowth of interracial outbreaks in Detroit during the war, he said.

Dr. George Haynes, director of the department of race relations in the Federal Council of Churches, said the program of that federation has led to the development of "interracial clinics" in 22 cities throughout the United States, where religious, social, business and labor leaders study the social ills of their communities and agree on means of combating them.

The church's part in the program was stressed also by Dr. Galen Weaver, director of the committee on church and race of the Congregational Christian Churches.

"The church, which is one of the most segregated of our major istitutions, must become inclusive," he asserted.

The views of the Southern Regional Council, active in dealing with interracial problems, were expressed by Paul Williams, its president. Progress in the betterment of race relations is trying to keep pace with progress in other fields among the Southern states, he said. He noted, especially, the survey recently conducted by a council of leaders in Jacksonville, Fla., the Kentucky Committee on Negro Affairs and the investigation of conditions in Columbia, Tenn.

Marian Perry, assistant special counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Julius Thomas, director of industrial relations for the National Urban Leaue, outlined some of the difficulties experienced in coping with current problems in both the political and industrial fields.

Margaret Halsey, author of the current book Color Blind, was the principal speaker at the evening session. She asserted that "millions of white Americans feel conscience-stricken about the treatment of Negroes," but don't know what to do about it.

"It is always assumed," she said, "that the chief thing needed to improve race relations is, by some sort of magical brain surgery, to make bigots tolerant. The first point of attack is to supply people of good-wil lwith techniques whereby they can get to know Negroes with whom they have interests in common."

Dr. Fred L. Brownlee, general secretary of the American Missionary Association, said that while the society had striven for emancipation and education of Negroes during the last hundred years, it must work for an "end of all segregation and the integration of all races into the common life of the nation" during the next century.

Dr. Benjamin F. Mays, vice president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and president of Morehouse college, Atlanta, Ga., said that a pattern of political democracy, fostered by the federal government, will point the way to progress in other fields.

He called on the federal government and the church to take the lead in setting a pattern of thinking in terms of the whole community rather than in terms of the individual. He pointed out that it is in the nature of human beings to rely on what they can see and hear and not in what they are told to believe about democracy.

CIO Calls for United Front Of Negro, White R. R. Workers In Appeal to Pullman Porters

CHICAGO—Leaders of the Pullman Porters' National Organization Committee for CIO yesterday called for an organized and united front of railroad employes for the general welfare of all railroad workers rather than a competitive struggle of segregated unions for group advantage.

The declaration stemmed from jurisdictional disputes between the AFL's porters organization and the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, operating thtrough the Raliway Employes' Department, AFL.

Chief necessity for such procedure on the part of the pullman porters, especially, was further emphasized when it was pointed out that the American Federation of Labor was not making progress toward elimination of traditional railroad labor discrimination; while the CIO through one international has waged a vigerous campaign to offset company hiring bias. It was also pointed out that CIO has tackled many long standing grievances fo railroad workers successfully.

As a practical solution to the present condition of pullman porters and other railroad workers a spokesman for the CIO group stated: "It is not too much to suggest that pullman porters follow the iniative of the Redcaps and other foresighted employes and join an International of workers made up of all races and creeds which has by its constitution and by-laws outlawed discrimination. Also resources of the CIO have already been pledged to bring into actuality racial justice.

Wesley Walker, national organizer for the CIO groups, asserted that "unprogressiveness and the spineless action on issues of importance to world labor has offered no answer nor inspiration to colored railroad workers to longer remain associated with the American Federation of Labor."

"The issue now is lasting peace. The workers of the world must win that peace in the shops and in their union halls. It cannot be won with one segment—important segment tho it were—of labor refusing to take a forthright stand on the issues of economic, social and political discrimination against workers of color," Walker declared.

Long Beach Woman to Be Arraigned Fri.

LONG BEACH—(SCP)—Sarah May Hamilton, accused of the fatal stabbing of Fred Cobb on Nov. 3, was today trying to raise money for an attorney.

When she appeared without legal counsel Friday in Long Beach superior court her arraignment was carried over to Dec. 6. By that time she hoped to receive funds from relatives in the East.

Miss Hamilton resides at 1104 East 19th street, Long Beach.

A survey of Los Angeles' traffic conditions, started before the war, may be completed if Lt. Col. F. M. Kreml, head of Northwestern university's traffic school, accepts an invitation extended by police commissioners to finish the job, the police department said yesterday.

The Charles Edwards 'Epic' Moves Into a New Phase as Pseudo Lawyer Takes Over

By EDWARD (Babe) ANDERSON

The withdrawal of Atty. Crispus A. Wright as defense counsel for Charles Joseph Edwards this week brought an end to the much-publicized opening phrase of the pseudo-lawyer's tilt with the law. Atty. Wright stated that his withdrawal, while coluntary, was forced upon him by Edwards' refusal to accept his counsel. Wright had indicated that a plea of insanity was the best possible defense. Edwards, however, has steadfastly refused to consider it.

Humor in the situation—a non-bar-member "lawyer" refuting the counsel of an accredited attorney—is backed by much that is pertinent to the whole picture of the "Edwards epic."

After interviewing Edwards in the County jail, I was convinced that he was suffering from some sort of mental derangement. However, whenever I met anyone on the street the first thing they would say was: "What about this Edwards guy? He sure was smart, wasn't he?"

At first, I tried to put forth the theory that Edwards was not particularly "smart" or intelligent; nor was he any sort of a "con-man." Patiently, I tried to convey the opinion that the whole case was over played-up in the dailies and that I thought Edwards was nothing more than a sort of "glamorized neurotic." But no, no one would have any of that. They had a modern Francios Villon in their midst, and nobody could tell them otherwise.

Not to be outdone, I began to ask about Edwards' past from people who had known him. My informats told of past escapades varying from petty thievery to impersonating an army officer. Such things as his appearance in a photo with Gerald L. K. Smith were explained away; informats declaring that he had only acted as a sort of doorman at a meeting in Smith's honor, and that Smith knew nothing of him—and thought he was part of the welcoming committee's arrangements in his honor.

Another factor in my belief that the self-styled "seeker after truth" was not quite right was his use of grandiose and often world-encompassing statements in his "press releases."

"Information which I could personally reveal . . . aid to world unity" he told me. On another occasion, he is said to have announced, "I have cracked the Tony Adams case." No, I'm not a psychiatrist, but most everyone is familiar with the asylum inmate who traditionally feels that he is a "man of destiny."

But now I find that I was "wrong." Edwards himself declares that he is sane; and refuses to plead insanity, even though advised that it is his best defense. By his action "Atty" Edwards apparently intends to declare to the world that no doubt of his sanity should be allowed.

To which I can not resist the retort: Did you ever see a mentally sick person who admitted the presence of bats in belfry?

Can Any Good Come Out of the South?

While the more liberal minded citizens of the United States have been hoping against hope that there will be a change of policy in the pro-Fascist policies of some of the leaders of the South, we feel like throwing up our hands and wondering if there can possibly any good come out of the South when we read such instances as the following:

The KKK presented an $1800 De Soto automobile to the Grand Dragon, Dr. Samuel Green, and the newly-elected minority governor of Georgia sent his son, Herman Talmadge, to represent the family and to make a speech.

Herman made a speech just about like that of his father, "damned Jews, Catholics, and Niggers" alike, and spoke of the "constructive work" of the Grand Dragon, eulogizing him as "a splendid American of spotless character."

Grand Dragon Green, in accepting the gift, acclaimed the progress the KKK has made in recent years. Several years ago, he said, he often traveled far and wide and would be rewarded by having only a few members turn up at a meeting.

"But now," he boasted, "I am greeted wherever I go by a packed meeting hall. I believe in the Klan and will fight for it and for white supremacy with the last drop of my blood."

How long, O Lord, we want to say, will you permit such substitutes for men like this Talmadge, Green, Bilbo, Rankin, et al, to boast of how they are riding roughshod over the rights of 15,000,000 citizens of the United States?

It is a well-known fact that the KKK does not only deny the rights of American citizenship to Negroes. It is definitely known that it opposes everything liberal and progressive in labor, in education, in religion. Yet the more backward and reactionary it becomes, the seemingly more powerful does it grow.

"Packed meeting halls wherever I go!" said the Grand Dragon. "I will fight for white supremacy to the last drop of my blood!"

How shall we meet that challenge?

We, too, must organize. Organize as the Klan is organizing; as reaction is organizing everywhere. If these reactionaries can unite to oppose all that is good, to wage war perhaps to maintain that hellish ideal of "white supremacy," why shouldn't we become more active in opposing this scum of the earth?

Can any good come out of the South? Yes, there is a little good even there. And it shines with a brighter light because it is surrounded by all this darkness.

The CIO is actively engaged in organizing the working people of the South, Negroes and whites. And some day Gene Talmadge, Grand Dragon Green, Bilbo, Rankin, and all the others may wake up surprised that we, too, will fight "to the last drop of our blood" for those ideals which make for friendship, understanding, and peace, as they boast they will do for the evil they have concocted.

Down Which Road, Taxes?

So far as taxes are concerned, the Republicans have already whittled down some of the administrative expenses. Sounds good, doesn't it? But suppose we look at the other side a bit.

For the fiscal year which ended last June, California collected $1,019,104,000 in excess profits tax. It was this excess profits tax which the Republicans and all Big Business interests were expressly anxious to slaughter. Well, they've done it.

Congress decreed there should be no more excess profits tax, and as a consequence threw away more than one billion dollars from California alone. Multiply that by 48, and you'll come within a few million dollars of the entire loss to the treasury of the United States.

Now when the money doesn't come into the treasury one way, it must come another. You don't carry on such an immense business as the United States government, and pay such an enormous debt as this government has, with chicken feed. The taxes must come from some other source.

And that's what's worrying the manipulators of the nation's budget, and the collectors of the nation's taxes. Some day, they say, the people will wake up and find a sales tax slipped over on them—a tax on everything they eat, wear, and drink. When that happens they're afraid the people won't be so happy about it. And since the people of America are slowly beginning to wake up, there may be trouble.

Yes, it's fine to have our taxes cut. But it isn't fine to learn the road these taxes have taken is down our own lane.

CIO Continues to Reach Out

Never slowing up its efforts to see that all workers receive the kind of protection they need, the United Public Workers, CIO, has extended its organization to 20,000 "silver" workers in the Panama Canal Zone.

Robert Weinstein, director of the organization, has just returned from Panama, bringing with him considerable information which should prove of interest to us here.

The CIO, whose program covers certain aspects of foreign policy, political action, wage increases, organizing the unorganized, etc., considers that the organization of these silver workers into its ranks is of extreme importance in the struggles of colored peoples for justice and democracy.

Mr. Weinstein feels that the solution of the problems of these workers, to some extent, depends upon the awareness of people in this country to the conditions of working people abroad.

The CIO is a trade union body, representative of all political points of view and varied influences, and in its recent convention adopted a program which in the main gives a progressive lead on many of the major questions confronting labor and the nation.

As is generally the case at every large gathering, there were attitudes expressed with reference to the Negro question which were foreign to the CIO's basic policies and which went unanswered by all present.

The fact remains, however, that the CIO intends to give equal rights and protection to all workers, regardless of race or creed; thus its active interest in the solution of the problems of the "silver" workers is but another opportunity to prove its sincerity on this score.

Weinstein, who spent some time in the Panama Canal Zone, and who understands the situation of these particular workers, will be in Los Angeles during the next week, and will discuss in detail the present problems among "silver" workers in Panama, as well as ways and means by which the United Public Workers is attempting to solve them.

Dr. Uhl Joins in Demand For Better Housing

It is a matter of common knowledge that one of the most complex and perplexing problems of our city, and nation, is that of sufficient and proper housing.

One of the most recent outbursts against this shocking situation comes from Dr. George M. Uhl, city health officer, who states: "Animals in the zoo have better housing than some of Los Angeles' human residents, and the general picture here has begun to smell in more ways than one."

"All the dignity of man, his aesthetic values and outlook on life, to say nothing of his health, cannot help being depressed by living in such surroundings," Dr. Uhl said.

Of all persons whose health and joy of living are impaired by this unfortunate state of affairs, the Negro people, perhaps, are more directly affected. The evil of the restrictive covenants, which bar all "non-caucasians" from certain residential sections of our city, have forced Negroes, regardless of their station in life, into a virtual "ghetto" from which there seems to be no escape.

If it were not for this existing evil, the miserable condition of hundreds, yea thousands of Negroes, could be alleviated; for those of greater means could branch out into the higher rent districts, leaving many more comfortable, clean, lower rent houses which could be utilized by those with lower incomes. Then such make-shift abodes as vacant buildings, wtihout windows, converted warehouses with "built-in" rooms, basements without light or heat, garages, shacks and lean-to's in which men, women and children find shelter, until forced out by health department condemnations of said buildings, could be destroyed. For such conditions only create filth and disease which sooner or later will reflect in the life of the whole community.

The housing problem among returning G.I.'s has been marked and acute. Young men who sacrificed everything for the sake of their country now find it next to impossible to secure a decent home for themselves and their families. This, in the face of the government's promise to assure them of a home, upon their return from the conflict, is nothing short of calamitous.

Property-owners and land-owners who desire to render a valuable service to their city and country, may well look to the housing shortage and—act accordingly.

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

Our apologies are due the Communist Party for an error made in this column, November 15. In discussing the trends which are likely to follow this last election, I said, "And incidentally the radical elements in the Communist Party, the Trotskyites, are turning handsprings of joy at the trend events seem to be taking."

What I meant, and what I should have said, was: "The ultra-radical elements in the country who believe we must have a revolution in order to get rid of our present economic system, and who therefore are working zealously for that revolution, are turning handsprings of joy, etc."

For it seems the Trotskyites are not a part of the Communist Party. Pettus Perry, chairman of the Minorities Commission of the Communist Party, Los Angeles County, has set me straight on this. I'm giving you his letter.

The Trotskyites are no part of the Communist Party. In 1928, the Trotskyites were expelled from the American Communist Party and ever since then no one with Trotskyite leanings has been permitted to belong to the Party for the following reasons:

The Trotskyites have long ago ceased to be a trend in political thought. They are outright agents of the most reactionary sections of finance capital.

All during the Hitler regime the Trotskyites conspired with Hitler and the Japanese Militarists in thei war against the people at home and abroad.

It was the Trotskyite organization known as the P.O.U.M. who organized revolts behind the Loyalist lines in 1937, at the very time that the democratic forces of Spain were struggling to bury fascism at the gates of Madrid.

The Trotskyites were long the conspirators against the Soviet Union. It was they who supplied the capitalist class with all the anti-Communist propaganda beginning with "Impossibility of Socialism In One Country," "Stalin Bureacracy," "Moscow Domination" and sundry other anti-Communist tripe.

Their role in the labor and progressive movement is to pretend to be progressive and radical while working to undermine the organization in which they might be participating. The Trotskites basted in their paper of January 1946, of the fact that they entered the Socialist Party in 1936, in order to destroy it from within.

All during the war when it was a question of a Hitler victory or a victory of the people, the Trotskyites had hardly a passing reference of criticism to fascism. Their whole line was an attack upon the Roosevelt Administration, the American government and its allies.

All during the war in every union where Trotskyites participated, at the slightest provocation, they would urge strikes and general strikes, a thing that would have guaranteed the victory of Hitler. In the Fontana case, for the past few months, they attempted to convince the Negro people that instead of organizing a sincere struggle against KKK activity and for the prosecution of those guilty of the murder of the Short family, they should "organize defense squads in every block to protect the rights of the workers." This seems revolutionary, but actually had the Negro people accepted this plan, it would have been an invitation to mass violence and slaughter by the KKK and the Sheriff and the Police Department of that community.

The Trotskyites are a small bunch of conspirators representing no mass influence, but it takes thousands of men to build a bridge or a dam, and half a dozen to blow it up. They are the dangerous disrupters that all progressive people must fight against.

The Communist Party on the other hand can proudly stand on its record as an unyielding fighter for the rights of the Negro people and all minorities and for the interest of the working people in their struggle against monopoly capitalism. We Communists are proud to be counted among that section of the American people that have consistently insisted upon a return to the Roosevelt program. During the election and since, we are the staunchest fighters for all of the progressive policies of the Roosevelt program. We are among the most progressive fighters for maintaining peace.

The Trotskyites, on the other hand, are doing every single thing possible to undermine the coalition against the rise of reaction in the United States and the drive of American Imperialists towards a Third World War. From this it should be clear that the Trotskyites are the agents of all the fascist forces. They are so-called left wing agents that operate among labor and progressive people for disruptive purposes. We Communists stand with and for all progressive causes effecting any sections of the population.

You can easily guess from this I am not a member of the Communist Party. Principal reason is that I don't believe I could stand up under the immense amount of work all Communists do. Indefatigable workers all, day and night. But I do believe definitely in the fundamental principles of Communism. I'm sure they are the same as those of Jesus, and of all lovers of mankind who are working for the creation of a new world where we shall hunger no more, neither be homeless any more. I'm sorry I made that error.

LABOR ON THE MARCH

ISAAC PRATT

In a radio broadcast coming out of Boston, James Malvey, president of Ford Local 901 United Automobile Workers, CIO, charged that attacks on minority groups are forerunners of attacks against free trade unions, free churches, and free schools.

Malvey, whose local includes all workers employed in the Ford assembly plant at Somerville, Mass., said, "The American trade unionist knows that racial and religious intolerances are weapons frequently turned against his union."

He recognizes that the American worker comes from varied origins, that European Fascism that brought on World War II is now at work in America.

Union leaders such as Walter P. Reuther and James Malvey, leaders in UAW-CIO, are doing an effective job wiping out discrimination from the industries over which they have jurisdiction.

Let all the people be heard on this issue: Fourteen citizens of this community are in the hands of the law, mainly because they dared to speak out against those who conspired to deprive them of their rights.

It is not so much the fourteen citizens who were indicted for criminal conspiracy that should concern us, but the fact that this is a thrust in the dark against organized labor.

If this and other such situations are carefully analyzed, we shall soon understand why Columbia studios and other Big Business interests object to laboring people uniting in what they call labor organizations. Yet only through such organized efforts will we be guaranteed the right to live decently, and according to the security guaranteed to us by our Constitution.

Now this is too ridiculous to mention. But here it is. The Industrial Press Service accuses John L. Lewis, Union "dictator," of paralyzing the nation's soft coal production by a mere waggle of his eyebrows. Now this seems like delegating power in the class of the atom bomb to one man.

Such an accusation makes one feel like asking this question: Are not the mine owners responsible for any part of this strike?

Who gets the profit, the people who dig the coal out of the earth or the mine owners who live part of the time in Europe and the other part in Miami, Fla., or in New York in pursuit of pleasure?

It is not the waggle of Lewis' shaggy brow or wiggly eyes that keeps these miners fighting for better wages. It's the pinch in their hungry bellies, and the weary watching of their wives and babies living under the mean conditions their low wages afford.

Fear is being instilled in the hearts of the workers at the Federal Building, by an order allegedly coming from the personnel dept., that there must be no fraternization between colored and white employees.

If a newspaper is borrowed by a white person, from a colored—the reaction is as if the "Gestapo" was in operation because the next day that person passes with baited breath and fails to even say "good morning."

Office boy work to qualified men who other wise would be deputies.

Badly ventilated positions for their desks, etc.

An assertion made by Mr. Joseph Smith to Hubert Bain, that "if he were white, he would have been made a deputy, etc." and Mr. Smith's subsequent denial when brought before Judge Westover.

There is no doubt that a concerted effort exists to rob people of color, of their dignity, and whatever incentive they may have for self betterment. All this in the Internal Revenue Bureau of Los Angeles, to the average mind, is certainly incredible.

Members of the Women's Division of the State Industrial Commission meeting in Los Angeles, this week, succeeeded in putting into effect a 70-cent hourly wage rate for women and minors. Offered as a motion by Leroy Goodbody of San Diego, and seconded by Mae Stoneman of Los Angeles, a vice president of the AFL State Federation of Labor, the pay raise, if adopted, will go into effect in approximately two months.

This wage boost represents an increase of 25 to 30 cents an hour, and is a step forward in the cause of labor.

In a wire to Pat Casey, chairman of the Producers Labor Committee on November 23, Herbert K. Sorrell, president of the Conference of Studio Unions demanded an end to the delay in negotiations, asking for completion of contracts and the return of all members to their jobs without discrimination.

A speedy sentence is expected in the John L. Lewis trial, since the Government is racing against time in the face of a cold wave sweeping the eastern seaboard, where the coal shortage may hit the hardest. In closing its case against Lewis, testimony was introduced to show that a prolonged strike would cripple steel production, rail transportation and shut down many industries which must have soft coal to survive.

A jail or fine sentence, or both, faces the shaggy-browed Lewis, as well as the union.

The trial was stepped up as the capital itself experienced its coldest December 2 since 1930., and Rep. John Rankin, D., Miss., told reporters after a conference with Truman, that the Chief Executive planned to send the new, Republican-controlled Congress "the strongest message he knows how to prepare" asking for legislation to protect the people against the intolerable conditions under which they are now suffering as a result of the coal strike.

The Times building became the center of attraction, Monday, as about 50 members of the AFL Conference of Studio Unions picketed the Republican Los Angeles Times. They protested a front page story in Sunday's Times which said homes of two "non-striking employes" had been stoned, while honest printing would have reported the fact that the homes that were stoned belong to striking AFL workers.

"Times unfair" and "The Times doesn't print the truth" were among signs carried by the locked-out film workers.

The Road to Health

By L. G. PINKSTON, M.D.

PROTECTION AGAINST DIPHTHERIA

"But she justha d a little fever and a sore throat, Doctor," June's mother said. "I didn't think it was bad enough to bother you with."

Four-year-old June was a very sick child. The mother thought it was just a bad cold when the child first complained of slight difficulty in swallowing, chilliness and aching pains in back and limbs. She did not think June could be very sick, because her fever was only a little above normal. It was not until the third day of the child's illness that I was called in. June didn't have "just another cold." She had diphtheria, a very serious disease for a child under five.

We had a hard time pulling the little girl through. Afterwards, when June was well on the road to recovery, I admit I scolded her mother. She had neglected to take June to a doctor or well-baby clinic for more than a year. Certainly, June had been in the best of health. She had not needed treatment of any kind. But if the child had had a check-up, the doctor would have advised a simple test, called the Schick test, to find out whether she was likely to get diphtheria. The test would have been positive, and June would have been given "shots" of anti-toxin to make her immune to the disease.

Since this was not done, June's mother should have called me as soon as the first hymptoms appeared. It is so important to begin treatment of a diphtheria case promptly. We treat diphtheria by injecting a serum called "anti-toxin" into the patient. If this is begun on the first or second day of the illness, recovery is almost certain. The danger increases with each day of delay.

Diphtheria is a highly infectious disease. The germs are passed directly from one person to another. The germs can remain alive for many months. Sometimes they are carried in milk or by infected articles. Sometimes healthy persons, "carriers" who have no sign of the disease themselves, pass the germs on to others. Diphtheria appears most often in November, December and January. Children living in small communities or in the country seem more likely to get it than those living in crowdede quarters in cities.

Many persons exposed to diphtheria never catch it at all. June's mother should have known about the Schick test, which finds out whether a person is immune, since her two older children had been given it in school. Fortunately, they had a negative reaction which proved they carried the anti-toxin in their blood. If they had not been proved immune I would have given them injections as soon as I discovered their sister had diphtheria. Antitoxin should be given when any person, of whatever age, not known to be immune, has been exposed to the disease.

I should like to see every child between the ages of six months and two years have "shots" to prevent diphtheria. At birth, 85 percent of babies are immune, but this immunity, which comes from the mother, disappears at six to nine months. At this age the danger from diphtheria begins. Deaths from the disease occur mostly in children from one to five years old.

I want to emphasize that, with the knowledge doctors now have, diphtheria can be controlled. If parents cooperate, we may be able to wipe it out altogether.

PULPIT VOICE

By Hamilton T. Boswell

WORSHIP, EXERCISE FOR THE SOUL

Exercise and practice are essentials. The boy who aspires to be another Kenny Washington, excelling on the gridiron amid the wild cheers and excitement of the growing throngs of football fans, will never accomplish this ambition if he fails to keep in practice and training. The young girl who visualizes herself as another Marion Anderson will get no further than the dream if she will not subject herself to the long and grinding hours of practice, exercise and training.

The parallel holds outside of the above specializations, for we never derive the best out of our body or mind unless we give care to exercise for the body and a sturdy discipline for the mind. Equally is this true regarding the soul of man. Man will never experience the full capacity of the soul in terms of inner peace, good will, understanding and other qualities of the spirit, if he neglects to exercise, practice and train his soul with a regular and systematic discipline of prayer and worship. It is worship and not entertainment that keeps the soul in tip top condition.

Anyone passing South Park in the early morning will look with amazement at men, dressed in heavy clothing running all over the park, and keeping this up for hours. But the prize fighter knows that road work and this type of endurance exercise is an essential. He knows that despite how fing wise he may be or how hard a wallop he may carry in either hand, that unless the develops the stamina of his legs by constant roadwork, he will never be a champion. To become a champion a prizefighter must keep in training. Each time that Joe Louis enters the ring, despite his terrific punch or other advantage, we must also remember that behind Joe Louis are long, tedious hours of exercise and training.

In a superior court recently a brilliant young Negro attorney made a very impressive deliberation before the judge and jury which caused his client to be freed from the charges against him. Everybody was proud of that young man whose knowledge of the law was so factual and convincing. On the way out of the court room, a very proud "race man" remarked. "My that boy was just born smart." To be sure there could be no mistake that the young attorney possessed much native intelligence. The creative use of his trained mind clearly indicated this genius. Too much, however, was being overlooked in the sincere remark of that proud observer who saw in that young attorney everything that he himself would be. Despite the brilliant mind, nevertheless, there were months and months and years and years of training and preparation.

In earlier years he had had to forego many of the pursuits of normal young men. He gave himself as a slave to training and preparation and it was this exercising of a brillinat mind that produced a well trained man of law. There are men walking the streets of Central avenue with native intelligence far above their bawdy occupations, yet these untrained and undisciplined minds cannot cope with men of preparation and training—even those who have very little native intelligence. It is exercise, training, preparation and discipline that derives the best from the body, mind and soul.

Jesus said, "Men ought always to pray." Spiritual awkwardness was to Jesus but the result of inactivity of the spirit and soul. Although men bound their bodies and kept darkness in their minds yet none despite his power could put a chain around the human soul. Yet the spirits of people were flabby and slouchy. Here again we overlook the struggle of Jesus because we only see his divinity.

The gospel record reveals that every great trial with which Jesus was confronted, he always met it with a constant discipline of prayer. It was his exercise of constant worship which strengthened his soul to meet the hardships in his life. His muscles of the soul were in perfect tone, and underneath the weight which often burdens the soul he stood firm and strong.

There are people today who cry out against the strain and stress of life and its worrisome problems. Too often however, it is not so much the weight of the problem as it is the weakness of the spirit, which going for years without the exercise of worship and prayer, in the moment when it is called to trail is weak and out of condition for the test. We become aware of our rundown spiritual condition as He says to us as to Simon Peter, "Simon sleepeth thou? couldst not thou watch one hour". There are many today who do not watch at all. But the day comes when we shall escape, not by fleetness of legs or shrewdness of mind, but only by the quality and condition of the soul. Yes, men ought always to pray.—Minister Brown, Memorial Methodist Church.

The Common Defense

WORTHY OF EMULATION

More evidence that Christian Americans have entered the lists for keeps against the forces of injustice and prejudice came from Georgia only a few days ago.

A courageous Baptist minister, Rev. Joseph A. Róbun, formerly a chaplain in the United States marine corps and pastor of the very church to which Governor-elect Talmadge belongs, stood up before the State Baptist Convention, representing 600,000 Christians, and demanded the passage of a strong resolution affirming Christian principles of justice and condemning racial resolution affirming Christian principles of justice and condemning racial and racial hate.

Rev. Rabun contended that as a chaplain in the armed forces he had "fought against prejudice and oppression in other lands and that it was just as right to fight them in his own church." One convention delegate, trying to dissuade him, suggested that a safe and sane resolution could easily be passed. The minister's reply was, "Our Lord was not safe and sane." Overcoming all opposition, he drove the resolution through.

In its final form it stated, "We hereby proclaim our traditional stand that every man has the same right to participate in the blessings of our American way of life, and that no man shall be discriminated against because of race, creed or color." And further that "all Christian people of Georgia, particularly Baptists, speak forth with every ounce of energy by word, deed, and thought, against the preaching of so-called patriotic groups which have so recently found birth upon the soil of our Southland; which same groups are but a counter-part of Nazi hate groups, precahing a so-called race superiority, and are neither American nor Christian."

The burden and brunt of answering the attack of the hate propagandists, who are bent on destroying our form of government, ought to be—and must be—borne by the Christians of America. For it is Christian principles of justice and the rights of man which are being attacked—the kind of free government Christians did much to creat which is being threatened. Rev. Rabun and the Georgia Baptist know this as their brave resolution shows. They deserve our gratitude—and our emulation.

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

BILL OF RIGHTS WEEK COMES AGAIN—But—

All over the land next week will be observed as our annual "Bill of Rights Week." Speakers will extol the virtues of this great instrument born of the days the fathers of this great country had just completed a war to end tyranny and a fight to follow that war with the winning of a peace which they hoped might make secure forever the freedom of every American to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. And now, with the spotlight cast full on this ancient American Document we look each to his own home town and state for the picture on its social scene. How does it go as pertains to an adaquate celebration of "Bill of Rights Week"?

Nationally we have a picture of a pitched battle between the long exploited worker and his government, which has so long neglected his welfare that imperfect leaders must fight his battles before a confused people who do not see why they must suffer in order to bring his cause and his plight to the full view of his nation.

In sunny California the beauty of the land, the loveliness of its people are threatened by determined forces who appear to have succeeded in marning the picture to the embarrasement of the coming celebration of "Bill of Rights Week." As did Hitler in his heyday, they now seek to make this fair land the home of those who are "superior" simply because they are protestant whites. Dispite the preponderance of decent people in the state then forces flaunt the Bill of Rights, the spirit of democracy and basic Christian doctrine to make men inferior simply by reason of their race, color or religion. The small fry among them wear sheets over their heads. The big shots among them pay huge sums of money to confuse the people with deliberate lies against the FEPC bill and try to coeree Christian ministers into betraying that democratic instrument.

The so-called "Committee for Tolerance", we understand was financed and fostered by such men as head Butler Brothers, Bank of America and other members of the Chamber of Commerce. This committee deliberately raised the silly question "Would you like to see your sister . . . working side by side with people of other races . . ?" And in th name of "Tolerance". They are just as much the enemies of the "Bill of Rights" and plain social decency as is the shulking criminal who deliberately burned a nearly-finished home of a hard working American just because he was not white, as reported in the EAGLE last week. They are spiritual brothers if not the plotters behind the plotters who circulated the Compton community with cards bearing this message to Wilson Wyatt, National Housing Administrator, Washington, D. C.:

"Demand your office take immediate action to remove limitation on white priorities and make Palmer Grant development in West Compton Area white. Action of your office in refusing white priorities and compelling builder to build for colored is destroying value of hundreds of white homes in area and creating a race problem—many of these homes on long term GI loans. This is the rawest deal ever handed GIs, and whites, by any political click. Demand these communists inspired ideas be stopped at once."

Yes, they are all such strangers to American law and world conditions that when any matter is truly representative of democracy and the Bill of Rights they invariably yell "COMMUNIST"! We are reliably informed that the petitions referred to above are being circulated by the compton Real Estate Board and or the Compton Chamber of Commerce.

Police brutality appears to continue from week to week regardless of the writing and talking there has been about it. The trouble it appears is that police officers, like senators, would rather white-wash than convict fellow officers. This gives the fascist-minded among them a field day for their exploits. We are told that a new practice among them is to pick up a likely looking Negro prospect, bang him around and shake him down for a sum to "Keep out of jail."

All of this at the advent of Bill of Rights Week seems to mean that we in California are not quite ready to celebrate it at this time. Will the mayor and police board please take note.

Analyzing the Situation

By DON LORING

I guess Central avenue will begin to wonder if I have anything at all to comment on because of my failure to date to do so. Well you may be assured I have, but it will take several columns to tell it all. And because there are several other matters which are more pressing than what has to be said concerning Central avenue. In trying to keep the public informed as to events and happenings which do not make the headlines I want to bring to you the events which need urgent attention.

The local papers published some time ago the amazing facts of the large percentage of weight scales that are not up to par. From the offices of County Sealer Charles M. Fuller comes the report that in Los Angeles county for last year only 116,000 of the 152,000 scales tested were found correct. This means that thousands of people were 'cheated' out of what they thought they were paying for.

There are always some dishonest dealers who make it a practice of pinching a few pennies from each sale by giving short weight or short measure, not much, only an ounce or two you never notice. An ounce is such a small fraction of a pound we would never notice it unless we are accustomed to watching the scales. But think of what that ounce on each sale does for the merchant. Of course there are legitimate merchants who are careless and do not watch their weighing devices, but nevertheless the results are the same, you are paying for something you do not get.

The inspectors and investigators, under the direction of the county sealer work the year 'round to enforce provisions of the State Business and Professional Code, but they are powerless to halt these practices unless given the public's assistance. I am quite sure there are not any of us who appreciate having some one go into our pockets and "just" take our money. Well, that's just what happens. It is up to you, the purchasers, to see that you get your weights to the full pound.

Here's what you can do. When making a purchase don't be hesitant to stare at the scale; it's your money paying for the purchase so you have a right to see that you get what you pay for and not an ounce less. Be sure that the needle on the scale starts at "0", it must split the "0" in half to be correct. You don't have to be an Einstein to know whether or not the needle on the scale is directly on the "0." You'll be amazed at how many are set just a little ahead an ounce or so and sometimes not quite an ounce, but if you notice it you will quickly see that the scale is not correct.

If you notice the scale is not exactly right call it to the attention of your dealer. You don't have to be nasty about it, just have him notice it. If he's honest he'll thank you, in any event you'll get your money's worth. Don't suspect him of cheating and promise not to shop there anymore, you may be doing him an injustice, he can't correct a mistake if he doesn't know it. If you are short changed you don't hesitate to call his attention to it, so don't hesitate to let him know you are short weighted

If the dealer is insolent there are two things you should do and do immediately. First, take your trade elsewhere. Second, notify the Department of Weights and Measures at 501 New High street. Your complaint will be confidential and trained investigators will check the case. If the seller is a cheat he will pay a heavy fine or spend some time in jail.

Many times we make purchases and when we get home we tend to say "this certainly doesn't feel like a pound". Are you really sure it is? Even if your dealer is honest it still doesn't have to be a pound. Be sure to check your purchases at home if your home scale is not adjusted take it to the county sealers office and he will check it without charge. If you haven't got a home scale, buy one. It's better to spend a few dollars for something necessary then to give away ten times the same amount yearly.

Whenever there are injustices the Negro always suffer most. I don't know why this is so, but he does. I am quite sure there are any number of dealers in Negro communities who are purposefully short-weighting their customers. Don't let them do this to you, stand up for your rights, let the dealers know their scales are incorrect. And as I said previously, if they are negligent in attending to the incorrectness, take your trade elsewhere nad report them. If you don't know how to go about making a report send me a letter telling all the details and I'll do it for you. Now, is there any reason why you should continue to contribute to your dealer's wealth?

Pegler's Proud Protege

By CYRIL BRIGGS

In the process of criticizing a scandal-mongering column in the Los Angeles Sentinel, Almena Davis last week again took occasion to flaunt in the face of the Negro people her peculiar pride in her unenviable position as the one Negro editor to receive the unqualified praise of Westbrook Pegler, Hearst anti-Negro, anti-labor columnist.

This is an example of the mote and the beam with a vengeance. This writer has no intention of minimizing the offensiveness of The Sentinel's scandal column which was attacked by Miss Davis. That column is an example of gutter journalism which is neither typical of, nor exclusive to, the Negro press. It is highly reprehensible, deserves condemnation.

For more reprehensible, however, is Miss Davis' eager, oft-expressed gratification that an enemy of the Negro people should have singled her out for his commendation.

Most writers would properly consider Pegler's accolade a misfortune, a warning to carefully reappraise their attitudes and writings, consider why those attitudes, those writings should give comfort to an enemy of their people.

Not so Miss Davis. To her, Pegler's praise was manna from heaven, the breath of spring, scented incense and heady wine. Rather Pegler's praise than no praise. And, of course, if the Negro people do not find cause to praise Miss Davis, it is not, as Miss Davis sees it, because she has done so little to merit their praise, but because they are dumb and stupid, lacking in the higher intelligence of the Westbrook Peglers.

As to the Negro press, its failure to recognize Miss Davis' journalistic "genius" is easily explained — downright jealousy and envy. The lady herself has advanced that explanation time and again.

In her frequent references to Pegler's blessing of herself and her paper, Miss Davis has consistently ignored Pegler's main indictment of the rest of the Negro press, his assertion that in fighting jimcrow oppression during the war, it was hampering the war effort. Perhaps, because the springboard for this false indictment was a statement quoted by Pegler from one of Miss Davis' own editorials.

Miss Davis not only loves to flaunt the Pegler accolade. She actually defends Pegler's slanders. In her editorial last week she "recalled" how "a while back when Westbrook Pegler chose to agree with our criticism of the Negro press and added a few blasts of his own . . ." She then proceeded to ridicule the ensuing protest of the Negro press and Negro groups as based on the idea that "a shout of 'it's not so' en masse, would do in lieu of cleaning up the very evident, and still present, messes, to which Mr. Pegler referred."

Now, it is true that the Negro press, like the so-called white press, has grave faults crying for correction. But certainly neither Pegler nor the unsavory Hearst press he represents, nor yet Miss Davis and her paper is in a position to act as exemplars. This despite the Tribune's self-analysis of itself as a "model of journalism."

Neither Pegler's nor Miss Davis' criticism of the Negro press is constructive. Pegler attacks the Negro press because of its militancy in combatting jimcrowism and racists like himself. Miss Davis' destructive criticism serves only as ammunition for Pegler and his kind, as for example her tirades against her own people, her demand that Negroes return to "the simplest tenets of decency, cleanliness, thrift and perseverance," with its unwarranted inference that these qualities are today lacking in the character of the Negro.

Such sentiments are assured of the approval of the Peglers, the Bilbos and the Gerald Smiths. These racists would applaud, too, the lady's attack of Aug. 10, 1946, on the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority's program of actively aiding the fight to establish peace and a better world, her dictum that these earnest Negro women should leave to the diplomats and statesmen the concern with international problems, confine themselves to home building. In other words, the fascist dictum that woman's place is in the kitchen.

There are several characterizations one could use for Miss Davis' editorials in the Los Angeles Tribune. But, then, the lady furnished her own characterization in an editorial of Nov. 9, 1946—"mental diarrhea."

Trail Blazers: Sidney Preston Dones

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

SIDNEY PRESTON DONES

The boom spirit of California has affected real estate equally with jobs and sportswear. Certain residential places in Los Angeles heretofore closed to Negroes, cry out for new owners . . . places like the Crenshaw-Pico district and 1st and 10th avenues. 'Natives' will tell you that they remember the time when these were exclusixe white communities . . . when Negroes were only employes in these very homes. Sidney Dones, pioneer realtor and 32 years a local resident, has witnessed this mentamorphosis with much concern.

"Speaking about restrictions, the people don't know what restrictions are now . . . why I used to sell property to Negroes and sit on the front porch all night with my shot gun."

When Dones first started in real estate he had to supplement his income by scrubbing the floors of Manual Arts High school at night so that he could pay his office rent. He fathered the first Negro business district at 8th and Central.

In 1924 he founded Eureka Villa, now known a Val Verde.

This undeveloped community a few years later became Val Verde park, largely through Dones, who was instrumental in getting county support.

His second real estate venture was choosing a district near Fontana called Maloof, where small farm homes could be developed. In taking over this site, Dones cut the price of acreage more than half the original cost, and there founded Landon Townsite, a community housing more than 100 prosperous families with all the standard conveniences, just recently added.

Again in 1942, he founded the George Wahington Carver track, located at Rosecrans, 147th and Crenshaw blvd.

Historical 8th and Towne church holds many a cherished memory for old residents of this city. At the age of 19 Dones became a member of the choir and trustee board; it was during his membership in the choir that he met and married Bessie Williams, a talented young violinist in the choir. Two children were born from this marriage, a daughter, now married, Sidnetta Dones Smith, and a son, Sidney P. Dones Jr., who passed in 1933.

His fraternal and civic organizations include: the Masonic Lodge; member of the Shrine holding one of the highest degrees of the order, a 33rd degree Mason; associate grand patron of the Eastern Star; member of the Phil Beta Sigma fraternity member of the Republican Assembly; and he has served the state government in the selective service as re-employment committeeman, handling important cases.

Because of Dones' generous and sympathetic nature, his pleasures have had to take a back seat for his charities. A constant supporter of the Southeast Health Assn., NAACP, YMCA and Child's Welfare, he has contributed liberal sums to organizations working with underpriveleged children and juvenile delinquents.

But his favorite interest, outside of his profession, is race relations. "I've always been interested in race relations . . . my policy has been to lock the gate before trouble comes to try to remedy a situation that could have been minimized or entirely avoided," quietly and contentedly. "You always get out of any experience what you put into it." He has found this to be true in business, social, civic activities, and in his travels throughout America, Mexico, and the Hawaiian Islands.

Dones, fondly known as S[illegible] by intimate friends, lives quietly and alone in a large three story 14 room house on Hobart blvd. with his talking 'Heo' parrot and singing canaries. The most used rooms in his home are his suite and office on the second floor and the recreation room on the third, where he often retires to read and study. Close to 100 photographs hang on the walls of this friendly room.

Two of his most prized collections are a huge painting of the Crucifixion, depicting the agony and suffering of Christ being removed from the cross; and a [illegible] year old wood carving of the Crucifixion, 16 years in the making out of one solid piece of wood. These can be found at the foot and head of the landing going upstairs.

The heaviest sorrow to befall was the death of his son. He was so shaken up and grief-stricken that he became seriously ill. To combat this illness he took up the study of "Science of Mind" and religious philosophy. He was graduated from the Institute of Religious Science and Philosophy and its clinical department, last year. Early in 1946 he retired from all real estate activities with the exception of handling his own properties, to devote his full time to the practice of his profession as a metaphysician.

Sidney Dones explains his success on the grounds that success came to him when he lost all care for earning money. He believes God has let him prosper because this trial blazer's goodness and generosity toward others have been returned to him two-fold.

Nehru Spoke to World On the Forgotten Man

By R. LAL SINGH

As the vice-president of India's interim government, Jawaharlal Nehru thrilled the world in his first world broadcast on September 7.

"We aim at a co-operative commonwealth in which all would be equal sharers in opportunity and in all things that give meaning and value to life."

He pledged allegiance to the principles of international co-operation based on peace and freedom so that no class or group exploits another. About domestic policy, he promised that that would have to wait for a while. "We shall look to the common and forgotten man in India, and seek to bring him relief and raise his standards of living."

TEST OF THE PLEDGE

The common man of India hailed this declaration by the head of India's new government and called upon it, almost a few hours after it was made, to intervene in favor of the 4000 striking South Indian railwaymen, and fulfill one of the promises to the "common and forgotten man." The answer from the member-in-charge of railways in the new government was as follows:

"The general manager of the South Indian Railways is always willing to receive representatives of the Union . . . It is for the Union to call off the strike and request the management to examine any legitimate grievances in constitutional manner . . ."

The above reply handed to the general secretary of the All-India Railwaymen's Federation is not new in the chistory of the struggle of the common man for survival but it was an amazing example of the identification on the part of the new government with the bureaucratic callousness of vested interests.

The speed with which the interim government forgot the common man of India and his demand for a wage-scale commensurate with the high and still rising cost of living is shown in the murderous attack upon the strikers by the police in Madras only 24 hours after Nehru's thrilling radio broadcast to the world. Four workers were killed and over 100 injured. Special courts were set up in the striking area where arrested persons were tried and convicted without access to a lawyer's defense.

The police entered the houses of the workers and terrorized their women-folk by beating them and threatening them with further harm if they did not see that their men returned to work at once.

The heroic answer of the striking railwaymen to this blood-bath and terror, is greater firmness and solidarity of their strike.

THE COMMON MAN'S INTEREST

It is not an accident that in the very first week of office, the interim government through several of its prime-ministers launched an open attack on Trade Unions by branding them as Communists. It's a campaign planned in great detail and not foreign to Organized Labor abroad. The facts are, that with the coming of the new government in India, vested interests behind the Congress ministries are seeking to destroy labor's gains and to paralyze the struggle of the common man for

Birla, India's textile king and for the past quarter of a century backer of the Indian National Congress in its struggle against British rule, recently wrote an editorial in his Hindustan Times on the "Communist Menace", in which he seeks to prepare the ground for the eventual "legal repression" of labor and the Communists.

Years ago the imperialists tried by these very methods and excuses to destroy the working-class movement and to isolate it from the common stream of the national freedom movement.

The working-class movement will survive and gain strength out of this first round of bitter struggles but will be faced with new and fiercer struggles.

The struggle in India and the struggle abroad must be viewed as a related and common struggle. It must be clearly seen that imperialism seeks by conspiracy to divide the ranks of labor . . . it is a conspiracy against freedom of the people.

The fratricidal war between the Hindus and Moslems, between the Congress and the Moslem League, which continues in all its bestial grimness can only eat into the glorious traditions of common struggle of the masses against imperialism. But against this dark fatricidal frenzy, there is framed the common unity of the workers, peasants and the States-peoples which means that there is a light on the path of the other India . . . the India of common class interest, of real sovereign constituent assembly based on adult suffrage and self-determination.

The CIO Convention and The Fight on Fascism

By WILLIAM L. PATTERSON

Many are the stories which will come from the eighth convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO), so recently held in Atlantic City. One that will tower over all will be that story of how these forces who have taken a page out of Hitler's life story and who tried to destroy the CIO by a red-baiting campaign went down to defeat.

The victory of those who fought to hold the CIO together despite differences in political philosophy was a glorious victory. They were outnumbered but not out maneuvered. Their cause was the cause of the American people, for the destruction of the CIO would be a devastating blow to the progress of democracy in America. Surely the great CIO cannot be destroyed from without unless fascism emerges victorious in our country. It can, however, be destroyed from within and within the CIO are agents of all those elements who supported Hitler.

But the story of that epic struggle is not a story for us to tell. I was not there and what I know of it comes in fragmentary detail. But as I read the proceedings and events of the third day I glimpse a profound and real dramatic note.

That day began auspiciously. A message had been read from Paris, France, written by Louis Saillant, secretary general of the World Federation of Trade Unions. It brought greetings from 71,000,000 members in 56 nations. What a force for world democracy. Several vitally important resolutions had been moved and passed when President Philip Murray rose to introduce Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York City.

I do not know how Rabbi Wise stands politically. That does not matter here and now. But among his magnificent words were these:

"I shall not here attempt to tell the story of anti-Semitism . . . Insofar, however, as anti-Semitism is become a grievous challenge to democracy and to that industrial and social justice which men serve, it has become an American problem, your problem, a problem which enlightened masses of Americans and men like you, who are their representatives MUST seek to solve."

I emphasize the must.

When Rabbi Wise uttered those words the lesson of Germany and Hitler were close to heart and head. He associated anti-Semitism and Hitlerism.

"Gentlemen," he continued, ". . . the goal of anti-Semitism is the destruction of democracy . . . anti-Semitism sets out to destroy labor unions and all other instrumentalities of social and economic democracy, even political democracy." There is no more profound truth.

But as the learned rabbi used the words anti-Semitism he was also associating with it the poison of anti-Negro, anti-Spanish speaking sentiments. For as he closed he said:

"Do battle, I beseech you, against every form of racial and religious prejudice which results in that iniquitous anachronism of the year of Bilbo and Rankin—the poll tax. Help to establish a permanent, nationwide FEPC, and above all, build up and strengthen a program which does not merely in negative fashion discourage anti-Semitism but seeks to deepen the sources of understanding sympathy and to further every possible method of tolerance and brotherliness in American life." Well to that I say Amen!

Prolonged applause greeted these words. It should have, for no other organization in American life is as well prepared to carry that great message into life.

Many splendid resolutions came from the CIO convention but the words of Rabbi Wise must be made a resolution of progressive democratic America or we perish. The words of Stephen Wise spoken at the CIO convention hold a great key to victory — the victory of democracy.

Segregation Eats at Heart of Christianity, Bishop Alstork Tells

PETERSBURG, Va.—(NNPA)—The 80th session of the Virginia Conference of the A.M.E. Zion church met here last week with Bishop F. W. Alstork of Washington, D. C., presiding, and went on record as beginning an unrelenting fight to stop segregation, discrimination, racial bias and to see a new economic setup in the Southland.

Bishop Alstork opened the conference with his annual address last Wednesday morning. He said that the pattern of segregation in America was not only a national handicap, but was also hindering the nation internationally. He said that segregation was not only discriminatory, but that it ate at the very heart of the Christian religion. "Social pressure of discrimination and segregation is stiffling the life of the church," spoke the prelate.

The conference went on record as pledging to fight for a permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-poll tax and anti-lynching legislation. It lauded the work of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and asked for the unstinted support of all of the parishioners of the conference.

Bishop Alstork praised the Baptist ministers of Georgia for the work done in the recent meeting o fthe minister of the two races and expressed re-great that the North Carolina Baptists (white were not able to stick to their guns in making America safe for Christ.

The conference was in session here for almost a week and reports showed that this was one of the most successful sessions ever held. Both the educational and missionary departments showed huge gains with a decided increase in membership in the past year. The conference closed its sessions with the reading of appointments. The next conference will be held at Walter A.M.E. Zion Church, Newport News, Va., Nov. 19, 1947.

KINLOCH'S ☆ KORNER

Dedicated to the memory of John Kinloch, who died in the struggle to destroy Fascism.

By BERNICE COOK

Editor's note:

We are indeed happy to announce that this column, in the future, will be written by Bernice Cook.

Miss Cook was a member of the EAGLE editorial staff during 1943 and the major part of 1944, when John Kinloch was managing editor.

Kinloch, in his early 20's when inducted into the army, hdd already carved his niche in the journalistic world. His contributions were philosophical and refreshing. Older readers perused them with a feeling of skepticism, while the youth of the community devoured them with an ever-increasing interest, as the new but correct trend for their political thinking and development.

"It is a privilege," states Miss Cook, "and I am happy to take it up here and carry on with the hope that I, too, may help to develop a broader political concept for Negro youth, as well as a better social understanding between the youth of America."

FIVE YEARS AFTER—

Two days hence, December 7, Americans will recall the date which must be indelibly stamped upon the mind of every one of us. With the bombing of Pearl Harbor, America entered the war, and along with every other good American, the Negro soldier took his place. Unlike other Americans, however, with the entrance of the U. S. into this second world war, Negroes began a fight on two fronts.

Young men who had been denied full citizenship privileges in their homeland were, at first, reluctant to become part of a machine which was ostensibly designed to preserve democracy. The unanswered question in the mind of the Negro boy was: "Why fight Fascism in Germany when we have Fascism right here in America?" To add fuel to the fire, the Negro enlisted men found themselves the object of rank discrimination in every branch of the armed forces.

This was more than they could bear—to be called upon to make the supreme sacrifice for their country, which in turn treated them as second-class citizens. The first impulse was to take an indifferent and purely neutral attitude toward the winning of the war. After all, they thought, what does the Negro stand to gain from the conflict?

Suddenly, the whole plan of redemption was unfolded and they realized that it was their war. Now was the time to strike the blow for freedom in every sense of the word. This was their country, too, by right of birth, and they would fight for an equal share in it. The Negro soldier decided that if he was good enough to die for democracy, he was good enough to live for it— and so Negro soldiers cried out against segregation in our nation's armed forces, and began to demand equal consideration and fair treatment all along the line.

Despite their justifiable grievances, however, the record shows that the colored soldier stuck to his guns and never flinched in the face of danger, even if it meant the supreme sacrifice.

Meanwhile, there was trouble on the home front. With the progress of the war, Negroes and other minority groups came face to face with a bitter struggle of their own. Many war plants, which had been granted government contracts for the production of war implements, refused to hire Negroes and dark-skinned Mexicans. The few which hired them at all, only allowed them to work at unskilled and semi-skilled jobs. But the people were not asleep. They immediately girded themselves for action. Their methods at first were confused and did not always work to the best advantage; but little by little they became organized; they gained strength, and assurance as they went along. President Roosevelt had declared that there should be equality of opportunity for all. Working mothers and fathers decided that the blood of their sons should not be shed in vain—and so the people, under the leadership of our late Commander-in-Chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt, started the campaign to rout Fascism on the home front.

What was the record here? The war emergency proved that men and women of various races and creeds could work together in harmony. That they could produce and man the implements of war with equal skill, regardless of color, according to their own particular ability and training.

As the war progressed, however, many important questions were voiced by the oppressed minorities, such as: "What kind of society will we have after the peace is won?" "What will be our citizenship status?" "What improvements can we look forward to with any assurance?"

In every part of the globe there was evidence of a real struggle for freedom—freedom from want—freedom from fear. People everywhere began to realize that the color of a man's skin counted for naught; that bondage for one must mean bondage for all—and the world was sick of bondage!

The people determined that when the war lords sat around a peace table again, every man, regardless of race, creed or color, must be considered.

It's five long years since the molding of such sentiments began to take form, and what do we find? The war has ended—for some. Nations have formulated a semblance of peace—for some. Postwar jobs and decent housing have been made available—to some. But there is great unrest and the picture is still clouded for the majority—especially our young veterans of World War II whose minds reluctantly revert to the thought that it may become necessary to take up the cudgel again as insurance against future insecurity.

New Hate Group Aims Appeal at Returned Vets

RALEIGH, N. C.—The state of North Carolina this week issued a charter to leaders of a "Confederation of Enlisted Veterans" pledged to "keep America white and free" and to fight the closed shop.

In a gesture designed to conceal their real aims, leaders of the new hate outfit denounced the Columbians and the Ku Klux Klan as "anti-American." Manley Blevins, 27 year old organizer, denied his organization had any sympathies with the Columbian organization in Atlanta, Ga.

Bevins led 12 charter members here from West Jefferson, N.C., where the confederation was founded, and received the charter from Secretary of State Thad Eure.

The group was later received by Gov. Gregg Cherry, to whom they gave the assurance that they were "behind his government."

Southland's Colorful Fiestas, Banned by War, on Way Back

Southern California is fast making a postwar "comeback" as America's "Fiestaland," the All-Year Club reported this week.

The nearly 1000 flower shows, historical and holiday fiestas, harvest and stock shows, community celebrations, and sports spectacles held here annually in prewar days gained the Southland world-wide fame and were of tremendous value as tourist lures.

Some survived the war and numerous others are now bobbing up again, according to the All-Year Club. Some 28 are scheduled for December, including:

Pageant of Pigeons, world's biggest pigeon show, Los Angeles County Fairgrounds, Pomona, Dec. 5-8.

Calexico Border Days, frontier celebration in conjunction with Mexican city of Mexicali, Dec. 5-7.

Tournament of Roses Queen Coronation and Ball, Pasadena Civic Auditorium, Dec. 26.

Santa Annual Frolic, huge Disney characters, floats and bands in 30-block parade at Santa Ana, New Year's Eve.

U. S. Lays 4-H Club Jimcrow On State Agricultural Leaders

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA).—The Agriculture department yesterday laid the discrimination against colored boys and girls in the International Livestock show squarely in the laps of the state leaders of agricultural extension work in the states.

Questioned whether representatives of the 228,000 Negro 4-H workers in the nation would participate in the International Livestock show to open at Chicago Saturday, the Agriculture department said there is nothing in the rules of the show which would deny them participation and if colored people were not represented it would be the fault of state agricultural leaders who select the delegates to the show.

Atty. Townsend in Talk to Students Of Wilberforce U

Vince Monroe Townsend, prominent local attorney, recently left this city to attend the convention of the National Negro Bar Association meeting in Detroit, Michigan. Enroute to the convention, he stopped to pay his respects to his alma mater, Wilberforce university.

In an address to the student body Townsend urged the youth to take advantage of every opportunity coming their way. Criticizing the leadership in America today, he pointed out the importance of Negro economic and cultural advancement.

Before the Pre-Law Council of Wilberforce university he emphasized the role the Negro lawyer should assume in the fight against restrictive covenants.

Seek Exoneration Of School Teachers Smeared by Tenney

(SCP)—"Full and clear exoneration" of two white Canoga Park high school teachers questioned about alleged "subversive activities" by the Tenney Committee Oct. 9 was demanded of Superintendent of Schools Vierling Kersey yesterday by a delegation from the Citizens Committee for Better Education.

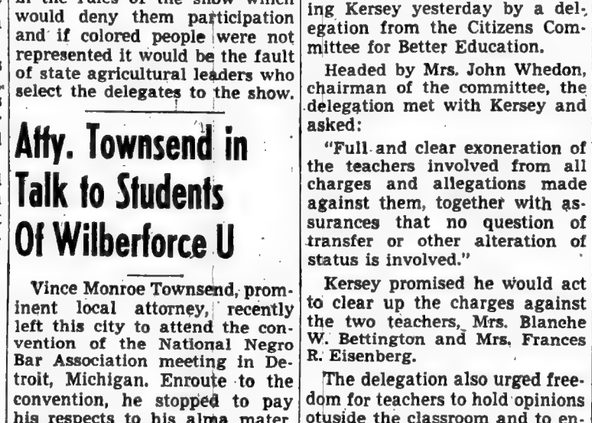
Headed by Mrs. John Whedon, chairman of the committee, the delegation met with Kersey and asked:

"Full and clear exoneration of the teachers involved from all charges and allegations made against them, together with assurances that no question of transfer or other alteration of status is involved."

Kersey promised he would act to clear up the charges against the two teachers, Mrs. Blanche W. Bettington and Mrs. Frances R. Eisenberg.

The delegation also urged freedom for teachers to hold opinions otuside the classroom and to engage in community activities, and requested "public reaffirmation of the principle of academic freedom as set forth by J. Paul Elliott, president of the board of education, at an Oct. 14 meeting."

"The presentation of controversial issues," the committee's delegation continued, "has its place in classrooms, so long as both sides are fully presented and the children permitted to form their own conclusions."



IF CHILDREN are to grow up to be strong, healthy citizens, their health must be protected now. Through the Community Chest health program, the best in medical equipment and care is provided for babies and children on a free and part-play basis in hospitals and clinics.

Playground Youths Prep for 'Little Rose Bowl' Grid Bids

Pointing toward their annual "little Rose Bowl" championship game, playground boys' touch football teams will complete their local schedules this week in preparation for district tournaments between local winners, which will lead up to city-wide finals later this month.

Under sponsorship of the Los Angeles City Recreation Department, with the cooperation of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce, championship finals will take place on Friday, Dec. 20, at Rancho Cienega Playground Stadium with the four best boy teams in the city playing for the "Little Rose Bowl" titles.

Touch football, according to Recreation Department directors, has been outstanding in interest among Los Angeles youth this season.

The Recreation Department leagues have given thousands of boys who were not on school teams a chance to enjoy organized sports competition. Touch football, by eliminating tackling and massed line play, not only promoted greater safety for adolescents but also encouraged the development of speed, coordination, and agility among growing youth, playground directors found.

Famous Author Warns of New Isolationism

CHICAGO — The Republican victory in the Nov. 5 elections "indicates the rise of a new isolationism, worse than the old isolationism because it has imperialistic traits," Thomas Mann, famed novelist, said in an essay distributed at a Thanksgiving rally here.

The country has been seized with a paralysis of moral energy after tremendous accomplishments in the fight against world Fascism, he said.

Spiritual distemper, he added, compels the country to renounce leadership and assume the function of a brake on the wheels of progress.

NMA Trustees Select L. A. For 1947 Meet

ST. LOUIS, — (NNPA) — The board of trustees of the National Medical Association, which met here last Sunday, resolved the controversy over the next meeting place by voting 7 to 2 to hold the 1947 convention in Los Angeles.

The House of Delegates of the NMA had voted to go to Kansas City, but Dr. C. Herbert Marshall, chairman of the trustee board, took the position that the association's constitution vested the authority to choose the place of meeting in the trustees.

The selection of Los Angeles as the next convention site brought to a close a heated controversy between Dr. Marshall and Dr. D. M. Miller of Kansas City, head of the House of Delegates, the legislative body of the NMA.

Zoo Animals Better Housed Than Many Humans, Dr. Uhl Says

(SCP)—Poor housing means poor health, according to Dr. George M. Uhl, city health officer, who said yesterday that "animals in the zoo have better housing than some of Los Angeles' human residents."

Describing the effcts of substandard dwellings, inadequate housing, and miserable living conditions on health, Dr. Uhl pointed to the death of a 14-year-old white boy who contracted diptheria from overcrowding in a 14-room house at 862 Figueroa terrace, where 71 persons were living. The building has been condemned, but half the occupants are still living in the rat-infested structure, Dr. Uhl revealed.

"We take eviction action only tive—when the condition has bewhen there is no other alternacome hazardous and when all efforts at cleaning up the premises or providing basic essentials have failed," Dr. Uhl said.

"Because the problem has become so critical, we are giving thousands of over-the-borderline cases sufferance simply because dispossessing them might create even worse situations elsewhere," he added.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

WITH THE IMMINENCE OF THE "Hanging of the Green," we find many to be conscious of the different gatherings that will highlight the holiday calendar. Marking a first in the history of their organizations, the Doll League Charity Club Inc. and the Orchid Girls, two of the largest and best known charity organizations in the community, are joining hands this year, presenting one mammoth Christmas party for the underprivileged children, instead of giving the affairs individually as has been the tradition throughout the years. With the overwhelming success of the Doll League's two benefits, and the annual success of the Orchid Girls formal benefit, that will be held Saturday night at the Elks Ballroom, toys galore will be on hand to fill the many stockings.

Jessie Mae Brown

The date for the Kiddies Christmas party is scheduled for the morning of December 22, and the setting will be the Lincoln Theatre, where a motion picture and star studded stage show will be put on for their enjoyment. Many organizations, touched by the spirit of giving, are adding to the gift list many items for the youngsters. Interesting to note, most of these contributing groups are men's organizations, with Phi Beta Sigma, Omega Psi Phi and the Cosmos heading the list. Aside from the underprivileged names turned in by community schools, the two clubs are extending an invitation to the school for crippled children. The affair, in all probability, will be one of the finest ever given by the charity orgs, with all working toward the same goal of doing something worthwhile for those less fortunate.

The nine years of community service of the Avalon Community Center Association will be given due honors when the board of directors presides over the Ninth Anniversary Banquet on December 12. The informal gathering will be held at the Center, and music will be rendered by the Chapel of Remembrance Quartette. Gertrue Reese Hicks, Marjorie Gordon Giles, Margaret Rakestraw and Joan Willis are among those listed on the board, doing their best the make the affair a success.

EVENTS

From all reports the 13 Aides Soiree was tops last Sunday evening at the Arlington. The elite gathered en masse, with little or no room left in the Arlington to walk around in. The Stanley Morgan Trio was responsible for the musical part of the program, though only the lucky guests in front had a chance to hear or see. The success of the soiree is still the talk of the town... The Outdoor Life and Health Association has many a new sheet and other bits of linen added to the hospital linen closet, as a result of the shower given Sunday afternoon at Lt. Leslie King's residence...

Florence Nukes, Lucy Ewing and Mary Coleman were hostesses Saturday afternoon to a baby shower, for Mrs. Idell Johnson Moore. The very gay gathering was held at Florence's Cimarron abode and some 20 femmes were on hand to chatter over old, new and very new happenings about town. Among those present were: Nita Philpot, who enjoyed seeing most of the girls for the first time since her return from Detroit; Josephine Burch, Betty Alston, Josephine Jordan, Irma Gilmore, Bessie Wilson, Muriel Spaulding, Frances Patterson, Corine Kemp, Helen Jane Steward, Jessie Mae Milhouse and a host of others. Cider and sandwiches highlighted the service from an appointed table that was cleverly decorated in a pink and blue motif. The Moores expect the new addition during the latter part of the month. By the way, the Johnnie Lehmans are also awaiting Doc Stork's arrival. While in the realm of infanticipators, Redy Gordon will play hostess to a shower for the expecting Clifford Wilsons, on Sunday at 4 p.m. over in the "Crown City"...

OVER THE SANDS

With the Greek letter events holding sway, several pledges enjoyed the thrill of a life time last week when they were carried over the burning sands. During the wee wee hours of Friday morn, your humble scribe was awakened by the serenading of the Kappas. I thought it was all a dream, at first, but after hearing the same thing over and over again, I found out that I wasn't dreaming, but was being so honored. The gents had good harmony and it was a grand gesture on their part. Noted Carl Peterson, Norman Houston, and about 18 others beneath the window. Big brothers, Vance Jones and Ted Schaeffeer were also present, with paddles in hand. The initiation was completed on Saturday night, and a spirited after party held sway, and the cup was passed tto Edwin Sneed, Paul Beck, Gene Williams, Net Shaw and I can't think of the others, but the gents are all full pledged Kappa brothers now... The AKA's on the S.C. campus made four of the Ivy Leaf pledges and entertainined with dinner after at Lucca's. The Delta's took through Lorraine Tennett on Saturday night. The AKA's on the UCLA will formally initiate Shirley Rakestraw, Cullie Lee Hubert, Nancy Lewis, Mildred Gauthier, Molly Wilson, and Ysabel Gray, if they make it through "Hell" week... Congrats are in order for the collegiates...

We don't usually hear much from the professional sororities and their initiations. However, Jessie McDaniel, president of Chi Eta Phi, nurses' sorority, gave a little light on the subject for the initiation of Friday 13. Gong through will be R. N. Euvolda Morris; Fay Wilson. only tan toned supervisor at the General Hospital; Ruth Davis, Clarice Irvin, and Bernice Batchlor.

WELL! WELL! WELL!

Frances Smith Record is back in L. A. after spending almost a year in Louisiana... Juanita Majors Brenson was recently on a return trip to the Angel City. She is secretary to the National Negro Congress in San Francisco... The snow capped mountains are becoming many a younger setter. The L. A. High Y boys have a big party in the making... Phyllis Scott, Eagle reporter, has another interest beside "Trail Blazers"; we shall hear more about it in the near future... Albert George designed the beautiful gowns worn in Justine Gains' weddiing Sunday, including the bride's gown... The Mabel Fairbanks Ice Show at the Gaiety is something to rave about, so they tell me... Johnetta Armstrong, EAGLE scribe of "Dena Chit Chat," is the mother of a darling baby girl. Her better half is as happy as a lark. Congrats... Wrenna Clark will be home for Christmas, to the surprise of many. The deb found the big city very interesting... Ronald Williams is one of the youngest dental instructors at Howard university. He is a grad of S.C.'s school of dentistry and his brother Bill is proudly telling the story... The Beta Pi Sigman sorority's fashion review will be held Sunday at the Arlington. Sure you won't be able to find a more interesting event to attend. Making dead line...

All Eyes on L'Tanya of Hollywood Who is Capturing Pinacle of Fashions

Inspired by the period of ultra modern living, L'Tanya of Hollywood is becoming the sensation of the Southwest with her creations designed to make Milady lovely. This attractive young designer picked up the mood of fashion starved women and transformed their dreams into realities.

With a flare for the dramatic L'Tanya positively possesses the uncanny talent for looking twice the figure of Saks Fifth Avenue. Recently signed by RKO to do the gowns for Ida Lupino in her forthcoming picture, all aspects of beauty will be courting the grasp of these sensitive fingers producing the finest extravaganza of elegance imaginable.

STAR MODEL

Spotlighting local fashion reviews, L'Tanya's creations accent exotic and sophisticated lines. Several of her eye-catching originals will be modeled in the Beta Pi Sigma fashion show this Sunday at the Villa Arlington. Her unrestrained initiative is receiving widespread acclaim. The Alpha Nu Omega chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority of Oakland will be featuring L'Tanya as guest artist in their second annual fashion show, outstanding season's event in Northern circles, on December 13.

FASHION GENIUS

Part of her genius lies in her ability to bring out the loveliest qualities in woman, her feminine charm and beauty. Men turn to take a second look at her clothes because they bring out that special self. According to L'Tanya the two fundamental features to be considered are the personality and the contour of the body.

The fascinating part about it is the way each of her patterns can be traced to its inspirational source. Even her shop, located at 2954½, is enchanted in the tropical mood with the spirit of the Old Orient, generously seasoned with jungle greens, zebra-stripes, and rich ebony.

All eyes are on you L'Tanya, and no wonder. You express that quality which enhances delicate pulchritude, capturing all the breath-taking loveliness Mother Nature intended for you.

Lockhart) were recently united in marriage in one of the most fashionable events in Riverside, Calif. The couple is residing in Los Angeles. Vows were taken on November 24, at the chapel of the A.M.E. church.

The Charm of You

By NATALIE T. SCURLOCK
For the NNPA News Service

Attention, gentlemen! This is essentially a column for women, but as it seems that almost as many men read material meant for women, and vice versa, a few lines written to you, sir, might not be amiss.

Reams and reams of printed matter have been devoted to improving the "gentler sex." She is continually being dragged over the coals by you and members of her own sex—told what to do and what not to do and when to do it nad when not to do it. Though there is still room for improvement on her part, she, nevertheless, is progressing.

But you—what are you doing to improve yourself? Have you made any effort to analyze your faults? You are human, so you too have faults, you know.

Many men, happy with the prerogatives accorded their sex, lean on them so heavily as to drive these prerogatives right into the ground. And women, sorry to say, help them do this.

Women are continually urged to "boost his ego," which is all very good but your ego generally needs little, if any, boosting. Women are encouraged to be good listeners but little is said about advising men to brush up on their listening powers. She may have something interesting to add to the conversation, too.

Among men whose masculinity takes excessive forms are those who, when put in a mixed gathering, rise to the top like inflated baloons to brag about their jobs, the people they know and how much money they spent on such and such a thing—real bores are these.

Why not try boosting her ego a little every now and then. After preparing for a special event she would appreciate your saying that she looks especially nice. It is so little to ask.

It still seems to be a masculine prerogative to be tired at the end of the day. In these days when most women double as housewives and career women, (to help stretch your income), let her feel that she can afford to be tired once in a while, too. Try helping her with the dinner dishes. She will appreciate it more than you realize. The emphasis seems to be on keeping the man happy. How about a little thought toward keeping the little lady happy?

One more point and the lecture is over—if you don't want women to generalize about you then refrain from generalizing about women. Generalizing about the opposite sex is a definite "bone of contention."

Class is dismissed.

Litphysonians on Sunday Program

The "Litphysonians" will be presented to the public on Sunday, December 8, during the 11 o'clock services at 8th and Towne A. M. E. church.

Talented in music, dramatics and literary ability, the select group of young adults who make up the "Litphysonians," are well known for the delightful comedy they gave to the public early this ummer. The group will show its diversity by charming the attendants of the Sunday morning service with their beautiful Acapello singing under the expert direction of the renowned Mr. Harriston, musical director for so many Hollywood movie musical choirs.

Mr. Theodore Lumpkin is club leader and Miss Sara Lumpkin is manager of the music.

Miss Eloiz M. Steen entertained with a delightful Thanksgiving dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Flood Sr., Atty. and Mrs. H. A. Greenwood, Mr. A. Wesley Flood, Mrs. J. J. Flood Jr., Mrs. Nancy Lee Stell, Miss Jean Alice Greenwood and Mr. William B. Harris.

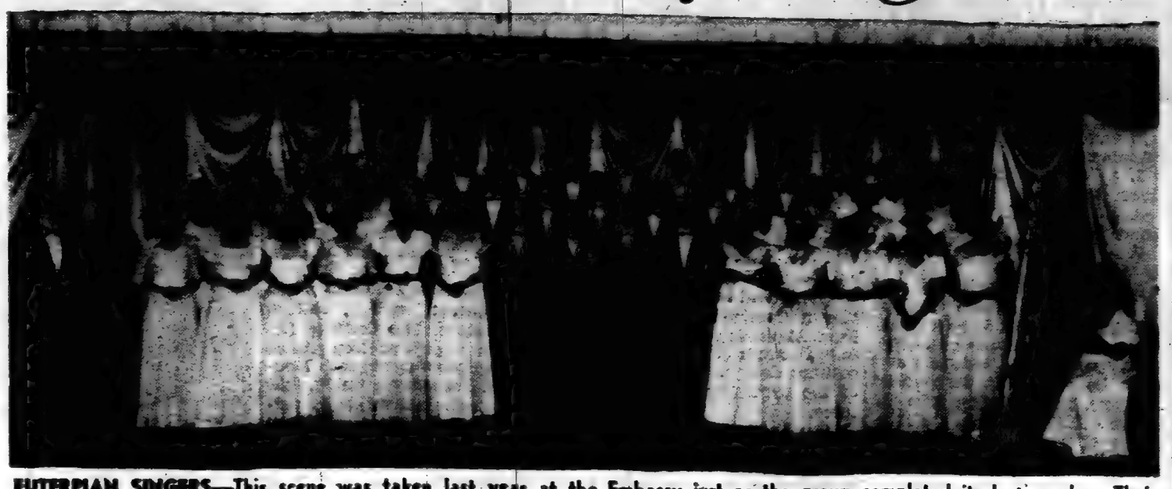
Euterpian Concert Saturday Night at the Embassy

EUTERPIAN PREXY—Popular Haroletta Garrison, high sophomore at UCLA, is president of the popular Euterpian singers. Miss Garrison is serving her second year in office.



EUTERPIAN SINGERS—This scene was taken last year at the Embassy just as the group completed its last number. Their program will include several foreign numbers, as well as familiar songs loved by all. Solo parts will be taken by Ella Hilson, Haroletta Garrison and others.

CONDUCTOR—Miss Freita Shaw, pioneer in the field of choral conducting, has schooled the young singers in her own manner. Their voices are rated among the best, and a treat is in store for all who attend the concert.

Scholarship Winners Will Be Featured Soloists Throughout

The annual Euterpian Concert will be presented Saturday, December 7, at the Embassy auditorium. Mrs. Freita Shaw, taking the baton from Mr. Thomas Johnson, who directed last year, will carry the 50-voiced choral group through an excellent program of song, while Mr. Robert Tresville leads the ensemble.

This group of young people was organized in March of 1945. They are sponsored by Mrs. Harold Garrison, whose interest in music and children makes her an apt leader. Haroletta Garrison heads the club cabinet with Elaine Broady, vice-president; Gloria Crouch, Dorothy Locke, secretaries; Bill Jones, treasurer; Jane Johnson, parliamentarian; Clayton Moore, business manager; Leola Beavers, chaplain; Arthur McBeth, sergeant-at-arms, and Harriette Flowers, reporter.

The club's purpose is to provide musical entertainment and education for its members and the public at large, consequently each year they give an annual concert, the proceeds of which swell the scholarship fund and give support to charitable organizations.

The proceeds from the last concert were used to award three $100 scholarships to deserving members in the club. They were: Ella Hilson, Arthur MacBeth and James Warren. These three artists will be the featured soloists of the concert.

Jane Johnson is the chairman of the scholarship committee and Yolande Stovall is chairman of the committee on charity that has contributed to orphanages, hospitals, community chest, Red Cross.

MUSICAL HIGHLIGHTS

The highlights of the choral group will be the moving and dramatic numbers "Panis Angelicius" and Gonauds "Ave Maria." A Christmas atmosphere will be created by the clever and tuneful "The Sleigh." The climax of the evening will be a jubilant rendition of "The Hallelujah Chorus." The ensemble will render several colorful numbers including "Valse Griste." Zoe Wise, Burdelle Forrest, J. W. Sanford, Danellin Mabry and John Elliot Herod will also give solo selections.

The entire group is working very hard to see that this concert is a success. Tickets are on sale by members, and may also be purchased Saturday night before the performance, that starts at 8:30.

SPONSOR-FOUNDER—Charming Mrs. Harold Garrison, who has a deep interest in music and love for all children, organized the Euterpians, and fills the position of sponsorer. The success of Saturday night's 2nd annual Euterpian concert will give her the satisfaction of knowing that her efforts are worth while.

Freita Shaw to Direct Chorus At Embassy Auditorium

When the 50 voices that make up the Euterpian Chorus ring out in song on the evening of Dec. 7 at Embassy auditorium, they will be under the leadership of Miss Freita Shaw, renowned choral conductor.

Miss Shaw has pioneered in her field. Way back in the '30s when sound pictures were just coming in, it was Miss Freita Shaw who directed the first group of Negro singers to "dub" for white casts. The first Negro group to sing in grand opera anywhere in this country was trained by Freita Shaw when she conducted the chorus for the Gruenberg opera "The Emperor Jones." This work was presented at Shrine auditorium to open the regular opera season.

For years Miss Shaw trained groups for motion pictures. During the war years all of this conductor's energies were spent in work with the men in the service. She trained hundreds of men and presented many programs with them.

Miss Shaw is now with the Los Angeles Bureau of Music. She is directing youth groups for the city bureau of music, the only woman on the staff.

Aside from the choral presentations, the string ensemble and several solo parts will be taken by leading voices in the group. Tickets are on sale by club members.

CHARITY—Yolanda Stovall, popular UCLA coed, heads the Charity committee... The Euterpians help to support such leading agencies as Community Chest, Red Cross and several community programs.

Cavalrettes Honor Recent Club Bride

SCHOLARSHIP—Lovely Jane Johnson is chairlady of the Scholarship committee. Part of the proceeds from the concert will be used through this committee, to aid with the musical education of members.

The pre-Thanksgiving spirit was carried out very effectively on November 20, when the Cavalrette Social Club met with Mrs. Vivian Morris for the general social meeting of the month. Guests were husbands of the members.

After a short busines discussion the group made its way to the dining room to enjoy a very delicious turkey dinner prepared by the hostess.

Mrs. Esther T. Greenley, club mother, presented Mrs. Beatrice Dunn, recent bride, a group of gifts from the club members. Mrs. Dunn is vice president of the club.

Before the meeting adjourned, plans were made for the Yule party to be given at the home of Mrs. Mamie Carter during the holidays. Bridge and Pokeno were played during the social part of the meeting.

SHOPPING WITH DORIS

By Doris Austin

Hello there:

Have you ever given any thought to the saying "If you stumble over the same stone twice you have only yourself to blame?" Suppose we apply it to you and me.

I have been writing several weeks now and from all reports and orders I have received you and others are reading my column and you think it's o. k. At least, you tell me so, and you think the idea of shopping for working people a grand idea yet you work or don't have the time to really shop for yourself or buy gifts and you are planning on calling me sometimes but just cannot make your mind to do so; hence you'll have last minute shopping to do or you pay more than the merchandise is worth by buying at the wrong stores. You say each year you are not going to wait until so late, yet you are continually doing it each year. This year I am offering you a chance and a change—a chance to at last live up to that "new year" resolution you make each year and a change from the worry of pushing crowds and cross tempers.

I know that most stores have "Shoppers" but I know and so do you that most of the items you want and need, especially linen cotton goods, etc., are accompanied by the words "no C.O.D., mail or telephone orders," and I stand in line to get these things for you.

I said in one column that the only way to know about my services was to try them but there is another way you may use a sort of check on my ability to choose the proper things for you from the right shops. Some of the shops I carry are small and most of them are new in business or location hence they have to build a new patronage in a new vicinity with just a few of the "ole faithfuls" so you visit these places of business or employ the services of the tradesmen and see if you don't find things exactly as I say, only better and you will be pleased at your discovery.

Frankly, I am being much more liberal with you than you are with me. Shopping is my business, yet I let you in on the very places you may find your gifts or shop for yourself and avoid the holiday rush therefore losing a fee for myself. You see the collecting of a fee is not the supreme object my service column—it is not so much making finances for myself but more to act as a kind of "business cupid" between you and OUR business places—to show you that they cannot all be judged by one and they do carry the things you want at the prices you want—to show them you are behind them 100% in their endeavor to build a better business by shopping at their shops and by giving me a gift list to shop for you as I shop at these places whenever they carry the merchandise you want in good quality at the right prices.

Always mention this column when you visit the shops and remember you are under no'obligation to buy.

Bridge Points

This week I open the doors to the mysteries of "2 over 1 responses" to opening suit bids of one.

To respond two diamonds or two clubs over your partner's opening one spade or one heart you must have the following requirements:

1. A six-card suit and 1½ honor tricks.
2. A five-card suit and 2 honor tricks.
3. A four-card suit and 2½ honor tricks.
4. A seven-card suit and a ½ to 1 honor trick (note that the requirements do not go to zero, as in the case of one over one).

Any conditional biddable suit may be shown in responding. Bridgers, any variation from the above MUST be within the flexibility of the law, and then only when it is a matter of the lesser of two evils!

Remember that each bid you make must have a definite minimum amount of honor tricks in responding equally as in opening, so let all bids and plays give your partner some type of information, since bridge is first, last and always a partnership game.

Ceramics for Adults

Dr. Glen Lukens, professor of ceramics at the University of Southern California, will speak to the Woodlawn Branch YWCA Young Adult Group as part of the Tuesday night interest group, December 10, 1946 at 7 o'clock.

Dr. Lukens recently returned from Haiti, after a year's leave of absence from the university and plans to return to Haiti in March to resume research study and teaching of creative arts.

There will also be musical numbers by an accomplished artist in conjunction with the evening's program. The public is invited and all club members are asked to bring a friend.

Air Your Gripe

It was revealed this week that U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark received more than 30,000 letters protesting the Georgia mass lynching of two young couples.

Those 30,000 letters got action, too. This is true even though none of the lynchers have been arrested to date. The FBI went into action. A federal grand jury is even now investigating the lynchings. If not enough has been done by the federal government it is partly because, as Clark has said, that present federal laws are not adequate.

The fac is that the administration, propelled into action by those 30,000 protest letters, did try to do something.

The point this column wishes to raise is why only 30,000 letters. And how many of those letters were sent by Negroes? We can be assured that many were written by white persons, by labor unions, etc.

Certainly 13,000,000 Negroes, despite the known handicaps in education in certain sections of the country, could muster up more than 30,000 writers of protest letters. What part did we play in this giant protest movement through the mails? Did you write a letter protesting these heinous crimes, demanding action by the federal government to apprehend and punish the lynchers? Did your friends, your neighbors?

In other words, are we really utilizing our numerical strength, throwing our weight around?

We will have to be a lot more articulate if we intend to win the fight against jimcrow oppression, achieve equality in this country. Silently nursing your gripes won't help. Get the letter writing habit, among other weapons. The pen is mightly. Use it! Air your gripes. Tell this column about them, and through this column other readers. Rally your neighbors, your friends, to protest all forms of injustice, including slurs on radio and other programs.

COUTURSTAT

By Grace Fisher Atkins

Popular Eadward, local hair stylist, won much appreciation and admiration for his stunning hair creations last Sunday afternoon at the Elks auditorium. Dyes, tints, coiffures of various modes and pleasures made an unusually attractive display.

Miss Theresa Davis, charming hostess ofr Eadward's art, graciously greeted the guests. Her alluring curls were followed by an exquisite gown designed by Heerman and made by the well-known Couturstat Method. Mrs. Nola Alexander, student at Jefferson Adult evening school's costume design, completed much of the construction of this costume.

Miss Davis was an exquisite model, not only for Eadward, but also for Heerman and Couturstat. A beautiful gown includes the total scheme, personality, stature, gown and occasion. All were present in high percentages with this model.

THE FACTORY

The workroom is really "underway." Orders have piled up much faster than production. Speed of manufacturing cannot in any instance be substituted for quality of workmanship. Thus, output is relatively slow in proportion to the accumulation of clientele. Patient and faithful workers will soon bring this scale on an even balance.

The Couturstat workroom needs expert pattern makers, cutters, and finishers. The Costume Design class at Jefferson Adult Evening School meets each Monday and Thursday evening, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Instruction is personally given by the president of the developing Couturstat Corporation in methods and procedures of the workroom. Beginning Thursday evening, December, (tonight), a new course in the process will begin. There are places for ten more students.

Russian Deplores Weakness Of Anti-Bias Resolution Adopted by UN Assembly

LAKE PLACCID, N. Y. — (NNPA) — After nine speeches of indorsement, an Egyptian resolution was adopted by the United Nations General Assembly calling on all countries to "put an immediate end to religious and so-called racial persecution and discrimination."

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Russian Vice Foreign Minister, criticized it as not going far enough, as failing to name parties and places now guilty of discrimination and as failing to contain "concrete measures" aimed at the guilty.

He observed that the resolution was not entirely satisfactory "to us," he said it was rather general and included no precise data, "whereas we know that such racial persecutions are now taking place."

In an obvious move to restrict application of the resolution to a pious wish, rule out UN action on jimcrow oppression in this country, Warren R. Austin of the United States delegation, "welcomed" the resolution as "a reaffirmation of the principle of sovereign equality." Warren directed his remarks at the smaller nations. He evidently hoped to play on their sensitivity to outside interference in their internal affairs.

Speeches in support of the resolution came from all the Big Five—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France and China—as well as India, Poland and the Philippines.

India called on member nations to go back and scrutinize their laws for discrimination or persecution.

The text of the resolution read:

"The general assembly of the United Nations declares that it is in the higher interests of humanity to put an immediate end to religious and so-called racial persecutions and discriminations, and calls on the Governments and responsible authorities to conform both to the letter and to the spirit of the Charter of the United Nations, and to take the most prompt and energetic steps to that end."

Clark Gets Report on Alleged Fraud In Missouri Democratic Primary Vote

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The house campaign expenditures investigating committee has sent to Attorney General Tom C. Clark the evidence it has gathered indicating irregularities in the August 6 Democratic primary in which Representative Roger C. Slaughter was defeated by Enos Axtell chiefly by Negro votes.

Representative Percy Priest, Democrat, of Tennessee, committee chairman, said the committee's investigation covered "charges alleging fraud consisting of dishonest counting of the ballots, impersonation of voters by known individuals, illegal voting and illegal influencing of voters by payment of money, coercion and misrepresentation." He did not name the candidates involved in the reported irregularities.

It was not disclosed whether any colored persons were involved in the irregularities, but opposition to Slaughter grew out of his action in the house rules committee where his vote resulted in a 6-6 tie bottling up the fair employment practice bill.

In the primary in the fifth Missouri congressional district Negro voters supported Axtell, who won the nomination but was later defeated by Albert L. Reeves Jr., his Republican opponent.

To warn the public and local businessmen against frauds, the Better Business Bureau has posted more than 50,000 posters in public places in the last 10 months, Robert J. Bauer, general manager, said yesterday. Conmen have flocked to this area, Bauer said, and have been the subject of more than 65,000 inquiries in the same period.

RETRAINING DISABLED VETS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A pioneer group of 30 women drivers of the American Red Cross Motor Corps has completed the first instructors' course in automobile driving retraining for disabled veterans. The course was arranged by the AA and the American Red Cross to fulfill a need created with the passage by Congress of the Cars for Amputees Bill, Public Law No. 663.

The Pacific Service Bureau is arranging concert engagements for Norris J. Stokes, popular baritone vocalist. Norris Stokes has just completed recordings for "Duel in the Sun" and other motion pictures. He will sing in his native state of Kansas and other sections of the Midwest in the near future.

SAN FRANCISCO.—As a result of a recent visit by Paul Robeson and Clayton Revels, a chapter of the National Negro Congress is being formed on the waterfront here.

Aimed to increase the number of potential donors in the drive for whole blood needed for transVermont avenue, with 15 husbands of Alexandria School PTA members attending. Graduation in the streamlined course is First PTA fathers' class in Red Cross home nursing is now in session at chapter house, 1200 S. scheduled for Monday evening, November 25.

WASHINGTON—(CNS)—Soap, that elusive necessity that has recently made cleanliness next to impossible, will be back on the market soon in limited quantities, but its price will be increased from 10 to 70 per cent. Meanwhile General Motors has upped the price of all cars and trucks $100. Ford alone among car manufacturers will hold the line, for the present at least.

JOHNETTA ARMSTRONG

To the readers: Ples Griffin and myself have decided to change the variety of the column by writing letters to each other. Please accept it with a grain of salt—it's all in fun.

—Barb Durham, guest writer.

Dear Ples:

The Thanksgiving holidays have passed for another year—leaving the Crown City with many a favorable memory in regards to social and servicable activities. I had quite an enjoyable vacation myself—how did you find it? By the way, noticed that you were really enjoying yourself at the Young People's BYPU Congress in Santa Monica. Too bad the fog handicapped your promotion of social relations between cities. Maybe you can continue your program next year. Think so?

Wilhelmina Bunch, charming young member of the Bel Son Gaies, was crowned Queen of the Y.M.P.L.'s Victory Ball, held at the Pasadena Civic last Wednesday week. Alma Phillips took second place honors, she represented the Tuesday Morning Club. Excellent selection, don't you think? I wasn't able to attend, but I hear the dance was a huge success, with many of the younger set—including Sibby Mims, brothers Joe and Don, Alva Neblett, Jackie Bunch, Harrison Bailey and Gwen Morrow really enjoying the fine music of Eddie Martin and Combo.

Ples, I hear that Winfred Eckely is quite an authority on the execution of marine warfare tactics. In fact it is said that he plans to establish a landing base in certain parts of Monrovia. Hope he gets the "situation" well in hand.

The students at PJC are really taking an interest in campus affairs this semester. Beverly Cuoton, fo rexample, has signed up to work on the PAL DAY committee. She is really interested in her work—in fact she would like to make every day PAL day.

Saw my old friend Harrison Bailey the other evening—still finds life one big BUNCH of happiness.

Madison Shockley returned this week from the Youth Congress in New Orleans with an excellent report on the activities of youth throughout the nation. The theme of the Congress was "You Are Not too Young to Lead." This certainly should present a challenge to the youth of today, Ples. With the present-day world in a state of general chaos, the responsibility of turning over a new leaf of peaceful procedure and love for our fellowman falls on our shoulders. It is up to us to accept this responsibility willingly and readily. Tomorrow we might be too OLD to lead.

I understand that our intelligent and able young philosopher friend—namely Bill Duncan—has become extremely interested in the study of botany. The JACKSON Pine and CYPRESS trees seem to be his specialty.

Speaking of rising new interests, the study of embalming and mortuary procedure seems to have fascinated Pearl McAfee. Could it be that this may become her future career?

Myrtle Martin, who was one of the outstanding models at a recent fashion show, has been chosen by one of the young gentlemen of a promising club in Pasadena to model the club's pin. Noted that she really does a grand job.

The Gai Charmettes capped the holiday activities with a picnic at Griffith Park. Myrtle Martin, M. L. Jackson, Joe Mims and Betty Brown, Alvin Johnson and Jeffalyn Brown and Mabel Duncan enjoyed an afternoon of active sports and other activities.

Here's a surprise for you, Ples. Our able columnist is the proud mother of a baby girl. The young lady's name? Lisa Smith Armstrong. I know you'll join with me in extending the best of luck to Johnetta, Jimmy and Lisa Armstrong.

Looking on the calendar of forthcoming events, I see that the Jesse Arnold-Bob Johnson wedding tops the list. The popular young couple will speak their vows, Sunday, December 8. Should be a beautiful affair. See you there?

At the recent Junior NAACP meeting, the following people were elected as new officers for the coming year: Madison Shockley, president; Myrtle Martin, vice-president; Eddie Mills, secretary; and Mary Louise Grooms, treasurer. Looks like a swell group, Ples, I think they'll really have a successful year.

By the way, the Barbeque treat was really wonderful, in spite of a few minor difficulties. Will I hear from soon?

Yours sincerely,
Barb

Negro Miners Believed Backing Lewis; No Figures Yet Available As Union Bans Racial Breakdown

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The numbers of Negro miners who have left the coal pits along with other members of the United Mine Workers of America because they consider their contract terminatd could not be ascertained here last Friday. It is believde, however, that most of them are acting on the union's traditional policy of "no contract, no work."

The office of Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the UMW, said that no racial breakdown of the membership of the union was kept.

"I have been here for 25 years and during that time we have never made such a breakdown," said Miss Esther Cossell, Kennedy's secretary. "If you have visited our conventions," she told a reporter, "you have noticed that some of the delegates are white and some are colored." She added that "This does not necessarily mean that a colored delegate is representing colored mine workers. Our unions are mixed and if a colored man is the most popular in his local, he is elected as a delegate to the convention.

"There have never been published figures on the numbers of our colored workers, but, if so, they were unofficial and purely guesses."

Powell-Scott Rift Denied

NEW YORK — Calvin's News Service this week refuted a report carried in an unidentified western newspaper as an "exclusive" that there had been a rift in the Congressman Adam C. Powell-Hazel Scott household.

—CNS declares informed persons in New York City were amazed by the report. "An investigation, the news service says, "indicates the report to be a slap from a disgruntled press agent with an itchy palm. Most New Yorkers consider the story a model of wishful thinking that will never come true. The family life of the Powell trio, Hazel, Dad and Junior, stocks up well enough can family."

MANILA, P. I.—(Global)—Although a published report from the presidential palace issued last week supported alleged manhandling of Filipinos by marines, the report stated that these cases emanating from the Olongapo naval base, "were isolated cases, not following any set pattern."

Representative Ramon Magsaysay made the original charge.

Federal Jury Starts Probe of Mass Lynchings

ATHENS, Ga.—(NNPA)—The lynching of two men and their wives near Monroe, Ga., July 25, reached a federal grand jury here last Monday for possible indictments after more than four months of investigation by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Two Negroes are on the jury.

Unless the FBI agents uncovered evidence to fasten guilt on the members of the mob, a white man stands out as the key witness. He is J. Loy Harrison, well-to-do farmer of Walton County, Georgia, from whose automobile the mob took the two men and their wives and riddled their bodies with bullets.

The FBI agents will give their evidence to the convening grand jury. Likewise, more than 100 witnesses are scheduled to appear before the grand jury.

United States Dist. Atty. John P. Cowart and John Kelly, an attorney from the criminal division of the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C., are in charge of the presentation of the case to the jury.

The plan was approved by five major veterans' organizations.

He was assisted by Doctors G. D. Smith, J. J. Thompson. C. E. Chapman and other distinguished clergymen of the denomination—many of whom hold high positions as bishops and general officers and come from all parts of the Church.

He warned the Central Texas Conference that he had "stepped up into high gear through the great reports made during the preceding annual conferences," and he did not want "to shift gear and gen in 'low.'"

Taethree presiding elders of the Conference—Reverends G. D. Smith, J. J. Thompson and C. E. Chapman—are vying for leadership in the financial column. Rev. Thompson of the Jacksonville-Henderson district is "considerably 'out in front'" it was said here Wednesday. Wait until all reports are in," Rev. Smith said. There was no comment by Rev. Chapman. Sunday School Lesson

Subject: Paul Admonishes The Churches. Devotional reading, Ephesians 6:11-20. Lesson text and outline, 1. Corinthians 11:20-27; Romans 13:13-14; Ephesians 5:18-21. Motto text, Romans 13:13.

INTRODUCTION

Christian behavior is the keynote of Paul's admonitions selected for our present consideration. To the Corinthians the apostle wrote that the unrighteous, and he included drunkards, shall not inherit the Kingdom of God and he denounced their desecration of the Lord's Supper by eating and drinking before or during its observance. He urged the Romans to walk honestly "not in rioting and drunkenness." And he bade the Ephesians to be filled with the Spirit, "not drunk with wine."

COMMENTS

1. There is a careless and irregular eating of the Lord's table which is as none at all; it will turn to no account, but to increase guilt. Such an eating was that of the Corinthians; their practices were a direct contradiction to the purpose of this sacred institution. Their conduct carried in it a contempt of God's house, or of the church. If they had a mind to feast, they might do it at home in their own houses; but to come to the Lord's table, and cabal and quarrel, and keep the poor from their share of the provision there made for them as well as the rich, was such an abuse of the ordinance, and such a contempt of the poorer members of the church more especially, as merited a very sharp rebuke.

Such a behavior tended much to the shame and discouragement of the poor, whose souls were as dear to Christ, and cost him as much, as those of the rich. Common meals may be managed after a common manner, but religious feasts should be attended religiously. It is a heinous evil, and severely to be censured, for Christians to treat their fellow Christians with contempt and insolence, but especially at the Lord's table. This is doing what they can to pour contempt on divine ordinances. We should look carefully to it that nothing in our behavior at the Lord's table have the appearance of condemning so sacred an institution.

2. Make not provision for the flesh. Be not careful about the body. Our great care must be provide for our souls; but must we take no care about our bodies? Must we not provide for them, when they need it?

Yes, but two things are here forbidden: Perplexing ourselves with an inordinate care, intimated in these words. "Be not solicitous in forecasting for the body; do not stretch your wits, nor set your thoughts upon the tenter-hooks, in making this provision; be not careful and cumbered about it; do not take thought." It forbids an anxious encumbering care. Indulging ourselves in an irregular desire.

We are not forbidden to provide for the body (It is a lamp that must be supplied with oil), but we are forbidden to fulfil the lust thereof. The necessities of the body must be considered, but the lusts of it must not be gratified. Natural desires must be answered, but wanton appetites must be checked and denied. oT ask meat for our necessities is duty: we are taught to pray for daily bread; but to ask meat for our lusts is provoking. Those who profess to walk in the Spirit must not fulfil the lusts of the flesh.

3. Drunkenness is a sin that seldom goes alone, but often involves men in other instances of guilt: it is a sin very provoking to God, and a great hindrance to the spiritual life. Instead of being filled with wine, he exhorts them to be filled with the Spirit. Those who are full of drink are not likely to be full of the Spirit; and therefore this duty is opposed to the former sin.

COMMENT ON THE MOTTO TEXT

To walk becomingly is to be well behaved. To live right one must live in the light. Who can dwell in darkness and yet be morally decorous? Even social etiquette is more a matter of spirit than of form. Certainly character is the soul of all courtesy.

DEAN OF EVANGELISM—Well known all over the nation and in parts of Europe, Rev. J. W. Bailey exhibits through his preachings a type of leadership needed in the world today.

Prominent Local Ministers Heartily Endorse Rev. Bailey

Several prominent ministers of this city have joined together in endorsing Rev. J. W. Bailey, D.D.L.L.D., as one of the greatest evangelists living today, regardless of race, color, or denomination. Under his inspiration many thousands have become Christians, consistently over many years.

The Providence Baptist association made him the "Dean of Evangelism" at its last session held in August with the Park Avenue Baptist church in Riverside. He was publicly set apart for this high honor before 500 white and Negro people.

This association covers an area of 200 miles from Bakersfield to Palm Springs, including Los Angeles and vicinity, with a population of 3,000,000; a territory of many pastors, and large churches. This great evangelist serves large and small churches alike, gratis.

Rev. Bailey having conducted successful revival meetings for Dr. J. Raymond Henderson in this city; Dr. L. B. Moss of Riverside; Rev. W. R. White of Palm Springs, others will want to have him as their guest pastor. Dr. Bailey represents 4,000,000 Negro Baptists in America.

THE PACIFIC SERVICE BUREAU which presented Wings over Jordan so successfully, will present the McNeil choir under the direction of Albert J. McNeil at Second Baptist church, Sunday, Dec. 29. The choir is to be featured in a new composition, "An African Trail—From Manger to Cross," a folk cantata with narrative.

Christian Science Topic
God, the only Cause

"Lord, thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is." This declaration from The Acts will be the Golden Text of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon on "God the Only Cause and Creator" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

John's Gospel reports that there was a nobleman who besought Jesus, "that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death. . . . Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. . . . And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth. . . . Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him. So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house."

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures:" "Instead of God sending sickness and death, He destroys them, and brings to light immortality. Omnipotent and infinite Mind made all and includes all. This Mind does not make mistakes and subsequently correct them. God does not cause man to sin, to be sick, or to die."

Ousted Bishop To Challenge A.M.E. Action

PHILADELPHIA. — (NNPA) — Rev. David H. Sims declared last Saturday that his "unfrocking" as a bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Church by a special session of the General Conference was illegal.

The position taken by Rev. Sims indicates that the question of the legality of the extra session of the General Conference, called by ten of 16 bishops of the church, will be threshed out in the courts. Already pending in Washington, D.C., is a suit to restrain A. S. Jackson, secretary-treasurer of the A.M.E. Church, from paying out any funds of the church to defray the expenses of the extra session of the General Conference, held in Little Rock, Arkansas, November 20-23. This suit questions the legality of the call for the extra session.

Rev. Sims contends that before the extra session of the General Conference took the action that it did, formal charges should have been preferred against him and he should have been given an opportunity to answer the complaints. He said the Book of Discipline of the A.M.E. Church provides for such a hearing.

Announcement of the "unfrocking" of Bishop Sims was made in Little Rock last Thursday by Rev. D. Ormonde Walker, of Buffalo, New York, the floor leader of the General Conference. This action was unprecedented. Bishop G. E. Curry of Jacksonville, Florida, also was "unfrocked" by the convention.

Wright Hearing Continued to December 19

(SCP)—The corporate securities act was violated on 11 counts by Solomon Wright, street-corner speaker who allegedly muscled in at gun point on the Cosmopolitan Brotherhood Association, Watts, Judge E. L. Jefferson was told yesterday.

Wright acted as his own attorney at the preliminary hearing, which was carried over to December 19, and according to spectators, was doing a creditable job. Many of them apparently under the impression that Wright had studied law.

Members of the Cosmopolitan Brotherhood Association had contributed amounts ranging from $100 to $1800 to form a co-operative store, of which Wright says he was asked to take charge.

The members became dissatisfied when they were given no accounting of their money, according to H. A. Arterberry, who is handling the case for the district attorney.

Shipowners Using Jobless as Pawns CIO Leader Charges

SAN PEDRO.—L. B. Thomas, president of CIO Longshoremen's Local 13 in San Pedro, yesterday charged that shipowners are deliberately enticing unemployed workers, particularly from among minorities, into the harbor on the false promise that there they will find jobs.

Thomas said that such promises were intended to mislead workers and possibly turn them against the union.

"The facts are," Thomas said, "there is no extra work in the harbor but there is a great deal of present unemployment."

"The ships have not warmed up as yet, and even when they do there are still 500 longshoremen who are unemployed as well as large numbers of shipbuilders and other San Pedro workers.

"We dislike having to dispel the hopes of unemployed workers seeking longshore jobs, but we feel that such workers should know the facts, and knowing the facts not become pawns of the shipowners who like unemployment because it drives wage scales down."

America boasts 6,500,000 keglers who have passed the life-begins-at-forty mark, and numbers some 20,000,000 under voting age. There are also teams of blind bowlers and those otherwise physically handicapped.

Originally a ninepin game, bowling had its inception back in the days when our hairy ancestors rolled round stones at pins constructed of the leg bones of sheep.

All-States Tea Huge Success

The Social Hall of Second Baptist church was crowded last Thursday evening with members and friends in attendance at the All States tea. The outstanding event was the Parade of the States, which was colorful and most attractive. When the president, Vassie D. Reese-Wright, gowned in a gorgeous white dress, called the roll of the states, starting with Alabama, the Governors, Lieut. Governors and other representatives paraded across the stage, where they lingered long enough for Narrators Seth Toney and Mozelle Te Outley to tell something of interest about their state.

The chorus directed by Mrs. Anna G. Morrow sang the various state songs. Accompanists were Messrs. Wm. Henderson, Charles Brown, Wm. Ferguson. Yell leaders, Arthur Bacon, Arthur Strong and Walter Dotson. Miss Danellen Mabry accompanied with her marimba, which added much to the music. She also rendered two selections.

Mrs. S. P. Johnson was the gracious lady in the White House, and with the assistance of Mrs. Ida Robertson, Mrs. Lena Hopkins and Mrs. Hassie Reed-Pierce, served the guests refreshments. They were all beautifully gowned in white dresses.

The Social Hall was beautifully decorated with red, white and blue colors and a large number of American Flags made a fine setting. Each state was in miniature. Kentucky, with Mrs. Eva Brooks as Governor, won first prize for the most attractive booth. An old Kentucky home was one of the main features. Other outstanding states were: Mississippi, Mr. Phil Lee, Governor; Florida, Mrs. Edith Featherston, Governor; Ohio, Mrs. Corinne Morgan, Governor. Space will not permit us to mention others that deserve honorable mention.

The states reporting the largest amount of money are as follows: Texas, Mr. Albert Randolph, Governor, $328.27; Louisiana, Mr. Louis King, Governor, $246.30; Georgia, Mrs. Fletcher Armstrong, Governor, $180.00; Illinois, Mrs. Lucretia Tucker, Governor, $161.25; Oklahoma, Mrs. Anna Harris, Governor, $95.25.

The total receipts, $2,180.77.

The Minister, Dr. J. Raymond Henderson, who served as the Speaker of the House; Mrs. Vassie D. Wright, President; Mrs. G. Wm. Hubert, Vice President; Secretaries, Mrs. Dannie Mae King and Miss Chaney Smith; Treasurer, Mr. I. H. Pillor; members of the cabinet, wish to thank the members and friends for their fine cooperation in making the All States tea the success that it was in less than a three weeks effort.

If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men.—Romans 12:18.

Mrs. Barbara Brice Is Granted Divorce

Barbara Brice, 655 E. 112th street, was awarded a divorce decree Monday in superior court from her estranged husband, Celestal Brice, who is now residing at 9327 Campton ave.

Married in Yuma, Ariz., on Nov. 1, 1940, the couple separated in January of this year. Mrs. Brice charged her husband with beating her at will.

Agreement on the division of community property, consisting primarily of the East 112th st. home, was reached through the efforts of the law firm of Gordon, Porter and Ragland. According to Atty. Porter the settlement was "very favorable to Mrs. Brice." The couple have no children.

Find Wilcox Not Guilty

Superior Judge Harold B. Landreth found Lonnie Wilcox, 844 E. 5th street, not guilty this week when he appeared in a courtroom on charges of robbery and the possession of narcotics. The judge, in giving his decision, said that there was a reasonable doubt concerning the guilt of the accused man.

Late in September Lonnie, his brother, Donald Wilcox, and Moses Tatum, Masonic official, were arrested while passing through Glendale returning from a Masonic convention in San Francisco. The brothers were booked on a robbery charge when a gun was found in the car. Later officers claimed they found a marijuana cigarette in a cot in the car and the arrested men were additionally charged with the possession of narcotics.

Attorney Charles Matthews was retained by the defendants and at the preliminary hearing charges against Donald Wilcox were dismissed for lack of evidence.

CORRECTION

The name of Mrs. Gertrude Nicholson, 1353 East 42nd street, was erroneously used in the recent announcement of the death of Thomas Wilson, 68, who died on November 7. Mrs. Nicholson handled the arrangements for the deceased.

The perfect game — a 300 — which consists of 12 strikes in a row, occurs once in every 700,000 games. Tommy Marr, A.B.C. chairman of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce, has 699,000 games to go before he'll make that score.

To meet A.B.C. specifications, alleys must be built to within 40/1000th of an inch and pins must not vary more than 1/64th of an inch. It costs roughly $2,500 for each pair of alleys.

A special feature of this years' performance will be a fifteen minute Carol Service to be presented by the Albert McNeil Choir.

Milliron's Granted Injunction Limiting Number of Pickets

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

Superior Judge Henry Willis this week granted a preliminary injunction in favor of Milliron's department store against the Building Service Employes International (AFL) and allied unions and their officers.

The injunction provides that there shall be no pickets in the entrance corridors leading to the store. It permits, however, that two pickets will be allowed in front of the two entrances of the store on Broadway, one to the entrance on Fifth street, and one at the employes' entrance on Fifth street.

MORGAN BEARS WIN TWELFTH CHAMPIONSHIP

LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

CURRENT SHORT SPORTS

Tickets for the Rose Bowl are going to be as scarce as hen's teeth this New Year's Day. This is due to the fact that the Big Nine conference is sending in heavy demands for ducats . . . Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who just recently re-signed his contract, failed to play a featured part in a film titled "Heaven Only Knows" because of previous radio and lecture commitments . . . The Tennessee State Tigers, winners of the Midwestern conference, meet the West Virginia State "Yellowjackets" in the Derby Bowl at Louisville, Ky., Dec. 7 . . . Jefferson High's basketball team nipped Los Angeles, 25-24, last week as the cage season opened. Other results in the Southern league found Fremont losing to Washington, 41-30, and Manual Arts topping Roosevelt, 41-29 . . . The National A.A.U. will seek world recognition for four of the 54 U.S. athletic marks made during the past year. Records to be submitted for approval at the A.A.U.'s 58th annual convention at San Antonio, Texas, Dec. 7-9, will include the 22.5s timing in the 220-yard low hurdles hung up by Harrison Dillard, Baldwin-Wallace Sepian . . . Fitzy Fitzpatrick surprised a lot of people in holding the highly-regarded Lee Oma to a draw at the Olympic . . . And Bobcat Bob Montgomery, recognized in New York and Pennsylvania as the world's lightweight champion, came through with the chips down, to kayo Wesley Mouzon in 2 minutes and 18 seconds of their scheduled 15-rounder at Philly's Convention Hall early last week. Mouzon had previously knocked out Montgomery a few months ago. The battle last week set an all-time Philadelphia indoor fight gate record. 12,416 boxing fans contributed $85,414 to the till. Previous record was posted when Joe Louis fought Gus Dorazio there five years ago. They drew $57,129 . . . Chalky Wright announced his retirement after Willie Pep knocked him out in the third round last Wednesday at Milwaukee . . . John Thomas journeyed to Oakland and grabbed off a 10-round decision over Candy McDaniels last Wednesday night. The classy Los Angeles lightweight weighed 139½ to 137 for his opponent. Buddy Young, speedy University of Illinois halfback, who loves California, except as a place to go to school, will do his stuff in the Rose Bowl when U.C.L.A. tangles with the Big Nine champs on New Year's Day. The fans will see lightning flash in Pasadena on that day when Buddy goes into action . . . The state legislature met at Boston recently to consider a bill prohibiting pro boxers from fighting more than once a week. Previously only a 24-holr lapse was necessary, but the rise in fatalities prompted this action . . . Florida A. & M. has accepted an invite to meet Wiley in the first annual "Angel Bowl" game here on Dec. 28 . . . The Brooklyn Dodgers will leave for spring training in Havana on Feb. 20 . . . The Los Angeles Rams scored a thrilling 31-21 victory over the New York Giants pro grid team in a game held at the Polo Grounds in New York City last Sunday. In a brilliant passing exhibition Bob Waterfield of the Rams completed 22 passes out of 29, three for touchdowns. 47,366 fans saw the tilt . . . Other pro football games found the Hollywood Bears trouncing the Tacoma Indians, 9-6, at Gilmore stadium and the Los Angeles Dons swamping the Buffalo Bisons, 62-14, at the Coliseum . . . Bert LaBrucherie, U.C.L.A.'s great coach, will more than likely get his contract renewed before the Rose Bowl game.

Va. State Loses by One T.D.

PETERSBURG, Va. (NNPA)—Coach Eddie Hurt's mighty Morgan Bears clawed their way to Morgan's twelfth Colored Intercollegiate Athletic association championship in the last 16 years when they conquered a fighting team of Virginia State Trojans, 6-0, in a turkey day fray before 12,000 fans.

With only three minutes to play, Oscar Givens, Morgan's great field general, engineered his team in a great drive from the State 38-yard-line to the one yard ribbon from where he personally carried the pigskin over for the winning score.

The scoring drive was made possible when Unk Campbell, playing his last game for the Bears, intercepted a State pass on his own 30 and danced his way 30 yards to the State 38.

Nelson got 15 off guard for a first down on the 23 and added 6 more on the same play a minute later. "Clipper" Berry ripped off 11 yards down the middle for another first down on the 6 and plunged to the 5 on the next play.

When Nelson was short six points by a yard on the next play Givens knifed through to score on a quarterback sneak. State's fast charging line blocked "Automatic" Jones' try for the extra point.

Florida Rattlers to Face Wiley in Angel Bowl Game

TALLAHASSEE—Florida A. and M. college broke her precedent in accepting a bid to play Wiley college in the "Angel Bowl" at Los Angeles, Dec. 28.

This year the Orange Blossom classic to be played at Tampa's Phillips field, Dec. 7, will not close the season for the Florida Rattlers, Coach Gaither announced this week. Florida has accepted the unusual bid to play in the first "Angel Bowl" game on the west coast. The invitation was offered after close examination of the Rattlers' nine-year S. I. A. C. record.

Florida A. and M.'s unique position in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic conference football picture is enviable. Since the year 1937 the football teams of this college have steadily maintained their position of ascendency in the history of the S. I. A. C. A. S. (Jake) Gaither is head coach of the Rattlers.

Heavies Vie at Hollywood Friday

For the second consecutive week, heavyweights will be featured in the 10-round main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium Friday night, when Jerry McSwain of San Diego and Tony Bosnich of San Francisco collide.

WHAT'S DOING ALONG THE LINE

Alberta Hunter, blues singer of merit, opens at the Apollo in New York on Dec. 6. Eddie Heywood, of the piano playing Heywoods, is on the same bill . . . Lionel Hampton and ork raising sand with box-office figures at N. Y.'s Aquarium. It's a successful return engagement for him . . . "Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein version of the classic, will leave the Broadway theatre in Manhattan on Jan. 4. It will have run exactly one year . . . Maxine Sullivan appeared as guest star on "King Cole Trio Time" last Saturday. She sang "I Found a New Baby." The Cole man introduced a new number on the program titled "Need I say" . . . Swing organist Ethel Smith says that John L. Lewis is "coal-hearted" . . . Duke Ellington's "Deep South Suite" used in his show "Twilight Alley," according to critics, ranks with the greatest of his works or the work of any contemporary American composer. By the way, "Esquire" magazine has informed the Duke that for the third consecutive year he is the winner of the coveted Gold Medal Award in both the "best orchestra" and "best arranger" divisions . . . One of the finest things that could happen to incoming theatrical people is now available in the Western Motel, which provides modern units for short term stays by artists coming here for engagements. A FEW NOTES

Attorney Charles Darden at Lake Shore beach in Elsinore is one of the best hosts this writer has ever met. Darden is never too busy to meet any needs a visitor requires. His property close to the beach at Lake Elsinore covers plenty acres and boasts of quite a few cabins and a beautiful dance hall and restaurant. This scribe weekended up there last Saturday and Sunday and indulged in a bit of duck hunting. We saw plenty ducks all right but they saw us first. A sore shoulder from the kick of that double-barreled shotgun and a hunting license is all I brought back . . . Prairie View university has inaugurated a "name band" policy for their hops and Cootie Williams and his ork played to a capacity student audience of 1473 Tuesday to start the new social program off with a bang . . . Ella Fitzgerald, accompanied by Dizzy Gillespie's 17-piece band, will appear at Texas college at Tyler, Texas, on Dec. 21. By the way, La Fitzgerald was born in Newport, Va., April 25, 1918 . . . In a popularity band poll taken at Camp Le Jeune, N.C., Erskine Hawkins, won by a three vote majority. The camp is a Marine post and selections were made on the basis of recordings during the past year. "Tippin' In," one of the Twentieth Century Gabriel's discs, was adjuged the best swing record of the year and helped the "Hawk" win the crown.

War Vet One of 3 Winners

Movie Star John Garfield was one of the first to congratulate scholarship winner Jimmy Davis when the latter became one of three veterans to sweep the scholarship awards recently offered by the Actors' Laboratory Theatre Workshop in Hollywood. Davis was born in Madison, Georgia. He is thirty years old.

Moving to New Jersey with his family before he had reached his teens, he attended school in that state and later enrolled in the Julliard School of Music in New York City. Uncle Sam got him next, and during his three and a half years in the Army he was smitten with the acting fever. When he was discharged, early in 1945, he came to California with the movies in mind.

His application for admittance was accepted by the Actors' Laboratory in the Spring of 1946 and his work there was of such a high standard that he was awarded the Richard Fiske Scholarship of 1947 term.

Davis has already received recognition as a composer. He has composed several songs for Billie Holliday. His latest, "Loverman," was recorded by Duke Ellington only last week.

Duke Ellington Is Carnegie Hall Hit

By CARRIE MILLER

NEW YORK — Duke Ellington and his 17-piece orchestra appeared in an annual concert at Carnegie Hall two nights recently and on both occasions overwhelming crowds filled the famed concert hall to hear music by this great figure in American music culture and his blue-ribbon orchestra. With special attention being given the great French guitarist, Django Reinhardt, as featured artist, the evenings were music - filled events long to be remembered as the greatest performances yet by the Ellington crew.

The Duke himself in satorial splendor of "white tie and tails" exhibited twice in one weekend the musical forms his genius has created to a most appreciative audinece. Among many of his new numbers heard on the program, of which in all were 12, was the most impressive "The Deep South" a suite in four parts (1) "Magnolias Just Dripping With Molasses", (2) "Hearsay", "There Was Nobody Looking" (3) and (4) "Happy-Go-Lucky-Local". Using trombone, trumpet, clarinet and saxophone passages along with a piano solo in Part 3, this composition is a far more compact one than the much discussed "Black, Brown and Beige" featured in his Concert of 1945.

Mrs. J.T. Gipson's Candid Comments

(The Gipsonette for the week was sent to us from a fella we like a heckuva lot. We promised we would not print his name.)

The things I love:
Southern fried chicken, candied yams,
Red beans and rice, Virginia baked hams,
Ridin' around in the rain at night,
A ringside seat at a Joe Louis fight,
A cozy apartment, liquor that's mellow,
Cruising down Central with a cute "hi-yellow,"
A double feature "moom pickcha" show,
Custom built Cadillac that won't go slow.

Fishing for trout in a mountain stream,
A date with that comely lass in my dream,
Hot swing music with a boogie beat,
Jive talkin' gals who say "aw reet."

Lots of things to that list I could add,
But I've got a censor . . . M-m-m-m, that's bad,
These are the things I love, no joke,
And THESE are the things that keep me broke!!!

MATTA CHOK'D WITH DATA

Miss Bronze America (Bettye Quincey to you) back in town from Seattle, after finishing an engagement at Sessions playhouse . . . Just before leaving for "the Big Apple," the champ Joe called to let us in on a few of his plans. Also talked "a whole lotta trash" with Leonard Reed, who has put down that torch, once and for all, and he's traveling right along with Joe . . . The "gal with the gorgeous profile all the way down," Margie Hyston, and Jimmy (Flennoy Trio) Edwards are definitely "that way" about each other . . . Hearin' a whole lotta nice things about the entertainment over at that tropical spot on Western Avenue . . . SUDDEN THAWT: If you've never tried climbing a wall . . . try it sometime (It's real gone) ha, ha . . . The Otis band, still a swingsation at the Regal in the Windy City . . . Ernie (vocalist) Andrews and Delores (dimples) BiAnamie have been married for a month with not a single person hep . . . It's over, I know, but I jus' gotta "doff the lid" to the Kappa fellas for their Black and White formal. It was a natural!! . . . Was awful sorry I missed out on the Charlie Parker benefit, but all reports state that it was an all-around success . . . Maseo (Step Bros.) who postcards from N. York, "drop me a line" and failing to put a return address on the envelope (Ho-hum) . . . Down from the Bay City is Audry Parker . . . being escorted around town by the one and only Abie Robinson . . . Nita Echolas and partner Parrish have joined the show at the Follies theatre, where Avanelle Harris is one of the featured Harlem cuties . . . Before starting on thir eastern tour, the Flennoy Trio will complete their engagemnt out at The Streets of Paris . . .

NOTES FROM YOUR NEWSGIRL'S PRIVATE FILE

The smile of Dr. Lincoln Shumate would make a good "Pepsodent tooth paste ad" . . . Don't know when I've seen so much talent at one time as I did t'other even'g at the Xmas benefit sponsored at the Alabam by the Eleven-and-one club . . . On hand to help push the worthy cause was Hadda Brooks, who knocked us out with the popular "You Won't Let Me Go" . . . The Delta Rhythm Boys, the Poisen Garner Trio, the newly organized dance team of Sunshine Sammy and Freddie James . . . Louise Beavers, Ivie Anderson, the Honey Drippers, Rochester, bandleader Phil Harris and one of the entertainment worlds' highest paid sepia entertainers, Pearl Bailey, who fairly stole the show with her numbers, namely, "Body and Soul" . . . The show was emceed by Earl Dancer . . . The club president, Celeste Moore, and all members can feel well at ease for sponsoring not only a worth while show, but an entertaining one . . . Wyonie (Mr. Blues) Harris doin' all right for himself "in the Apple" . . . and I thought someone said that Harlem didn't care for (blues) . . . When "Nite Life" magazine hits the coast, don't say I didn't tell you that it will surpass any sepia coast-to-coast magazine . . . it'll hit the stands around the middle of this month . . . and your C.C. Columnist has been selected as the Coast representative (O.K., O.K., so maybe I am prejudiced!) . . . Gee! Sure sorry I can't remember the name of the very charming lady that our pal Clarence Muse escorted to the formal the other even'g, but she was lovely . . . Cute Jacquelin DeLavalade tells us she's contemplating joining hubby Illinois Jacquet in the east, but on second thought, Jaquie says, it is awful cold back there . . . We like the way Velma Rovers wears her clothes . . . Velma is the cute wife of Gene Rodgers . . . Met Cora, the wife of Sonny Howard, she's a lovely person with a disposition to match . . . What is this report about the Ink Spots to open out at The Marble Inn on Imperial Highway in Watts . . . how truzisit? . . . Lionel Hampton's ace saxophonist, "Little Johnny," gave Lionel his two-weeks notice and will leave the bad in N. York and return to the Windy City, where he will again enroll in school and complete his studies . . . The Honeydrippers are still packin' 'em in at the Downbeat. I understand that their new recording "Tanya" is quite a juke-box favorite in the east . . . When Louie Jordan brings his groovy combo to the Lincoln theatre, the place should be packed nitely . . . Get Artie Graves to tell you what he'd call an "ideal girl"; it'll really surprise you, ha, ha . . . The Angel City's newest heat wave is a dark-haired bundle of oomph who answers to the name of Carol Taylor . . . Anita Turner of the stage play, "The Red," has Claude Beverly drinking Zombies (she just mar-[illegible]) and he can't get rid of the heartaches . . . and that's [illegible]!!!

STAGE DOOR

By CARRIE MILLER

ELLINGTONIA

(A Jazz Montage)

From out of the night there shall flash along
Into the dawn of Flamingo skies
A clarinet wail and a blues-cried song,
Purple solicitude and daydream sighs.

A panther pitter-patters 'cross murky seas
And man is awed at the sight occurred
The sleek creature stares from black and white keys
And his growls in a trumpet are caught and heard.

A pyramid shadows a caravan tent
Where wanderlust subtle-born backs 'neath the moon
The cynic heart cries, "Never . . . no lament"
And conga-brava means to a bakiff tune.

(The saddest tale told on land or sea)
As dusk in the desert cools to cloudy moon mist
(Was the tale they told when they told the truth on me)
A sophisticated lady woos prelude to a kiss.

And genius more exotic than all others known
Lends epic imprint to this spectacular age
For jazz a la carte and boy meets horn
While a stranger knocks in black, brown and beige.

With That Tribute to Ellington!!!

There is little more I can add in way of compliment to the genius of this man who has done so much to enrich American Music Culture. His recent two-nighter concert at Carnegie Hall was atestimonial to this fact. Actually for purposes of a personal critique, this concert surpassed all others in first, its very programme compactness and second, its most solidly structured music. Possibly 'tis because I've been such a positively rabid fan of Duke Ellington's since the age of twelve that my opinions may be apparently over-endowed with such favoritism to the man and his work, but then dear reader you will have to bear with me. Getting back to the Concert an outstanding composition was his "THE DEEP SOUTH," a suite in four parts written by himself and Billy Strayhorn, often referred to as "Swee'pea" or "Lil Duke." Actually this composition is of far tighter structure than "BLACK, BROWN & BEIGE" was in its introduction to the public. This however only proves the point that the reason the Duke remains the top musical figure he is because he never STOPS LEARNING and IMPROVING!

Special comment goes always to the superb performances by the Ellington bandmen!! . . . ALL of whom are outstanding musicians in his own rights and to be admired by the terrific showmanship and co-operation so evident in their stage-bearing and performances.

The secondary feature, the International, feund Liberty Wick nosing out Royal Cynic, and paying $4.80 to win. Royal Cynic rewarded backers $9.40 to place.

Only two public choices scored out of the 10 races. Longshot players were paid off heavily on Loma Marvel at $70 to two and Silver Grail at $35.20. Daily double players received $264.20 on the combination of Noloch and Gold Proxy but the Quinela players only got $10 on Cleo Mic and Gold Boss. Lassie's Tommy provided a killing in the first race, paying $10.20, having dropped from 15 to 3 to 1.

The feature at a mile and an eighth this Sunday will have an added value of $1500 and the secondary is to be known as the "Posada" at five furlongs. Until Sunday, so long . . . George.

Santa Anita Leaders Back

Leading owners, trainers and jockeys during the previous nine seasons at Santa Anita have returned this winter to try and add to the high marks they have established.

Charles S. Howard, who was the top money-winning owner for three years—1939-40-41—has the strongest stable since the days when Seabiscuit, Kayak II and Mioland were carrying his colors to victory. Louis B. Mayer, who led the way for the past two years—the $235,620 in 1945 being an all-time Santa Anita high—has even more formidable gallopers this season.

Winter Baseball For Junior Teams

A city-wide winter baseball league for boys under 18 years will be formed soon, according to plans announced this week by the Los Angeles City Recreation department. Local teams will be developed at city playgrounds equipped with baseball diamonds and youths interested in taking part may obtain further information from the director at the nearest of such centers.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific — and points north and south—there are some 10,500 bowling establishments.

No. Carolina in Cage Contest New Year's Day

DURHAM, N. C. (NNPA—The North Carolina State Eagles, who won the disputed Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball championship last year, will pay a pre-season basketball game with the Morgan Bears in Philadelphia next New Year's Day. Tentative games are also slated for Washington, December 30, and New York City, January 3. Opponents for the last two games have not yet been named.

Lincoln 'Orange Bowl' Selection

TALLAHASSEE — It has just been announced by the Florida A. and M. Athletic association that Lincoln University of Pennsylvania has accepted the offer to play against the Rattlers in the Annual Orange Blossom Classic in Tampa, on December 7. Lincoln University has one of the top teams in the nation having lost only two games this season, one to Wilberforce and the other to the still undefeated Morgan Bears.

LOVE'S OLD SWEET STORY

Dear Prof. Herman: My problem is no doubt like so many that you come in contact with, but to me it is the difference between 'hope and despair'. I started to going with a married man while his wife was in the service about four years ago and find that I love him so much I don't want to give him up. It would be easier if he had lied to me about his marriage or did something to make me dislike him, but instead he has always been loving, kind and thoughtful. He has never failed to remind me that our association must cease, because of his wife, and has stopped seeing me for days at a time. But he will start again, because he says he can't bear to stay away from me. What shall I do?—M. R.

Ans.—My dear girl, one of you must use common sense, and realize that you can't go on in this manner. There is no future in your friendship with this man as he has made no effort to mae it so. This should be enough to mae you realize that you should bring a halt to this philandering. If you were a youngster I could see how you might be impressed by an older man and the many things he might say and do, but at your age you should stop and think about the consequences. I definitely recommend your spending time with some of your friends who are your own equal and in time you will put this little interlude out of your mind.

Mary—When will my husband and I be united?

Ans.—A carfeul analysis of your question indicates the fact that many things have taekn place which have caused the delay. But he is as anxious as you are to be home with you again, and in all probability definite information will reach you concerning this matter within the next two weeks.

L. P.—Will I get along alright? Will the baby be born in Jan., or Dec.? Why does my husband look so worried?

Ans.—Only one question is answered in the column, I suggest you write in for a private reply.

T. S.—Will we ever be any more than 'friends'?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that this young man is extremely fond of you and yould like to ask you to be his wife, but he is not financially able to support and take care of one yet. He is under the impression that you know this, that is why he hasn't talked about marriage to you. If you are patient a little longer you will be rewarded, for a change in his future activities is indicated.

for minority groups a good investment, will be able to outbid smaller competitors for the scarce materials and instead of the needed low priced housing which it needs, the country will get expensive residential homes and high priced non-essential industrial expansion.

Supporters of Allen contend that even if more expensive homes are built and sold, the people buying them will move from their present homes into the new houses and create vacancies for those unable to buy the more expensive homes.

Housing officials say this is the same old "hand-down" policy which created slum areas and that any new construction should be for the people needing it most—the little man already living in the slums or who has no home at all.

They add that under restrictive covenants, colored people would be denied the majority of the "hand down" homes anyway.

Battle lines already drawn indicate the type of issues involved. Lined up behind Allen is the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the American Legion and other large interests.

Wyatt's backing includes the American Veterans Committee, the Amvets, the National Council for Neegro Women, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Urban League and thousands of small community organizations.

The executive committee of the American Legion dealt the entire housing program a body blow last Friday when it threw its support against Wyatt.

The Legion flatly recommended that the National Housing Agency be abolished and that President Truman set up in its stead a seven man emergency housing board composed of veterans of World War II who are members of veterans organizations chartered by Congress.

The Legion called for the abolition of all controls; dropping of price ceilings on new construction and a halt to the use of federal funds to provide guaranteed market contracts to manufacturers of the low priced prefabricated housing.

In its 22-page report on the housing situation the Legion devoted just 115 words to "Slum Clearance and Low Income Groups, the nearest approach the report made to the housing problems of other minority groups.

Significant of the importance which the battle holds for colored people is an unprecedented statement from the Florida State American Legion which voiced opposition to the support given Allen's program by the Legion's national executive committee.

The Florida State American Legion has two Negro members on its state veterans housing committee and recently sent the mixed committee to Washington to confer with housing officials on the problems of houses for veterans.

Although speculation was rife as to whether President Truman would support Wyatt against his favorite funnyman Allen, it appeared that legally, Wyatt held the edge in his battle with the jovial Missourian.

bo's speeches had intensified the white supremacy feelings in the state and had contributed to violence and the low Negro registration and voting.

Testimony of the four highlighted the opening day of public hearings into charges that Bilbo, who won renomination in the July primary, had engaged in hate incitement to prevent Negroes from voting.

At the afternoon session, two citizens of Greenville, Miss., testified they got the "run-around" when they tried to register.

John L. Hathorn, of Winston, said he was permitted to register but that the clerk told him he had better not try to vote.

Several witnesses from Meridian, Miss., testified they were allowed to vote, but that their ballots were put in an envelope insetad of the ballot box. All doubted that their ballots were counted.

While these and other witnesses were willing to come forward and testify, many others were reluctant to face possible reprisals: J. D. Collins of Greenwood, Miss., notiifed the Mississippi State Progressive Voters League that he would testify only if subpoenaed. Collins would be a key witness since he is one of several Negroes "invited" by white political leaders of Greenwood to a meeting at which he was told that Negroes must not go to the polls. He was instructed to carry that word to all potential Negro voters in Greenwood.

Senator Allen J. Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana, committee chairman, has agreed that the committee may have to subpoena witnesses who fail to appear. He takes the position, however, that if there were individual violations of Mississippi's election laws, the remedy lays in the state courts.

"We have no jurisdiction and they ought to know that," he said. He was referring to the Civil Rights Congress which gathered the complaints the committee is investigating.

Only 2500 Negroes voted in the Democratic primaries, although it is estimated that 35,000 were eligible to vote. Of these, 30,000 were veterans who were exempted from the payment of the poll tax.

Since Bilbo won by only 4000 odd votes, if that many more veterans alone had voted he might have been forced into a runoff election and possible defeat.

orities announced that the 3rd battalion Ninth Infantry, 2nd and 3rd battalions, 23rd Infantry, had successfully invaded the shore.

Speaking with several airmen of the 99th, who were former combat pilots with the famous 332nd and old 99th overseas on D Day in June, '44, during the second global conflict, all agreed it was quite different, for when they were playing for keeps with the enemy. At that time, they said, there was no restrictions as now. Since it was a maneuver, precautions are taken to insure safety.

The previous day, members of the 99th Fighter Squadron escorted 36 A-26 invaders of the 47th Bomb Group on a surprise attack. Camp Pendleton airstrip was the target on this mission. According to umpires of the exercises for the army and navy. The pilots of 447th Composite Group aided in the destruction of many aircraft on the ground, and the strip was theoretically damaged to such an extent that considerable time would be required to put it back in working shape.

Maj. Gen. Pete Quesada, commanding general of tactical Air Command, with headquarters at Langley Field, Va., paid a flying visit here this afternoon. The youthful general flew a P-51. Met by Col. Benjamin O. Davis Jr., Group Commander and C. O. of LAAB, home base of the 477th, who had arrived earlier in the day, and Maj. Andrew D. Turner, deputy group commander. The general spoke briefly on the war games and the good job being performed by the flyers from the Ohio air base.

Shortly before dawn on "X Day" a dozen B-25's and the same number of P-47's left their home base. Eight of the fighters were to escort the 47th Bomb Group based at March Field, on the trip to San Clemente Island, the site of today's operations. The remainder convoyed the B-25 "Billy Mitchels" of the 477th on their route to the target. According to reports the first bomb was dropped from about 1000 feet at 7:53 Pacific Standard time. This was the initial phase in softening the resistence for the land forces to retake the island from the enemy.

Situated at the southwest of Los Angeles, approximately 165 miles from the heart of the city, the island is surrounded by the Pacific ocean and the gulf of Santa Catalina.

Fully 10,000 troops of the 2nd Infantry Division landed safely on the 75 square mile west coast strip, as the 477th bombers, fighters and A-26 bombers from the 47th Bomb Squadron laid down a barrage unequalled in the maneuvers.

Two of the aircraft from Blythe were declared casualties due to engine trouble enroute to the target. It was announced by Intelligence that any ship that did not complete the mission for any mechanical reason, and had to return to the home base, would be regarded as shot down. This was done to increase the interest in the war exercises and create a competitive spirit among squadrons.

In the afternoon, 20 fighters from Blythe patrolled the air space at 20,000 feet above China Point, which is located in the southwest tip of San Clemente Island. It is believed that the purpose of the mission was for reconnaissance of enemy aircraft. Several unidentified ships and convoys have been seen in this area the past couple of days by local airmen.

Jewish Congress, NAACP Join Mexicans In Legal Attack os Segregation

the Advancement of Colored People are active in the case.

The American Jewish Congress' brief marshals a variety of arguments to support its case.

Segregation is held inconsistent with federal policy as expressed in the ratification of the United Nations Charter and in the resolution accompanying the Act of Chapultepec. The brief likewise declares the segregation of children of recent immigrants contrary to the Federal naturalization policy which envisages the rapid assimilation of immigrant groups into American life.

The brief points out that segregation against Negroes, Mexicans and other minorities is predicated upon assumptions of inferiority or superiority and cites numerous opinions by Southern courts which frankly declare Negroes to be so inferior to whites that a white person may recover damages for libel or slander if he is written or spoken of as a Negro. Southern courts view segregation laws as official recognition of this inferiority. Where white persons have been compelled to ride in segregated Negro coaches, Southern courts have considered the humiliation and mortification so great as to warrant an award of damages.

Supporting its contentions with numerous references to sociological and psychological literature, the brief demonstrates that an official sanction of segregation "helps to perpetrate racial prejudice . . contributes to the degradation and humuliation of the minority child" and has "crippling psychological effects" upon the individual personality.

The American Jewish Congress urges the disregard of racial and religious differences "not for the sake of minorities alone" but because both the dominant and subordinate groups are adversely affected by segregation.

The point is made that while the United States supreme court upheld segregation in the decision of Plessy v. Ferguson, in 1896, it did so only upon the assumption that legal segregation did not imply the inferiority of the Negro race. It is maintained, however, that, in the light of 50 years' experience with legally enforced segregation, 'the only meaning of the distinction between Negroes and whites, Mexicans and Anglo-Saxons, is that of inferiority of one group to another,' and that the very doctrine of the Plessy case "calls for the outlawing of humiliating and discriminatory laws."

The argument concludes that while "all discrimination is bad . . . none is so vicious as the . . . humiliation of innocent, trusting children, American children full of faith in life. Their humiliation strike at the very roots of the American Commonwealth."

The Westminster case is only one of a number of legal and legislative actions against racial and religious discrimination in employment, education and housing undertaken by the Commission on Law and Social Action of the American Jewish Congress.

Just now, one of the hottest issues for the Congress is that of police brutality in Los Asgeles. Leo Gallagher is chairman of the Committee on Lynch Law and Police Brutality, which also meets each week.

Among other activities of this organization is an effort to gain more and better housing for Negroes. Frank Wilkerson heads the housing commission.

families and that the house in back of the Butler apartment is now occupied by Negroes.

"It would work great hardship," Goodstein added, "to deny Butler the right to the premises and allow it to his wife because of their difference in color." Such action would tend to split up the marital relationship and the home."

The restrictive covenant referred to was drawn up in 1922, but one of the residents in the area failed to sign it at that time. The covenant covers the area included by Exposition blvd., Normandie ave., W. Jefferson, and 37th place.

Sen. Kilgore Denounces GOP-Sponsored Charge Against Negro Soldiers

troops in Germany are more "undisciplined and uncontrolled" than the white troops, although the discipline among both is at low ebb.

A German bishop, said Senator Brewster, addressed a scathing letter to the American military governmen beseeching it to do something about colored American troops.

Senator Brewster attributed alleged failure to discipline Negro troops to fear of political repercussions in this country, adding that subordinate officers were were helpless when their superiors will not back them up.

Senator Kilgore denounced the Meador findings as mere "hearsay, rumors and gossip," adding: "We have required that our investigators shall get their facts on an impartial basis and shall not rely on persons who are prejudived or maliciously inclined."

The war department had no information available to substantiate the Meador report.

One army officer, who, for obvious reasons asked that his name be not used, said one of the difficulties with Negro troops was that white officers usually assigned to these ships were those who had proved themselves worthless while serving with white troops and lacked command ability. On the other hand, he added, white officers assigned to Negro troops regarded such an assignment as a "blind alley" and usually bent their effort toward getting another assignment.

He also pointed out that in the eyes of some white officers, any association of Negro soldiers with white women, whether German and Italian prostitutes or cultured women, is offensive, while such association on the part of white soldiers is encouraged as a means of keeping up troop morale.

LEVI JACKSON, Yale's Sepia fullback, was awarded the George Bulger Lowe trophy Monday.

Vets Housing Project Opens in Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NNPA) —The first project for Negro veterans and servicemen in the District of Columbia erected under the veterans temporary emergency housing program was opened here last Friday, the National Housing Agency announced.

Forty-eight apartments in the 304-unit project at Camp Sims, Alabama avenue and 15th st., southeast, have been filled, and the entire project is scheduled for December 31 completion.

The apartments comprise one of five District of Columbia veterans' emergency housing projects for which more than 8000 applications have been received. All the accommodations which are being supplied at federal expense are converted two-story army barracks, panelized and moved from Camp Davis, South Carolina.

The apartments are of one, two and three bedrooms with fully equipped kitchens and bathrooms. Rentals range from $18 to $44 per month.

Camp Sims is under the management of the National Capital Housing Authority with E. F. Plant, manager of the Frederick Douglass Houses, located in the same neighborhood, as the resident manager.

NAM President Gives With Double Talk

When does a worker have a right to a job? According to industry's principal spokesman that right exists only when it can be utilized to weaken Organized Labor, defeat the closed shop.

Participating in the "Meet the Press" radio program last Friday night, NAM President Watson declared that his organization, the National Association of Manufacturers, supports not the right to a job, but the right to compete for a job.

Later on the program, however, in an attack on the closed shop, Watson declared "the right of a man to a job should be restored to him," that is, the right of backward and anti-union elements to work in a shop, reap the benefits of unionization, without joining the union.

Charter Issued for Local Negro Federal Loan Bank

The green light was given this week for the opening of the Broadway Federal Savings and Loan Association, to be located at 4325 South Broadway, when John M. Wyman, chief supervisor of the Federal Home Loan Bank Administration, notified H. A. Howard, chairman of the local group's Organizational Committee, that a federal charter, No. 1779, has been granted.

Under tentative plans the new institution will open its doors early in January.

Formation of such an enterprise here sets another record in business foresight for Los Angeles Negroes. According to the Department of Commerce, there is only one other Negro Federal Savings and Loan Association in the country, located in Chicago.

The local association will be under direct supervision of the federal government.

Capital stock was set at $150,000 by federal authorities when the new group's application was approved last summer. Scores of civic-minded individuals easily pledged this amount during a special organizational drive conducted several weeks ago.

At that time, governmental regulations prohibited the acceptance of any actual cash, pending the issuance of a federal charter. Now that the latter has been granted, organizational heads are urging that those individuals who made these commitments should make good their pledges immediately.

"These charter members will participate in share accounts and will receive excellent dividends on their investments," stressed Chairman Howard this week. "We will be ready to accept deposits and make loans within a few weeks, as soon as an office staff can be assembled and other details worked out. Incidentally, we already have on file innumerable applications for loans from individuals."

He further emphasized that in keeping with rules and regulations of the Federal Home Loan Bank system, depositors of share capital may withdraw their funds at any time.

Local business groups are hailing the establishing of the new Negro-controlled federal savings and loan association here as a godsend to thousands of underprivileged families in the low-income brackets who desire to purchase, to refinance, and to build new homes in Southern California.

It is furthermore emphasized that this new institution will be able to make FHA loans to GIs and other persons who are qualified thereto. Also, that the borrowers' charges will be at a minimum rate together with their monthly payments.

Merchant Mariners Seek Equality With War Vets in Housing

(SCP) — Requesting the same rights in housing projects as veterans of the armed forces, a small delegation from the Merchant Marine Veterans Association appeared before the city council this week.

The group, headed by John Dan Ladd, association secretary, cited the many sacrifices of merchant mariners, and asked the council to memorialize congress to give them all housing rights allowed veterans.

Councilman Carl C. Rasmussen introduced a resolution embodying their request. After some debate, is was referred to the public health and welfare committee for further study.

"Some of the most serious cases of the city's polio epidemic are now coming to General Hospital," an official of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis warned yesterday. "The epidemic is definitely not over," she added.

NAACP Head Asks GOP Senators' Reason for Releasing Biased Report

NEY YORK—President Truman was urged in a telegram sent him by Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, to send immediately to Germany an impartial, biracial commission to investigate the conditions presented in the report of George M. Meader, general counsel for the Senate War Investigating Committee, which, says, White "clearly appears to be a political smear of Negro troops in Germany."

In another telegram to the Republican members of the investigating committee, now in Washington, White requested an explanation of their reasons for releasing the report last Wednesday, along with their statement that they would not assume responsibility for the accuracy.

In his telegram to the President, White asked: "Certain members of the Senate Committee to investigate War Expenditures now obviously more interested in smearing Negro troops than in getting at the truth."

In his telegram to the Republican members of the committee, Senators Brewster, Ball, Knowland and Ferguson, the NAACP executive secretary said:

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People finds it difficult to understand the motives back of your action with respect to the Meader report, based on this three-week's investigation of American troops in Germany,

Rent Controls Off by Jan. 1, Landlord Says

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

Complete decontrol of all rents will be started January 1, Burton E. Edwards, secretary-treasurer of the Apartment Association of Los Angeles, predicted here this week.

Edwards, who has just returned from lobbying in Washington, told landlords that a 15 per cent increase in rents will be authorized tomorrow. He said that conferences on the question are being held now by President Truman, Reconversion Director John R. Steelman and other government officials.

There were indications, Burton said, that landlords may be required to grant a year's lease as a condition of removal of the restrictions. He plans to return to Washington immediately.

Planned to Kill Jews, Negroes

ATLANTA, Ga.—With the help of a blond girl secret service agent, Georgia authorities this week exposed the anti-Negro Columbians as a Nazi-type movement using racial hate as a springboard for the overthrow of the United States government. With the exposure of the ultimate aim of the outfit, prosecution of its leaders appeared certain.

Blond, lovely Renee Ferrest, 24, of New York, cajoled two Columbians into making confessions which revealed that the group planned to seize power and kill all Jews, Negroes, and members of other minorities.

The confessions, turned over to State Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook, were reported to Gov. Arnall,

Race-Baiting Sheet in Vile Riot Incitement; Time for Police Action

The Los Angeles Equalizer

"NIGGERS" SLUG JEWS

(Insulting headline in L. A. Equalizer)

The Sidewalk

By C.A.B.

An investigation revealed this week that a filthy race-baiting sheet, of the above mentioned name, printed on heavy slick paper and edited by L. R. Foster, is being circulated in and around the City Hall, Hall of Justice, and other public buildings and in some of the residential districts of Los Angeles.

On several occasions when delegations of white and Negro citizens have visited the Mayor of the city and the police commission, to report acts of violence by persons they believed to be members of the Ku Klux Klan, as well as brutal attacks on Negro citizens by some police officers, they have been told that nothing could be done unless the committees obtained evidence sufficient to substantiate their charges.

Some of the cases brought to the attention of the Mayor and the Police Commission were: The demolition of a synagogue, burning crosses on a university frat house, on the sidewalk of the Woodlawn YWCA, and on the lawns of numerous Negro, Chinese and Jewish residents.

In all of these cases the committees were advised that they would have to produce bonafide evidence to prove their charges.

To our Honorable Mayor, Police Commission and Police Department Chief, I call to your attention the fact that the Negro press of the city has been accused of trying to incite a race riot.

I am sure I voice the sentiment of the entire Negro press when I say that nothing is or has been so remote in Negro thought as encouraging dissension between whites and Negroes in the community.

I am wondering, Mr. Mayor, if you and the other tax paid city and county officials have read any of this in Mr. Fosters' Equalizer, and I quote the following racist incitement:

"In the early part of 1945 and for nearly six weeks during the foremost part of this year, decent, law-abiding and peace-loving citizens of Los Angeles were subjected to a brutally-vicious and revolting reign of terror at the hands of several bands of nigger gunmen, bandits and sluggers . . .

"Police records show that the staggering total of 141 crimes were committed during March and April of this year by a gang of seven of the black-skinned vermin . . .

"Brutality and terrorism ran rampant and the cruel treatment of their unfortunate victims by these niggers is akin to the lowest form of bestiality and cannibalism practiced by their native counterparts in faraway and uncivilized islands.

There were only seven in this "gang" committing all this terrorism, according to Fosters' own statement. He gives their names and ages. One boy was only 16. The ages of the others are 17, 18, 19, and 20; with one man of 21 and another of 31.

Editor Foster also describes the crimes they committed: holdups, assault with a deadly weapon, robbery, vagrancy, etc. One proprietor of a liquor store, John McMillan, had a gun and pointed it at four of them when they attempted to rob him. They ran like "scared rabbits," according to his story.

"In the opinion of your publisher," comments Jo-

Sen. Basner Will Talk at 2nd Baptist Ch.

A first-hand account of the controversy which has been raging recently in the United Nations meeting, relative to the African question, will be given by Senator H. M. Basner, leader of the progressive minority in the South African parliament, when he speaks at the Second Baptist church Sunday, December 15, at 3 p. m.

Senator Basner has just arrived from the New York meeting of the United Nations general assembly, where he and other delegates were successful in counteracting the proposal of General Smuts for annexation of Southwest Africa to the Union of South Africa; and, at the same time, exposing the crimes of white supremacy oppression as practiced by the government of South Africa against the 8,000,000 Africans in that country and

CIO Union Bares Bias Against Minorities in Government Agencies

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Charges of discriminatory hiring practices by federal agencies against Negroes and Jews flared into the open here Monday when a delegation of the United Public Workers of America (CIO) was authorized to appear before the Civil Service Commission and air such charges against the Federal Trade Commission.

The issue arose over a transfer of the financial reporting division of the Office of Price Administration to the Federal Trade Commission. The division has 110 employees, 45 of whom are colored, and some of whom are Jews. Orders have been issued to transfer 40 of the divisions' employes to FTC. The other employes are to be terminated.

According to union officials, the FTC does not want any Negroes or Jews included in the transfer and has sought advice of the commission as to how best to go about making all-white selections from the 110 employes.

Union officials insist that the transfer should be made from the 110 employes of the division

Threats, Insults Greet Family in Beach St. Home

(SCP)—George Sharp told police he was welcomed to his new home at 8616 Beach street in this way:

1. A group of 16-year-old white boys passed the home and made insulting remarks about the "dark cloud" entering the neighborhood.

2. A milk bottle was hurled through a window.

3. A note in a whisky bottle found on the front porch said, "You're not wanted. Get out or else." It was signed "KKK."

The boys walked by as his family was moving furniture into the house he purchased recently from Samuel Angus, white, of 1104 South Longwood avenue, Sharpe said.

Sharpe told officers he saw a man running away from the house after the milk bottle crashed through the window. The Sharpes are the only Negro family in the block, but since the war several Negro families have moved to adjoining streets in the neighborhood. Police found the whisky bottle when they arrived at the house.

Angus said he had received several letters from residents of the area who objected to his selling the house to a Negro family.

The anti-subversive detail of the sheriff's office is conducting an investigation.

Jo Baker to Marry French Ork Leader

PARIS— (NNPA) —Jo Bouillon, about 40, white leader of a French swing orchestra, said last night that he and Josephine Baker, 39, of St. Louis, a Parisian music hall star, intended to marry and were planning a South American trip in April.

It will be her third marriage and Bouillon's first. Her first husband was the late Count Abatino and her second Jean Lion, French banker.

Two Chicago Vets Defy Fiery Cross Threat; to Hold Project Apartments

By DON LORING

CHICAGO, (Special to EAGLE)—The burning of a fiery cross Sunday night in front of the Airport Homes project climaxed a series of disturbances ranging over several weeks at the South Side veterans project which was originally designed for interracial occupancy. The cross burning occurred a few hours after the families of two Negro vets had moved into apartments assigned them by the Chicago Housing Authority.

Meantime, all but one of the 55 white families of veteran "squatters" had voluntarily moved out of apartments at the project intended for Negro occupancy just before civil action suits to evict them were to be brought in circuit court here.

The "squatters" who moved into the project without CHA leases, received Mayor Edward J. Kelly's strong condemnation in a forcefully worded declaration that he would enlist the city's full resources to see that justice prevailed in assigning apartment to eligible veterans in accordance of

Attempt to End Baseball Bias Gets Set-Back

A determined campaign on the part of the National Negro Congress and others interested in seeing Negro baseball players integrated into the professional baseball scene suffered an initial setback Friday after a committee was foiled in an attempt to present their case at the Biltmore Hotel.

The occasion was the national convention of the baseball bigwigs of the various baseball

Famous Song Writer, Injured in Auto Crash, Sues Yellow Cab Co.

Joe Greene, nationally known song writer and Hollywood scenarist was badly injured and his Cadillac automobile almost demolished last Sunday night at the intersection of Adams & Broadway when a Yellow Cab crashed into him as he was crossing the street. Greene was immediately rushed to the Georgia Street Receiving Hospital where he received emergency treatment. Riding with Greene was Miss Ethelle Moore. The two were enroute to Mrs. Moore's home.

According to the story told to his attorney, Curtis C. Taylor, as he was crossing the intersection a Yellow Cab driver, disregarding the stop signal dashed madly through and careened pell-mell into his car. Attorney Taylor, who represents both the injured parties, immediately took up the matter with the Yellow Cab Co. with a view to making a settlement or resorting to court action to enforce their claims.

Greene attained national reknown as a song writer two years ago when he wrote the hit song "Her Tears Flowed Like Wine," which at one time was No. 1 on the Hit Parade. He has also written a number of other songs and of recent years has been a regular scenario writer in some of the major Hollywood studios. Greene originally came from Seattle, Washington, where he attended school with Bing and Larry Crosby. He has made Los Angeles his home for the past 15 years. He resides in a pretentious mansion at 3678 Cimarron ave.

Mrs. Walter Gordon, Jr. Given Divorce Decree

The lengthy estrangement in the marital relations between Walter L. Gordon Jr., and his socially prominent wife, Eloise, flared in the open here Monday when the couple appeared in superior court to make a legal expression of their differences.

After a few preliminary discussions, a decree of divorce was granted in favor of Mrs. Gordon. Atty. Gordon did not contest his wife's divorce action.

Mrs. Gordon was awarded the custody of the couple's three minor children and the home at 4307 Wall Street. In actual settlement made out of court, Atty. Gordon agreed to pay the sum of $125 per week for the support of Mrs. Gordon and the children and awarded her the possession of their Catalina residence.

Segregation Denies Victims Decent Life, Capital Group Declares

By JAMES L. HICKS, NNPA Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Adequate medical care, decent living conditions, a fair chance to work, and a fair chance to learn are the birthrights of all Americans but they cannot be attained under a system of segregation, the Washington Council of Social Agencies declared yesterday.

Making public a social survey report on race relations in the District of Columbia, the interracial council, which is financed by the Washington Community Chest, found that colored people here are most grievously handicapped in health, housing, employment opportunities and education and then bluntly stated:

"We go, therefore, directly to the heart of this problem and we say simply to the people of Washington that arbitrary segregation on account of race must be ended."

The committee recommended drastic changes in the pattern of Washington community life in these four important fields.

In the field of health, the report recommended that race segregation and discrimination in health facilities be abolished; that Negro doctors and medical students be given equal opportunity to participate in study, and that colored patients receive non-discriminatory treatment in all hospital clinics. It also urged the District Medical Society to rescind its present policy of excluding Negro physicians.

The committee recommended congressional enactment of legislation to prohibit restrictive covenants in the district and charged that such covenants are not only undemocratic but operate to perpetuate slums and other blighted areas. It also recommended federal legislation which would prohibit segregation and discrimination in all publicly owned or financed projects or lands.

On the question of employment the committee recommended that the federal and district governments hire persons in public positions at the full level of their qualifications, preparations, and merit without respect to race, and called on congress to adopt a Fair Employment Practice law for the district similar to those in effect in New York and New Jersey.

The committee also recommended that the National Apprenticeship Service expand its local staff to develop training opportunities for colored youth.

It urged that "children attend educational institutions in the school district in which they live without segregation or discrimination and that segregation of the teaching force be abolished."

In calling for the drastic changes in the Washington community pattern, the report said:

"We are not unmindful that opinion in the dominant race of the community is complacent about existing conditions and runs at present strongly counter to any substantial change. And it will be argued from this fact, we are aware, by those disposed to resist innovation, that the recommendations here submitted are idealistic—as though that besmirched them—and impracticable.

"We take the view, however, that where essential principles are at stake idealism and realism are indistinguishable. There can be no realistic programs when essential principles are flouted. In point of fact, no real or substantial barriers stand in the way of the remedies we recommend save an opinion rooted in prejudice and tragically in conflict with conscience."

Neal Is Freed of Narcotic Charges

Grady A. Neal 21, arrested several weeks ago on a charge of suspicion of violating the state narcotic code, was at liberty and freed of charges when he appeared last Thursday with counsel in superior court.

Atty. Everette M. Porter, of the law firm of Atty. Walter L. Gordon Jr. and Associates, succeeded in breaking down the State's case against Neal after stiff arguments.

G. L. K. Smith In Town for 'Convention'

Gerald L. K. Smith was back in town yesterday, holding a "convention" of his followers in the Embassy auditorium.

The two-night stand started yesterday, it was reported, with a meeting of some 800 Smith fanatics. The meeting followed the pattern of previous appearances of the race-baiter in town, observers said. According to them, the gathering was not a convention in the sense of delegated representatives from organizations. Everyone who attended was a self-appointed delegate, these observers said.

It was reported that Smith would leave immediately for Texas, following the end of the "convention."

Connelly to Take Appeal to High Court

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

The appellate department of the state supreme court on Monday denied CIO official Philip M. (Slim) Connelly's petition for a rehearing of two municipal court criminal convictions.

The department held up execution of a 60-day jail sentence after it was informed that Connelly will carry the case to the U. S. supreme court on a writ of review.

Connelly, executive secretary of the Los Angeles CIO Council, was convicted of violating a court order limiting pickets and of participating in a strike "riot" during the U. S. Electrical Motors strike last January. A 60-day jail sentence was imposed on each count, to run concurrently.

Housing Expert Here To Aid Citizens Unit

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

An international housing expert, Shirley Adelson Siegel, former executive director of the New York Housing Council, will assume the same duties for the Los Angeles Citizens Housing Council, Monsignor Thomas J. O'Dwyer, president of the organization, has announced.

Mrs. Siegel is credited with authorship of a large part of the housing and redevelopment legislation submitted to the New York legislature and many articles in legal publications.

She is a graduate of the Yale law school and a member of the New York state bar and has traveled widely in Europe, studying town planning and housing.

Dixie Workers Strike as Firms Fire Unionists

ALEXANDRIA, La.—Disgusted over deplorably low pay and refusal of their firm to enter into contract negotiations with representatives of the AFL Organizing Campaign, which would have assured them of increased wages and generally improved working conditions, fully 100 Negro workers of Alexandria Steam Laundry, Inc., walked off their jobs in bitter protest, and, several days later, employes of Blackman's Laundry, owned by the Mayor of this city, sympathetically "followed suit."

In each case, the walk-out action was precipitated by the firing of key workers who favored unionization. Three such workers had been dismissed from their jobs at Alexandria Steam Laundry, and several had been fired at Blackman's for displaying "Join the AFL" buttons, when the respective mass departures occurred.

While the walk-outs, both spontaneous, were unauthorized, they do reflect the total dissatisfaction of the workers and their grim determination to better their economic condition, a union official told the press.

Trial Jan. 22 For Driver Who Killed 2 Kids

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

Sherman Johnson, white, 30, pleaded not guilty to charges of manslaughter when arraigned before Judge William R. McKay in superior court Monday. Trial was set for Jan. 22 before Superior Court Judge Harold B. Landreth.

Johnson was held in the traffic deaths of two Negro children in a traffic accident at Washington boulevard and Alameda street November 3.

The children, Alzoria Claudette Finley, 16, and Ray Garland Finley, 2, were killed when the car in which they were riding, and of which their father was driver, collided with a truck driven by Johnson. According to police, both Johnson and Garland Finley, 1132 East 55th street, were under the influence of intoxicating beverages at the time.

Finley, held on suspicion of manslaughter following the accident, was released Nov. 14 when no warrant was filed against him.

(SCP) — The Sister Kenny Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will open its Southern California drive for $200,000 this week, according to Atty. Jerry Giesler, chairman for this district. Half of the funds raised here will be used locally to train graduate nurses in the Kenny techniques, for establishment of a Kenny clinic here, and to buy equipment, Giesler said.

Brophy's Attack on NNC Yergan, Cayton Declare

NEW YORK, (Special to EAGLE)—The national officers of the National Negro Congress, at a meeting held yesterday to plan for organizational expansion, took cognizance of a statement by John Brophy, director of the Industrial Union Councils of the CIO, that "The National CIO Committee to Abolish Discrimination has advised" Brophy that "the national office of the CIO has never endorsed the National Negro Congress," and that "from time to time the policies of the National Negro Congress are at variance and in opposition to the policies of the CIO."

In response to many inquiries on Brophy's statement, the national officers of the NNC released the following statement:

1. The position of the National Negro Congress since its organization in 1936 has been one of support to the policies of the CIO and progressive labor generally. We have fought consistently to bring the Negro workers and the Negro people into the trade union movement. We believe that the policy of the NNC in support of the CIO's program has been and remains essential for the progress of Negro as well as white Americans.

The fundamental contribution of the National Negro Congress is that the highest interests of the Negro people and the forces of Organized Labor are interdependent. This is especially true today when there is evidence of the strongest possible effort to smash Oranized Labor.

2. The Congress has conducted a militant fight against lynching, and all other forms of oppression inflicted upon Negroes, and has campaigned for adequate housing, price and rent control, for decent hours and living wages, against colonialism and now for world peace.

In the light of the above policy and program, we are forced to ask in what respects the policies of the National Negro Congress are "at variance and in opposition to" those of the CIO?

We have to conclude, therefore, that Mr. Brophy's reference to non-recognition of the National Negro Congress by the CIO is based on a misunderstanding of the National Negro Congress. This misunderstanding, the National Negro Congress is taking immediate steps to discuss and clear up.

3. The National Negro Congress takes note of the endorsement of the National CIO of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and expresses its view that this endorsement is in accord with our fundamental conviction that the interests of the Negro people and labor are being served through the development of the closest collaboration between labor and the Negro people.

The NNC statement was signed by Max Yeergan, NNC president, and Revels Cayton, executive secretary.

Brophy's statement on the NNC was contained in a letter dated Nov. 26 and addressed to the Los Angeles Industrial Union Council, CIO. The letter repeated arguments raised and refuted several months ago when the Los Angeles branch of the NNC was first organized, to wit, that the work of he NNC was "largely a duplication of the work of the NAACP."

Atlanta Hotel Fire Spurs Action Here

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

Spurred by the disastrous Atlanta hotel fire, which claimed 120 lives, the city council on Monday unanimously directed the police and fire committee and the building and safety committee to prepare preventive changes in the local building code.

The council acted on a motion by Councilman George P. Cronk, who cited the fact that the Atlanta disaster occurred in a "so-called fire-resistant building." He urged the council to take action to prevent such tragedies here.

Meanwhile, Fire Chief J. H. Alderson revealed that a proposal for new fire and building ordinances is on Mayor Bowron's desk.

Cameraman Henry Sharp is using a camera mounted on a new type of circular track in making scenes for "The Guilty," current Jack Wrather production for Monogram release.

Mosby Sentence Postponed; Set for Dec. 16

(SCP)—Sentence of Curtis Mosby on a charge of concealing assets was postponed until Dec. 16 by Federal District Judge Pierson M. Hall.

Mosby pleaded guilty earlier to concealing his half interest in the Club Alabam at 4215 S. Central avenue, from Ignatius Parker, appointed trustee after Mosby was adjudged bankrupt by a United States district court on Aug. 13, 1943.

Two other counts — concealment of $7000 in the Exchange State Bank of Kansas City, and concealment of real property at 1811 to 1823 E. 102nd street, both credited to a sister, Mrs. Bertha Mosby William—were aired on Monday.

Mosby had pleaded not guilty to the latter charges.

Police Hold Cook In Fatal Stabbing

Coignet, a card dealer, was knifed Saturday night. He died early Sunday in General Hospital. Coignet said Keppler slashed him after an argument.

"That guy has beaten me up twice today, and threatened to go home and get his gun and kill me," Keppler said, before Coignet died. "When I was leaving the cafe where I work, he started to beat me up so I cut him."

Keppler, police said, told them he used a kitchen knife, which he returned to the kitchen and cleaned later.

A witness, Herman Washington, of 460 E. Fourth street, said he could identify Keppler as the man who stabbed Coignet. A coroner's inquest will be held December 12.

Minorities' Enemy Seen Slated to Succeed Wyatt As Housing Expediter

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — Although the White House last Thursday announced the appointment of David L. Krooth of Chicago as acting expediter of the National Housing Agency, Raymond M. Foley, Federal Housing Administration commissioner, is being prominently mentioned as a permanent successor to Wilson Wyatt.

The FHA, under Foley, for a long time refused to insure mortgages on property bought by colored persons in violation of restrictive covenants and also hired Negro workers only in the custodial and lower clerical grades.

Wyatt, who quit as housing expediter when President Truman ordered a let-up in housing controls, warned a press conference last Thursday that the emergency was not over.

With Wyatt gone, Negro employes of NHA may be seriously affected in their fight to hold jobs gained during the war period in the higher brackets of that agency. An outspoken friend of minority groups, Wyatt as NHA expediter made the agency a virtual Mecca to colored persons seeking government employment.

Since last May when he promised a "vigorous" effort to integrate Negro workers into staff positions in the emergency housing program, Wyatt sought consistently to carry out his promise.

When it became apparent that some of his assistants were attempting to slow down the hiring of colored applicants to fill vacancies, Wyatt issued orders that they be hired and that his staff chiefs submit weekly reports showing the number of minority groups personnel hired.

Auto Insurance Co. Reduces Size of Stock Purchases to Broaden Sales in Community

Following the approval of the local escrow depositary bank, the officers and directors of the Loyal Automobile Insurance Co. reduced the minimum size of stock purchase from 35 shares to 10 shares in order to serve the entire community. Such a move makes it possible for a person with as little as $30 to invest to obtain 10 shares of the common stock at $3 per share, compared with the original minimum of 35 shares, which required an outlay of $105.

During the past week a series of public mass meetings were held at several churches in the Greater Los Angeles Area, which included: Zion Hill Baptist church on Thursday; Friendship Baptist church, Pasadena on Monday night at which time the congregations of the five churches of that city joined in the support of the company; and the Neighborhood Community church of Los Angeles on Wednesday.

During this series of public mass meetings the past week, one of the local owners of a fleet of taxicabs pointed out that he had been unable to obtain insurance protection of any form in Los Angeles or in the state or any place in the nation. As a result, he cabled Lloyd's of London and was given some coverage. He pledged his full support to the automobile insurance company and pointed out that if the claims of the white companies that colored drivers have more accidents than white drivers are true, then the proper recourse would be higher rates and not a rejection of all Negro business.

In connection with bias in the automobile insurance field, the Los Angeles American Civil Liberties Union has launched a thorough investigation into what they believe is a "general conspiracy among Los Angeles agencies to deny Negroes the opportunity to insure their cars at any price." Preliminary studies of the CLU prove that the incidence of accidents by Negroes is not too high, as alleged by the white firms, to make business profitable.

Organizing Throughout State

Reginald D. Crawford, treasurer of the company, and Paul D. Davis, Harvard law student and director of publicity, have just returned from a week's trip throughout the northern part of the state during which new stock sales agencies were set up and others checked on. The San Francisco - Oakland Bay area campaign will emanate out of the offices of Attorneys Vaughn and Berkely with 20 salesmen active in that territory. Additional sales points include Sacramento, Stockton, Modesto, Bakersfield, Santa Barbara, San Diego, and San Bernardino.

Future Plans

It was pointed out this week that upon the completion of the sale of 150,000 shares of stock for $450,000 plans call for the immediate opening of fully staffed agencies and offices in 12 cities throughout the state. In addition the company will not limit its business to full coverage in the automobile insurance field, but will carry full coverage fire insurance on the home, insurance for jewelry, and personal clothing, and every phase of insurance except health and life.

Mass Meeting Tonight

A public mass meeting will be held tonight at 8 p.m. at the Westminister Presbyterian church, pastored by Rev. Halls, located at the corner of 35th place and Denker streets on the Westside. The public is invited to the meeting in order to participate in the discussions and interrogate the officers and advisers who will be present.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

1— Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2— Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.

Bilbo's Guilt 'Inescapable', Says Washington Daily Paper Scores Cynicism at Hearings

WASHINGTON, D.C.—(NNPA) — The Washington Post in an editorial which appeared in last Friday's edition under the caption, "Bilboism," said:

"It is impossible to read the reports of the Bilbo investigation in Mississippi without a sense of sickness. Witness after witness has appeared before the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee to tell of threats, of cynical denials of the right to vote, of outright brutality. And, according to Mary Sparge, who is covering the hearings for The Post, Bilbo's attorneys and supporters sit listening to this testimony "with broad grins." Public officials as well as private citizens callously acknowledge the most flagrant disregard of constitutional rights—and defend this disregard with a shrug of the shoulders and a sneering assertion that that's the way things are in Mississippi.

"In such an atmosphere, it took courage for Negroes to appear before the Senate Committee. It took courage for a Jewish rabbi and Catholic priest to support the stories of violence and coercion which the Negroes told; they were among the few white men to testify against Bilbo. In Jackson (Mississippi), where the hearings are being held, the Jackson Daily News recently printed an editorial attacking Percy Green, editor of the Jackson Advocate, a Negro weekly, who has assumed leadership in bringing charges against Senator Bilbo. Mr. Green had attended a meeting to protest lynching and, according to the Daily News, "discussed racial tensions in his State." The Daily News editorial then observed: 'One of these days Green is destined to learn a great deal more about racial tensions than he now knows.'

"The Senate committee has been told that out of 350,000 Negroes in Mississippi eligible for registration, only 2500 were actually registered; and it is estimated that the State has about 30,000 Negro veterans who are exempted by law from payment of the poll tax. The statistics at least suggest very strongly that some influence other than indifference was at work in Mississippi. They suggest, too, that men who have the courage to expose this situation deserve and need the shield of the federal government's protection. They should be called before the committee by subpoena—those who wish to come as well as those who are reluctant—to the authority of the United States may be asserted in an area where it is now commonly held in contempt.

"It is clear, we think, that Senator Bilbo is not without direct responsibility for the situation that exists in Mississippi. He speaks there with a certain authority—with an authority derived from his membership in the senate of the United States. He preaches doctorines of hate and violence and crime—doctrines which, taken together, make him the author of the system which can best be called bilboism now prevalent in Mississippi. Whether it is the system or the senator himself that kept Negroes from the polls is not of primary importance. Bilbo's guilt in either case is inescapable."

Veterans Affairs Parley Ignores Minority Groups

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Negroes were conspicuously absent here Wednesday as the National Conference on Veterans Affairs convened in the Statler Hotel at the call of the National Social Welfare Assembly.

Although several Negro organizations were invited to attend the conference no colored person was listed to take part on the two-day program and no portion of the program was set aside for a discussion of the problems of minority group veterans.

Following the conference a representative of the National Council of Negro Women who had attended the sessions stated that her organization was "very much disturbed" over the way minority groups had been ignored throughout the conference.

After it became apparent that minority groups were not being given an opportunity to participate in the program, Leroy Jeffries, representing the National Urban League, requested and was given permission to address the conference.

Jefferies directed attention to the lack of consideration being given minority problems but no pertinent discussion followed his remarks.

The program boasted such speakers as Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Major General Graves B. Erskine, director of the Retraining and Reemployment Service; Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts, and Dr. William H. Stead, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Employment, on-th-job training, rehabilitation, placement of disabled veterans, veterans housing and the education and training of veterans were among the subjects discussed at the conference.

Among the few Negro organizations represented were the National Council of Negro Women, by Mrs. Edmonia Grant; the National Urban League by Jeffries; the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, by Leslie Perry; the American Council on Race Relations, by Robert Weaver; and the Virginia Spellman White Republican Club, by Mrs Mary Church Terrell.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—(NNPA)—The Trusteeship Committee of the United Nations General Assembly last Sunday rejected incorporation of Southwest Africa into the Union of South Africa in favor of a request that South Africa submit a trustee agreement.

Approval came on a motion by the Indian delegate, Krishna Menon, calling on the Union of South Africa to submit a trusteeship agreement.

The Trusteeship Committee also adopted a proposal that a committee of experts examine and make recommendations on information submitted by non-self-governing territories, and approved a resolution that the social and economic councils organize regional conferences of non-self-governing peoples.

Bans Fare Increase For San Pedro Lines

SAN PEDRO—(SCP)—The Public Utilities Commission has denied an application of two local transit firms to increase fares from five to seven cents. Highland Transit, Inc., and the Laramble Line were refused their pleas after a hearing yesterday.

The Highland Transit firm said it was operating at a deficit, but the commission ruled that the amount charged by the company to depreciation was excessive. In the second case, the commission advised the Laramble Line to attempt operating economies before seeking a fare increase.

This Could Go On Forever: New Twist In Edwards Epic

By EDWARD (BABE) ANDERSON

This might go on forever.

Charles Joseph Edwards shifts his position once more . . . hires another lawyer.

Yes, I know, you're fed up with it! But it seems there's a new twist—Charles Edwards, "lawyer, army officer, sheriff's deeputy and boon companion of the great," is reported to have decided that he is not prepared to cope with the legal technicalities involved in his fight against both state and federal authorities. Charles Edwards admitting that he can do anything is natural—but a confession of any short-coming on his part is unheard of.

Never before has he admitted to an inaptitude of any sort—in any of his many "professions."

But, according to latest reports (wonder if I should give the exact time—he might change his mind in a minute), Edwards now has acquired the services of Atty. Walter L. Gordon Jr. Attorneys Wright and Knapp had previously withdrawn. Edwards refusing their counsel in advising a plea of insanity. But now the "seeker after truth" thinks that perhaps—just maybe—he was wrong. Maybe he can't defend himself against the multitude of state and federal charges.

It was not definitely known what caused the switch—whether the legal problems involved had him stumped—or, if confinement in county jail induced him to change his mind—but Edwards is reported to be seeking freedom on bail AND Atty. Gordon is expected to attempt to have his plea of insanity reinstated.

4 Year Program Urged for LACC

The need for converting Los Angeles college from a two-year college into a fully-accredited four-year institution was emphasized last night by Dr. Einar Jacobsen at a college faculty club dinner attended by more than 250 educators, county officials and civic leaders.

Citing the 8000 enrollment at City college this semester, highest in the school's history, Dr. Jacobsen said that the college "must keep pace with the rapid expansion of other public and private schools in this area."

The educator listed five points in a development program:

- Competent counseling service;
- An educational program to develop skills, promote culture, and train executives, teachers, and engineers;
- Placement for graduates in business and professions;
- A lifelong learning plan that will encourage graduates to retturn for further studies; and
- A research program, particularly in small business.

Truman Names Group To Draft Proposals On Civil Rights Laws

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — Taking cognizance of the wave of mob violence that has swept the country since VJ-Day, President Truman by executive order last Thursday created a 15-member committee on civil rights to draft recommendations for broadening existing federal civil rights laws.

Accompanying the order was a statement by Truman in which he pointed out that the federal government is duty-bound to protect civil liberties but weaknesses in present federal statutes hampers the discharge of this function.

The executive order authorizes the committee "on behalf of the President to inquire into and to determine whether and in what respect current law enforcement measures and the authority and means possessed by federal, state, and local governments may be strengthened and improved to safeguard the civil rights of the people."

In his statement President Truman said:

'Freedom from Fear is more fully realized in our country than in any other on the face of the earth. Yet all parts of our population are not equally free from fear. And from time to time, and in some places, this freedom has been gravely threatened. It was so after the last war, when organized groups fanned hatred and intolerance, until, at times, mob action struck fear into the hearts of men and women because of their racial origin or religious beliefs.

'Today, Freedom from Fear, and the democratic institutions which sustain it, are again under attack. In somep laces, from time to time, the local enforcement of law and order has broken down, and individuals—sometimes ex-servicemen—even women—have been killed, maimed, or intimidated.

Last year's A.B.C. tournament at Buffalo lured 5,744 five-man teams, with one aggregation coming from as far away as Hawaii. The tournament lasted 62 days.

Killer Says Victim Forced Him Into Acts of Perversion by Threat to Bare Police Record

George Jones, 50, laborer, of 1137 East 10th street, who had previously been arraigned for the beating of Mrs. Ada Elliott with a hammer last August, was rebooked Monday on suspicion of murder, as the victim died Friday in General Hospital. Mrs. Elliott also lived at the 10th street address.

At the time of his preliminary hearing for assault, Jones' defense consisted mainly of his statement that, an ex-convict, had been held in fear of being sent back to prison by Mrs. Elliott for some time previous to the incident. He further stated that the woman had forced him to engage in perverted sex relations with her in order to prevent her from turning him over to authorities for a parole violation.

Jones' story was that he had been so afraid of going back to jail that he unwillingly submitted to the victim's demands.

Thoroughly disgusted with his relations with Mrs. Elliott, Jones said he finally decided to refuse to do as she requested. When told of his decision, however, Jones says the woman threatened to kill him. Only after this threat to his life did he beat Mrs. Elliott, Jones stated.

Also, according to reports, Jones is said to have grabbed a knife and scuffled with the victim's sister, Mrs. Maddox, who entered the room immediately following the beating. Mrs. Maddox was not hurt.

Attorney Martha Malone Williams is expected to defend Jones.

EDITORIALS AND COMMENTS

Federal Government Must Act Now

Within a few more weeks the 80th Congress will convene in Washington. Its members will be those whom we the people elected in November.

One of the must pieces of legislation which this Congress must adopt is a Federal Anti-Lynching Law. It is an immediate need for our nation. Lynch mobs have taken the lives of forty-one American citizens since the end of the war, and have threatened the security of hundreds of others. This in a country whose government demands that other nations grant full and equal rights and protection to all their citizens.

The states where most of the lynchings have occurred have shown that they either will not or cannot act to apprehend the criminals who have committed these murders. A Federal law is necessary to curb this violence.

In line with this anti-lynching legislation is an anti-polltax law, and the demand to end the Wood-Rankin un-American committee, better known as the Dies committee.

The polltax of the South has been branded as a "blot on the pages of American democracy." It has permitted the election of persons "representing less than 20% of the eligible citizens of their district." The Rankins, the Bilbos and their ilk are elected year after year through the small number of persons who are permitted to vote betause of the evils of the polltax. The polltax should go.

And of course the anti-American committee which smears everyone as "Red" if he so much as says or thinks that no one in rich America should go hungry or cold or homeless, must be disbanded. Congress must not be permitted to grant one cent of the taxpayers' money to continue this nefarious blot on real Americanism.

What can we do now to have this legislation adopted? We voted for our representatives in November. A few whose records showed they were wholeheartedly in favor of such proposed legislation, were elected. Others have promised much.

It is toward those who have promised so much that we must direct our fire. Write, wire. Get your neighbors and friends to write. Organize clubs. Organize in the churches. Give those "friends" of ours who won our votes by their fair promises, no rest day or night. After the 80th Congress meets, and has given us an idea of what it plans to do, an avalanche of letters and telegrams should descend upon it, reminding every member of his or her duty.

Fortunately we in the 14th Congressional District need not remind our representative, Helen Gahagan Douglas, of her duty. All we need to do is to hold up her hands in her fight for the very things we so ardently wish Congress to adopt.

The House I Live In

Returning war veterans have made "the house I live in" for many a family a kind of rooming house, with a family in each room.

According to a survey, there were some 1,200,000 families living doubled up last year. Unless some 3,000,000 new houses are built by the end of 1947 the situation will be worse a year hence than it was a year ago.

The United States government, through the Veterans' Emergency Housing Program, is struggling desperately through a quagmire of obstacles placed in its way, to provide adequate housing for returned war veterans. There is no discrimination, racial or religious, in this program. It is a "program for veterans, not for white veterans alone."

"Private enterprise" has boasted much of the homes it would build, if given an opportunity. But, as usual, those sticklers for private enterprise think only in terms of dollars and cents and not in terms of human lives. The homes they have built and are building, are 'way above anything a returned war veteran can afford to pay. A survey revealed that 84% of the veterans can not pay more than $6000 for a home, or pay more than $50 per month rent.

The 16% in the higher brackets are O.K. so far as securing a home is concerned. But the vast majority who cannot afford to pay the high prices private enterprise exacts are, or definitely should be, the concern of the Federal government.

The Federal government has constructed many housing projects that are a source of pride. Many are little more than a series of barracks. But whatever they are, remember the Federal government has been hampered at every turn by the worshipers of "Private Enterprise" who talk much but do little for anyone when there is no profit in it.

South African Senator At Second Baptist Church

Senator H. M. Basner of the Union of South Africa will speak at the Second Baptist Church, 24th and Griffith streets, at 8 o'clock on Sunday evening.

Senator Basner, who is well informed on the subjects of South Africa which are being heatedly discussed in the United Nations Assembly today, will expose the policy of General Smuts, reactionary white Prime Minister of South Africa, and the racial discrimination practiced in South Africa.

General Smuts has battled long and loud for the privilege of having South Africa annex Southwest Africa with a population of some 350,000 natives. In South Africa the natives are not allowed to own land in their own country and are not allowed to engage in skilled occupations. They are forced to travel on passes issued by the government. The proposal of Smuts to annex additional territory where this jim-crow policy could be practiced has met with determined opposition from the progressive forces all over the world. South Africa has so far been the most contentious item on the United Nations agenda.

The Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, will introduce the speaker.

Senator Basner is being presented by the National Negro Congress, Los Angeles branch.

Los Angeles Regrets

The 5000 people, who assembled in the Shrine Auditorium to hear Vito Marcantonio, militant congressman from New York City, were greatly disappointed when a telegram from him arrived stating how much he regretted being unable to attend. He was detained in New York on charges placed against him in an effort to unseat him in Congress this next term.

Hugh DeLacy of Seattle, pinchhitter for Marcantonio, did not mince words in explaining that the same forces that got tough with the Roosevelt program, rent control, and high prices, were now spreading dissension among the people from the Mississippi to Palestine. Instead of striving to drive Bilbo from politics, they were striving to drive out Marcantonio and all of the people's representatives from Congress.

DeLacy made a good speech, living up to his reputation not only as a fighting Congressman but also as a militant citizen.

Truman Takes to Cover

With the reactionary forces moving in on every front, President Harry S. Truman seems to be seeking shelter from the storm that threatens to break in full fury at the opening of the new Congress.

Upon the death of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the people all over the world, concerned with the defeat of Germany and Japan and the establishment of a world dedicated to freedom for all—a world in which human dignity and respect will be the universal order—felt that Harry S. Truman was sufficiently acquainted and inspired with the Roosevelt ideals to follow closely in his footsteps.

Not all of Mr. Truman's acts have been bad. But almost immediately after induction into office, President Truman started retreating and abandoning the Roosevelt program.

President Truman's retreat from the Roosevelt way gave courage and assurance to the reactionary Republicans so that they won the election on November 5. Now the people, particularly the Negro and other minority groups on the persecution roster, are already in the midst of the threatening storm.

In this city one Negro citizen was told, "You blacks must realize that Roosevelt is dead, and you are going to be put back in your proper places."

It appears that instead of giving instruction, the Truman administration is now taking orders. Rent increases and food prices are moving upward.

Under the Roosevelt administration, Negro women formerly working at starvation wages as domestics, were elevated to government positions and received pay commensurate with their living needs and their work classification.

Under the "free enterprise" system they will understand, no doubt, by actual experience the true meaning of Truman's retreat from the Roosevelt battle line to win equality for all peoples in all the industries.

The only hope of rescue from the pitfalls prepared for the vanquished New Dealers rests in a firmer stand for those principles which our leader believed in. It means fighting for them with all the force that is left in us, fighting harder than ever before.

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

Those of us who saw "Russia on Parade" as presented by Artkino in some of the motion picture theaters of Los Angeles, could not help but be impressed, aside from the beauty of the exhibition, by the youthful exurberance and virility of those who took part in the marches, songs, drill, and dances.

Where did those young folks get that elasticity in their step? They came striding down the Red Square in Moscow like conquerors. Heads high, eyes straight ahead, arms swinging. Yet their step was light and springy, as if they had wings on their feet.

No plodding in those ranks. They didn't look as if they could ever get tired. Alert, active, strong. All together—the fair-haired youths from the north, the darker-skinned ones from the south; Caucasian, Oriental, Jew, Gentile, European, Asiatic—united.

Visitors to the Soviet Union—and there are visitors who penetrate behind the "Iron Curtain", strange as it may seem—remark upon this marvelous virility of the Russian people.

Even in those sections that were overrun by the Nazis who destroyed completely all crops and all agricultural implements to raise crops, the people work with hope shining in their eyes as they see the boal afar off. The goal of bringing their country up to the productivity it enjoyed before the war, and by making their nation in very truth the greatest nation on earth. One in which a man's worth is measured by what he is. One in which all work and play together as equals.

The president of the National Association of Women's Clubs in her recent visit to the Soviet Union, noticed, too, how very earnest the young people were. They read solid books,, she said, on science, literature, history, and politics. She feared for our country, she said, for our young folks seem to care mostly for the light, gay, and frothy.

"A dynamic nation," is the way one writer summed it up. "A nation of workers, scientists, and builders doing the impossible."

Apropos of nothing at all, here is a story the old folks of the southern part of the Soviet Union love to tell as they sit about their camp fires in the evening.

A man had a herd of seventeen camels, and when he died he left them to his three sons in the following manner. To the oldest son he willed half of them. This would have been eight and one-half. To his second son he gave one-third, or five and two-thirds camels. The third son was to receive one-ninth of the herd, or one and eight-ninths of a camel.

Well, you ca neasily see that no intelligent person would want his camels cut up into fractions like that, and while the three sons were quarreling about this crazy will and almost coming to blows about it, a wise man came riding along on his camel.

When he heard the story he said, "Let me add my camel to the herd, and then divide them."

After the wise man's camel was added, there were eighteen camels in the herd and the division was made easily. The first son took his one-half, or nine camels. The second son took one-third, or six. And the third son took one-ninth of the herd, or two.

But after the division was made equitably and fairly, according to the will, there was one camel left.

"That is mine," said the wise man, as he rode away, leaving the three sons scratching their heads in wonder.

The answer?

You figure it out for yourself.

The moral of all this, if there is any moral, surely would be that it might not be such a very good idea to "get too tugh" with a nation whose young folks are so virile, so exuberant, so robust that they surprise the world; and whose old folks are second Einsteins in concocting mathematical puzzles.

In describing the Russian revolution, one writer called it an "explosion of the human spirit." It released all the latent talents, the dormant energy of those hardy people. And they are still active, enthusiastic, and dynamic.

"A dynamic nation of workers, scientists, and builders doing the impossible."

No, on second thought, if for no other reason but to save our own hides, we'd better make friends with Russia.

Analyzing the Situation

By DON LORING

(Editor's Note: Central avenue, here it comes! That promised analysis by Don Loring is a whang, which we predict will evoke mingled shouts of disapproval and of approval for our daring columnist. The EAGLE will officially join the debate at a later date. Meantime, you can get out your writing weapons, let columnist Loring hear from you, whether you approve or disapprove his analysis.)

Hello, Central avenue, Hello, Well, here I am at last to bring you readers and Central avenue the facts which I have combined and think should be made public. I am sincere in my purpose and hope Central avenue won't be offended. I'm inviting you readers to comment on this if you see fit and promise your letters will receive careful consideration. Address them to me, c/o California EAGLE.

In nearly every city and town in America there is one or several streets which is known by the national or rocial composition of its inhabitants and is sometimes known nationally. Here in L.A. we have Central avenue and Hollywood blvd. These two streets are known as the country's two entertainment settlements. Central as you know is where the so-called Negro entertainment settlement is located and Hollywood blvd. is the site of the so-called white entertainment world.

Now, I wish at this time to compare the two settlements. And in so doing I'm hoping this comparison will captixate the public interest to the point of doing something about it. Without a question of doubt, these two entertainment sites are not on equal levels. And why aren't they? They're both American so I see no reason why they shouldn't be alike.

Now, just what is wrong? To begin with, Central avenue is too much what the Negro is trying to get away from, but no one seems to have interest enough to do anything about it. Of course there has been a lot of improvement, new stores, new fronts on old stores and many other improvements, but Jim-crowism and it concomitants still prevails.

From six in the evening until way past midnight from Fifth street and Central to 45th and Central one can see a thousand or more men and women standing idly on the streets. Some of them are there for any number of reasons and others are there for no reason at all, just to be some place besides home.

Most of these people are the undesirables and drawbacks of the Negro people. They clutter up the sidewalks, making it almost impossible for someone going about their business, to pass. They lean about the buildings and you wonder if they're put there to hold them intact. Their conversations cover "all subjects" and is usually loud and with obscene language. The music boxes in the surrounding cafes and restaurants are pitched to the highest volume; it seems one box is trying to play louder than the next one. This makes it impossible for you to speak, if you're a guest in one of these places. These "loafers" when they swear, and it seems they must to make their conversation an interesting one, do so, not in whispers, but loud enough for everyone to hear. Many people who have visited Los Angeles from time to time have gone away with a dislike for the city, among the finer Negro people, because of Central avenue.

Is there any reason why the situation is as it is? Yes. It's because the management of Negro business on Central avenue and other Negro communities tolerate these practices. Many of us will tend to say, you can't run the people from in front your place because they're on the sidewalks and the sidewalks belong to the city.

It's rather stranse, I think, because you don't find such practices on Hollywood blvd. Why? Is there any difference between Negro and white? They're all Americans, it seems they should do things in a like manner. Americans are known to do things in a big way. Central avenue certainly doesn't do anything in a big way. The shows which are staged in some of the night clubs on Central avenue and in other Negro communities, stink. The talent is there, yes, but the manner in which it is staged does injustice to the performers. I am quite certain I could stage a much better show than any number of them I see in clubs on Central avenue and other Negro communities. Those persons who call themselves directors should visit night clubs in Hollywood. Something's wrong somewhere and I don't think it's on Hollywood blvd.

There is an alteration to almost any given situation, this situation, too, can be altered, BUT the cooperation of the management of Negro entertainment establishments on Central avenue and other communities, and the public is needed. If you're the public, make it a point not to loiter about the street; so on about your business and if you have nothing to do, then do it at home. If you stay at home you will find there's lots you can do to "kill time." If you meet someone on the street, don't stand around in the way of passing pedestrians. If you happen to see one you haven't seen in a long while, don't greet them loudly; they'll be just as happy to see you with just a quiet "Hello." Never say, loudly: "Why you old —x&—, where in the —-&!— you've been all this time. Americans are dignified and cultured people and don't have to be educated to be so. Common sense makes a person dignified. So the point to remember always is to be American at all times.

If you're the management, don't overcrowd your place of business. If the room holds 200 people, don't try to get 500 in. Send the others away; they'll come back again. Common sense should tell us that it is better to properly entertain 200 guests than poorly entertain 500. If you see men and women loitering about your place, ask them to come in; if you do they will do so or move on. Keep the exterior as well as the interior of your business clean at all times. And last, but not least "IMPROVE" the rest rooms in your establishment. If the board of health should carefully inspect the rest rooms in any number of these night clubs and restaurants along Central avenue, it would be a Ghost Town. Now, all together, let's work to bring Central avenue on an even level or above Hollywood blvd. in appearance and entertainment.

Sharp Battles Ahead

By WILLIAM L. PATTERSON

Great political battles are ahead of the people. The main enemy gained a strategic position in the November election. He now goes into control of both sections of congress. With Harry S. Truman commander-in-chief of U.S.A. armies beating the most percipitous retreat and abandoning one position after another without even fighting a rear-guard action, the general situation is a desperate one.

Rent increases are being "considered" by the Administration. Prices of food are shooting sky high. Since the November 5 elections the Administration, with its decontrol measure which affected 28 major commodities, has allowed the enemy to take new posts on this front. Even government economists state that since June of '46 the price of foodstuffs has gone up 56 per cent.

Somebody, somewhere, some short time ago said we the people had saved up some $100,000,000,000 of buying power during the war years. Well, we know liars can figure. Someone else showed that with the present increases this back-wash would go down before the big business offensive in short order. You know what is happening to what you put away. Ask your neighbor what has happened to his nest egg.

If you happen to be a Negro or Spanish-speaking American and live in the slum areas into which these Americans are herded like prisoners of war or should I say hate them, you would know that high prices in other sections of the city are considered low in the ghetto. In the concentration camps of the ghetto the price raises are staggering.

The most burning immediate political question in our country today is the battle against living costs. One of the most effective weapons can be the buyers' strike. Already the people are mobilizing their forces. With Truman retreating from the Roosevelt line of battle the trade unions and the mass organizations must supply battle chiefs. The people are in a mood to fight. The people don't feel helpless dispite their betrayal.

The people are beginning to understand the real meaning of "free enterprize." The buyers' strikes will give them a realization of the Republican guilt in the matter for if the economic Bill of Rights formulated by the late and greatly grieved for President Franklin D. Roosevelt were being carried into life, existing conditions would be different. A buyers' strike can only help to repair the breaks in the Roosevelt line and to bring the forces he led together again.

Renewing the Roosevelt coalition means consolidating the forces that are both independent and progressive to a greater degree than under the Roosevelt Administration. The people have learned some lessons in the past year. It also means preparing for the general struggles which must be waged against the political reactionaries and the banks and trusts for whom they speak.

It's time the people moved faster, 1948 is just around the corner and the old apple engineer is leering at the people. All manner of struggles must be developed but the rent strike and the buyers' strike stand high on the list. A break through the enemy's ranks can be made here.

PULPIT VOICE

FORGOTTEN SOUTH PARK

Anyone living in Los Angeles for more than ten years can remember the time when the municipal-owned South Park, 421 E. 51st street, was one of the show places of the Eastside. Its long sweeping lawns were kept cut and trimmed, and custodians rigidly enforced prevention of littering up the place with paper wrappers, trash and whatnot. Leaves from its many trees were periodically raked and flowers were cultivated and grown. Ten years ago it was a municipal park and somebody cared, and because the citizens surrounding it were alert to that care, commissioners, supervisors, superintendents, foremen and laborers were kept to the job of keeping South Park clean, trim and orderly.

Noticing for some while the run-down condition of South Park, it was considered wise to first survey some other municipal parks to see perhaps if the war conditions were not responsible for this neglect.

There are approximately 12 municipal parks in the city of Los Angeles. Those visited were Holmby, MacArthur, Lincoln, Exposition, Barnsdall and Arroyo Seco. On the same day it was observed that these parks were being conditioned. The lawns without exception were cut and trimmed. Workmen were seen busy at some phase of the work for which they are getting paid. Without question, there is a great difference in the care of Exposition and MacArthur Parks, and that of South Park. Yet it is that employes at South Park are being paid the same as employes of any other park in the city. Why, then, is South Park forsaken?

A protest call was made by this writer to the Department of Parks. The reply was that much of the run-down condition of the park was due to the carelessness of the citizens who frequented the park. Whereas this is partly true yet it is simply a clever manner of dodging the real truth. Citizens are as careless at MacArthur Park as they are at South Park. The difference lies in other areas. Although citizens do carelessly drop papers and other articles around the park, yet we can't blame the unraked leaves, untrimmed hedges and lawns upon them.

The truth appears to be that no one cares about South Park any more. The change in population surrounding it seemingly has brought people who are not interested or who perhaps just don't know what to do about it. Public servants respond to the areas of interest and pressure. Where citizens are mindful of their rights and responsibilities, public servants are quick to reflect this interest and concern of the people, but if there is no interest or concern coming from the community then there is a looseness on the part of public servants.

A man who hires himself out to work for wages, often does no more than is demanded of him by his immediate superiors. This is no attempt to criticize local employes at South Park. They do exactly and no more what it takes to get along with the park foreman and superintendent. The local employes undoubtedly are pleasing the Park Department, but this column serves notice that the Park Department is not pleasing the citizens of the Eastside.

The citizens of this area shall expect the same services at South Park as are rendered at other municipal parks. We shall demand that all employes meet the same requirements for employment and that this employment shall be noticeable by a clean, trim and orderly park.

It is recommended to citizens that you write in your protests to Gilbert Skutt, Superintendent of Parks, Room 225, Los Angeles City Hall, Los Angeles 12, Calif. —Minister, Bowen Memorial Methodist church.

LABOR ON THE MARCH

ISAAC PRATT

Labor must march in formation, with a greater determination than ever to survive by defeating her enemies and the enemies of freedom.

Inter-racial pickets surrounded department stores in Pittsburgh, Pa., on Monday morning at 11 o'clock, protesting their refusal to hire Negro sales personnel.

The Communist Party, this city, has issued a leaflet denouncing the policy of Ralph's Vermont store, located in a community predominantly Negro, for refusing to hire Negroes.

The leaflet states that "to prevent any group of Americans from having an opportunity to work hurts all Americans."

Food prices have gone up 56% since June, 1946. For example, take the Safeway special for November 13 and compare it with OPA prices for June 30. Wages are down 19% since April, 1945.

It looks as if the workers will have to chew promises instead of food very soon.

High Prices, Low Wages, High Profits mean Depression. These are what we voted for November 5.

What next? 1947 is right around the corner, and 1948 is coming soon. Let's start now preparing to set up a Roosevelt regime in Washington. And Henry Wallace in this writer's opinion is about the only man who can do it.

Our present Republican set-up, moving into Congress, January 1, will have an opportunity to show Missouri how to clean out such enemies of democracy as Bilbo. Will they do it?

Foremost among those suffering from political cold feet are the John Brophy element in the Industrial Union Council of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. They have notified all CIO Industrial Union Councils that the National office of the CIO has not endorsed the National Negro Congress, and that Councils should not in any way support the Congress.

It has been said that politics produces strange bedfellows.

It seems now that not only politics but also pressure from the big boys who took over government control at the November 5 election, have gone even into the ranks of labor to produce some scavengers along with the doves.

We are not disturbed. We judge people and organizations by their conduct. We know that the majority in the CIO are not scared easily by the hoisting of the red flag.

People who scare as easily as Mr. Brophy should establish friendship with old John L. Lewis.

Negro people, I admonish you to become members of labor unions.

After a long bitter struggle, John L. Lewis yielded to the demands of the government and called off the strike against the coal operators. The miners went back to work last Monday morning. The contract between the miners and the operators will be argued while the men are at work.

Sydenham Hospital, the only inter-racial voluntary hospital in the country, is in need of immediate financial support, according to Joseph Curran, president of the National Martime Union.

It is imperative that labor, especially, come to the rescue of this great institution which, according to Albert Dentsch, PM columnist, "is a healing center for the social malaise caused by the virus of race prejudice, and a symbol of community integration where needed services are dispensed on a non-discriminatory basis at both ends."

Ferdinand C. Smith, National Secretary of NMU, is a member of the Board of Directors of New York's Sydenham Hospital.

That expensive products are brand names and claims are equally unreliable guides to quality, has been proven over a ten year period of tests made by Consumers Union, which is a service designed exclusively for the benefit and protection of the consumer.

Designed to help the consumer to get high quality and, often, to save money, Consumers Union is financed solely by yearly subscriptions. It has no connection with any manufacturer and no interest, financial or otherwise, in the sale of any product.

There is no doubt that many people will benefit by these "Facts you need before buying," which are contained in these monthly consumers reports.

Got One of These, Mister?

(SCP)—A license to operate a pinball machine is usually a permit to operate a gambling device, Dist. Atty. William E. Simpson yesterday told the Board of Supervisors.

"The licenses are generally used to evade provisions of the law, and to encourage gambling, especially by juveniles," he said in a letter to the board, which asked repeal of the ordinance licensing the devices.

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

NEGRO FOOTBALL TEAMS TO PLAY IN L. A.

History will be made in college sports in Los Angeles Saturday night, Dec. 28. Never before have Negro college teams played ball in California. The Angeles Bowl Association is sponsoring an undertaking that should hve significant meanings and interesting results if the game and teams measure up to the expectations of the promotors. Although the Association is sparing no expense in launching this first such project, it is their opinion, as well as our own, that they will lose no money unless an unforseen condition should alter the situation. However just like the Wiley debating club opened the eyes of some when they took on the USC some years ago, these teams and the way the game is conducted might well open the eyes of many on the 28th.

ANGEL BOWL ASSOCIATION

If we are to consider the chances of a worthy success of the project let us examine the promoters and the team. The Bowl Association is not a large organization. It is made up of few men but each is afire with the will to make the project a success. John A. Hardee is a 33rd degree Mason and a Shriner. He recently took the first L. A. Shrine Drill team ever to go to the Eastern shores. He is supervisor of maintainence in the National Supply Co., and is active in the C.I.O. Hardee whose industry and dependability have been well known to us for many years, is president. Edgar S. Brown, a Wiley college graduate and a successful business man, whom we have also known favorably for many years, is vice-president and general manager of the project. The secretary is Foster Mackey, also connected with the National Supply Co. He is on the executive board of the International Oil Workers CIO; Rev. L. F. Hardee, dean of Texas State Baptist Sunday School Convention, is the association's Southern representative and L. Johnson, also of the National Supply makes the fifth Association member.

A Citizen's Advisory Committee headed by Atty. Thomas L. Griffith, president of the local NAACP consists of Miss Emily Woody, C. L. Dellums, James E. Brown, Dr. William E. Bailey, Ted Gray and Atty. Loure Johnson. It has proven quite helpful. These are the official and semi-official members of the Angel Bowl Association.

THE TEAMS

Having accounted for the sponsors it would be well now to consider the teams involved in the project. The Wiley college team comes from Marshall, Texas. Last year it won the championship of South West Colored Conference, which includes the leading colleges in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma, and won the colored national championship by beating, in the playoff, Coach A. C. Gaither's Florida A. and M. college eleven, which is doubtless coming here in quest of revenge on Coach Fred D. Long's Wiley Wild Cats at Wrigley Field on the night of the 28th. These teams do not only represent the best in Negro colleges but according to President Hardee, they are among the best equipped and trained among them. The Wiley team was also doubtless chosen for this first game due to the large number of Wiley graduates and ex-students in the city. A large Wiley Club is already cooperating with the project as are other Texas college clubs in the city.

QUEEN OF ANGEL BOWL

Various college and other clubs and organizations of the city have entered candidates in the contest to choose a "queen" who will be crowned at a grand coronation ball to be held at Elks Hall on the night preceding the game. The plan for choosing the "queen" is the same as is usually employed by church and other organizations in running popularity contests. The group selling the largest number of votes has its candidate crowned. The Wiley Club is among the contestants.

The "queenc" of the two competing colleges will also attend the game and the ball, All of this should add greatly to the social aspect of the project. The game, the ball and the "queen" choosing contest are all benefits in favor of the Shrine Building fund, according to Mr. Mackey.

LOOKING AHEAD

The Association appears to have it very clearly in mind to use this and other games of its kind to establish these Southern Negro teams as worthy competitors with California colleges and universities. We recall that another group contacted USC regarding the possibility of playing a post season game against another Negro College eleven earlier in the year and was told to bring some of these teams out here to play each other so that they could see what class of football they played. Well, here is a chance to convince California football men that the Negro college teams have the class or that they have not. If they succeed the idea is to make this Angel Bowl Game one between a California college and the best Negro team in the nation. Here's wishing John Hardee and our old schoolmate, Edgar Brown, the best of success. They really are undertaking a significant endeavor. Negroes have nothing to lose so long as the game goes off in good style. They have everything to gain if within a year or so the change is made. They have big time officials. They have invited every coach in Califronia and we trust that you, our readers, will be among those to see this movement start.

Thirty Million Face Starvation in India

By K. LAL SINGH

The outlook for India is mass starvation. The effects of the monsoon in Bombay, Assam, Madras and Bengal leaves India with only three weeks' supply of grains on hand. Large imports of grain are needed immediately if the already sweeping famine is to be checked and the tens of millions of toilers saved to plow another day. The new government of India headed by Nehru is anxious and ready to pay cash on the spot for the necessary food grains.

Herbert Morrison, who negotiated an agreement recently in Washington for the allocation of 1,580,000 tons of food grains to be shipped to India by the end of the year, is hopeful that this shipment will prevent the reduction of the present ration of 12 ounces to an estimated 10 per day throughout India. In Madras, however, the food situation has become so acute that rice ration has been already cut from 12 ounces to eight.

PUNJAB GOVERNMENT ACTS

A monopoly system for the procurement of wheat has been introduced by the Punjab government embodying three important features: (1) a guaranteed price to the producer; (2) complete control by the government of the disposal of stocks brought to the markets; and (3) the extension of controlled distribution by the introduction of rationing in 15 heavily-populated towns. In Bengal, known as the grain basket of India, and where death from starvation had taken its heaviest toll, in 1943, 1350 government canteens are already distributing milk to mothers and children.

Headed by Chaman Lall, member of the legislative assembly of India, the Indian Mission to Argentina has returned to India and reported to the nation.

Chaman Lall summarized India's impending disaster as being due to three factors: (1) the sudden cessation during the war of India's normal intake of about 1½ million tons of rice annually; (2) the gap between production and consumption; India's minimum requirements being about 60 millions tons a year and her production 55 million tons; (3) increase in population at the rate of about five million a year. India, he pointed out, was normally a deficit country. The deficit over the seven years from 1939 amounted to 35 million tons, stoppage of imports since 1941 resulted in an additional shortage of 7½ million tons, while the situation was further aggravated during the war years by the export of about one million tons to the armies in the Middle East and other theaters of war.

India had asked that she be given six million tons of foodstuff during 1946. But India, despite the fact that she was ready to pay the highest prices, and cash on the nose, was not able to budge grain reserves anywhere. Famine, therefore, is the immediate menace and along with famine come disease and pestilence. The immediate crisis can only be met by speedy action, not only by the Indian government but nations abroad.

The countries neighboring India are themselves passing through economic and political crisis. One such neighbor, Indonesia, herself menaced by famine and the imperialistic designs of Britain and the Dutch, has acted in behalf of India's starving population. Premier Sutan Sjahrir of the Republic of Indonesia offered half a million tons of rice from that country's dwindling reserves to supplement India's need provided the government of India transport the rice. To date, as far as is known by this writer, the rice is still in Indonesia.

LANDLORDS LET LAND LIE FALLOW

Last month about 100 peasants were arrested in India. The charge? For defying landlords in South India's famine-stricken areas and plowing 10,000 acres of wet fallow land. These 10,000 acres of land belong to absentee landlords. The share-croppers who till the land, (numbering 3000) became enraged when the landlords threatened to let the land lie fallow in the face of food shortages. What do these share-croppers get out of the landlords? Previous to this year, one-third of the gross produce went to the tenant, two-thirds to the landlord. Out of the tenant's one-third five illegal exactions were taken by the landlord, leaving approximately one-fourth of the gross produce for the tenant. Out of the one-fourth, the tenant had to bear the entire cost of cultivation, which approximates half the gross produce.

This was how the peasants of South India were pauperized by a handful of parasitic landlords. This is how the peasants of India are reduced to slavery by the landlords on the one hand and the money-lenders on the other. This is how the toiler of the land under an iniquitous system as that existing in India become indebted for generations.

Only a strong national government answerable to the people can change the situation and wipe out for all time famine which threatens India's population yearly. The peasants referred to above were unorganized and while so, were easy prey. Today, however, they are organized. They have already fought their first battle and won. Twenty thousand strong, they gathered at the first Peasant Union Conference in their locality. At this conference, they got all the exactions abolished and demanded and got 50 percent of the gross produce

With the lofty promises made to the "Common and Forgotten Man" fast disappearing, trade union organizers are busy throughout India helping the industrial workers and the peasants to better their lives now and to fit themselves for the new India that is bound to come out of this present dilemma. The new India, of a really free and popular government, can solve the question of famine and prevent future yearly threats to the lives of 30 million of her people.

Trail Blazers: Mildred Blount

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

MILDRED BLOUNT

Just as the woman of taste likes to be appropriately dressed for sports, afternoon, and evening wear so will the woman of taste want to consider the suitability of accessories. One of the focal points of a completed wardrobe is the hat.

"I find that many people feel that they can learn millinery in six weeks . . .they feel that trimming up a block to match their costume is millinery . . . that a hat is merely a shade to keep the sun and the rain out. But a hat should contribute something to woman's glory," says petite Mildred Blount, prominent milliner.

I can't deny you the privilege of a glimpse into her home, 2041½ W. 31st street, featuring the classical beauty of a French salon, with its rich period furniture, atom-sized miniatures, and unusual floral-like display of feathers and plumes.

A native of Edten, North Carolina, she attended the schools of New York City. Somewhat of a surprise was the disclosure of her childhood ambitions: to be an interpretive and ballet dancer, for which she studied under the tutelage of a German woman, and later, to be a costume designer.

Upon leaving Cooper Union Art school she apprentised in several shops in New York before going into business with her sister, who designed dresses. Overstrain forced her to give this up.

Because Mildred Blount has always been an arduous worker, people whom she hasn't been aware of have reached out to find her. As for instance, John Frederics in New York and the Beverly Hills branch of this firm. Awarded a fellowship from the Julius Rosenwald Fund, she was commissioned to design and make up a special group of miniatures. These miniatures won nationwide recognition, including a coveted display at the New York's World Fair. Two motion picture studios, MGM and All American News, made pictures of her hats.

And then there are those gorgeous hats and bonnets featured in "Gone With The Wind," the beautiful veil for the Gloria Vanderbilt wedding in 1938, only mentioning a few of her laurels.

You wonder how people feel in being the first to break into new fields of industry. Miss Blount feels that "if less emphasis were put on being 'the' first . . . we'd accomplish a lot more. Don't boast about it, just be the best. First, represent yourself well; next, the group; and lastly, the firm."

During the war, unselfishly she organized and trained illiterate Southern men of the armed services. Much credit is given to Miss Blount for her services in this capacity. For she can feel justly proud that she has contributed to the increased literacy rate of the returned veteran of the South today. Under Red Cross auspices, she started a class for girls in upholstery, turning out reupholstered furniture for the various Red Cross units.

For this work the Zeta Phi Beta sorority chose her as their "Los Angeles Woman of 1944."

Capturing two titles in 1945, she was the maid of honor of the 444th S. S. Lane Victory ship and was chosen by California EAGLE society editor, Jessie Mae Brown, as one of the best dressed women. Shown above, Mildred Blount wears her own colonial creation.

Collecting style books from the tenth century to the present day is the unusual hobby of a most unusually gifted young lady. More remarkable than her exquisite craftsmanship is Mildred Blount herself. Only a person with enduring patience and perseverance could have more than one talent. An able public speaker and writer, she is a member of the Red Cross Speakers Bureau and the Urban League and is active in YWCA work.

Scores of movie luminaries—Ginger Rogers, Mary Pickford, and others number the patronage of Mildred Blount. Society women from Beverly Hills to New York clamor for a Blount original. Marian Anderson, Madame Collie Curci, and others.

Many milliners, who have become so money-conscious, have failed because they didn't have a foundation on which to build. It is a long and difficult road with which we ascend to attain the top position in our profession. Mildred Blount has put herself into every creation, they last. A Blount label is synonymous with fashion-smartness and quality workmanship.

Imperialists Rub Upon Aladin's Lamp

By PAUL FRENCH

The mainspring of domestic and foreign relations in the Middle East are often invisible to the naked eye. But oil is undoubtedly one of them, for extremely rich deposits of it are concentrated in the stretch of land between the Mediterranean and the Persian Gulf.

The Anglo-Saxon powers wish to monopolize the exploitation of the Middle East oilfields, and to convert a dozen independent and dependent Arab countries into one great oil concession. The contest for the oil of the Middle East led to sharp conflicts in the past; since the termination of World War II the struggle has flared up with new intensity.

Just as the British government set up a special committee, directly responsible to the cabinet, for questions of imperial oil policy after world war I, the U. S. government, in June 1943, set up a government organization called the Petroleum Reserve Corporation, with Harold Ickes as its president. The purpose of this corporation, as stated in the report presented by Truman's committee, was "to acquire reserves of crude petroleum from sources outside of the United States . . . and to store, transport, produce, process, sell, manufacture, market, and otherwise dispose of such crude petroleum and the products derived therefrom."

American capitalists are mainly interested in controlling the oil in the Middle East. There are many reasons for this: the wealth of the Middle East deposits, their proximity to European markets, and the enormous profits derived from cheap labor.

At present Britain controls 52 percent of all the oil output in the Middle East, and American firms control 42 percent.

Naturally the people of the Middle East are disillusioned and incensed at the aggressive intrusion of foreign capital into their countries. These foreign firms have come into the Middle East backed by the armies of their respective governments.

Britain, for instance, promised to evacuate her troops from Egypt 19 times since 1882. But her troops still remain there.

According to official figures, the U. S. has set up something like 450 naval and air bases during the war alone.

Since March of this year, the popular independence movement, despite conditions of mass unemployment and persecution by the Egyption Sidky Pasha government of big capitalists and ultra-conservative landowners, has grown steadily in strength. This movement has engaged in ceaseless strikes for better conditions and has led political demonstrations against domestic reaction and British imperialist support.

On July 10-11-12, 1946, the Sidky Pasha government launched its notorious "Communist Plot" scare which resulted in the arrest of over 200 writers, journalists, trade unionists, leaders, students, and foreigners. The suppression of eight newspapers followed simutlaneously. (According to unconfirmed reports of the liberal press in this country, there is no Communist party in Egypt.)

The trade union movement was the hardest hit and its leaders-including Jussif Mudkreg and Mured El Caloubi, who were members of the Egyptian delegation to the World Federation of Trade Unions, were arrested. The Egyptian Trade Union Congress leaders in every city of Egypt were also imprisoned.

Also attacked were the student organizations. A formal protest was made to the Egyption government by the leaders of the World Federation of Democratic Youth, after an Egyptian student, en route to the International Students' Congress at Prague, was seized aboard ship by police of Alexandria, and sent to prison without trial. His passports, baggage, and personal possessions were consfiscated.

Recently, by the British controlled Egyptian government, a series of repressive laws were passed which forbids:

●Students to strike or take part in political activity.

●Labor unions to strike, while lockouts are permitted. Arbitration is made compulsory in courts which constitute a majority of officials and government employes.

●Newspapers to criticize the government or to print news concerning strikes and students' demonstrations.

●The formation of political clubs.

●Any activity which the government may construe as Communist or Communist-inspired.

It is clear that the support to the worst Arab reaction which is now being given by British-American foreign policy cannot but result in further supression of the Arab population and all democratic groups, and in strengthening of the interests of Anglo-American imperialism and its war preparations against the Soviet Union in this most vital of all strategic areas.

In view of the above facts it is very understandable why Byrnes and Bevins are balking Molotov's proposal for the disclosure of troops stationed in allied countries.

Such disclosures would reveal that behind the imperialist velvet curtain Byrnes and Bevins are dressed in chef's clothes cooking the poeple of the Middle East in blood and oil for their masters: Kuwait Oil Co., Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., Royal Dutch Shell, Standard Oil of California, Texas Oil, and the Gulf Oil Corporation.

27 Members of 80th Congress Pledge Aid to Anti-Lynch Bill

NEW YORK—Twenty-five Congressmen and two Senators save already committed themselves in favor of federal anti-lynching legislation, it was announced yesterday by Immanuel Neumark, executive secretary of the American Crusade to end lynching. These commitments have been obtained in response to a letter sent by the organization, last week to all members of the 80th congress.

A number of the legislators, in their replies, expressed themselves forcefully against lynching and in favor of federal legislation. "There is no greater national crime than murdering people by mob violence," stated Sen. Chapman Revercomb (W. Va.) in his letter.

"I am unalterably opposed to any form of lynching," wrote Congressman-elect John Davis Lodge, who comes from the fourth district of Connecticut which was formerly represented by Clare Boothe Luce. "Purely aside from anything else, it is nothing less than insurrection."

"It is gratifying to note," stated Neumark in releasing the information, "that 27 members of the 80th congress have responded favorably in the period of less than a week since they have received our letter. However, it will require the support of 218 congressmen, or a majority of the House of Representatives, to pass a Federal Anti-Lynching Bill, and it may require two-thirds of the senate, or 64 Senators, to stop a filibuster on the bill by voting cloture. The American Crusade to end Lynching will not be satisfied until the necessary number of members of the 80th congress have committed themselves to full support of an anti-lynch law. We are urging all public-spirited citizens to write their congressmen and senators urging that they immediately make known their willingness to work for the passage of this legislation."

Members of the senate who have committed themselves in favor of federal anti-lynching legislation are Sen. Wm. E. Jenner (Ind.) and Sen. Chapman Revercomb (W. Va.) Members of the House of Representatives are the following: John D. Lodge (Conn.), T. B. Morton (Ky.), Max Schwabe (Mo.), Claude I. Bakewell (Mo.), Frank M. Karsten (Mo.), James C. Auchincloss (N. J.), Frank A. Mathews, Jr. (N. J.), Leonard W. Hall (N. Y.), John W. Delaney (N. Y.), Joseph L. Pfeifer (N. Y.), John J. Rooney (N. Y.), Emanuel Celler (N. Y.) Vito Marcantonio (N. Y.), Arthur G. Klein (N. Y.), Sol Bloom (N. Y.), Jacob K. Javits (N. Y.), Adam C. Powell (N. Y.), Benj. J. Rabin (N. Y.), Chas. A. Buckley (N. Y.), Bernard W. Kearney (N. Y.), Wm. T. Byrne (N. Y.), Clarence J. Brown (Ohio), Walter B. Huber (Ohio), Hugh D. Scott, Jr. (Penna.), and John C. Brophy (Wisc.).

Southern Conference Rejects Jimcro Rule, Moves to Union Hall

NEW ORLEANS—(NNPA)—The Thanksgiving biennial convention of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare last Friday heard several speakers condemn race segregation and discrimination, praise the gains made in ridding congress of reactionary members, and plead for closer cooperation between white and Negro labor.

An affront to the delegates and citizens was openly given by the city last Thursday when municipal authorities insisted that colored and white people attending the opening session, at which Senator Claude Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, was the speaker, would have to be segregated in accordance with local ordinances.

Rather than submit to Negro segregation, the Conference moved its opening session from the Municipal auditorium to Carpenters Hall. Clark Foreman, conference president, declared that enforced segregation could not be accepted "without violating fundamental American principles."

Senator Pepper praised the conference "for working toward the growth and development of the South" and to protect "the liberties and freedom of all our peoples."

He charged that the North intends to keep the South a "colony" and that it would be a disservice to the South for it to support the Republican party or for Southern members of congress to continue their coalition with northern Republicans.

Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the National Council of Negro women, shared the platform Thanksgiving night with Senator Pepper and Dr. Foreman.

She declared the time had come for the South to face its problems squarely and for the decent citizens to do more than deplore lynchings while not approving of them. She declared. "We have knocked some of the old gang loose from important committee chairmanships," he added.

Other speakers included Miss Virginia Beecher, executive secretary for the Conference of Virginia; Tarleton Collier, associate editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal; Frank Pohl, international representative of the Teamsters Union in Atlanta, and Aubrey Williams, who has been publishing The Southern Farmer since leaving the National Youth Administration.

John Qualen and Warren Douglas have been signed for important roles in "High Conquest."

Believe It or Not

WILMINGTON—(SCP)—A boy on a bicycle crashed into a five-ton truck and trailer in Wilmington yesterday — and the truck overturned.

The boy, seven-year-old Frank Collins, white, was uninjured.

Driver of the big vehicle, Walter J. Teach, white, 33, of 10318 S. Western avenue, said he turned his wheels so sharply in an effort to avoid the collision that his heavy truck tipped over on its side. Teach also escaped injuries.

THOSE OVERSEAS MATCHES

Dear Prof. Herman:

My problem seems to be the result of the war and the experience some of the boys had over there. I was engaged to a very nice young man, he was sent overseas and remained there about 2½ years. During this time we wrote to each other on the average of two letters a week. And up until recently I was under the impression that he still cared as much for me as he did before he went into the service. However, a couple weeks ago I received quite a shock. He wrote me stating he had married over there and was bringing his wife back with him. I am so upset and worried I just don't know what to do, for I still love him dearly. What do you think I should do? T.J.

Ans.—Dear Thelma:

Perhaps this incident happened at the right time after all. If he wasn't the type to be able to remain in love with you any longer than that, it is just as well you know now. Of course the conditions there were hard for the boys and they had to be made up of the right 'stock' to take it! His remaining there so long also had something to do with it, for which you should make some allowances. On the other hand he should have told you sooner, or given you to understand that he felt the engagement should be broken, thus giving you a chance to make your contacts and get adjusted to the situation. My advice to you is to try and forget him, go out with your other friends and try to enjoy yourself, don't brood over the past for your future holds many pleasant surprises.

B. W.—Will I ever get my ring back.

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that the ring that you lost was a prize possession because it was a gift from your father. I am sorry to say, however that I don't vision your getting it back at this time. You must learn to not lay your valuables down in places like public wash rooms, etc., for that is very dangerous.

E.M.—Will my husband and I be able to make a payment on a farm?

Ans.—After giving your question careful thought and consideration I find that if you continue to budget your incomes as you have been doing you will be able to make the payment that you have been looking forward to, and after the first payment the rest will come much easier.

Mrs. R.B.P.G.—What does the future hold for me?

Ans.—Your Lucky Stars and Guiding Planet indicate a change in your location as you are not happy there. Several other things are indicated in your reading, if you write in for a private reply I shall be glad to help you.

particularly those sections of the report regarding Negro troops.

"We are informed that most of Meader's report and Senator Brewster's article in Liberty magazine of November 9 were based on testimony of Colonel Francis P. Miller, who stated that the alleged misconduct of both white and Negro troops was 'only true of a small minority.'

"On November 25, Senator Kilgore sent to each of you gentlemen and other members of the Committee, a copy of the letter from Colonel Miller stating this fact. You gentlemen know that the War Department ordered the inspector general of the army to make an investigation which lasted from mid-August to mid-November, which corroborated Colonel Miller's statement that only a few American soldiers and officers, both white and Negro, misconducted themselves. Colonel Miller requested a correction of the transcript that American generals were afraid to discipline Negro troops, but George Meader is reported to have refused to let the transcript be corrected.

"We are further puzzled at your releasing the report in the senate press room, with two employes of George Meader handing out the report to newspapermen, after the chairmen of the committee had called a meeting for this Friday to discuss your request that the report be released. (The senate committee voted 6-4 against releasing the report. The vote was on strictly party lines, with the Democratic majority voting against its release, the Republicans for its release. The unauthorized release of the Meader report was thus effected in defiance of the majority vote—Editor.)

"Your statement that none of you assumes responsibility for the accuracy of the report, and the statement that it is only a preliminary report to indicate further lines of injuiry, would appear to indicate that, for some inexplicable reason, you are willing to smear Negro soldiers and the Negro race generally.

"Because of its most dangerous implications, we request that you make the reasons for your action public. Failure to do so will indicate a most questionable attitude towards the welfare of American and of its Negro minority."

applications received and on the basis of need regardless of race, creed or national origin.

The Airport Homes project located at 60th street and Karlov avenue has been the focus of a concerted campaign by white real estate agents and property owners seeking to keep Negroes out of the area in which the project is located. The campaign has received the encouragement of Alderman Hogan and other politicians in the 13th ward.

A near riot broke out several weeks ago when a Negro vet and his wife and their three-weeks old son attempted to move into an apartment leased him by the CHA. Following the disturbance, a delegation from the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America called upon Mayor Kelly, urged action to prevent future obstacles to the housing of veterans in general and Negro veterans in particular in CHA housing projects.

A detail of 200 policemen patrolled the are last Sunday and there were scattered reports of new minor disturbances. A policeman knocked a brick from a white woman's hand and several whites tossed bricks through the windshield of a coal truck driven by a colored man.

The two Negro veterans occupancy of apartments in the project preceded the burning of the fiery cross declared that threats and disorders will not deter them from occupying the homes to which they were assigned and that they would "stay to fight this to a fin ish." They are John R. Fort 29 and Letholian Waddell, 20.

The units assigned to the two veterans are at 4138 60th place. Fort, whose wife, Mildred, is an expectant mother, fought in the Battle of the Bulge and in the Mediterranean campaign, and earned four battle stars. Waddell is a Pacific veteran. He and his wife, Mildred, have a son, Jerome, 18 months.

leagues, including that of the Pacific Coast league which held sessions last week. A letter to the powers-that-be was answered and informed the committee that they would be heard Friday at 11 a.m. at the Biltmore. When the committee showed up they were informed that the session started at 9 a.m. and was over at 10 a.m. and that the convention had adjourned. Efforts to see "Happy" Chandler, baseball czar and Clarence (Pants) Rowland, president of the Pacific Coast League failed and the committee was compelled to adjourn and formulate plans for further action.

The group was composed of Dr. H. Claude Hudson, Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins, Charlotta A. Bass, Helen Samuel, Yvonne Shepherd, Eddie Burbridge, William O'Neil and representatives of the CIO.

Ralph Childers, 18, and Lanier Waller, 21, were the two Columbians who confessed that the organization sought to seize power and turn the U. S. into a fascist state.

Their program envisaged smuggling arms from occupied Germany, according to the statements of the two youths.

They planned to use prejudice against Negroes as an opening wedge.

Prof. James H. Sheldon of the Anti-Nazi League, who was here for the announcement of the confessions, said his investigation started three months ago and was climaxed last month when Miss Forrest and Mario Buzzi, a naturalized Italian, came here to win the Columbians' confidence.

They got into the organization by posing as Fascists.

A grand jury investigation has been ordered, to start tomorrow (Friday).

lisher Foster, "it is unfortunate that Mr. McMillan didn't shoot these cowardly black vermin and rid this fair community of at least four of their ilk.

"For had he done so, it would not only have wiped out some of these brazen niggers, but it would have saved the taxpayers many thousands of dollars in the cost of their trials and many more thousands of dollars in the cost of keeping them as inmates of state institutions."

This man Foster, who for a goodly period has been a thorn in the flesh of Los Angeles politics, now bares his true colors for all the world to see.

One can't help but feel that Foster's latest venture establishes an agency here for that organization known as the "Columbians of Georgia," an organization such as Hitler's fascistic movement which terrorized the Jews of Germany and served as a forerunner for World War II. The Columbians are now terrorizing the Negroes of Georgia after the same fashion and setting a pattern for World War III, which can only be averted by putting in prison such agents as the Georgia Columbians now on trial, and this man, Foster, of the Los Angeles Equalizer.

Shall we take it for granted that the people who sent Season's Greetings to defray the expense of this issue of the Equalizer are the ones supporting Mr. Foster's effort to start a race riot in these parts? Notable among them are: William G. Bonelli, Zemansky Bros., Leo Bolger, Roger Jessup, Fred Howser, Harry Popkin, Eugene Biscailuz, Tom White, George Stahlman, Max Solomon, Chas. W. Cradick, Frank Irvine, Fred Frank, Joe Fainer, Lefty Turner, Fred McNerney, Ross Page, George Young, Baron Long, Nick Harris Detectives, William Simpson, Howard Brinton and Monsignor N. Connealy.

Now, Mr. Mayor, and City Fathers—is this sufficient evidence for action?

IN TROUBLE AGAIN—Curtis Mosby, local night club operator, will have to do a little explaining in the city attorney's office at 9 a.m., Dec. 16 of his alleged assault of Tommy Thompson, former employe of his club, at 3:15 a.m. last Sunday morning. Some weeks ago Mosby was charged with filing false bankruptcy by the federal authorities.

Murray Acts to Strengthen CIO Anti-Discrimination Unit

WASHINGTON, D.C.—(NNPA)—Two labor leaders, both representing unions with large Negro memberships, were named Monday to the CIO's National Committee to Abolish Discrimination.

The two men, W. Richard Carter, member of the executive board of the Industrial Union of Maritime and Shipbuilding Workers of America, and Philip Weightman, first vice president of the United Packinghouse Workers of America, were named by CIO President Phillip Murray at an executive board meeting held at the close of the CIO convention in Atlantic City.

"This is an important step towards strengthening the committee," James B. Carey, committee chairman, said in making the announcement. "Carter and Weightman represent CIO unions with large memberships. They have demonstrated their leadership by the effective work they have done within their respective organizations. In recognition of their abilities, the members of their union have repeatedly elected them to positions of trust and responsibility. Now they are stepping out in a broader field to carry on the CIO fight against discrimination."

George L. P. Weaver, director of the committee, in his report to the convention, stated that the CIO now has 100 council and international union committees functioning within the organization.

Recommending that each international union organize its own anti-discrimination committee and directing attention to the work done by such committees, Weaver said:

"We have not yet created the perfect mechanism, nor solved the problem. The problem of minorities in America is the problem of the Negro, the Jew, the Catholic, the Protestant. It is the problem of 140,000,000 who have fought and produced together, and who must learn to live in peace and respect for each other, if the victory in battle is to become a truly people's victory."

Other members of the anti-discrimination committee include Willard S. Townsend, international president of the United Transport Workers; James J. Leary, international Union of Mines, Mill and Smelter Workers; Boyd L. Wilson, United Steelworkers of America; Harry Read, American Newspaper Guild; M. Hedley Stone, National Maritime Union of America; William H. Oliver, United Automobile Workers of America, and Morris Pizer, United Furniture Workers of America.

Crop 'n' Tail Riding Club To Give 3rd Barn Dance at Aluha Bowling Club on 19

At a special meeting of the Crop 'N' Tail Riding club, held Sunday morning at 10 a. m., plans were completed for the club's annual Barn Dance, scheduled for the night of December 19, at Alpha Bowling club. Blue Jeans and plaid shirts will be the order of the evening, and the "college set," will probably start its holiday vacation, by attending.

Paulette Dejoie, president, will lead the square dancing that is expected to highlight the gay affair. Tickets are being sold by the members.

Before the meeting was adjourned, Miss Nida Blackwell, spoke to the group on types of affairs that may be given to benefit Westview Hospital. Ruth Cage was elected to the office of corresponding secretary, and the names of prospective new members were voted on. The club adjourned to meet next Sunday at the home of Miss Winifred Allen.

Hearing on the CIO Brewery Workers' dispute, which led to the picketing of four local breweries three months ago, will be Dec. 18, Hugh E. Sperry, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, announced yesterday.

All Groups to Take Part in Holiday Fete

The Residence and Volunteer Committee, under the chairmanship of Miss Carmelita White and Mrs. Josephine Brown, invites the public to be present on Friday evening, Dec. 13, to share in the festivity of the "Hanging of the Green" at Woodlawn branch YWCA.

This is the occasion when trees for the holiday season will be trimmed. There will be special music by the Carver Junior high school chorus, a brief religious ceremonial with carol singing, after which will follow an evening of real entertainment.

The "T-Teens" will present the nativity skit and sing carols from 3 to 6 p.m. Following their participation, the adult clubs, members and friends will have charge.

Mrs. Welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Bar Assn. Calls On UN to Outlaw Oppressive Acts

nation an international crime, Earl B. Dickerson, president of the Association announced yesterday.

In a petition drawn up at the close of their annual convention in Detroit, the lawyers urged that planned action against a people "either gradually against them as individuals, or collectively as an entire group, whether by mass killing or by the destruction of their essential potentialities of life" be called an act of genocide.

Such acts, the petition states, should be termed "acts against the conscience of humanity" and thereby fall within the designation of an international crime.

The association's resolution added to the growing number of appeals now being made to the UN by minority groups. From debates on the resolution held by the bar association it was apparent that the lawyers were convinced that there is a jurisdiction that can be given the UN in the area of civil rights exercised by citizens of member states.

Couple Held on Narcotic Charge

Morgan and Elora Martin, husband and wife of 2320 Wall st., appeared before Judge Edward Brand on a charge of being in possession of narcotics early this week.

Police officers testified that on September 21 last, they went to the Wall street address and, hearing loud noises inside, saw a woman's arm in the act of throwing a small object out of a window as they approached. Upon investigating the thrown object, the police said they found what appeared to be a narcotic. Thereupon, they arrested all of the women they found in the house at that time.

At the jail however, police say they were able to positvely identify Elora Martin as the woman whose arm tossed the narcotic. They further claim that while they were holding his wife, Morgan Martin came to the jail and confessed to ownership of the narcotic. According to police reports, Martin is said to have stated he bought the narcotic at Mexicali for "home consumption."

The couple vigorously deny both the possession of the narcotic and the alleged confession. Atty. Walter L. Gordon is expected to defend the pair.

CIO Union Bares Bias Against Minorities in Government Agencies

and not from all of the employes of OPA. The commission has ruled, however, that the selection of the 40 employes should be made on an agency-wide basis. Such an extension of competition for the 40 jobs, it was said, will virtually wipe out the chances of the 45 colored employes of the division.

The union pointed out that in throwing the competition for the jobs open to all persons in OPA, Civil Service would be violating a regulation which states that all veterans and persons holding permanent civil service status in a division must be given first referrals where the program of the division is transferred to another agency. There are 33 veterans in the OPA financial reporting division. If veterans are given preferance many of the selections will be necessarily Jews and colored people.

This is only one of many charges of discrimination being leveled by Negro and Jewish employes of folding agencies who are being terminated and are seeking comparable jobs with other federal agencies.

It was also learned that the navy department has submitted a request to the OPA for a group of stenographers and specified that no colored employes were wanted. The same charge has been leveled at the National Housing Agency, and the union has just finished an investigation of race discrimination at the State Department.

Bridge Points

"Man's ingratitude to man has killed countless thousands."

Last week I pulled a few of the sheets of mystery off the "2 over 1" responses, and the week before the "1 over 1" was likewise exposed for your edification. This week I will let you see the results of your instructions in action.

The following example hands were bid without the opponents entering the bidding:

(1) Holding the following hands in response to your partner's opening bid of 1 heart: S—KJ952, H—83, D—82, C—KQ852. What is your correct response? (2) S—92, H—75, D—KJ97543, C—74. (3) S—3, H—A234, D—8754, C—AQ87.

Students! If you have followed your last two lesson with interest, the above correct action will be simple.

I see by the papers that Mr. Gene (Genial) Robinson and Mr. Ellis Veil have taken over the teaching end of Tuesday nights at the swank GWBA Clubrooms. This is indeed a treat for you, my reading public, and I suggest that you put attendance down as a must on your social calendar, since both are tops in this field.

Next week's column will continue to review a few pointers on "1 over 1," and "2 over 2" responses, since they are such important weapons on the scientific bridge battlefield — the squared table.

Bridgers, tell your friends about "Bridge Points" being crammed with the latest in bridge instructions, problem hands, and how to bid and play them. I am here to serve your bridge needs and problems — be wise and use them.

Hails Eagle's Ads' Results

Dear Mrs. Bass:

I want to congratulate your very fine paper in the general makeup of the attractive ad concerning Shadow Mountain Townsite Acres. The ad was really so beautiful until I did not realize it was mine until I saw my name.

I knew I really didn't have the artistic taste to suggest such a beautiful makeup. It is bringing fine results and I am very grateful to your newspaper and your staff for such splendid cooperation.

Better still, I want to thank you and Miss Phyllis Scott for the beautiful article prepared by her under the captain "Trail Blazer," depicting some of my activitives in California. While I have retired from most activities of remunerative nature and do not intend to engage in business of any kind of a public nature —naturally, I have no desire for publicity for personal gain.

However, this article done by Miss Scott, I believe, will be of benefit to some young struggling man or woman who desires to get ahead in life despite being handicapped by many limitations which I experienced in my early twenties.

For that reason, although (I have to wonder whether Miss Scott was really talking about me, or whether she was describing the man that I wish to be) publicity of a personal nature, I cannot but feel my ego rise and libido expanding, making room for expression of gratitude, love and blessings for the California EAGLE and its fine staff —and a sincerely desire and earnest wish for you as editor and publisher and for the rest of the staff a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

the 300,000 more whom Smuts wants to bring under his permanent governmental control.

Delegate after delegate denounced the proposed annexation of Southwest Africa as a violation of both the mandate covenant of the League of Nations and the charter of the United Nations.

Among the nations who have, thus far, voiced their opposition to Smuts' annexation proposal are: India, Egypt, China, Iran, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Ukranian S. S. R., Bolivia, Venezuela, Poland, Byelo-Russia, the Soviet Union, Mexico and Syria.

Several other nations who have not expressed a definite opinion stated that they might also join the opposition, upon the receipt of more information concerning the problem.

Decision on the question, as yet unsettled, has been deferred until a later date.

This, and other vital information relative to the African situation, will be fully discussed by Senator Basner, and the public is cordially invited to avail themselves of the unique privilege of hearing him on Sunday evening.

Prepare Final Effort in Community Chest Drive

Mrs. Josephine Brown, Community Chest chairman for Adams-Central district, and Mrs. C. A. Troy, South Park chairman, are now making plans for final efforts to complete the current appeal by going over the top on district quotas.

Although Adams-Central district has been pushed from first place in a surprise move, they still rank high, with collections totaling $5212 for 93 percent of quota, and South Park volunteers have brought in $3366 for 92 percent.

Funds now being asked of local residents represent the minimum amount required for continued operation of the 152 Red Feather agencies now in the Chest to serve the health and welfare needs of the entire community.

If a volunteer has not yet called on you for your contribution, please call local headquarters immediately at the Avalon Community Center, a Chest agency, 4272 Avalon blvd., telephone Adams 31209.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

A WANING YEAR finds many cabinets changing, and installation services taking number one positions on club agendas. 1946 has been a grand year for Los Angeles club women, the presidents who are stepping down, giving the gavel to their successors, may feel justly proud. The G. W. B. A., one of the oldest bridge clubs in Los Angeles, elected Dr. G. L. Wallace, as president for 1947. Stepping from the chair, is the very charming Mrs. Louise Rowan, who has watched the group grow by leaps and bounds during the 12 months. Bridge isn't my game, but it so happens that ye scribe was introduced to the activities of the club through Mr. M. L. Milligan, who writes "Bridge Points" for the EAGLE. Taking part in the convention held in Pittsburgh during the summer, the body was able to get the "1947 tournament" to meet in Los Angeles. Bridgers, who seem to be growing in numbers by leaps and bounds, hold membership in the GWBA, and have enjoyed the past year's activities under the leadership of Mrs. Louise Rowan.

Jessie Mae Brown

The Cavalrettes Club, Inc., re-elected Jackie Moore as its president. The Sororities have started their election period. Leading, is the group of Sigma Chapter girls to AKA sorority. Dorothy Redd gave up the chair, after a year that included several heavy months planning the Boule, to lovely Delores Bell, who is deep in study on the S. C. Campus . . . It was my honor and privilege to install the new officers of the Los Angeles Youth Forum, last Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Lindsy, club advisors. Sherill Luke, is the versatile new president, and Becky Brown is outgoing. Following an installation service, Lula Bendy will officially take over the chair of the Doll League Charity club, held last year by Clara Taylor. The Orchids, who played hostess last Saturday night to a mammoth affair, are presided over by charming Ramell Bernarise, who followed a long term of office held by Laura Slayton, now listed as founder of the group. I could go on naming the change in officers for the reports arrive at the EAGLE office daily. As foremention ed, the clubs of the Angel City have done a grand job, here's hoping 1947 will be as successful.

HOLIDAY DATES

Invitations to holiday parties are just about crowding the mails by now, giving the P.O. extras something to do. According to chatter picked up from the breeze, the Master Guest lists that up to date have only been form, will be put to use, starting Monday night when the AKA's play hostess at their annual Christmas formal being staged at the Avadon. Each expected guests name will appear alphabatized on the list that will be in use throughout the evening at the main door. Guess we'll be hearing more chatter from the Breeze that the sorority is going too exclusive, but the action is a "must." From all preparations, the Monday night formal will definitely make its niche in the group of outstanding events of the season.

The Delta Sigma Theta, annual "White Christmas," semi will fall on the night of the 26th, following Christmas day that will be filled with several "drop-in affairs." The Delta affair will be staged at the Elks Ballroom and the decor, will follow the precedence set up by the group last year. The Phidelphians, are all set to make merry, on the Eve of Christmas at the Riverside Rancho. Invites will be in the mail, but soon, and the affair will be Semi (wonderful).

The Crop 'N' Tails have December 19, all ready to go, at the Alpha Bowling club, breaking into the trend of formal and semi formal, the equestrians make theirs a barn dance, with blue jeans and plaid shirts the expected things to wear . . . The Silhouettes, will entertain on the morning of December 15 with a coffee on South Harvard Blvd. . . . Jumping back to the end of the month, the Les Charmantes will ring in the new year, with their annual informal dance . . . Than the Omega Psi Phi fraternity will give the new year a grand starter by staging a grand Formal ball, on January 6, at the beautiful Civic Auditorium . . . so we go on and on . . .

HERE AND THERE

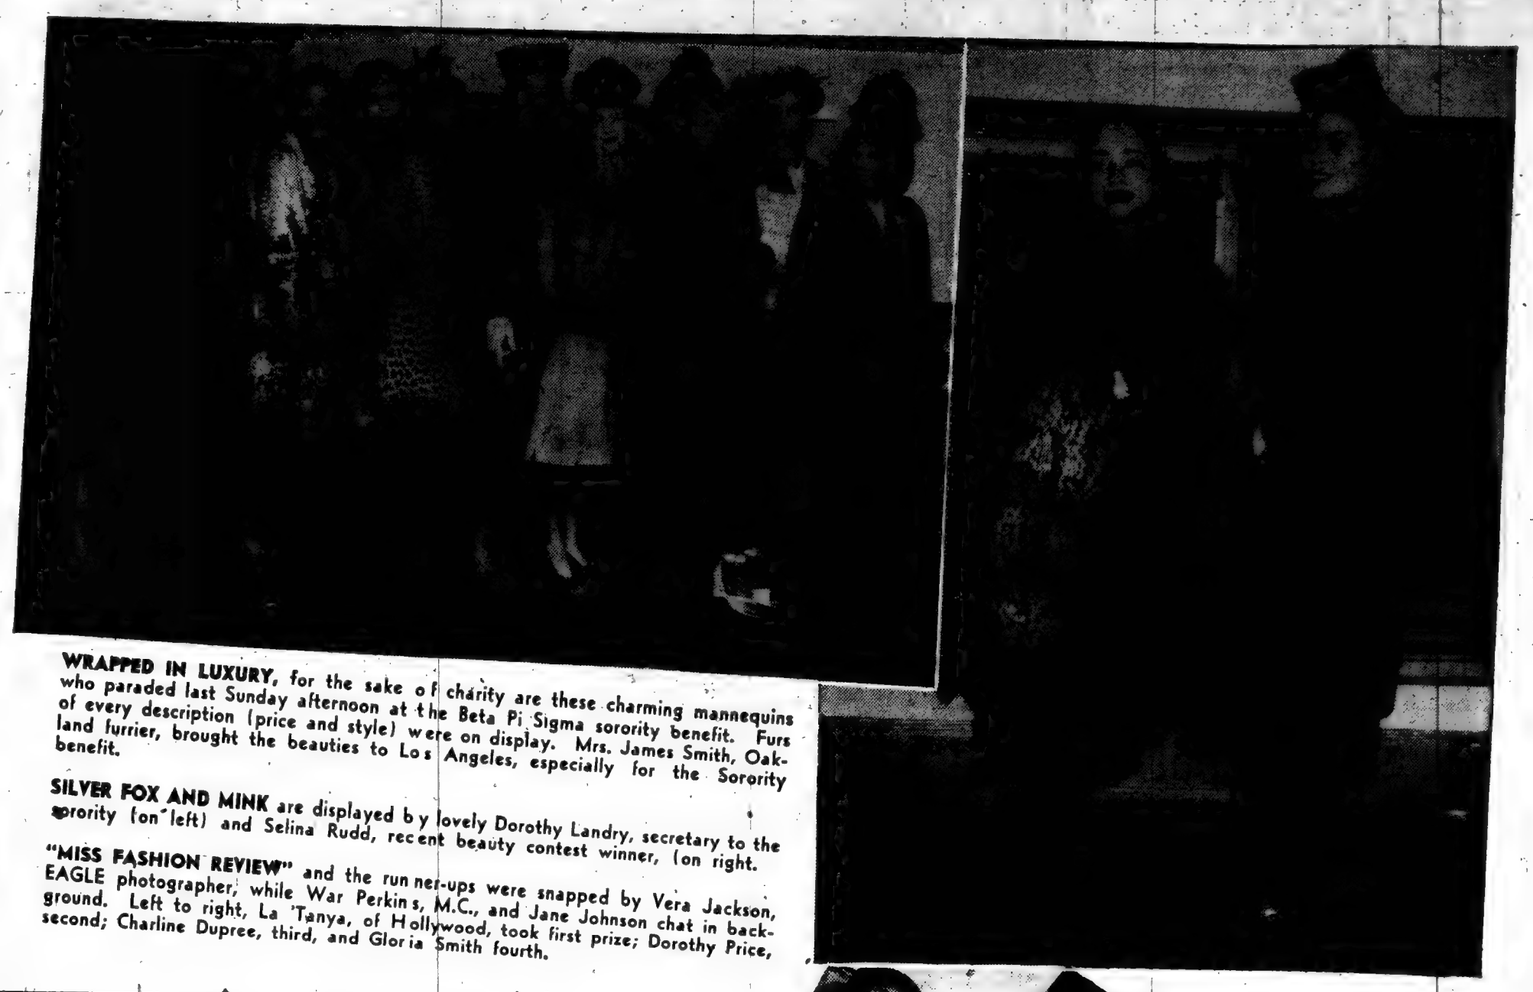
Maude Foster White, recently entertained with a Saturday night informal party. A host of her friends gathered around, and a grand time was had by all . . . Following the Saturday night AKA initiation, the girls dined at Woodson's . . . Charming Eloise Duke will arrive at the station early Sunday morning to spend the holidays in sunny Cal. The lovely blond is making the trip from N.Y. . . . Another young lady who will be in the city for Christmas, is Virginia Paris, who has been studying and giving concerts over the country. She will spend most of her time with the family . . . Oliva Pettibone is an officer in the Original Cavalrette club that is giving an annual formal dance at the Elks on December 21 . . . Following the Euterpian Concert, the group enjoyed a grand "so it's over," affair on Kenwood. Hear that it was a success . . . Certainly enjoyed the fashion review put on by the Beta Pi Sigma last Sunday . . .

Dick Terry and his lovely bride, Ruth, will be honored with a wedding reception on the 15th, between the hours of 4 and 7 p.m. . . . Ruth and Bert Kenner had their little son christened Sunday at the Catholic church . . . Rene Hewlett, is all smiles this week, he too is the father of a lovely daughter. His brother, Martin, was all smiles the week before, over his new daughter's arrival . . . Another bit about the Omegas, their 334 Grand conclave is set for December 27, in Ft. Worth, Texas. James P. Perry Jr., and Leslie Brown will attend from L.A. . . . Michael Courtney is the new addition in the Wooton household, born November 16 . . .

Hear that the grand reunion of the 93rd is all set for the Villa Arlington Saturday night . . .

WELL! WELL! WELL!

Johnnie Luke has a trip to Mexico all planned for the weekend . . . The Cosmos have the 29th set for their affair, just what it will be is yet untold . . . Gert Gipson has a big party planned for the early part of February . . . Be sure to read the "Trail Blazer," on Mildred Blount . . . Anita Scott Coleman is waiting the arrival of her new book of poems from the press rooms. This is expected to be one of the best poetry sellers for 1947 . . . Making deadline . . . 'TIL NEXT WEEK.



WRAPPED IN LUXURY, for the sake of charity are these charming mannequins who paraded last Sunday afternoon at the Beta Pi Sigma sorority benefit. Furs of every description (price and style) were on display. Mrs. James Smith, Oakland furrier, brought the beauties to Los Angeles, especially for the Sorority benefit.

Past Ivy Leaf Prexy Given Surprise Party By Pledges at U.S.C.

On Thursday evening, Miss Virginia Wilson, recently initiated into Sigma chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, was feted with a surprise birthday party at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Dorsey. Hostesses for the affair were members of the Ivy Leaf pledge club on the USC campus.

Bridge was played by those in attendance, and the honoree was presented with a silver identification bracelet by the Ivy Leaf group, over which she presided last semester. Among those present were: Myrtle Pleasant, Marie Flennoy, Doris Whitfield, Rose King and Edith Wilson.

Original Social Few Drop Holiday Dance

The Original Social Few club finds it impossible to hold its annual holiday dance this year, due to unforeseen circumstances. The club, however, extends a "Merry Christmas and Prosperous New Year" to all its many friends.

The club reports the last three monthly meetings being held: Sept. 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Davis; Nov. 2, the group was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. M. Lemons; and Dec. 7, found members gathered at the home of Mrs. Lena Wills, where a delightful time was enjoyed by everyone.

Dr. A. L. Wallace Elected GWBA Head at Sunday Play

The fifth annual regional mixed pair was held Saturday and Sunday, December 7 and 8, respectively, at the club house, 1054 E. 54th street, which was a mammoth success.

Mrs. Gene Campbell and Mr. Franklin Wilson won the first honors; Mrs. Made Denton and Mr. J. D. Dunn won second place; Mrs. Julia Asbury and Mr. Hollysteed won third place.

Following the play the annual election of officers was held. Dr. A. L. Wallace, leading physician, was unanimously elected president for the ensuing year. Mr. Louis Woods was elected vice-president; Mrs. Margaret Hale, secretary; Mrs. Gertrude Settles, assistant secretary; Mr. J. D. Dunn, treasurer; Mr. Ellis L. Vail, tournament director; Mr. Gene Robinson, sergeant-at-arms; and Miss Ann Daniels, reporter.

The executive board members are Mrs. Agnes Beal, Mr. E. J. City, Mrs. Viola Henry, Mrs. Louisa Roan and Mr. Gene Robinson.

Since Dr. A. L. Wallace was unanimously elected president, the G.W.B.A. feels that through his leadership the national convention, which will meet here in August 1947, will be a huge success.

LOUISA ROAN,
President.
ELLIS L. VAIL,
Tournament Director.

Beta Pi Sigma, Business Women's Sorority Stages Fabulous Style Benefit for Milady

A potpourri of feathers, sleek furs and beautiful gowns, emerged at one of the most fabulous and exciting benefit fashion reviews of the season, when Beta Pi Sigma Business and Professional sorority entertained at Villa Arlington Sunday evening.

SOCIETY MANIKINS

Society manikins modeled fink, fox, ermine, leopard, squirrell, etc., styled in original stoles, scarfs, short and long coats, worth $25,000. Owned by Mr. James Smith, leading Negro furrier on the coast, who brought the garments to Los Angeles, just for the occasion.

War Perkins, was able M.C., while Mrs. Bernice Barnum, local school principal, Mrs. Eva Gordon and Mr. Clarence Muse served as judges over the "Miss Fashion Review," contest that held sway. Top honors went to L'Tanya of Hollywood, second to Dorothy Price, third to Charline Dupree, and fourth to Gloria Smith. Taking first, in class "B", was Ruth Mackey. Dr. Jerome Johnson was on hand to give "Miss Fashion Review", first prize, a beautiful orchid, and Record Albums to the runner ups.

ILLUMINATING PROGRAM

A program of stellar performers was presented throughout the affair. Such personalities as Herb Jefferies, Clarence Muse, Tiny McClur, "Flennoy", of Flennoy trio fame and Blanch Patterson took care of the musical portion of the program. A serious note was struck, when Jessie Mae Brown, Society editor of the California EAGLE, gave a brief talk on the progress of business women, commending the Beta Pi Sigma Business and Professional sorority on its activities.

The affair, which will benefit the group's scholarships fund was under the leadership of Miss Thelma Lee Wallace and her co-chairman, Jane' Neeley. The Beta Pi Sigma sorority is a two-year old organization, founded here in Los Angeles, by Alpha Chapter.

Overwhelmed with the success of the benefit, the chapter members are now busily engaged making preparations for an outstanding program to be presented during Negro History Week. Officers include: Sarah Reynold, president, Thelma Lee Wallace, vice president, Dorothy Landry, sec'ts., Emily Sheffield, treasurer, James Neeley, bus. mgr., Helen Lamb, historian. Members: Lucille Ailstock and Juanita Jones.

'Native Californians' Contribute to NAACP

"Dear Mr. Griffith:

At the regular December meeting of the Native Californians on last Sunday afternoon the members decided by unanimous vote that the Los Angeles branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is the organization to which they wish to give their holiday donation this year. The amount of the enclosed check represents a gesture of good will and we hope that it may help in some way.

You have our best wishes for continued success.

Very sincerely yours,

Jessie Mae Arnold Becomes Mrs. Robert R. Johnson in Elaborate Pasadena Wedding

The historical Friendship Baptist church, of Pasadena, was an elaborate setting Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. when popular Jessie Mae Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arnold, said marriage vows with Robert Randolph Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of Los Angeles. Reverend W. D. Carter officated at the ceremony, and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Preceding the ceremony, the beautiful setting of white 'mums and candles was brightened a bit by candle girls Betty Brown, Jeffalyn Brown, Myrtle Martin, Alma Philips, Odella Bartlett and Mable Duncan, wearing delicate pastel shades. In a sharp contrast of color, the bridesmaids entered, wearing alternated muted green and orchid period styled gowns, featuring capped sleeves and bustles. The maids carried heart shaped bouquets of 'mums and red roses. Lucille Harrison was maid of honor, and Frances Burnett matron. Bridesmaids were: Thelma Jackson, Gwen Morrow, Carolyn Hennington, Barbara Durham, Jackie Bunch, and Gloria Bunch. Marching with the maids were ushers: Louis Tenett, Leon Jones, Kenneth Jefferson, Tommy Palmer, Harold and Charles Nesbitt. Joe Durell served as best man. Little flower girls, Judy Parker and Mary Moore, dropped petals on the floor following ring bearer, Darrell Smock, completing a perfect setting for the lovely bride.

Wearing a gown of white satin and net, the bride was beautiful as she marched down the center aisle with her father. Her illusion veil was three-quarter length and she carried a white prayer book, topped by orchids. Bridal hymns were rendered by Cleo Ellis, Arthur Duncan and Lakesy Walker.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where many friends of the two prominent families offered felicitations and viewed the gifts that were on display. The newlyweds slipped from the reception on a honeymoon at an undisclosed spot. They plan to live in West Los Angeles, and will be at home to their many friends on returning to the city.

Capt. R. Walter Williams of the 555th paratroop batallion at Ft. Bragg, N. C., flew out to attend the funeral of his great aunt, Mrs. Hattie Brown, loving mother of our dear Cynthiabelle Gordon. Capt. Williams will visit with his cousin, Mrs. Gordon, for two weeks before returning to Ft. Bragg.

Council Holds Discussion of Inter-FratMeet

The Pan Hellenic Council held its first meeting of the current season at the 28th street YMCA on Friday night, December 6, with the president, Herbert Simmons, Alpha Phi Alpha, presiding. Members present included Miss Claire Fentress, Zeta Phi Beta, secretary; Mrs. Mabel Jones, Zeta Phi Beta; Miss Maxine Clark, Delta Sigma Theta; Dr. C. W. Hill, Phi Beta Sigma; Mr. William S. Hendricks, Phi Beta Sigma; Mr. Lloyd Courtney, Omega Psi Phi; Mr. Frank Castine, Phi Beta Sigma; Mr. Vernon Shields, Kappa Alpha Psi; Mr. Roy Brown, Omega Psi Phi; Mr. Dewey D. Davidson, Alpha Phi Alpha; Mr. Bernard E. Johnson, Kappa Alpha Psi, and Mr. William L. Lan, Phi Beta Sigma.

The foremost plans on the agenda of the council were a social calendar, rush and hell week for future Fraters and Sorors on the UCLA and USC campuses, and a general program for the orientation of new students. One of the main topics for discussion was the forthcoming inter-frat basketball series. Plans were laid for a mammoth series and the introduction of new teams to the league which gives promise of a greater and better series for the entertainment of a sports-minded public.

The council also indorses a program of aid to the starving millions of Europe, China and other countries, and plans were laid for a coordinated effort on the part of the fraternities and sororities of Los Angeles and vicinity to aid these countries.

JOHNETTA ARMSTRONG

To the readers! Again, Barbara Durham and myself offer this for a bit of contrast. I emphasize again that it is all in fun.

Ples Griffin, guest reporter

Dear Barbara:

Having just finished a bit of homework I find myself somewhat tired but I thought that I might as well make some profitable disposal of the time. I was glad to hear from you and especially to know some of the serious interests of the young people around here and just how their vocational interests weave into the pattern of their lives.

To be truthful, I cannot blame my fatigue entirely on studying because as I stop to think of it, I had a rather full weekend. There was the basketball game and dance given by the Bel Sangue Saturday night. We (The Triple C's), after a slow first quarter were able to emerge victorious by a score of 40 to 27. Arthur Hall, Raymond Thompson, and John Fortuna were particularly outstanding for the Sangues with able backing by Theodore Dean, Jack Simieon, and Sonny Mims. The opposition was spearheaded by Harry Davis, Don Mims, Lealie Bugg, Otis Neal, Glenn Mallory and Winfred Eckley.

Also on Saturday night the Alpha Chapter of the Phalanx fraternity gave a dance at Lincoln school. It is regretable, Barbara, that there is not more of a spirit of cooperation among the clubs of Pasadena. All events would be far more successful if the organizations would try pulling together for a change.

You know, as little as we might think of it, a sharp wit is a gift that should be cherished by those who possess it and respect by those who do not. Since you know the Mims family you would naturally associate Gloria with Mary Louise. If you are familiar with the Morse code you would naturally associate Dot with Dash.—Thomas Floyd.

Barbara, I am glad that you mentioned in your letter the fact that Jesse Arnold and Robert Johnson were to be married Sunday. I was fortunate enough to witness the ceremony. The floral decorations provided a lovely background for the bridesmaids who marched opposite the ushers and lined the altar to form a contrast of beauty and stateliness. Then came the bride. She was a sight to behold. Her groom met her at the foot of the altar and together they mounted the steps. I am certain, Barbara, that you will agree with me that this was one of the most beautiful wedding ceremonies held in Pasadena. Lucille Harrison was Maid of Honor, Frankie Arnold, the Matron of Honor, while the Fine Melleoners acted as bridesmaids and the Conservative Dukes, the ushers.

I understand that a bridal party was given by Mrs. Caroline Hennington at her home on North Orange Grove ave. in honor of the newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson.

Say, Barbara, are you planning to attend the second annual NAACP Youth Council Banquet Friday the 13th. You know, at this time Madison Shockley, the Pasadena delegate to the Youth Conference held in November, in New Orleans, will make his report. An interesting muscial program has also been planned. If you know of any of your friends who neglected to make their reservations early, you might tell them that preparations have been made for a limited number of late-comers. You might also emphasize that we will start serving promptly at 7:30. For those who might ask you, my number is SYcamore 2-1679. See you there, huh?

Barbara, 'Sam's navy must be a pretty good deal (for someone else of course, not me). Eddie Mills has enlisted again. When you see him, extend my best wishes, please.

It has been brought to my attenion, in several ways, that there are certain people around town, both boys and girls, who seem to think that they are the "hottest," the "sharpest," and the "latest" thing that has hit the avenue. I have also been asked to mention it in my biweekly correspondence to you. But being that what I would say would represent only my opinion, which would matter very little to the individauls concerned, I thought, rather than to let these "characters" continue to grope in the dark, that you might assist me in conducting a little popularity contest among the readers of "DENA CHIT CHAT" just to see who is "hot stuff."

The contest will be conducted thus: On a sheet of paper write the names of the three most popular, in your estimation, girls in descending order. Then follow the same procedure for the boys. At the bottom of the boy, girl list respectively, write the name of the "least warm" boy and girl. Put this piece of paper in an envelope and send it to DENA CHIT CHAT in care of Ples Griffin, 805 Sunset ave., Pasadena 3, Calif. or in care of Barbara Durham, 1050 N. Wilson ave., Pasadena 6, Calif. This contest will end on the 21st of December and the results will be announced in the December 26 issue of the California EAGLE.

Yours sincerely,
Ples Griffin

Dazzling Array of Fashion To Be Forecast by Northern Alpha Kappa Alpha Women

OAKLAND—The auditorium of the East Bay's Technical High school, 42nd and Broadway, will be the scene of a dazzling array of fashion forecasts Friday evening, Dec. 13, when the Bay Area's three chapters of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority come together to present their second annual fashion show.

The three sponsoring groups are: Rho, University of California undergraduate chapter; Alpha Nu Omega, East Bay graduate chapter, and Delta Zeta Omega, recently organized graduate chapter in San Francisco. The fashion show is a benefit, proceeds of which will be used for operational expenses of the local Alpha Kappa Alpha health project and the organization's scholarship fund.

L'Tanya, attractive and talented young Angeleno, who is making a name for herself as a women's fashion designer in Southern California, will appear in the style show as featured guest modiste and model. In addition to modelling many of her own smart creations, she will be accompanied by one of her Los Angeles models who will also display fashions from L'Tanya's Hollywood salon.

With the exception of furs and some accessories, all other fashions exhibited in the show will be the work of independent, local modistes, dress-stylists and seamstresses.

Some of the models who will present fashion forecasts of what milady will wear in 1947 are: Juanita Reed, Evelyn Ribbs, Connie Thornton, Lovie Nichols, Emogene Taylor, Betty Reid, Eunice Sigs, Eleanor Poston, Vera Scott, Frankie Carr, Gloria Cain, Winifred Brackett, Josephine Humphries, Della Williams, Ambrosia Meyers, Mamie Buckingham, Jacqueline Wright, Angeline Ogden, Eletta Harvell, Thelma Council, Thelma Arthur, Deva Tyler, Thelma Rae Butler, Geraldine Wilson, Grace Lewis, Jean Young, Valeria Jones, Muriel Farris, Althea Jones, Marian Cameron, Doretha Newberry, Marian Mitchell, and members of the Phi-a's, popular teen-age group.

Predictions of things to come in tots' toggery and sub-debs' attire will be shown by these young models: Walda Lucille Pitts, 17 months old, who will probably be the youngest model in the show; Mary Esther Higgs, Jacqueline Lucian, Lucy Carolyn Lindsay, Jacqueline Butler, Joyce Sonnier, Margo Hattie Smith, Madelyn Payne and Helen Franks.

Mrs. Melvin Reid of Berkeley, who has a diploma in modelling and is a graduate of a San Francisco models' school, will direct the show and serve as mistress of ceremonies.

Music for the style review will be furnished by Jerome Richardson's orchestra. Specialty numbers will be performed by pupils of the Carolynne Snowden Children's Studio of the Dance in San Francisco, and M. Fitzgerald, prominent local tenor soloist, will be featured as a singer in the show.

Furs featured in the style show will be shown through the courtesy of Oakland's Davis Fur Shop on Seventh street, and Anne Campbell will be the creator of several original millinery styles.

Modistes and dress stylists whose creations will be worn in the show include: Mmes. Nettie Parker, Juanita Reed, Hazel Borman, Elizabeth Smith, Marian Mitchell, Thelma Rae Butler and Audrey Allen.

Mrs. Annie S. Henderson is chairman of the 1946 Alpha Kappa Alpha fashion show, and her co-chairmen are Mmes. Martha Ramsey and Zenobia Payne.

Orchid Girls Charity Formal Is Beautiful Holiday Event

White Christmas trees, a sleigh drawn by Santa's reindeer, and the familiar sound of Christmas carols from the muted chimes transformed the Elks' ballroom into a wonderful Yule setting Saturday night, when the Orchid Girls presented their tenth annual Charity formal, one of the most outstanding social events of Los Angeles' holiday season. While hundreds looked on, the prominent members of the club graciously took their bows, and a hearty "Thank you" was extended the guests who brought toys galore for the many underprivileged kiddies, who will benefit at the Orchid's annual Christmas party.

Heading the group as president this year is Mrs. Ramelle Bagnerise; Juanita Mars is vice president; Marion Booker, secretary; Winona Martin, corresponding secretary; Mamie Anderson, treasurer; Ellen Smith, business manager; Marion Gordon, reporter; Laura Slayton, founder. Members are Marjorie Wright and Edith Slayton.

Sammy Franklyn's orchestra played throughout the ball, and the elaborate decorations were donated by florist Willis Brown.

Preceding the beautiful affair, the group gathered at the luxurious home of Mrs. Rochester Anderson and enjoyed the regular "closed cocktail party" for club members and escorts.

The Orchids and Doll Leaguers will join on the morning of December 22, to stage one of the biggest Christmas parties for underprivileged children ever to be held in the community.

Mrs. Della McDonald was hostess to the Allied Arts League Sunday morning. The president, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, gave an outline of the program for the coming year.

SHOPPING WITH DORIS

By Doris Austin

Hi There:

That time is almost here and there are still a lot of you who have not decided what you plan to give to your immediate family, not to mention the friends you usually exchange gifts with during the Yuletide. Let's pick through these and make a note of a few things to notice that will aid in the selection of gifts: you should give particular attention to the personality of the receiver—that is, note whether he likes practical or frivolous things, whether the color should be gay or muted in tone even make a note in regard to the price paid for items for different persons (we all paid a little more for things purchased for certain people and it is not always because we like that person better) so note all, and your gift list will be much easier to complete whether you shop or you pass it on to me.

Make it a merry Xmas this year with lots of lovely gifts wrapped in gay colors to brighten the heart of even the most solemn soul. Give whatever you think will best suit the personality of the person to receive the present but by all means, do your shopping now—a variety of selections is already low and that is fast going with prices rising on most merchandise daily—be wise even at this late date; make a complete uniform list and follow it through. Allow for an alternate color or even a different garment in the event you cannot find one you have another to choose from without the bother of rehashing all the old points you should consider before buying a gift.

Patronize the shops in this column for a better selection because of less congested location, avoid the fuss and bother of crowded shops and transportation; compare prices, note the generality of them as compared with other old established stores. Better still avoid shopping all together, decide what you want, make a list and call Doris at CE. 2-0819 or come by to see me, 1171 E. Santa Barbara ave. I'll be glad to shop for you or to give suggestions on what to get and where.

IT'S THE SPIRIT THAT COUNTS—

"Praise the Lord! He brought me on a far journey to this holy place." So spoke an elderly Negro woman on a visit to the White House last week as she stood on the spot where the body of President Roosevelt had lain in state. According to the White House guides, more questions are asked by the countless visitors to the President's manse, regarding the several spots and objects which directly connect with the history of our late President, than concerning any other points of interest about the place. This is logical and understandable.

Getting back to the elderly woman—we know, of course, that the spot whereon the President's body lay is no more hallowed than the resting place of the most insignificant citizen. But we would not dispute the judgment of this elderly citizen and mother; for we know that her statement sprang from the depths of a grateful heart—a heart which felt and knew that there recently lived a man who by his daily words and deeds honestly tried to give to every man a square deal. This is what commanded her respect and reverence. After all, it is the spirit behind the man which counts.

We must give to our elderly mothers and fathers much credit for being able, despite their limited book knowledge, to discern the "spirits of men." To recognize and acknowledge the tender and humane tendencies of men, wherever they may be found. Our youth may well take cognizance of this attribute and strive to emulate it.

In the final analysis, we must acknowledge that no man is worthy of a job in public life unless he understands and feels the needs of the masses and has a strong desire to see that those needs are met.

It is not a matter of being hard, cold and calculating, when we demand to know the principles for which a man stands. We should know of the earnest intentions of any man who aspires to public office. It is our God-given and constitutional right as American citizens to seek to inquire into the record and background of a man, before using our most vital weapon, the ballot, place him in the position of charting the course of our civic, political and economic life.

The ballot is yet the most powerful weapon in the hands of free men, and it is discouraging to note, in so many instances, how this privilege is abused and ill-used.

Where are our young men and young women on election day? Where are they all during the year when various vital issues are being shuttled back and forth between sentors and congressmen, diplomats and kings—when the very mainsprings of life, itself, are being tampered with in the most disdainful and cowardly fashion by those who seek only self-aggrandizement or unearned fame.

Youth of America, especially the Negro youth, must awaken and beget themselves of the many opportunities that are theirs, —not for the asking; for they will only come as a reward for diligence, foresight and perseverance in the correct channels.

Study! Search! Dig out your own information. Think your own thoughts. Observe the people and things around you. Learn to discriminate between good and evil. Know what your rights as citizens are. Strive to live within the limits of your rights. Demand no more, or no less. But be wise and right in your demands at all times.

Let us get back to an elderly mother, who made a trip to the White House last week, and to a man we all loved named Roosevelt. We, of course, do not want to continually live in the past. Roosevelt lived and died but his works and ideals will never die. Our forebears, many of them, lived and died as slaves; but there lived within their breasts an indomitable spirit which continuously cried out for freedom. We must never cease to memorialize our brave forebears for the great courage they displayed in the face of insurmountable obstacles; for the bloody trail which has consistently led from the slave ships of bondage to the shores of freedom which we have at last sighted—though the journey into the "promised land" has not yet been made.

Norman Corwin, distinguished young radio executive and winner of the Willkie Award, who just returned from a nation-wide tour, has this to say: "A powerful and elemental sense of fairness, as well as an overwhelming will and anxiety for peace, pervades all the peoples of the earth.

"I have lost no hope. I believe that ultimately we will find unity and brotherhood in this world, but that the quest will go on through terrible trials and agonies, until a new democracy, not merely a lip-service democracy, is achieved for the entire world. I believe each of us can assist in this mammoth task."

Corwin is right. Each of us can and must do our part in this great task. World War II has accomplished one marvelous thing. It has brought the peoples of the world together in a contact so intimate that the sufferings of people on one side of the globe are instinctively felt by those on the other side. Our hopes, dreams and aspirations have become one. This is true in a greater degree, perhaps, among the colored peoples of the world—for they have always been the greater persecuted and exploited of the world's population.

Therefore, it would be well to acquaint ourselves with these universal problems which affect all peoples of color everywhere. When the problem becomes one, and the struggle is one gigantic striving for that better "one world," then and only then can we bring about the kind of peace and prosperity we desire for all nations. Then, only, can we take our place as the leaders of tomorrow's wonderful world!

Scouts of McKinley District Hold 2nd Annual Banquet

The second annual Scouters' Banquet of the McKinley district was held recently at Jefferson High school cafeteria. After their turkey dinner was served, the scout program was presented.

Judge E. L. Jefferson, district chairman, presided over the program with Father H. Randolph Moore, minister of St. Phillips, giving the invocation. The scout messages were presented by Rev. J. L. Branham, speaking on "Scouting's Contribution to Home and Church," and Mrs. C. A. Bass, on "Scouting's Contribution to the Community." Chat Koeler, director of the Senior Scouting of Los Angeles council, installed the district officers. An address was given by Arthur A. Schuck, scout executive of the Los Angeles Area council.

L. A. Hi Reports

All is quiet around the campus of Los Angeles High but not for long. Next week marks the end of school for this year and the beginning of two wonderful weeks of gaiety and festivities.

Carol Heights, a City college deb, starts the ball rolling Friday night with her annual birthday party. Picking it up from there, the Los Angeles Hi-Y's benefit tea Sunday evening promises to be a remembered affair. Harriet and Edward Flowers joined the hosts and hostesses of the pre-holiday season; they entertained a large group on Wednesday evening.

Clear skies and smooth sailing is the report on the Los Angeles High-Y's popularity contest. The girls are doing a wonderful job and they're truly all Queens.

Bits of Info From Compton J. C.

Out at Compton Junior college, sports is one of the highlight activities with several sepia athletes in the limelight. This year leading the Tartar grounds, is Bob Boyd, All-State end, who hails from Riverside J.C. Another star is Otis Roberson, letterman from Jordan, where he was on the Bulldog's 11.

Expecting to shine in track this year is a "9.7" man in the 100, Frank Batest. Charles Wood, all city high jump, and broad jump champion will give the team many points. Sam Jackson, all city 100 yard dash champion and many others will help the team to become one of the strongest Compton J.C. has ever had.

A Letter To Santa

Dear Santa:

Please bring me a Choo-choo train and a cowboy suit. I've been a very good little boy. Mama said that you send Brownies from the North Pole to see that all the little boys and girls are good. Mama said that you can't see them but the Brownies can see us and if we are bad he puts an "X" after our names. I hope I haven't any X's after my name.

My uncle is home this Xmas and he brought me a gun from England and that is why I want a cowboy suit so that I can play cowboys and Indians.

My auntie is very happy because my uncle is home and so am I because last Xmas my auntie was crying and I don't like to see people crying. If you want to you can come to our house for Xmas dinner because we are having a great big turkey and I don't think we'll ever eat it all up.

Please bring my mama a washing machine because she has so much washing and she says that Daddy and I get our clothes so dirty she has to scrub and scrub and her back hurts her.

Please bring my daddy a new car because the car he has now doesn't work so good. And please bring the little boys and girls everywhere the war was some clothes and toys because my mama said that it is cold over there and they don't have warm clothes like I have. I guess that's all.

—Gordon Hilyard.

Who's Playing What Top Tunes of Day

Kids, have you been dying to know WHO'S playing WHAT tops tunes of the day? My nice friends over at Nardoni and Brooks Music Center tell me that King Cole holds top position with his "Xmas Song" and "Sentimental Reasons."

Three Blazers and Hadda Brooks are putting over "You Won't Let Me Go," on different disks, of course. It's the Three Blazers again with "Bobby-Sox Blues." That cute tune that everyone is singing in the streets, around the house, at work and school, is "Open the Door, Richard" by Jack McVea.

No Discrimination At Boys' Town

During the past 29 years thousands of homeless, destitute boys, many coming from the most vicious environments, have become honorable, useful citizens through the work of Father Flanagan and his Boys' Home, Boys Town, Nebraska.

These boys, so young in years but so old in experience, are given a good home, wholesome food, a good education in their own accredited school system, religious training of their own denomination, without regard to race or creed.

Character training is further stressed in music classes, on the athletic field, and in the hobby shops. The boys also administer their own government through their duly elected mayor, commissioners and other city officials. Their credo is learning to be honest, industrious, and respectful, clean in body and mind.

There are some 16,000,000 to 20,000,000 men and women keglers in the United States and they spend approximately $221,000,000 annually on this sport where everybody partitcipates.

THE REALM OF RELIGION

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

Subject; Philemon: A Letter on Christian Brotherhood. Devotional reading, John 17:9-21. Lesson text and outline, Philemon 4-20. Motto test, 2. Corinthians 3:17.

Introduction

A Colossian converted under the ministry of Paul, Philemon was distinguished for his kindness and liberality, and his house was the regular meeting place of the Colossian Christians. Onesimus was also a Colossian, and a slave of Philemon. Having robbed his master, he fled from Colosse and finally drifted to Rome, where he met with Paul, through whose instrumentality he was converted. He proved himself very serviceable to the apostle and also confessed his sin against Philemon. Thereupon Paul, though attached to the fugitive slave and sorely needing him, either as a personal attendant in his captivity or as an active co-laborer in his work, decided that Onesimus must return to Philemon. Accordingly, he placed in the hands of the penitent slave this letter to his offended master, and sent him back to Colosse in company with Tychicus who bore, at the same time, the letter to the Colossians. There is no reason to doubt the effectiveness of Paul's letter, and that Onesimus received at the hands of Philemon both forgiveness as a slave and a cordial reception as a Christian brother.

Comments

1. It is the privilege of good men that in their praises and prayers they come to God as their God: Our God, we thank thee, said David; and I thank my God, said Paul. Our prayers and praises should be offered up to God, not for ourselves only, but for others also. Private addresses should not be altogether with a private spirit, minding our own things only, but others must be remembered by us. We must be affected with joy and thankfulness for any good in them, or done by them, or bestowed on them, as far as known to us, and seek for them what they need. In this lies no little part of the communion of saints. Good works must be done, not of vain-glory to be seen, yet such as may be seen to God's glory and the good of men.

2. A disposition to do good, together with past instances and expressions of it, is a good handle to take hold of for pressing for more. Ministers, whatever their power be in the church, are to use prudence in the exercise of it; they may be unseasonably, nor further than is requisite, put it forth; in all they must use godly wisdom and discretion. It is no disparagement for those who have power to be condescending, and sometimes even to beseech, where in strictness of right, they might command; so does Paul here, though an apostle; he entreats where he might enjoin, he argues from love rather than authority, which doubtless must carry engaging influence with it.

3. Even good men may sometimes need great earnestness and entreaty to lay their passions, let go their resentments, and forgive those who have injured and offended them. Some have thought it to look this way, when Paul is so pathetic and earnest, mustering up so many pleas and arguments to gain what he requests. Philemon, a Phygain, might perhaps be naturally of a rough and difficult temper, and thence need no little pains in touching all the springs that might move him to forgiveness and reconciliation; but rather should he strive to be like God, who is slow to anger, ready to forgive, and abundant in pardons.

4. True penitents will be ingenuous in owning their faults, as doubtless Onesimus had been to Paul, upon his being awakened and being brought to repentance; and especially is this to be done in cases of injury to others. The communion of saints does not destroy distinction of property: Onesimus, now converted, and become a brother beloved, is yet Philemon's servant still, and indebted to him for wrongs that he had done, and not to be discharged but by free and voluntary remission, or on reparation made by himself, or some other in his behalf, which part, rather than fail, the apostle undertakes for him. Christians should do the things that may rejoice the hearts of one another, both people and minister reciprocally, and ministers of their brethren. From the world they except trouble; and where they look for comfort and joy but in one another.

Comment on the Motto Text

We are not free unless we are free in Christ. The shackles of sin still bind unless God has broken them. He is the source and giver of all the liberty we enjoy. Spiritual freedom is the highest freedom obtainable. It insures and safeguards all other liberties that are wholesome. True freedom makes men fraternal. Brotherhood implies liberty. Freedom in Christ is freedom indeed.

Baha'i Lecture

"Training for World Order" is the subject to be discussed by Mrs. Virginia Foster at Los Angeles Baha'i Headquarters, 331 S. New Hampshire ave., Sunday, Dec. 15, at 3 p.m.

"World unity," Shoghi Effendi tells us, "is the goal toward which a harrassed humanity is striving. Nation building has come to an end. The anarchy inherent in state sovereignty is moving toward a climax. A world, growing to maturity, must abandon this fetish, recognize the oneness and wholeness of human relationships and establish once and for all the machinery that can best incarnate this fundamental principle of its life."

Missionary Society Day At Christ Cosmopolitan

The Missionary Society of Christ Cosmopolitan Christian church, 33rd and Hooper, had charge of the services last Sunday. Mrs. Ruth Mitchell is its president and Mrs. W. J. Sharp brought the special message. Several ladies took part in the symposium.

Watts Holds Memorial for J. B. Bass

One of the most outstanding memorial programs observed last Sunday, throughout the nation, by the I.B.P.O.E. of W. was that of the J. B. Bass lodge at the Elks Hall on East 103rd street. Leon M. Giles, exalted ruler, was present, and Robert B. Strather, secretary and president of the Pacific Coast States Association, presided. Present on the platform were George A. Jackson, grand traveling knight; Mrs. S.

J. B. BASS, late editor Calif. Eagle

A. Jackson, grand secretary of Civil Liberties, 4th District, and the grand daughter ruler of Sunshine Temple. Leroy S. Hart, managing editor of the Sentinel and Charlotta A. Bass, publisher of the Caalifornia EAGLE and widow of the late J. B. Bass, were also present on the platform.

A special program, which was very impressive, was rendered by Harry Levette's "Hidden Talent" club, with Mr. Levette acting as master of ceremonies.

The Talent club's program opened with "The March of the Grecian Maidens," led by the pretty and stately Kay Sisters, Juanita and Evelyn, who were dressed in beautiful white robes on the pattern of ancient Greece, wearing crowns of flowers and carrying silver shields. Wreaths and shields were fabricated and donated by Ham-Mee Banks, one of the city's finest florists.

Musical numbers were rendered as follows by members of the Hidden Talent club: "Sweet Mystery of Life," by Barbara Harris; "Without a Song," by Ernest Esters; "My Buddy," by Clayborn Williams; "I've Done My Work," (piano solo) by Antoinette Gibson; "Trees," by Queenie Jackson, accompanied by William L. Ferguson; saxophone solo by Master Melton Brown; and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," by the club chorus.

A tribute to Mr. Bass was delivered by the guest speaker, Leroy S. Hart.

AME Alliance Hears Report

Last week the A.M.E. Alliance, composed of most of the ministers of the Southern California Conference, met in regular session at 1st A.M.E. church to hear the report of the delegates who attended the Special Session of the General Conference which assembled at Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 20-22. After the pastors had given accounts of their Sunday services, highlights of the General Conference were given in detail by the delegates.

As their participation was with the affirmative's great majority in purging the church of the principals—bishops—in the recent disturbances in several Districts, thereby saving the church from disruption and enacting provisions which will prevent such future occurrences, the Alliance was so pleased with what they so distinctively did that a rising vote of thanks was tendered each delegate with no little enthusiasm.

In a year and a half the regular Quadrennial session of the General Conference will be held here in Los Angeles—May 1948—and the session will last some three weeks with more than 1500 delegates attending and almost as many visitors accompanying them. Dr. Frederick D. Jordan will be the entertaining pastor.

B. and bachelor of sacred literature degree and is enrolled in the graduate school at the University of Southern California where he is a candidate for his M. Th. This honor comes in appreciation of the fine work he has been rendering to the community in the fields of civic and religious education.

The Reed School of Christian Education is an accredited school incorporated under the laws of the State of California, and has a large enrollment.

Rev. Marshall delivered the baccalaureate address to the graduating student body, and Dr. Reed, assisted by his staff, conferred the degree on Monday, December 2.

Century Club, 'Y' Managers Begin 1947 Enrollment Drive

At an enthusiastic meeting at the 28th street branch YMCA last Tuesday evening, members of the branch board of managers, the Century Club, and invited guests began the preliminary activities in preparation for the 1947 membership enrollment.

Turning from wartime themes, this annual event at the "Y" will take the pattern of a Round-Up on three ranches that have featured the 40 years of YMCA service to youth in the South Central district: Rancho San Pedro, Rancho Nueve and Rancho Paloma.

Tuesday night's meeting was a get together of the hands on the Rancho San Pedro called by Range Boss Lorenzo Bowdoin and aided by Branch Chairman Norman O. Houston and Membership Committee Chairman H. A. Howard.

The group present demonstrated its interest in the youth of the community and in the "Y" as the principal private youth-serving agency in the community by pledging $2300 toward the 1947 enrollment goal.

Rev. Hamilton T. Boswell of Bowen Methodist church and Dr. H. Claude Hudson were presented as assistant range bosses, with Rev. Boswell serving as boss of Rancho San Pedro. His success in the round-up will be measured by the number of folk in the community who will sign up during this Special List Drive to be branded with the trade-mark of the "2 Y 8."

This phase of the enrollment is primarily concerned with rounding up members for the Century Club. This is the group of cooperating members who choose as their annual dues amounts of $25 or more. Currently this group, under the chairmanship of H. A. Howard, has included:

Bubble Gum Gyp Gets Peddler Fine

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

Finis was written to the operations of a gigantic bubble gum ring this week.

The case broke on Nov. 5, when enraged school kids complained to officers that bubble gum was being peddled for 10 cents per stick at 18th street and Grand avenue. One cent is the standard price, the kids said.

Deputies then swooped down on the little red wagon of Archie Allen, 1362 E. 45th street, and Paul L. Fields, of 1210 N. Hickory street.

Municipal Judge Eugene P. Fay fined the operators $25 each for peddling without a license.

The Biter Bit, Might Be Title of This One

Doing some investigating on their own, the old folks this week turned the tables on Charles Maurice Wollenberg, California State Social Welfare Director, who recently conducted a fruitless investigation of the Citizens' Committee for Old Age Pensions.

The old folks, turned detective, discovered Wollenberg is the owner of a San Francisco apartment building, yet receives a retirement pension while holding down a lucrative state job.

According to George H. McLain, chairman of the Committee, the building owned by Wollenberg contains 32 apartment and is located at 2070 Pacific avenue, San Francisco, bringing an estimated $3000 per month from rentals. As the retired superintendent of Laguna Honda Home, San Francisco county poor farm, is is said Wollenberg receives a monthly retirement of $475. As state director of social welfare he receives a salary of $10,000 per year and expenses.

"Four thousand, three hundred dollars per month is not a bad income for a social welfare director" said McLain. "At the age of 73, we feel Wollenberg should resign his state office and live comfortably on his pension and private income. Especially, since it is considered improper for a person living on California's old age aid of $55 a month to have any additional income without having it deducted.

"At least" McLain continued, "Mr. Wollenberg can afford to be a little more tolerant than he is with the oldsters who come under his administration."

Two Held for Writing Obscene Letters to White Texas Woman In Retaliation for Racist Views

Wesley Grooms and Idallas Williams, local employes of the Southern Pacific railroad freight department, were lodged in county jail when a federal grand jury had them held on a charge of sending obscene letters through the mails.

Recipient of the letters, which both freight handlers are reported to have admitted writing, was Mrs. Jean McClelland, white, of Box 430, Clarksville, Tex. Mrs. McClelland charged that she had received letters from Grooms and Williams in which they had made insinuating remarks about what they would like to do to her. She said these remarks were more than "suggestive."

Though neither Grooms nor Williams had ever seen or met Mrs. McClelland, both admitted writing the letters. Reason for their actions was revealed in their statements that, in the course of their work at the freight station, they had chanced upon certain letters the Clarksville woman had written to friends in which she is alleged to have stated that she had a wonderful trip on a train, "until I found that I had to sit behind two nigger soldiers . . . after that, the whole trip was spoiled."

Incensed at the "white supremacist" views of the writer of this note, the two defendants say they decided to write to the woman, and present the case "for" the two "niggers" who sat in front of her.

In these letters was put all the hatred and contempt the men could muster. Knowing no way which would more precisely express their views, the defendants said they included in their communications some of the things they would like to do to the white woman's "lily-white" body.

In the preliminary hearing before Judge Hall Monday, Dist. Atty. Kenniston attempted to have each of the defendants held on $10,000 bail. Atty. Walter L. Gordon, Jr., defending Grooms and Williams, was able to convince the court that bail of $500 each was sufficient.

Both men are at liberty as bail was posted by friends and relatives.

GOP Member Sees Committee Split On Sen. Bilbo

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper, of Iowa, one of two Republicans on the five-man senate campaign investigating subcommittee which held hearings in Jackson, Mississippi, last week on election charges against Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, said yesterday that a unanimous vote clearing the Mississippian was doubtful.

Senator Allen J. Ellender, of Louisiana, subcommittee chairman, who is accused of acting as Bilbo's attorney during the hearings, had predicted a unanimous decision in Bilbo's favor. The subcommittee will meet here December 16 to draft its report.

Senator Hickenlooper said he has not yet made up his mind as to how he will vote. He added that "Republicans are not engaged in any plot" to keep Bilbo from taking his seat for a third term beginning January 3.

"Nobody has been plotting with me, either to reject or retain Senator Bilbo's seat," Senator Hickenlooper said. "The question is not a partisan political issue, but rests entirely upon the propriety of the individual, regardless of what party he belong to."

Meanwhile, attorneys for the Senate War Investigating committee were preparing for hearings scheduled to open here on December 12 on charges that Bilbo had improper dealings with war contractors who built army camps in Mississippi.

Thirty witnesses have been summoned to appear before the committee, and committee attorneys have assembled documents and photostatic copies of bank accounts and war contracts to be offered in evidence.

The hearings will involve complaints that Bilbo received from war contractors who built Key Field at Meridian and Keesler Field at Biloxi, Mississippi, more than $30,000 in cash and a new Cadillac automobile, and that the contractors had built him an artificial lake, with an island in the middle and a "dream house" on the island.

Cavalrettes Re-elect Jackie Moore as Pres.

The election of officers was the main feature of the evening for the Cavalrettes, when they met at the regular monthly business meeting on December 3, at the home of Olbett Powell.

Miss Jacqueline Moore was re-elected to the presidency of the group for the year 1947. Under Miss Moore's efficient and capable leadership, she has made quite a record with this group of women. Other officers are: Beatrice D. League, vice president; Benester O. Fisher, recording secty.; Marjorie Carter, corresponding secty., Vivian Morris, treasurer; Lucille Ivie, chairman of business committee; Olbett Powell, chairman of music and Emma Johnson, reporter.

Indian Delegate Asks UN Ban on Discrimination

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—(NNPA)—Continuing the bitter committee-room dispute over discrimination against East Indians living in South Africa, the chief delegates of India and the Union of South Africa last Sunday night made final appeals to the full membership of the United Nations General Assembly for a political or legal decision of the issue.

Mrs. Vijaya Laksmi Pandit, of India, pleaded with the Assembly for approval of a committee-indorsed resolution which, in effect, asked South Africa to cease its discrimination and arrive at a satisfactory agreement with India.

Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa asked that the entire problem be placed before the International Court of Justice. He argued that the Assembly's right to intervene in a dispute of this nature posed a legal question and South Africa had a right to a legal answer.

Charles Fahy, legal adviser to the United States State Department, cognizant of a similar appeal now pending in the UN on the issue of Jim Crow oppression in the United States, supported Smuts, insisted that the International Court of Justice was created for just such cases, although he professed sympathy for the Indians who went to Africa as indentured laborers and are now fighting for political and social equality.

"I ask for a verdict of this assembly," said Mrs. Pandit, "on a proven violation of the charter, on an issue which has led to acute dispute between two member states, on an issue which is not confined to India or South Africa, and finally on an issue the decision of which must make or amr the loyalty and confidence which the common people of the world have placed on us."

Citizens to Discuss Dangers in Gov't. Attacks on Labor

(SCP)—What citizens can do to halt use of court injunctions and criminal conspiracy charges against labor leaders will be discussed at a city-wide conference Monday at 8 p. m. at the Park Manor, 607 S. Western, Los Angeles Citizens' Committee to Support Labor's Rights announced yesterday.

Delegates from more than 300 civic, church, veterans and other organiaztions are expected to attend the confab, first of its kind in Los Angeles to meet the growing crisis of government intervention by decree in labor disputes.

No attempt will be made, however, to inject the current issues of the Hollywood dispute into the conference, the Citizens' Committee said. Chief concern at this time, the committee declared, is the danger facing all organizations—and therefore, all civic-minded citizens—if constitutional rights are allowed to be revoked by court intervention.

Erecting New Street Signs

(SCP)—For the benefit of motorists and pedestrians who look in vain for directions to help them find their way, the city council acted yesterday to erect modern, readable street signs throughout the city.

Declaring that present markers are unreadable and frequently missing altogether, the council adopted a resolution instructing the board of public works to report within 30 days on a sign replacement plan.

Lily-White Group Votes Probe of Anti-Bias Report

WASHINGTON, D.C.—(NNPA)—The lily-white Federation of Citizens Association has voted unanimously to investigate thoroughly a report on race relations recently made by the Council of Social Agencies, recommending drastic changes in the pattern of race segregation and discrimination current in the nation's capital.

According to C. M. Pierce, director of the social survey of the District of Columbia sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies, the report represents the combined efforts of the technical staff which gathered the data, and the citizens' committee which made the recommendations. Joseph H. Douglas, executive secretary of the Washington Urban League, was "no technician of the study on race relations."

Negro members of the 25-member committee included Dr. E. Franklin Frazier of Howard university, Dr. Edwin B. Henderson, head of the department of physical education in the local colored public schools; Dr. Joseph L. Johnsen, dean of the Howard medical school; Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, an attorney and Mrs. William Stuart Nelson, wife of Dr. Nelson, who is now in the Orient.

The report recommended the elimination of race discrimination and segregation both in service and in employment in health facilities, housing, employment in the federal and district governments, public education, recreation and pub-welfare.

Judge Jefferson to Speak This Noon at Bill of Rights Lunch

Judge Jefferson will be the main speaker at a Bill of Rights luncheon, sponsored by the Council of the Women's Political Study Club, given at the Crystal Tea Room, Avalon and 49th street, today, Dec. 12.

Mrs. Betty Hill, executive secretary of the club, will chair the luncheon.

Seeks Change in State Divorce Laws

(SCP)—Major revision of California marriage and divorce laws to improve family life legislation is sought by the Southern California branch of the National Conference of Family Relations.

The group, meeting over the week-end at the University of Southern California, voted to press their proposals before the new legislature. Among the changes sought are:

- Abolition of the interlocutory-decree law.
- Reduction of residence requirements from a year to six months.
- A provision under which minors could seek court permission to marry if they believe parents have denied them approval unjustly.

The group urged appointment by Governor Warren of a special commission to write a new marriage and divorce code. It voted opposition to any demand to marriage and divorce legislation under federal control.

Peace Maker Shot by His Sister-in-Law

Shot in the left arm by his sister-in-law Sunday morning, Samal Foster, 836 E. 56th st., was confined to General hospital for observation and x-rays.

Police were still searching for the gun-wielding woman who, after allegedly shooting Foster, is said also to have fired at his wife, who is her sister, as well as shooting at an unnamed man who happend to be present. Neither Mrs. "Pete" Foster, the wife of the victim, nor the stranger was hurt in the fray.

The shooting is said to have culminated a quarrel which began when Eva, sister of Mrs. Foster and alleged shooter of Foster came to the Foster home to cook her breakfast Sunday. According to reports, Foster was not a party to the quarrel which was between his wife and sister-in-law, but was shot when he attempted to stop the argument.

Although police have been given full particulars, the "pistol packin' " mama is still at large.

Negro Doctors Ignored in VA Advisory Group

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Negro doctors were ignored when the Veterans Administration announced the appointment of a special advisory group to advise General Omar N. Bradley, veterans administrator, and Dr. Paul R. Hawley, VA medical director, on overall policies concerning medical care to veterans.

The group, appointed in compliance with Public Law 293, 79th congress, is chairmaned by Dr. Charles W. Mayo of the famed Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minnesota, and consists of 19 nationally recognized white doctors, nurses, social service workers and dieticians.

After a preliminary organizational meeting of the group, a regular session was scheduled to be held here January 21 and 22. The group will meet four times a year, the VA said.

Enlistments Off; Army Dodges Draft So as To Keep Race Quota

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The army will continue to meet its manpower needs through the month of January through voluntary enlistments, the War Department announced this week.

By making no call for the induction of men into the army under Selective Service, the War Department continues in effect a differential in educational qualifications between white and Negro applicants for voluntary enlistment.

Under present directives, a white applicant may enlist if he makes a score of 70 on the army general classification test, while a colored applicant can enlist only if he is a high school graduate—the equivalent of an AGCT score of 99.

In announcing that it will make no call on Selective Service for inductions in January, the War Department admitted: "an abrupt and continuing reduction in the number of voluntary enlistments since early October."

Schwellenbach Hits Racial Discrimination

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach last Monday denounced race and religious discrimination.

Addressing the Jewish Labor Committee at the Jewish Community Center here, Schwellenbach said the Labor Department "has a mandate from congress to promote the welfare of all wage earners, regardless of race, creed, color or national origin."

"I can and do proclaim the eternal justice of your cause," Schwellenbach told his Jewish audience. "I can and do denounce the evil of discrimination, whether based on color, race, creed or national origin," he said.

Robbery suspect

(SCP)—He was up early to see his sick cousin a robbery suspect told police to explain his presence on the streets during the wee, small hours.

Despite this plea, Frank E. Atkins, 30, of 10215 Crocus street, was held in jail today on suspicion of robbery after two men robbed Ernest Nannaman, white 3080 Redwood street, Lynwood, of $40, his wrist watch and his car keys.

Nannaman told police he was getting out of his car at Santa Ana and Juniper streets about 4 a.m. when he was accosted by the two men. Investigating officers picked up Atkins on Juniper street a few moments later. He was identified by Nannaman as one of the bandits although none of the loot was found

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

There are three Negro players on the Fresno State college basketball team, namely Henry Caldwell, a forward, Vernon Riggens, guard, and Wesley Slade, center. Fresno plays Chico State Friday and Saturday in her next games . . . Southern league cage games found Jefferson defeating Roosevelt, 41-29; Los Angeles getting over Fremont, 30-21, and Manual Arts topping Washington, 35-24 . . . The Fresno State football team journeyed to Honolulu, Hawaii, and trounced the Milili (Honolulu) Bears, 41-0 . . . The National A.A.U. approved the following records set by Negro athletes this year; the 29.8s. for 300 yards by Herbert McKenley of the University of Illinois; the 23s. for the 220-yard low hurdles around a turn by Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace and Dillard's 23.3s. for the 200-meters hurdles around a turn. Lincoln, Nebraska will be the site of the 1947 national outdoor junior and senior track and field meets July 4-5, 1947 . . . Early last week Jackie Robinson's nine points paced the Los Angeles Red Devils pro basketball team to a 39-31 victory over the March Field Flyers on the El Monte American Legion floor . . . Jack Kelley was one of the outstanding players on the Fresno State football team during the season which recently closed. This Sepia back carried the ball 52 times and gained a total of 158 yards . . . Buddy Knox was suspended for six months by the Colorado State Athletic commission week because of his recent "unsatisfactory showing" against Arturo Godoy. It was the stiffest penalty provided by Colorado boxing laws . . . Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of football, resigned from active coaching at College of the Pacific last week at the age of 84 . . . Illinois will bring a squad of 44 men here for her Rose Bowl game against U.C.L.A. on New Year's Day. Buddy Young will be a prominent member of the team along with Paul Patterson, his running mate. . . . The Los Angeles Rams wound up their home season last Sunday with a handy 38-17 victory over the Green Bay Packers, thereby clinching the runner-up position in the Western division of the National Professional Football league. The Rams finished the season with six wins, four defeats and one tie . . . Utah State Agriculture college and San Jose State, CCAA champs, will play in the "Raisin Bowl" at Fresno on January 1, it was announced this week . . . The powerful Los Angeles Bulldogs, pro grid team, with a great team boasting of only one loss this season, tackle the strong Sacramento Nuggets at Gilmore stadium, Sunday afternoon . . . The Los Angeles Dons could have used a couple of good Negro players in San Francisco last Sunday when they were swamped 48-7 by the '49'ers . . . The New York Giants defeated the Washington Redskins, 31-0, last Sunday to become the winners of the Eastern championship of the National Pro Football league. They will meet the Chicago Bears, Western champs, in the title play-off game Sunday at the Polo Grounds in New York City. The Bears were busy in Detroit last Sunday smothering the Detroit Lions 35-24, in their final game

A. & T. Starts Cage Practice

GREENSBORO, N. C.—With the football season closed after their recent victory over the J. C. Smith Bulls, basketball practice got underway at A. & T. College in Greensboro, N. C., when 25 hardwood aspirants answered their newly selected Coach Eldridge Williams' first call last week

. . . It will be tough sledding for John Thomas Tuesday night when he tangles with the rough-and-ready Joey Barnum, who is known to go all-out in all his battles. He's a club fighter and carries power in either hand. However, for the benefit of the Thomas fans, this Scribe definitely picks the latter, an outstanding challenger for the world's lightweight crown, to haul down an unanimous decision

Ice hockey games are played every Saturday and Sunday night at Sonja Henie Ice Palace.

Classy Local Lightweight Ready for Tough Opponent

John Thomas, highly ranked as one of the principal challengers for the world's lightweight crown, will meet the tough Joey Barnum, Mexican youth, who went east some months ago and compiled an impressive record during his campaign.

Barnum will be remembered here since his return for a sizzling battle with Enrique Bolanos which had the fans on the edges of their collective seats.

Thomas, with the exception of a setback at the hands of California Jackie Wilson, a bonafide welterweight, hasn't lost a fight here in years and is a prime favorite with the fans. In his last bout here Thomas easily disposed of Leo Rodak via a technical kayo in the fifth round. A very recent fight in Oakland found him winning a unanimous decision over Candy McDaniels.

Matchmaker Babe McCoy of the Olympic has arranged a stellar brace of preliminary bouts to precede the main event.

Lincoln Schedules Brooklyn College as Cage Opponent

LINCOLN UNIV., Pa.—In an expansion of its intercollegiate activities, Lincoln University has scheduled Brooklyn College as a basketball opponent for the coming year and next. Officials of the University feel that this marks a new era in intercollegiate competition between Negro and white colleges. The first game between Lincoln and Brookyn, which is scheduled to take place on the campus of Lincoln University on February 19, 1947 will be open to the Lincoln student body only because of the size of Lincoln's present gymnasium. As soon as the government-allotted building is erected, Lincoln will accept the public to its home basketball games.

Relations with Brooklyn College will extend for at least two years with definite indications that Lincoln will engage Brooklyn on the football field during the 1948 season. Due to Brooklyn's contracted schedule for 1947, this will be impossible for 1947.

In addition to Brooklyn, Lincoln University will also play Seton Hall, New Jersey in a home-and-home match. The Lincoln quintet which has loomed as one of the top teams of the country for the past several years appears to be even stronger this year due to the return of several veterans as well as holdovers from last year's championship squad. Whatever the outcome with Brooklyn, Lincoln is certain to give the New Yorkers a "run for their money."

ON THE TURF

By Geo. A. Ramsey

Hipodromo de Tijuana—It was form players day last Sunday at the beautiful Hipodromo de Tijuana when five favorites crossed Judge James J. Murphy's charmed circle to reward the fans. The longshot players also had reasons to cheer when Alibi-Ann won the second race to pay $46.40 for two. With Alibi-Ann winning the second race and Red Flannels the third, the daily-double backers received $359.60.

In the fourth race, known as "The Concepcion," the entry of Morgan and Porter ran one-two to pay the shortest price of the day, $3.20 for two.

In the feature race, "The El Royal," an upset was registered when Vegas Street caught Dinkum in the last stride to gain the victory. The winner paid $21.20 straight. In the quiniela Ebony Latch was first and Palm Drive second, to pay $41.00. Jockey honors were shared by B. Pludow, J. Espinosa and F. Rodriguez. All rode two winners each of the ten race program.

This Sunday General Manager Agustin Silveyra and Racing Secretary Judge Joe Walter, who has just returned from the Northwest, have arranged a fine card of ten races.

The feature event will be "The El Cortez Handicap" at one and one-sixteenth miles for an added value of $1,500, with "The Nogales" as the secondary attraction at five and one-half furlongs, for a purse of $1,000.

Drive carefully and be here for Xmas. Keep smiling and so-long. GEORGE.

Angel Bowl Is Gaining Impetus

Bob Mike Picks Rattlers to Win

Bob Mike, sturdy Bruin tackle and former Florida A. and M. star, will be renewing old acquaintances come December 28, when the Florida A. and M. Rattlers of Tallahassee meet the Wiley College Wildcats of Marshall, Texas, in the annual Angel Bowl game, the No. 1 post season Negro intercollegiate classic at Wrigley Field here.

Bob Mike will be rooting for the Rattlers and is wagering his reputation on what he knows about Negro intercollegiate football that the Rattlers will coil and strike the Wildcats in so many spots they will leave the field a beaten and tamed gang of tomcats.

A. S. Gaither assumed the position of head coach of the Florida Rattlers in 1945, and piloted the Orange and Green to the SIAC title, but lost the national championship to Wiley college in the Orange Blossom classic at Tampa, Florida, December 8, 1945. He brings his Orange and Green Rattlers to Los Angeles' Angel Bowl to avenge last year's defeat at the hands of Coach Fred T. Long's Wildcats.

Warns Against Ticket Scalpers

The Angel Bowl game moved into "big time" this week with a before-the-game sell-out in prospect when Angel Bowl officials warned against scalpers taking football fans for a ride.

Ticket sellers report sales in blocks larger than the customary groupings which might mean tickets will be offered at scalping prices when they are not available at regular rates.

Edgar S. Browne, managing director of the Angel Bowl Association, announced there are two classes of reservations for the Angel Bowl game on sale. Holders of the $3.60 tickets are assured a reserved seat, while the $2.40 coupons are for reserved sections where first arrivals will get the front seats. The advantage to the late comers will be a seat in the section reserved wherever it will be, whether on the 50, 30, or 10 yard lines.

Holders of receipts for reserved seats purchased in advance which must be exchanged for regular admission tickets are advised to make the exchange as soon as possible at the Angel Bowl Association office, 4365½ S. Central Ave.

Reservations are now available at the Angel Bowl Association office, 4365½ S. Central Ave., ADams 10711; Brock's Service Center, 1246 W. Jefferson Blvd., ROchester 0173, and West Coast Public Service Bureau, 4233 S. Central Ave., ADams 13751.

BOXING BRIEFS

JERRY McSWAIN, 192, scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Tony Bosnich, 191, San Francisco, at Hollywood Legion Stadium last Friday night.

NICK MORAN and Memo Llanes will headline the card at Hollywood Legion Stadium Friday night in a 10-rounder. They are lightweights.

MIKE JACOBS, New York boxing promoter, who is seriously ill at St. Clare's hospital in that city, was visited by Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis Monday. Attendants said Mike recognized Joe immediately and said with a smile, "Hello, Joe."

PHILADELPHIA — Billy Fox, 176, knocked out Shelton Bell, 173, in the fifth round Monday night.

Washington in TKO by Watkins

Kenny Watkins, 162, scored an eighth-round technical kayo over James J. Washington, 164½, Monday night at Ocean Park arena. The bout was the main event and was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Washington was forced to quit due to a badly swollen right eye which started swelling in the fourth round and became continually worse as Watkins battered it with right crosses.

Pee Wee Swingler, 125½, scored a one-round t.k.o. over Bee Jimenez, 120½, in the semi-windup.

Crow Paces Red Devils In Cage Win

The Los Angeles Red Devils pro basketball team, with three Negro stars, namely Jackie Robinson, Ziggy Marcell and George Crow, triumphed over the Dow Chemical quintet in two games played last Friday and Saturday at the Olympic auditorium. Scores were 46-38 and 57-46, respectively.

Robinson scored 9 points Friday and 11 Saturday while Crow stole the show in Saturday's game with 16 markers. Marcell accounted for 5 points Friday and 2 Saturday.

Jackie Wilson, Earl Turner in Sizzling Draw

OAKLAND — California Jackie Wilson, 146, who has more luck in Los Angeles fight rings, had to be content with a draw verdict after a blistering battle with Earl Turner, 145, in the latter's home-stamping grounds last Wednesday night.

Wilson and Turner went at it hammer and tongs for the entire 10-rounds and at the finish there was little choice between them, hence the draw decision.

Chavez Shades Bobby Jackson

Fabela Chavez, 132½, shaded Bobby Jackson, 130, after a thrilling 10-round main event battle at the Olympic Tuesday night, Chavez drawing down a split decision over the hard-fighting ex-GI. Judge Dynamite Jackson called the fight a draw but the referee and other judge both gave the decision to Chavez. A large crowd saw the show.

Gunner Billy Mitchell, 165, scored a split decision over Henry Rich, 163½, in the six-round semi-final, which was a sizzler. In one of the fours carded, Billy McClure, 191, scored a t.k.o. in the third heat over Charles Riggs, 191.

GOES TUESDAY NIGHT—Ready for action and ready to go is one of the nation's greatest lightweight championship contenders, namely JOHN THOMAS, who battles Joe Barnum, capable Mexican lightie, in the 10-round main event at the Olympic, Tuesday night, Dec. 17.

Tuskegee Tigers, Southern U. Cats in 'Yam Bowl' Xmas Day

By KERVEN CARTER

DALLAS, Texas — The Tuskegee Tigers and the Southern Jaguars will clash in the first annual Yam Bowl tilt to be played here on Christmas Day. The big game will be played at Dalhi Stadium with a capacity of 25,000 and it is certain that the huge concrete structure will be jammed to the rafters. Game time is 2 p.m.

All Dallas is looking forward to welcoming Southern and Tuskegee. Neither team has ever appeared here, but with the great records they have amassed this past gridiron season, there is little doubt but that the Xmas Day battle will be one of the greatest offensive games ever seen in this section.

Tuskegee, with a ten won and one lost record, cannot be rated any lower than fourth in the national standing, while Southern, which won the Southwest Conference title, at this writing has one of the greatest aggregations ever assembled in this section.

Southern has won seven, has dropped two, and tied one, but the way the Jaguars ran over Prairie View to settle the Southwest Conference title chase right in the Panthers' backyard, there is little doubt that the Mumford charges are at their peak.

Nevada in Heavy Cage Schedule

RENO, Nevada—Headlined by an airplane flight to the East Coast for appearances in New York City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Washington, a 34-game schedule has been lined up for the University of Nevada basketball squad.

In Southern League basketball games early this week Jefferson High lost to Fremont, 28-27; Manual Arts defeated Los Angeles, 32-25, and Washington beat Roosevelt, 38-33.

Dancer Claims Curtis Mosby Assaulted Him

When Tommy Thompson, former dancer at the Club Alabam, paid a visit to the nightery to collect a salary balance of $4.50 from Curtis Mosby, proprietor, he didn't know he was in for a peck of trouble.

According to Thompson, he approached Mosby Sunday morning at 3:15 a.m. while the latter was standing conveniently by the cash register. When he asked for his money Mosby is said to have told him if he came to him again for the money he'd punch him. Thompson replied cheerily that that was about all that Mosby hadn't done to him. That turned the trick. Mosby is alleged to have clipped the kid with a passable right to the chewer. Then Thompson says that Mosby used some choice words not listed as kosher in the best circles, after which Mosby is said to have thrown a fast left to the kid's jaw. What is much worse, the kid said Mosby naughtily placed his hand on a gun he was carrying after asking him to fight back.

Thompson, who appeared in the California EAGLE office wearing quite a bit of gauze and tape on the chin which provided mute testimony as to the likliness of his story, said that he had filed a complaint at the City Hall in the city attorney's office and that he was told the strong arm of the law would reach out and haul the alleged pugilistically-minded night club proprietor into that office on December 16 at the un-Godly hour of 9 a.m. to answer a few pointed questions. The dancer failed to say whether or not he had collected his money.

Lionel Hampton Issues Broad Band Challenge

NEW YORK CITY — Lionel Hampton, the dynamic swing maestro whose newly revamped band of 22 versatile musicians has been captivating a new batch of music lovers from coast to coast, announced this week that he will match his crack aggregation against any top band in the nation in a hectic battle of swing. The proceeds from the contest will be used to fight for FEPC, Anti-Poll Tax legislation and the ousting of Bilbo.

Mr. Hampton has been paving the way for greater interracial understanding by breaking down barriers in night spots formerly restricted to race patrons. The most recent engagement which paid big dividends in this phase was the famed Aquarium in New York City where he returned in November by popular demand.

Rated as the top band of the times by Ed Sullivan, New York Daily News columnist, and drawing the raves of Downbeat and Metronome, the unique outfit with shouting brasses, screaming rhythm and enchanting singing is cutting a wide path through musical circles to a new record in the business.

"JUST SQUEEZE ME BUT DON'T TEASE ME"—Lovely Muriel Gaines, New York songstress, tells her popular songwriting husband, Baritone Lee Gaines, of the Delta Rhythm Boys, during a recent reunion in Hollywood. Gaines composed the lyrics for the current juke box favorite, "Just Squeeze Me, But Don't Tease Me."

Florida Rattlers in Orange Bowl Defeat by Lincoln (Pa.)

TAMPA, Fla.—(NNPA)—The accurate passing of Bob Cooper gave the Lincoln Lions of Pennsylvania a 20-to-14 victory over Florida A. and M. in the fourteenth annual Orange Blossom classic last Saturday.

The 155-pound back passed to Henry Parker for a touchdown in the second quarter and hurled a 35-yard pass to Bob Boyd for the winning score in the fourth.

Howard Thomas scored first for Lincoln on a 10-yard sweep around left end. A few minutes later Jimmy Williams charged 75 yards to the Lincoln 23, after intercepting a pass on his own 3. Williams passed to Theodore Montgomery for the touchdown. Scruggs' kick was good and the Floridians led, 7-6.

In the second quarter Cooper flipped a 10-yard pass to Parker for a Lincoln score. Sidney Bridgeport added the extra point and Lincoln led, 13-7.

A punt fumbled on the Lincoln 18 led to the final Rattler score by Montgomery on a plunge. The kick was good and the Rattlers led, 14-13, but Cooper came through with his 35 yard heave and put the Lions back out in front.

Jack Wrather, now producing "The Guilty" for Monogram release, has purchased "Mine Forever," original by R. A. Clifton, as the subject of his third film.

PRIVATE PAPERS FROM MY PRIVATE FILE

Not being able to find anything else to say about us, we understand that a couple of our enemies are now accusing us of writing a "gossip" column. GOSSIP! Oh, please! Had this been a gossip or scandal sheet, we would-'uve column'd about the two veddy popular debutantes (huh?) who slugged it out last Monday even'g over the affections of a married man, or about the case set for next week in the Municipal Court accusing a Central avenue sportsman of hurling bricks through the window of his estranged girl friend's home, then here's an item that would have reddened a lota faces: The westside family who evicted their teen-age unmarried daughter, who is about to become a mother . . . papa to be is famed locally, and respected in all of the social circles! And wotta 'bout the "hot" woo-mance going on between a famed band-leader and the reechest colored girl in the Angel City? Then there's the east-side address where married woman pay $3.00 weekly for the privilege of receiving mail there . . . from other men . . . (Don't go yet Beulah all this I could add and can prove, were this a gossip column) . . . The avenue bartender who rushed home for his gun last week and literally took his frau away from that smooth-lookin' playboy . . . The police officer who was soused to his gills with a couple of pretties in one of the after-hour spots . . . A gossip column, huh? Well, wotta 'bout the social matron who keeps a playboy in $35.00 shirts . . . with hubby's money . . . The story behind the story of how a debbie got her right jaw discolored, or the pretty stenog who has to make love to her boss to keep her job . . . Then there's the racketeer who hasn't paid any kind of taxes in 12 years (but they wouldn't be interested in that, Beulah, that item isn't hot enough) . . . But here's one; the arsenal in a character's lavishly furnished home to combat (if necessary) the town's would be "Black Capone," if he gets any cockier. Yes, Beulah, that's the kinad stuff somebody said we write, that's the stuff people like to read about, but we won't print it. Why? Simple, dearie, people who live in tin houses shouldn't throw can-openers . . .

AND NOW THE REST OF THE COLUMN

Billy Holliday back at her old stand, N. York's Downbeat . . . while cute and petite Ida James sings sweetly at "The Apple's" Blue Angel . . . Caught the new show at the Follies Theatre last week and while watching, "my foot went to sleep!" "Geel how I ENVIED it" . . . Maybe it was the first nite of the new show, don't know what it was, but it really did STINK! . . . mainly the "Sepia chorus" with their faded, half-fitting costumes . . . what we didn't dig was, why the Holly'wd (ofay) Beauties come out on the number "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" and the Harlem (sepia) Cuties come on on "Shoe Shine Boy" . . . with theh exception of the ofay comedian (can't remember his name) and a couple ofay acts, the part of Bardu Ali, the showing of Avamelle (who we thought was shown to a disadvantage), the rest was LOUSY . . . And so we close with "Faith is all right, but it's doubt that gets you an education!"

Beloved Comedian Was Outstanding

The voice of one of America's greatest comedians of stage, screen and radio, was forever stilled at 6 a.m., New York time, Wednesday morning, when Ben Carter died of diptheria in New York City.

Carter was especially before the public eye in recent months when he and Mantan Moreland teamed up for comedy appearances on the stage and in radio. Critics from all over the nation enthusiastically, commented on the superior brand of comedy dispensed by these two fun-makers.

In addition to his stage and radio work Carter appeared in countless motion pictures over a long period of years and he also conducted an exclusive agency for Negroes required by the various studios for work in films.

BEN CARTER

Carter had left Los Angeles a week ago for New York City. He resided here at 2133 South Harvard blvd. The deceased leaves a sister, Miss Alma Carter of Fort Madison, Iowa, and an aunt, Mrs. Lydia Jackson of Los Angeles. His mother, Mrs. Nellie D. Thomas, who is deceased, lived in Fairfield, Iowa. As the California EAGLE went to press funeral arrangements had not yet been made.

Screen Test for Thrifty Rose Float Queen at Goldwyn

Here's a fast step up the ladder of success to movie stardom for some lucky girl in Southern California.

Every girl who believes she has motion picture possibilities, between the ages of 14 and 25 is being offered an unparalleled opportunity to ride the "Holidays in Flowers", Thrifty Drug Store float in the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, New Year's Day, and if selected as Queen will be given either a screen test to become another of the famed Goldwyn Girls, or if her cinema possibilities are apparent without the test, will appear in the soon to be started Samuel Goldwyn production, "The Bishop's Wife", starring Cary Grant.

According to Mr. Lou Kerner, executive talent director of Samuel Goldwyn Productions, Inc., this is the exact manner in which two of the most prominent Goldwyn Girls started on their movie careers.

Contest application blanks are to be found in every Thrifty Drug Store and may be had for the asking by contestants, parents, or friends. Twenty-one girls will be chosen out of all the applicants, who will represent Calendar Girls, Holiday Girls, and most important of all, the Queen of the float, who is in line for the Goldwyn Girl screen test.

Head of Cult Loses Suit to Evict Tenant

(SCP)—Vivian Elizabeth Brown can continue to live at 218 W. Vernon avenue, Municipal Judge Leo Freund ruled yesterday.

Hobard A. Hilton, president of the Tabernacle of the Holy Spirit, Inc., failed in his attempt to have her evicted from the church's five-room cottage.

Before Judge Freund the spirits' president charged the cottage was rented to Miss Brown for use as a dressmaking establishment and not as a residence. However, Miss Brown, 34, countered the house was rented to her as a residence in order to have her work in the church.

The woman added that under the arrangement, she would work as a maid in Beverly Hills, then rush home, don her purple rainments, and assume duties as "hostess and church mother."

Miss Brown testified she had known the "spirit" for 10 years, and that after she moved in, May, 1945, he helped her arrange her furniture, and subsequently stayed overnight at her cottage on several occasions.

Hilton, represented by Atty. Marshall Benton, Jr., declared he had known her for only a year.

She was represented by Atty. Edward C. Jones.

Bennett's the Place to Get Plenty Lumber

"Ben" Bennett is in town and has opened a spot known as the A. Bennett Lumber Company at 6000 South Central, corner of E. 60th street, where the builder will find an ample supply of lumber always on hand to fill his needs, in a variety of woods.

Lumber may be procured from Bennett's at wholesale or retail and in addition to this there will be paints and hardware available. Building supplies of wide choice are also in stock at this place, which is a godsend to persons contemplating building on that vacant lot.

Whenever you need lumber in any form or any of the above mentioned items, try Bennett's first by calling ADams 3-1622 for complete information.

GOP Parley Plans To Exploit Gains

Plans exploit the GOP Nov. 5 victory in California were discussed by Republican leaders meeting at the Biltmore hotel Saturday. Negro Republicans were represented byCarl J. Johnson.

A permanent paid staff to function at Republican headquarters during the next two years was recommended by Arthur Carlson, chairman of the Republican state central committee. He said that the committee had previously ceased work between the biennial elections.

"In the future, we hope to have a smooth-running organization all the time," he added.

Johnson told the committee that in the future the Negro will want representation of his own choosing on the policy-making bodies of the party.

Ralph Bledsoe Sued For Divorce, Wife Charges 'Cruelty'

Pretty Vivian Bledsoe, 132 W. 51st st. has filed suit against her husband Ralph Bledsoe, charging exterme cruelty.

In the complaint prepared by Attorney Curtis C. Taylor, Mrs. Bledsoe charges that the youthful defendant, who is a musician, has been extremely cruel and has become so oppressive that she is unable to live longer with him.

Mrs. Bledsoe is a former member of the famous singing trio of the Dandridge sisters who took the country by storm seasons past, while the defendant is a son of the late Dr. R. W. E. Bledsoe, noted physician and surgeon of South Los Angeles.

Young Bledsoe, who is known as a talented musician and arranger, is currently appearing with the Maxwell Davis band at the Club Alabam. It is not known whether or not he is going to contest the action. The couple have no children.

Ex-Wyatt Aide Calls Revised Program Phoney

WASHINGTON. — Echoing the sentiments of veterans and minority groups throughout the nation, Norton E. Long, one of former Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt's top aides, yesterday denounced President Truman's new home building program as a "complete phoney . . . a fraud perpetrated on veterans for political expediency."

Long, who promptly handed in his resignation when Truman capitulated to pressure by the real estate lobby, refused to support Wyatt's program and finally accepted the latter's resignation, charged that Truman's new program sets the pattern for a "boom or bust" in real estate. Long challenged the administration "to show how its new program is not an act of infanticide against the whole industrialized (prefabricated) housing industry."

In accepting the resignation of Wyatt, a proven friend of minority groups, Truman appointed as new housing administrator Raymond W. Foley, whose record as Federal Housing Administration commissioner, has been anti-Negro as The EAGLE revealed last week.

Truman junked most major controls of the veterans emergency housing program, includ-

VA Head Admits Sponsorship of Lily-White Unit

WASHINGTON. D. C.—(NNPA)—The Veterans Administration admitted this week that General Omar N. Bradley, administrator of veterans affairs, and Dr. Paul R. Hawley, Veterans Administration medical director, had personally selected the lily-white advisory council which will advise them on national policies of medical care for veterans.

The 19-member council, consisting of doctors, nurses, social workers and dietitians, authorized by a congressional act, was appointed December 5. Negro professional men and women were ignored in its selection.

A spokesman for the VA said

On The Sidewalk

By C. A. B.

Is religion being challenged today?

I say, Yes.

How?

Why?

Religion existed, as I understand, before the birth of Christ in Bethlehem of Judea when Herod was king.

Evidently in that early period the rich and politically powerful were nearing a climax in the exercise of their power over the poor and helpless.

On the streets of Jerusalem were the blind, the hungry beggars, and those suffering with all types of diseases engendered in the school of poverty.

The rulers of the world had become so despotic in their greed and avarice, that they carried their trade into the place of worship.

A passage in the Holy Writ tells how on one occasion Jesus used physical force to drive the gamblers out of the temple, charging that they had made his house a den of thieves.

I am not attempting to trace the history of the church. I am trying to paint a word picture of the church in all its simplicity and phases of existence as I think the ordinary little person sees it.

I am aware of the fact that some form of religion existed before the coming of Christ, Budha, Mohammed, and many others, down to the present Father Divine whom some call God.

Under the Mosaic period when the doctrine of the religion was an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, corruption in the church and in society rose up and took the lead over decency and morality. This flareup marked the moving out of the old dispensation or the Mosaic period, and the coming in of the Christian era.

The Bible, our religious guide, was written originally in Hebrew, but it has been revised and has been translated into many languages. But proudly say the theologians, the Bible is the only book that has withstood the ravages of the ages.

While less than fifty per cent of the people of America are church members, the church nevertheless continues its way along the corridor of time. Its challenge to the people has always been, Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven and all things shall be added unto you.

What is the Kingdom of Heaven?

I don't know that I have ever heard it explained to my own satisfaction. But I feel sure that if this command had been clearly understood and obeyed, it would not have been necessary for Jesus to drive the thieves out of the temple, Judas would not have betrayed the Master for thirty pieces of silver, Peter would not have denied Him to save his reputation, Martin Luther would not have written the seven theses attacking corruption in the 16th century church, and the Hearst and other newspapers and agencies of controlled greed and corruption would not now busy themselves pointing out how Joe Stalin and his Communistic state drove the church out of Russia.

The truth about the church or religious situation in Russia before the Revolution was, according to the Dean of Canterbury, that it had become the mouthpiece of the vested interests, it taught the people to look upon the czar almost as a God, and it opposed everything that was being done for the benefit of the people. The church opposed the establishment of a government for the people in Russia, and worked actively against the people's cause and for the czar and the capitalists.

"But Christians," says Dean Johnson, "were exactly those who should have had the vision and given the welcome. The failure to do so has been a grave disservice to religion in general, and to the Christian church in particular."

Today the equality of the rights of citizens of the U.S.S.R., irrespective of their nationality or race, in all spheres of economic, state, cultural, social, and political life, is an indefeasible law.

Any direct or indirect restriction of the rights of, or, conversely, the establishment of direct or indirect privileges for citizens on account of their race or nationality, as well as the advocacy of racial or national exclusiveness or hatred and contempt, is punishable by law."

This, in my humble opinion, is real religion.

Gerald Smith Praises Columbians, Joe Louis; Attacks Paul Robeson

(SCP)—Columbians Inc., revealed last week as a vicious Nazi type movement which plotted to seize the U. S. government, was praised here this week by Gerald L. K. Smith, leader of the Christian Nationalist movement.

The endorsement was made in copies of "The Cross and the Flagg," which were distributed at the meeting.

His followers, including a lone Negro, filled the convention hall of the Embassy theatre for a two and a half hour rally, last of three scheduled here. Attendance was "by invitation only."

Smith shouted his by-now familiary attacks upon the federal administration, members of the Roosevelt family, former Commerce Secretary Henry Wallace and the "dirty people of Hollywood." The last came as Smith said:

"I have been informed that an article appeared in Louella O. Parsons' column [illegible]

Invades Police Station With Guns Blazing

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. — A man whom police did not identify was arrested here yesterday after allegedly stalking into the police station with two pistols and a shotgun and opening fire, fatally wounding a patrolman.

The officer, Herbert McLenahan, died in the local hospital. [illegible] grazed by shots fired by the invader.

His Color Suspect, Noted Dentist Halted, Arrested by White Cop

A dentist and World War I veteran, Dr. Hayward Thompson, of 1156 South Central avenue, said this week he was arrested without reason by a police officer on the night of Dec. 11 as he was returning home from a friend's house.

Dr. Thompson was held overnight in Lincoln Heights jail. A message to Mrs. Dallas O. Gibson, asking that she post bail, was never delivered, the dentist charged. He was booked on a charge of drunkenness.

He pleaded not guilty when arraigned at Lincoln Heights. Trial was set for January 8 in Division 7 of Municipal Court.

Dr. Thompson said he was getting out of a taxi near his home with a friend, Marshall Gray, of 1305½ E. 1th st., when a policeman demanded identification.

"Do I have to go through all that again?" Dr. Thompson asked.

"You've been drinking, haven't you?" the officer countered.

"Yes, what about it?" Dr. Thompson answered.

"I'll show you. I can arrest you for drunkenness," the officer retorted.

Dr. Thompson said he was not intoxicated, and asked the officer to give him a sobriety test. The policeman refused, and took Dr. Thompson to Lincoln Heights.

Mrs. Gibson, who is Gray's sister, went to Lincoln Heights the following morning but was not allowed to post bail, Dr. Thompson said.

Gray, who will be a witness, is a navy veteran of World War II. Clarence A. Jones is Dr. Thompson's attorney.

Xmas Shopper Arrested on Forgery Charge

Bail was set at $1000 for Mrs. Thelma Williams, a day worker, arrested for allegedly forging and signing fictitious names to two separate checks in the amounts of $45 and $300, respectively. Mrs. Williams was apprehended by detectives Bustamante and Rothert when Harry Sesner, of 4414 Central avenue called police after she bought merchandise totalling $300, and gave him a check in payment. She is alleged to have previously cashed the other check for $45 worth of merchandise at the Western Blanket House, 4614 Central.

Sesner, who became suspicious of the woman because of the amount of the check, said he stalled long enough to call police, who arrived before the accused left the store.

Dixie Bad, But So. Africa Worse, African Senator Tells Mass Rally Here

Imperialist oppression of 8,000,000 native Africans in South Africa is 100 times worse than the jimcrow oppression of Negroes in Dixie, Senator H. M. Basner, member of the parliament of the Union of South Africa and a leader of the progressive movement in that country, told a mass meeting at the Second Baptist church Sunday night.

Senator Basner was introduced by Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, pastor of the church. He shared platform honors with Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor-publisher of The California EAGLE and president of the local chapter of the National Negro Congress, under whose auspices the meeting was staged.

Fresh from the sessions of the UN general assembly in New York City where with other progressive delegates he was instrumental in balking Gen. Smuts' move to annex Southwest Africa to the Union of South Africa, Senator Basner appealed to American Negroes and all progressives to support the struggles of the African peoples.

"I'm not going to appeal to you on the basis of color because I don't believe in it," he said. "I'm going to appeal to you on the basis of one human

Washington Fails to Keep Pledge to Turn Back 10 Million Dollars

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands—(NNPA)—Christmas will find the people in the Virgin Islands hungry largely because of the refusal of the United States to return to the island government for investment in public facilities the money paid into the federal treasury as taxes from local industries, declares Jose L. Gimenez, a local resident.

In a letter to a New York newspaper, made public yesterday, Mimenez said:

"All signs are that this Christmas will go down on record as one of the worst to be experienced in the history of the American occupation of the Island of St. Thomas if not the Virgin Islands. That it may be a time of great sadness for hundreds there can be but little doubt based on existing conditions. Ten million dollars in the Treasury of the United States, intended to be invested in the Virgin Islands, is as bad for us today as the horse seeing acres of green grass, but far away from it.

"For years we have been asking that the money paid into the Treasury of the United States from industries of the Virgin Islands be returned to the treasury of the Virgin Islands for

Wife Beater Killed by Victim

"He was beating me . . . I swung at him with the knife . . . I didn't mean to kill him," the oft-repeated story of a man becoming a menace when under the influence of alcohol, was repeated this week as the motive in the killing of Joe Andy Carr, 771 Kohler st., Sunday night. Mrs. Richlou Gentry, common-law wife of the victim, who admitted that she struck Carr in the center of the base of his throat with a knife, pictured the death scene as one in which she was on the defensive.

Mrs. Gentry, in her story to the police, said that she had lived with Carr about a year, "because there was nowhere to

Two GIs Convicted in Jimcrow Provoked Riot At Florida Air Base

TAMPA, Fla.—(NNPA)—An army general court-martial last Friday convicted one MacDill Field soldier of mutiny and rioting and another of assault in connection with a riot at the air base on October 27.

The court of white and Negro officers sentenced Private James L. Treadwell, 23, of Cincinnati to 20 years at hard labor, with a dishonorable discharge and foreiture of all pay and allowances.

Corporal Joseph Pleasants, 27, of Penola, Virginia, tried on the same charges, was acquitted of mutiny but convicted of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to do bodily harm. He was sentenced to three years at hard labor, with a dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of pay and allowances.

The riot began when privates tried to force their way into a non-commissioned officers' club dance. The disturbance spread to other parts of the field.

The sentences are subject to review by the 15th air force headquarters and the office of judge advocate general.

Nine other soldiers went on trial last Saturday on mutiny charges which grew out of the

Albright Seconds Rockefeller's Blast Against Neglect of Negro Vets by Government, Communities

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — Joseph F. Albright, special assistant to General Omar N. Bradley, administrator of veterans affairs, declared yesterday that the report of Nelson Rockefeller condemning the failure of communities, agencies and organizations to properly assume their respective obligations in behalf of Negro veterans was music to his ears.

Albright declared that Rockefeller's statements have been his preachments from the time he entered the Veterans Administration and even prior to that time when he was a newspaper correspondent. He said hardly a day passes that he does not have occasion to emphatically point this out, either officially or unofficially.

It was learned that Albright, following an official VA tour last October, submitted to General Bradley a scathing denunciation of the general apathy toward Negro veterans which he reported he observed. His tour generally followed the same territory covered by Rockefeller.

While the VA has declined to make Albright's report public, Albright has made no effort to hide the disappointment he experienced in his observations of the colored veterans' plight.

In his first public appearance following his trip, Albright in a speech at Convention Hall in Philadelphia to the Council of Baptists and Baptist Organizations said that "any person who professes to be concerned with the rehabilitation of veterans is surely guilty of self delusion of grade A variety if he does not take cognizance of the fact that as far as the Negro veteran is concerned his future is inescapably bound up in the so-called Negro problem."

"Whether it will be admitted or not," he continued, "there is no refutation of the glaringly apparent evidence that a Negro veteran's problems, due to his color alone, are special problems which he must bear as burdens in addition to all the others that are now frustrating ex-servicemen in their efforts to get back into normal civilian life."

Rockefeller in his report recommended to Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson a careful restudy of the policies and attitudes of the army toward racial minorities, with the idea of taking necessary corrective action if existing conditions indicate practices inconsistent with true democracy.

Outside of the armed forces proper, he recommended the active encouragement and support of those organizations devoted to the study and solution of problems involving racial prejudice and discrimination.

"No more vicious enemy has ever faced the nation than racial prejudice," he stated. "What more appropriate challenge could be accepted by the leaders of our armed forces, whose victories against tyranny place them in an unequalled position, than to offer the same wise, tempered leadership on the home front against racial prejudice?"

Rockefeller listed housing, employment, education, loans and disability as the major problems confronting the veteran.

Union Accuses Civil Service Commission of 'Stalling' On Issue of Agencies' Job Bias

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The United States Civil Service Commission yesterday was accused of seeking to avoid a decision in a fight between the Federal Trade Commission and the United Public Workers of America (CIO) over whether the transfer of the financial reporting division of the non-existent Office of Price Administration would be accomplished in such a way as to include or exclude Negro workers.

Last Tuesday Bill Stafford, and other representatives of the UPWA, and officials of the FTC conferred with officials of the Civil Service on the matter. At that time attorneys for Civil Service "recommended" that the selection of the employes be made on an agency--wide basis in conformity with FTC's request.

Union officials were unsatisfied however, and demanded a conference with Arthur Fleming, civil service commissioner.

In the meantime, the President's order appeared directing that the entire program and functions of the division be transferred to FTC. Under Civil Service policy when the entire program and functions of a division are transferred employes of the division go along with the transfer.

The union, however, was told that the matter was not one for the civil service to decide but that it would have to be worked out between the agencies.

Stafford charged that the Civil Service Commission was attempting to avoid a "hot potato," said the UPWA had insisted on a conference with Fleming and that at the conference the union would demand a ruling from the Commission on the transfer.

Union officials charge that the FTC is attempting to exclude the 45 Negro employes of the division in the transfer and thus deny them permanent jobs in the agency. They state that an executive order issued by President Truman last Thursday makes it mandatory that 53 of the division's 110 employes be given jobs with FTC and that the 53 selected should represent a cross section of the division's personnel.

The FTC is seeking permission from the Commission to select the 53 persons from the entire personnel of the OPA. The union states that if this is done no Negroes will be selected and the Commission will therefore have permitted discrimination against colored people.

President Truman last Thursday consolidated the functions of the OPA, the Civilian Production Administration, the Office of Economic Stabilization and the Office of War Mobilization Reconversion, into one agency, the Office of Temporary Controls. Major General Philip B. Fleming of Iowa will head OTC.

White Texans Join Fight on School Barriers

AUSTIN, Tex. — History was made here last night when a group of Texas Negroes and whites met together to pledge joint efforts toward continuing the fight for equal educational opportunities in Texas.

The group pledged to support the court battle of Herman Marion Sweatt, Houston mailman, who seeks to enter the University of Texas law school.

The program was sponsored by the local NAACP. Speakers included two well known professors at the University of Texas, white university students, and Negro college, church and NAACP leaders.

About one-eighth of the people who overflowed the Austin auditorium were white.

Senate Committee Told Bilbo Accepted Bribes From War Contractors

By LOUIS LAUTIER
For the NNPA News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A chain of evidence proving the unfitness of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo to sit in the 80th congress is being forged stronger each day that the senate war investigating committee probes into charges that the accepted gratuities from war contractors whom he aided in obtaining army contracts.

If the senate door is not shut in his face for intimidating Negroes and inciting violence against them to keep them from voting in the July Mississippi Democratic primary, the mass of evidence the subcommittee has gathered thus far clearly established improper, if not illegal, conduct on Bilbo's part, for which he may be expelled.

Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, questioned witness after witness yesterday in an unsuccessful effort to find what became of $25,000 given Bilbo by Big Boy Newton, a Mississippi contractor, who, without prior experience, received on Bilbo's recommendation the contract to build Keesler Field at Biloxi, Mississippi.

Cecil Travis, a Jackson, Mississippi, laywer and a worker for former Representative Ross Collins in the 1942 senatorial campaign, testified that he accepted $11,000 of it to swing the Collins organization behind the condidacy of Wall Doxey, now senate sergeant-at-arms. He said he passed the $11,000 on to Phil Kimball, a Jackson politician who is now dead.

Doxey himself, who was defeated by Senator James M. Eastland in the run-off primary, said he did not even hear about the $25,000 campaign contribution until Big Boy Newton told him on October 9, 1942, three weeks after the run-off primary.

Doxey said Bilbo paid a $1400 bill for a state-wide radio address, but his campaign organization never saw any such sum as $25,000.

Robert Grandy, whom Collins knocked down last Friday for intimating he had been paid to issue a statement supporting Doxey, had testified that he, Bilbo and Forrest Jackson, Bilbo's lawyer, constituted an "informal committee" that aided Doxey's candidacy. Gandy and Jackson were dubbed the "Gold Dust Twins" in Jackson.

Roland Wall, another candidate who was defeated in the August, 1942, Mississippi, primary, testified he received $6065 for throwing his support to Doxey in the run-off primary. He claimed the Bilbo forces still owe him $2000 on the deal.

Asked point-blank by Senator James M. Mead, subcommittee chairman, whether Jackson and Bilbo got any of the $25,000 slush fund, Gandy recalled that Jackson took at least $7,500 to repay a bank loan incurred during the campaign and that Bilbo also had charge of some of it.

Bilbo gave the four checks totaling $25,000 which Big Boy Newton gave him September 7, 1942, to Gandy, who took them to a bank and cashed them, receiving the proceeds in ten and 20 dollar bills. He took the money to Bilbo in a hotel room where it was laid out on a bed, and the disbursements the subcommittee is trying to trace then began.

2 Sisters Fight Over Husband

Jealousy was the motive attributed to the ice-pick stabbing of Isabelle Johnson, 1024 E. 47th street by her sister, Gertrude Johnson, over the affections of the victim's husband.

According to the victim's statements, she had gone to her sister's home in the rear of the same address to call her husband and as she and her husband left an argument ensued in which Gertrude is alleged to have stabbed her.

"I didn't cut her", the suspect is said to have stated, although two witnesses are said to have testified they saw her strike her sister in the left side.

The victim, who was treated at Georgia street receiving hospital for a punctured left elbow and a wound in her right side, is expected to prosecute.

Methodist Women Rap Capital as Conference Site

BUCK HILLS FALLS, Pa. — (NNPA)—While objecting to the Nation's Capital as a place of meeting because of the race discrimination and segregation practiced there, the women's division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church has accepted an invitation to send representatives to a convention in Washington.

Five representatives were selected to attend the national convention of the Women's Action Committee, an interdenominational group meeting in Washington in March. A resolution to be presented to the Washington convention states:

"The women's division has an established policy for holding its national meetings only where all members of its group can be entertained together without any form of discrimination because of race.

Citizens to Rebuild As 'Gift' Home of Vet Destroyed By Klan

REDWOOD CITY, Calif.—(NNPA)—Police and the FBI were on guard last Friday after two notes, signed "KKK," were received through the mails.

One note warned a Negro navy veteran of the Okinawa campaign to get out of town or be hanged "on a fiery fiery cross." The other warned a white woman benefactor she would be tarred and feathered if she did not cease her efforts.

The veteran, John T. Walker, 22, whose home was destroyed mysteriously by fire during a rainstorm December 6 after receipt of written threats, had a promise of police protection. The notes were given ot the FBI.

Mr. Walker's wife and two children have been removed from Redwood City.

The notes were mailed to Mrs. R. A. Isenberg of Palo Alto, California, chairman of a fair play committee handling the race problem. Both were printed in ink and one bore bloodstains which the author said was human blood.

Organizations and friends in Redwood City have pledged to rebuild Walker's dwelling as a gift. Walker operates a small truck line.

Window Washer In Fatal Fall

Marion Anderson, 35-year-old window washer of 1360 West 35th place, fell to his death last Saturday from the fifth floor of the Douglas Bldg., 257 South Spring street.

Anderson was washing a window when his safety belt apparently came loose and he fell to the alley at the rear of the building.

The dense fog that morning shrouded his fatal plunge from passers-by. His body struck a roof just above the alley and toppled onto the pavement.

Industrial Institute Calls All Workers

Beginning January 1, the All-nerican Industrial Institute will issue a call to all workers. Their aim is to send 100 workers into the field to write 25 thousand memberships by March 31 to provide religious, vocational, and industrial education and adequate recreation facilities in each county and city; to purchase buildings and places suited for an all-purpose school of training; and to create a statewide organization for the support and maintenance of said institutions.

This is to be done to "fulfill the contract with the state" in a program of crime prevention. For further details go to 1794 W. 36th pla., St. Andrews Baptist church, December 31 at 6:30 p.m.

Rev. Stephenson Wins First Round in Court Battle for Control of Church Property

"I'm going to listen to anything anybody's got to say... no matter who or what... even if I have to sit here till 1947—or longer," a deputy city attorney announced Friday in attempting to clarify the situation as Rev. Don C. Stephenson's assault and battery suit against members of the First Church of Deliverance who evicted him a month ago got under way.

Rev. Stephenson, whose ouster was asked by a faction of the congregation of the church located at E. 102nd and Wilmington, in Watts, won the first round of the legal battle when his complaint for criminal charges against four members of the opposing faction was filed. He had also asked $50,100 damages in a civil suit which had previously been filed.

Jimmy Durante's "Everybody wants to get into the act," was the theme as members of the opposing faction, Rev. Stephenson, the minister's white lawyer—everyone present—began to "speak their pieces."

When asked if a "severe warning" to the evicting parties might not be satisfactory, both the minister and his lawyer said they "must insist upon a complaint being filed."

Conflicting statements as to the number of members supporting the minister and the strength of the opposition were introduced. The statements of over 30 witnesses, on both sides of the controversy, were also submitted.

Tempo of the questions and answers game slowed when the city attorney asked the minister to fill in certain blank spaces in the statements attributed to one of the women in his complaint. As the minister hesitated his lawyer prompted him. "She called me a dirty dog," Stephenson said lamely. The city attorney then asked him to forget he was a minister and say exactly what the woman had called him.

"She called me a b—— b——," was the reply.

Tense moments were spent as the city attorney, after questioning Stephenson on injuries received during the purported fracas, demanded that he be allowed to talk over the phone to the doctor who had treated the minister's injuries, in an effort to ascertain the validity of the account of injuries received. After a long wait and a few evasions by the doctor, a report substantially corroborating the preacher's statements was made.

In filing the complaints, the city attorney informed the defendants that this was not a conviction, but that it was his duty to file since a "reasonable suspicion of a criminal act MIGHT be found."

The church is still boarded and locked up pending action on civil suits filed by both the minister and the opposition.

Another Beaten by Police as CRC Prepares Brutality Affidavits

—ANOTHER BEATEN BY—3h w (SCP)—The Civil Rights Congress, which is preparing affidavits charging police brutality, yesterday reported another case involving a Negro.

Hosea Taylor, of 14730 Calvert street, Van Nuys, charged that on November 15 one police officer held his left wrist while another twisted his arm until it was broken.

Taylor, who said he had been drinking but denied that he was intoxicated, said the incident took place on Hollywood boulevard when two officers in a radio car stopped at the corner where he was waiting for a street car.

Taylor said he was transferred from Lincoln Heights jail to Georgia Street Receiving Hospital for treatment of a head wound suffered when he was struck by a billy club or blackjack. The next day, his arm was placed in a cast after X-rays were taken. He was in the hospital two days, he said, and then was returned to the jail.

At the Lincoln Heights police court, Taylor denied a prepared statement, but was given a 30-day suspended sentence on a drunk charge.

The Civil Rights Congress said the police commission had demanded formal affidavits covering alleged cases of police brutality before it would consider them.

"Apparently the board of police commissioners is being as technical as they possibly can, but the Civil Rights Congress will comply with the request," Mrs. Ruth Slade said. "We already have a number of statements, but are preparing formal affidavits now."

Some of the cases to be cited are those of Mrs. Edith Galloway, member of the People's Independent church choir, who charges she was taken from her parked auto and beaten and abused by a plainclothesman; Oscar Moret, Union Station red cap who says he was beaten by police in a radio car; and Tyree Williams, reportedly beaten by a policeman at Fifth and Broadway when he was ordered to pick up an overturned "no left turn" sign in the street.

Vets to Investigate Lag in Housing Here

"Operation Housing"—a block-by-block survey to determine the cause of the lag in home building here was commended yesterday by Mayor Bowron.

Some 200,000 veterans representing all major veterans' organizations in the county, will make the canvass Jan. 4, 5 and 6.

"We can plan no adequate home building program until we have actual figures on the number of homes under construction," Mayor Bowron explained. "With the cooperation of veterans' groups we shall obtain the information at a saving of thousands of dollars to the taxpayers."

The results of "Operation Housing" will be available to anyone interested, and will be used by the Mayor's Housing committee to show manufacturers and distributors what is needed in this area.

"Operation Housing" is under the supervision of Charles J. Bates, veterans housing coordinator. Bates is a resident of 11512 S. Budlong ave., Monterey Park.

Carter's Sister Files Petition to Probate Estate

Alma Carter, 2113 Harvard blvd., sister of the late Ben Carter, well-known Hollywood actor and booking agent, filed a petition this week asking that she be appointed administratrix of the estate. Attorneys Walter L. Gordon, jr., and H. L. Richardson are representing the claimant.

Carter, who died in New York City, was flown here for the funeral, held Wednesday at the Peoples Independent Church of Christ. Rev. Clayton D. Russell officiated.

In the petition for letters of administration, Gordon set forth that there was valuable property consisting of a valuable home and estate located at 2113 So. Harvard blvd., together with furniture of great value. The actor's Cadillac limousine was also mentioned in the petition. The petition further alleges that there is an unknown quantity of cash in a safe deposit box in one of the local banks.

Carter left a great aunt, Lydia Jackson, and two other aunts, Faye Walker and Alberta Carter.

Alma Carter's petition is based on the California law which decrees that all of the property go to the nearest relative. Carter left no will.

After 8 Months In Jail, Youth Found Innocent

Freed of all charges of participation in a robbery which occurred over a year ago, Colbert Ingram, 1447 E. 47th pl., well-known local youth, who was sentenced to San Quentin penitentiary last April, is expected home soon. The district court of appeals of the State of California, in a written decision dated Dec. 13, commented at length on the evidence in the case, concluded that it was entirely insufficient to convict Ingram and ordered his release.

Presently sojourning within the walls of San Quentin, Ingram, with two others, Beverly Charles Hill and Willis Bishop, all of Los Angeles, was convicted for a robbery that occurred on Nov. 28, 1945. Hill and Bishop pleaded guilty to the charges and testified at the time of the trial that Ingram knew nothing of the robbery. They further testified that Ingram was asleep in his auto while the robbery was being committed and that after the holdup was finished, he had driven them away without knowing anything of the crime.

At the time of the trial, however, police officers testified that the car sped away from the scene of the robbery and that Ingram turned the lights out in an effort to evade them. They also stated that when the three men were apprehended a gun that was later identified as that used in the robbery was found underneath Ingram's seat, which he made an effort to hide.

In arguing for a new trial at the time of the conviction, Atty. Walter L. Gordon, Jr., defending, asserted that the evidence was entirely insufficient to justify conviction of Ingram, that he was simply accommodating two friends when they asked him to drive them in his car.

After the appellate court's decision, Gordon state that, unfortunately, there is no California law to compensate the young man for the six or seven months spent in San Quentin, and intimated he intends to write the legislature, suggesting that the situation be remedied.

Rev. Clayton D. Russell announced that a special benefit for the rehabilitation of the wrongfully-penalized youth would be given at his church in the very near future.

AVC Chapter Closes First Phase of Drive For Housing Action

The West Adams chapter of the American Veterans' Committee this week announced the successful conclusion of the first phase of a concerted drive to spur action for the alleviation of the calamitous housing shortage.

The chapter was able to secure over 1500 signatures to a petition addressed to President Truman, Governor Warren, the congress of the United States, and the state legislature outlining a five-point program to "crack open the housing bottleneck."

The opening of the drive, which is known as AVC's "Operation 'No Vacancy'" with the slogan "Be it ever so humble, there's no place . . ." was conducted on November 21, 22 and 23. The concluding phase was an all-out intensive campaign on December 5, 6 and 7.

The West Adams chapter of AVC meets the first and third Thursdays of every month at the University Methodist church, 817 W. 34th st., and all veterans of World War II are cordially invited to attend and participate.

Only five days remain in which to collect signatures in the "Oust Bilbo" campaign, the Civil Rights Congress announced yesterday.

Deadline for the petitions, which have been circulating in this area for the past month, is December 23, by which date all petitions should be turned in to the Los Angeles office, 326 West Third street, Los Angeles 13. Telephone MIchigan 0957.

The Los Angeles signatures will make up part of the 1,000,000 to be presented to the 80th congress when it convenes in January, as evidence to senators that democratic Americans throughout the nation are unalterably opposed to Theodore G. Bilbo and the unprincipled reaction he represents.

Wild West Show Lands Preacher In L.A. Court

Charged with snapping a 20-foot bull whip at passing cars on E. 103rd street, Rev. Peter John Jett, pastor of St. John Baptist church, and owner of a barber shop at 1705 E. 103rd street, went on trial yesterday (Wednesday) for "disturbing the peace and beating two police officers."

Officers Collins and Thomas, who arrested the defendant after what they termed a tough fight, both testified that he was standing in the middle of E. 103rd last Nov. 29, cracking the whip and wearing a cowboy suit when they first noticed him. Following him into the barber shop, the police said they asked the minister for his "identification."

When asked who he was the defendant is said to have said, "I'm Rev. Jett. I own this shop." Not to be put off, the officers said they asked again. This time, the minister is charged with raising the whip as if to strike them in answer. During the fight which ensued, Rev. Jett is charged with biting one of the officers twice and kicking the other with spurs which he wore as a part of his cowboy get-up. Officer Collins admitted that he struck the defendant twice in the face in an effort to loose the biting hold he had on the other officer.

Attorney Percy Gabin, representing Jett, in an apparent attempt to establish the fact that the defendant was abused by the officers, asked why, since both officers had testified the defendant showed no signs of being hurt, they had taken him to Georgia street receiving hospital. Collins explained that the minister was taken to the psychiatric department, since they felt something was wrong with his mind.

Wearing a royal purple robe over a red and white flannel gown, the preacher calmly surveyed the court scene as both officers described the difficulties they encountered in trying to subdue him.

Wife of Bail Bond Broker Wins Divorce

Mrs. Mary Louise McClain was awarded a divorce decree December 10 when she appeared in Superior Court Judge Charles A. Paulson's court with her counsel, Atty. Charles H. Matthews. Leonard McClain, well known bail bond broker with offices at 4108 Central avenue, did not contest the divorce.

Judge Paulson awarded Mrs. McClain the custody of the couple's minor child and household furniture. The court also fixed the sum of $100 per month as the amount McClain agreed to pay towards the support of his wife and child during the interlocutory period. McClain is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and a former City college and Wiley college athlete.

Segregation a Child of Slavery System, Says Dr. Johnson Hailing Russian Policy of Full Equality

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—President Mordecai W. Johnson of Howard university last Sunday called segregation "a child of the slavery system."

Dr. Johnson spoke at a mass meeting on discrimination and racial segregation in theatres and other places in the nation's capital. He called for an end to segregation "for the Negroes' sake, for the white laboring man's sake and for our country's sake."

Segregation is an economic and political system, said Dr. Johnson, adding:

"It is an instrument of economic exploitation and political discrimination designed first of all to separate a minority from the rest of the human kind.

"It is an instrument of economic policy designed so as to take advantage of a minority so as to make them always available for the cheapest living at the lowest possible wages.

"It is a determination on the part of a majority to set apart a minority and so to rob them of fundamental economic spirit so that they will have to do the lowest labor for the cheapest possible wage and to not stop doing it for fear of starving. It is a cruel policy.

"Those who take advantage may live at the expense of others. Segregation cuts off the feeling of human obligation... If people worship together and go to school together they will come to know each other. If you hurt one you will have to deal with them all.

"Only 390,000 white families in the South profited by slavery. The others were ruined by slavery. They could not compete with the plantation owners. They were practically ruined by slavery. It has robbed the Negro of his vote. It has also robbed the white man of his vote and made him powerless.

"There will be a change because American democracy has been challenged by a force from the left. This new power in Asia is Russia. In her boundary she has all types of people and religions. It is written in her constitution.

"As a matter of fundamental life the Russians say that when it comes to a job, the vote, government responsibility, and education, every human being stands in equality before the Lord and if anyone undertakes to discriminate against a human being on account of race or color it is a criminal offense and he or she will be arrested and prosecuted as a criminal."

Other speakers at the meeting in the Metropolitan Baptist church, 1225 R street, northwest, included Woolsey W. Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations; Tomlinson D. Todd, president of the Institute on Race Relations; Henry Beitscher, president, Industrial Union Council; Dorothy K. Funn, legislative director, National Negro Congress; Samuel J. Rodman, Southern Conference for Human Welfare; Don Rothenberg, chairman, American Veterans' Committee, chapter 341; Ida Fox, executive secretary, Committee for Racial Democracy, and Rev. R. L. Jeans, pastor, Tabor Presbyterian church.

Screen Writers Guild Assails IATSE Stand

HOLLYWOOD—Calling on Eric Johnston, president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers to clarify that organization's attitude toward the claims of the International Alliance of Theatre and Stage Employes to jurisdiction over all motion picture industry employe groups, the Screen Writers' Guild yesterday reaffirmed its opposition to such claims.

In a strongly-worded resolution the guild urged Johnston to make a public statement concerning blanket jurisdictional proposals Richard Walsh, IATSE president, is reported to have made to him.

The guild pledged vigorous opposition to any move on the part of the IATSE or any other group that would jeopardize its autonomy.

Red Cross in Call For 400 Volunteers

Fifty thousand telephone calls in 15 days!

That's the job confronting Mrs. Kay Allen, chairman, coordinating services for Los Angeles Red Cross, in enrolling volunteers who will be called upon to assist in the 1947 fund campaign here.

And Mrs. Allen needs help.

She filed a plea this week for 400 women who can serve from January 2-17, with day crews working shifts from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and night "dialers" on duty from 6 to 9 or from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Women who can assist in this gigantic chore—a vital pre-campaign project—are asked to call chapter headquarters, 1200 S. Vermont Avenue, phone Fitzroy 5261, extensions 64 and 65.

The Veterans Administration office at 1041 S. Broadway, which has been open 24 hours daily including Sundays and holidays, will be closed from midnight to 7 a. m. starting last Monday, according to L. C. Chapman, manager. A drop in the number of veterans served brought the change.

believe it or not...

...we were waiting for a streetcar

But we're left holding the bag!

We were assured that a substantial number of cars and coaches, which we ordered long ago, would reach us in time to help with the Christmas rush.

However, due to labor difficulties, shortages, and other unforeseen production slowdowns in the industries which furnish our equipment, only a small percentage of our quota for the year was delivered.

So, we did the best we could. We rebuilt and repainted. We revamped schedules and routes to take care of changing population centers and public needs.

We are continuing to plan for the future, hoping that the hundreds of vehicles on order will soon be forthcoming, for it is our aim to give Los Angeles the finest urban transportation system in the world.

Annual Wage Plan Features New Contract Signed by CIO Packinghouse Workers Union

CHICAGO—Ralph Helstein, president of the United Packinghouse Workers of America, CIO, announced yesterday that a contract providing for a guaranteed annual wage was signed with the Tobin Packing Company, Fort Dodge, Iowa. The agreement covers the company's Estherville plant as well as the Fort Dodge plant.

The contract provides for 52 weeks employment for 40 hours pay at the employe's regular rate. More than 600 production workers are covered by the wage plan.

Commenting on the contract, Helstein said: "The signing of the Tobin agreement marks a significant step toward securing a guaranteed annual wage for all packinghouse workers. The UPWA-CIO congratulates Frederick M. Tobin, president of Tobin Packing Company, for his social and economic vision and his sincere interest in the welfare of his employes in working with us toward an agreement which will benefit his company, the community of Fort Dodge as well as the men and women who work in the plant."

The CIO Packinghouse Workers Union already has some 4000 workers covered by a guaranteed annual wage plan at the Hormel Packing Company, Austin, Minnesota.

Eligible for the Tobin guaranteed wage plan are employes who have been with the company for one year since last January which is defined as 44 weeks or 250 days in the anniversary year of employment, whichever is more favorable to the employe.

Overtime is to be computed at time and one-half after 40 hours work each week and is to be credited as time and one-half on the employe's account. (For example: An employe who works 50 hours in a given week receives 40 hours' pay and his account is credited with 15 straight-time hours.)

In weeks when the employe works less than 40 hours, he is to receive 40 hours pay and his account is to be debited with those hours under 40 not actually worked. In any event, the employe receives a minimum of 40 hours pay for 52 weeks of the year, regardless of the number of hours worked.

The guaranteed annual wage clause is subject to the approval of the administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor.

Hits Vast U. S. Expenditures for New Weapons

(SCP) — Spending billions of dollars for arms and fortifications will "result in our buying fear and hate with nothing to buy friendship," Dr. Frank C. Laubach, author and world traveler, warned at Bill of Rights week ceremonies.

Dr. Laubach addressed the Los Angeles Breakfast club. University of Southern California officials and Joe Crail, general chairman of Bill of Rights Week, were guests of honor.

"Our right of liberty will only be protected by building up a tremendous stockpile of friendship," the author said. "We are spending 10 billion dollars this year to fortify the islands of the Pacific and Alaska and to make more bombs and planes and rockets to terrify the world.

"This will result in our buying fear and hate with nothing to buy friendship. We don't want the world's hate. We want and need the world's friendship and should appropriate money to feed and rehabilitate peoples of the world."

U. S. Coin Commemorating Booker T. Washington Placed On Sale by Treasury Dept.

PHILADELPHIA—An historical event of significant importance in American history was recorded here, when Edwin H. Dressel, superintendent of the U. S. Mint here, displayed the first U. S. coin bearing the likeness of a Negro to Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary of the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial, for final approval.

The coin—a half dollar—was the finished product of the Commemorative Coin bearing the likeness of Booker T. Washington. The front of the coin carries the likeness and the inscription, "Booker T. Washington". The obverse side of the coin displays sculptured pictures of the log cabin in which Mr. Washington was born a slave, and the Hall of Fame; also, the inscriptions "From Slave Cabin to Hall of Fame" and "Franklin County, Va."

The likeness of Washington was done by Isaac Hathaway, noted Negro sculptor and instructor at Tuskegee Institute. This marks the first time that a Negro artist's work has been used on United States currency.

Minting of the Washington Commemorative Coin is a culminating point in the plans of a group of citizens to establish a specialized training school and shrine at the Washington birthplace at Rocky Mount in Franklin county, Va.

Organized as the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial, Inc., with S. J. Phillips as president, the group sponsored a bill which congress passed authorizing the minting of the coins with allowance for a premium which would assist in establishing the Memorial.

Distribution of the first issue of 1,700,000 half-dollars got underway last Monday when the U. S. Treasury released the coins to banks and agencies. Of the first run of coins, 1,000,000 will be minted at Philadelphia, 500,000 at San Francisco and 200,000 at Denver (coins minted at Denver will sell as collector's items at one dollar and a half). These coins will bear a 1946 date while the balance up to 5,000,000 will be dated for the year 1947.

Second Mass Trial of Pickets Set for Today

(SCP)—Mass trials of Hollywood film pickets started Monday and are expected to last at least six months, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Rollin Wilson, who is directing the prosecution of the case. The strikers face four charges growing out of arrests at Columbia and Technicolor studios.

The trials will be conducted at Patriotic Hall. The pickets will be tried in four groups: December 16, 208 pickets arrested at Columbia studios; December 18, 128 arrested at Technicolor; January 20, 124 arrested at Technicolor; February 20, 697 arrested at Columbia.

Howard Officials Reject Blame For Plight of 49 Vet Students

By JAMES L. HICKS
NNPA Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Officials at Howard university last Friday denied the charge of the regional office of the Veterans Administration here that Howard is directly responsible for the failure of its veteran students to receive their monthly subsistence checks on schedule.

Carroll L. Miller, veterans director at the university, flatly rejected the VA charges and threw records of his office open to the press in support of his denial. Miller indicated that the VA is to blame for the non-payment of subsistence allowance to Howard veterans.

The contradicting statments of the two agencies came after V. D. Johnston, treasurer of the university, had written a letter to Dean of Men William B. West, requesting him to evict 49 veteran students from the temporary dormitories provided for veterans under the veterans emergency housing program because they had not fully paid their rent in advance until December 31.

Faced with eviction, and many not having received their subsistence checks since last October, a large number of the veterans went in a body to the VA regional office where they protested the situation and demanded to know whether the agency or the university was at fault. Many of the men claimed they could not pay their rent until they received their subsistence checks.

Chain Gang Fugitive, Victim of Blow Torch Torture, Wins Liberty

CHICAGO— (NNPA) —Costelle Jones, 37 year old fugitive from a Mississippi chaingang, told in the United States district court here yesterday of being beaten with a hose and burned with a blow torch by Newton County, Mississippi law enforcement officials in August, 1941, until he confessed killing a man.

Tom Jones, who in November, 1941, escaped from prison where he had been sentenced to serve a life term stripped to the waist and showed Judge Sibyl R. Shaw scars on his broken [illegible] and burns on his chest.

Tay[illegible] drink[illegible] into [illegible] took [illegible] yard [illegible] car [illegible] he [illegible] fr[illegible]

Jones, who appeared in court on a petition for a writ of habaes corpus to void a Mississippi fugitive warrant on which he was arrested last August, won his freedom when Judge Shaw granted the writ. Judge Shaw said Mississippi state authorities had failed to appear to defend themselves against the charges.

"I believe this witness," Judge Shaw said. "His body bears plenty of signs of the terrible ordeal he testified to."

Jones testified he was sentenced to prison on a charge of murdering Clay McComb, of Lack, Mississippi, a white man, after a trial at which he said he was not allowed to testify or present defense witnesses. He said he witnessed the shooting, which wollowed a fight between a taxicab driver and McComb¼ Later, Jones said, the driver gave him the gun, and after he had sold it he was arrested.

Jones told Judge Shaw after his arrest by Newton county sheriff's police he was taken to police headquarters and tortured until he signed a confession, although he could not read or write anything except his name.

'Mayor of Watts' Appeals Fine

John H. Kelly, "mayor of Watts," who was found guilty on two counts of practicing law without a license last month, received a fine of $500. However, the case is being carried to the appellate court in an effort to get the decision reversed.

A motion for a new trial, asked in Kelly's behalf, was denied. The "mayor" is out on $1000 appeal bail.

Parley Recommends Policy of Non-Bias in State USES, With Georgia, Arkansas in Opposition

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Representatives of the states of Georgia and Arkansas at the 13th National Conference on Labor Legislation went on record Wednesday as being opposed to the hiring of qualified colored persons in state employment offices and to non-discrimination in job referrals.

Ben Huiet, Georgia labor commissioner, and M. E. Goss, Arkansas labor commissioner, went to great pains to have official records of the three-day conference show that they voted against the fair labor practices proposals.

State labor commissioners and union leaders from other states supported a committee suggestion that job referral standards of the United States Employment Service, now under state operation, disregard "sex, creed or color."

Huiett said the plan "will not go down in the South." On a voice vote both he and Gross voted against the two proposals.

Despite their opposition, the conference adopted the committee report which recommended "Equal referral opportunities to all individuals on the basis of their occupational qualifications for the job regardless of sex, creed or color."

The other proposal approved by the conference provided that "where there is a large minority group such as Negroes in the state, that the State Empolyment Service employ qualify Negro personnel on their staffs.

Huiet and Goss also joined in a vote against a committee recommendation that states whose laws do not defind "suitable work," amend their laws to provide such a definition in accordance with the recommendations of the Social Security Board model bill.

Under such a definition, an unemployed worker or a veteran receiving unemployment compensation could not be removed from the unemployment compensation rolls for his failure to accept a job which did not come within the definition of "suitable work."

Numerous complaints reaching the Veterans Administration here from southern states say that unemployed Negro veterans are being denied unemployment compensation when they refuse menial jobs and hold out for "suitable work."

In defining suitable work the Social Security Board has recommended that agencies consider the claimant's earnings, training and experience, the length of his unemployment and his prospects for obtaining work in his customary occupation.

Although Goss and Huiet opposed committee adoption of such a recommendation, it was adopted and passed by the conference.

The wages and hour committee recommended an immediate minimum wage increase to 75 cents an hour with an escalator clause that would provide for a higher rate. It also recommended enactment of minimum wage laws in states not having them and urged that new legislation include previously uncovered groups such as agricultural and domestic workers.

For states already having minimum wage laws the committee recommended amendments to set a statutory rate with premium overtime after 40 hours a week, based on the worker's regular rate of pay. The committee declared its support of a legal limit of eight hours of work a day for women and for all workers at least one day of rest in seven.

The committee on migratory labor urged the Labor Department to assume responsibility for such workers and authorize state labor departments to license all labor camps.

It recommended the development of state labor camps codes for camp sites, construction, sanitary facilities and the placing of authority to enforce such codes in the state labor departments. It further recommended the extension of state minimum wage-collection laws to migratory workers.

Such laws provide minimum wages and prompt and regular payment of such wages and authorize state labor departments to collect unpaid wages.

Other recommendations for migratory workers included extension of social security and old age benefits, child labor laws, and the enactment of state and federal laws to license and regulate private employment agencies and labor contractors.

The committee on unemployment compensation and employment services recommended that each state law be amended to provide a maximum benefit of at least $25, with additional adequate allowance for dependents, and for duration of benefits for 26 weeks for every eligible unemployed worker.

Milk Co. Employe Denies Theft of Butter, Eggs

Richard Abdelkader, 905 E. Jefferson blvd., was arrested and jailed by University detectives last Wednesday afternoon on a charge of grand theft of merchandise. Police charged that Abdelkader, who is employed at the Arden Farms Dairy, was found enroute home with some 20 pounds of butter and many dozens of eggs in his automobile.

Abdelkader denied theft of the merchandise and immediately retained Attorney Curtis C. Taylor who secured his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. Abdelkader maintains that the merchandise in his possession was bought and that he has proof of this fact. However, the charges were filed and the case set down for preliminary hearing.

PURGERS FOILED

Etching on the wall of Van Heflin's apartment in "Possessed" at Warner Bros., has a unique history. It belongs to Curtis Bernhardt, director of the film, and was one of the few art treasures Bernhardt was able to carry as he, with the Gestapo at his heels, fled the late Hitler's Germany to avoid being concentrated and purged.

June Allyson taught herself to dance by watching Fred Astaire on the screen.

Champions of Colonial Peoples Honored at New York City Dinner

NEW YORK—More than 250 persons representing 10 nations paid tribute to Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, head of the India delegation to the UNO; Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, U.S.S.R., and Brigadier General Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine representative to the UNO, at a dinner at Hotel Capitol on Friday evening.

Under the sponsorship of the Provisional World Council of Dominated Nations, the West Indies National Council and the One World Association, Inc., the honored guests were chosen for their outstanding advocacy of independence for subject peoples and human rights for all.

Although significant issues being decided at the UNO prevented the personal appearance of the honored guests, it did not quell the enthusiasm of the guests who applauded loudly when Richard B. Moore, vice president of the West Indies National Council declared:

"We are here to pay tribute to those delegates who championed the cause of independence for subject peoples and human rights for every individual. We do this without fear and regardless of consequences. Foreign Minister Molotov was the first delegate at San Francisco to declare for independence of subject peoples. The result was that independence was included in the Charter as the goal of subject peoples."

A prophecy made by Moore was confirmed a day later when the General Assembly of the UNO defeated General Smuts' proposal to annex Southwest Africa to the Union of South Africa.

Moore concluded his remarks by declaring that "Empires from the immemorial have been the major source of war, misery and poverty. As Tacitus wrote of Rome, 'when they have made a desert they call it peace.' The Talleyrands, the Metternichs, the Churchills and the Smuts will never make peace. The oppressed peoples and the common men of the world will have to make their will effective in order to secure peace."

"Brigadier-General Romulo associates himself fully with the program of the Provisional World Council of Dominated Nations", declared Congressman Lorenzo Sumulong of the Philippines who addressed the group as a personal representative of General Romulo.

"From their expereince, the people of the Philippines know that it matters not how enlightened or beneficient the rule of others may be, independence is the key to real freedom."

N. N. Nethersole, vice president of the People's National Party, Jamaica, B.W.I., told the gathering, "Colonial peoples are ready for self government, but progress is being impeded by Empire." "However", he continued, "the great advance of the Indian people toward independence will have repercussions throughout the colonial world."

Dr. A. B. Xuma, president of the Nationalist Congress of South Africa, described the tragic oppression of native South Africans. He pointed out that a solution would come when the latent talents of the native people were allowed development.

Other speakers were: Dr. John R. Andu, Indonesian League of America; M. A. Sohrab, Caravan of East and West; Ramkrishna Shahu Modak, master of ceremonies, and president of the Provisiona World Council of Dominated Nations; Julio Pinto Gandia, Puerto Rican nationalist; Dr. Henry Tudor Mason, All Nations Association; K. O. Mbadiwe of Nigeria, and Dr. Charles Petioni of the West Indies National Council, and Rev. Nathaniel Licorish, representing Congressman Adam Clayton Powell.

Blasts British, U.S. Policy on Palestine

(CSP)—Sharply critical of British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin's policy, author Quentin Reynolds last night called for immediate withdrawal of British troops from Palestine. He said such action would be one of four basic actions which would help bring economic and political rest to that land.

He said Bevin's policy had perpetuated "terror, repression, concentration camps, book burnings and a closed door to the Hebrews of Europe." On the same grounds, he criticized Secretary of State James Byrnes "lack of policy."

He also called for establishment of a Hebrew provisional government, full repatriation of all Hebrews still in exile and final establishment of a Hebrew republic. He addressed a rally sponsored by the American League for a Free Palestine in Philharmonic auditorium.

A committee of Los Angeles county educators and businessmen will meet Jan. 16 to study the possibilities of redistricting county school districts.

Why Not Tell the Truth?

What complicates the labor situation is not so much the labor disputes or even work stoppage. It is the failure of the employer to divide even half way the profits from any given production.

"Let labor be given a share in industry's prosperity and a stake in its solvency by participation, over and above its wages, in profits or gross sales or productivity bonuses—whichever best fits each case."

The pioneers of America were all laborers. They all came to the new country with one and the same aspiration: the opportunity to work and build for themselves and their families homes in which to live, free from fear because of their different religious beliefs.

The early Pilgrims consisted of one class—the working class. From this nucleus a free nation was born, its Magna Carta declaring that "all men are created equal. That they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights. That among these rights are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.'

If all Americans are equal, then there is no need for labor disputes, racial, and religious conflicts.

In fact there is no sane or just reason why 60 families should control the wealth of the nation.

This condition produced the economic living standard which is responsible for the labor unrest in the country today. We can do all the radio and newspaper talking that we please about reaching a better understanding between labor and management. But none of it will be effective until we get back where we started—equal division of work, equal division of prosperity, the sum total of which should mean America to us.

A Bill Against Bilbo

The government, from all appearances, can collect on Bilbo this time if it desires. There are enough charges against him to charge a Henry Ford battery.

It is interesting to speculate what Poland, Albania, Cuba, Ethiopia and other small nations in attendance at the United Nations General Assembly, in New York, think about the latitude allowed Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, who respects neither law nor order.

Bilbo sets himself up as a sample of white supremacy and dictates a policy of intimidation for Negroes, denying them the right to vote in his state, Mississippi.

The tobacco-chewing Senator has been able to get by with inciting violence against Negroes, even on the floor of the Senate. Let's see what is going to happen to Bilbo at the hands of this Senate War Investigating Subcommittee.

We are going to watch closely our Republican friends when they move in the Capitol next month. Here is their one big opportunity to speak for the Negro people whose votes they not only solicited but demanded in the November election.

Bilbo, aside from being a bigot, is a thief. There should be no quarter for him in the United States Senate. This is one time when the path of duty is clear. Republicans can rightfully earn one feather in their cap, in the estimation of a good many Americans, at least, by denying "the man Bilbo" his comfortable Senatorial seat.

NNC Sets Pace for Unity

Since its organization in 1936, the National Negro Congress pledged its support to CIO policies. Despite the fact that John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils of the CIO, declared last week that the CIO neither endorsed nor supported the program of the NNC, the National Negro Congress nevertheless realizes that in its pursuit of freedom and justice for all, but particularly for the working people, it cannot take time to fight back about trivialities.

The National Negro Congress believes that the program of the CIO remains essential for the progress of the Negro people, as well as for white Americans. It believes, as has been expressed by its leaders, that the highest interests of the Negro people and the forces of organized labor are inter-dependent.

So, realizing that mighty forces are at work to crush organized labor as well as the Negro, we shall not be divided on the issue of the withdrawal of the support suggested by Mr. Brophy. Sink or swim, survive or perish, we shall continue to lend our hands, our hearts, whatever we have to the support of the CIO.

Smuts Proposal Is Smutty

Senator H. M. Basner, representing 4,000,000 Africans because no Negro can be elected to the parliament of the Union of South Africa, told an interested and attentive audience in the Second Baptist Church last Sunday evening some of the difficulties and hardships confronting the Negroes in their own country of Africa.

General Smuts, prime minister for South Africa, proposed to the United Nations that South West Africa be annexed to South Africa. He pleaded long and earnestly before the Trusteeship Committee to grant this favor, but when it came to the vote only Great Britain supported his plea.

Senator Basner, a member of the United Nations Assembly representing Africa, described the conditions in South Africa where Negroes are not permitted to live in towns and cities, but must go back and forth from their villages in order to work. Their work is mainly in the mines, or as domestic servants, and they must have passes from the government wherever they go.

"This is slavery," declared Senator Basner. "Whenever a human being is forced to work where he does not wish to, and is not permitted to do the work he would like to do, that is involuntary servitude excuse it by whatever reason you wish."

General Smuts, said Senator Basner, has for a long time had his eye on South West Africa. There are 300,000 more workmen there who could be used in the mines and as servants. The general claimed the natives were not only willing but anxious to be united with South Africa. But his arguments fell on deaf ears.

"I wonder," said Sir Maharaj Singh, delegate from India, "how many persons under the Nazi regime would have dared to vote against the Fuehrer's wishes."

And so General Smuts lost the first round in his fight. And all the smaller nations and minority groups feel greatly encouraged. The fight is not over, of course, because the General says he is going to try again.

But here's hoping all his proposals to annex South Africa will prove as "smutty" as this first attempt before the United Nations Assembly.

Our Christmas Wish

Christmas is a spirit. And if man allowed the spirit of Christmas—the spirit of the Prince of Peace—to guide them in their daily lives most of the cares of this old world would vanish very quickly.

The Man of Galilee—the man whose birth we celebrate at this season—gave to the world the key to happiness and success in his simple, but profound admonitions on human conduct.

"Love thy neighbor as thyself." "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

The observance of Christmas should include the contemplation of these great utterances and of His other teachings. Certainly this season should include something more than the social whirl of parties and the frenzied rush of gift giving and gift getting.

This is not to say that the symbols of Christmas should be eliminated. Far from it! What would this season be without the goodfellowship which usually attends it, without the Christmas trees and the bright lights that adorn them, without the equally brightly-lighted eyes of youngsters as they await the arrival of that fabulous old gentleman with the snowy beard and the dashing reindeer? Well, it just wouldn't be Christmas.

But the point we wish to make is that the spirit of Christmas should not be lost in its symbols.

Let us not only celebrate Christmas but let's live it—let its spirit govern our lives. In so doing we shall help to establish greater tolerance and understanding among men and give to the world those imperishable gifts of peace and happiness.

Then the cry of "Merry Christmas!" will have a deeper, richer meaning to men than ever before.

Harlem in the Lead Again

The 2000 volunteer workers that sent Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., back to Congress as their representative, were called to a People's Legislative Conference December 21, in New York City.

The spirit of the conference appears to have been unification of action behind representatives aspiring for office whether local or Federal who will protect, defend, and fight for the rights of the people.

Present at this conference were city councilmen, assemblymen, state senators, and congressmen. The California EAGLE suggests that our Negro community in Los Angeles adopt this Harlem movement as a pattern for political action.

As we study the national political checkerboard, it does seem that such a move on the part of the Negro voter would be fruitful.

It is not so much the opinion of native observers as of those who come to us from time to time that there is greater division and strife among the rank and file in this city than is observed in other large cities or sections.

It is our job as citizens and voters to call such a conference, and place upon its agenda police brutality, restrictive covenants, discrimination in public places, and all the evils that retard our progress and keep us at the foot of the ladder economically and socially.

We can fight divided. But we cannot win.

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder."

The words of this prophecy will be sung and chanted and preached upon in thousands of churches the coming Sunday and during the coming week, while Christendom celebrates the birthday of its King.

And in about 99% of those churches they will be just "words."

"The government," says the prophecy, "shall be upon his shoulder."

Since Jesus has been accepted by Christianity as the one to whom this prophecy refers, it is obvious of course that if the government rests upon His shoulders the principles He taught should prevail. The rules of government He established should be practiced.

But do His principles prevail in our government? Do His followers practice what they themselves preach so loudly? They do not.

In virtually all the churches of Christendom, here in our own United States of America as well as in other parts of the world, this prophecy is taken to mean some time in the far distant future. Oh, a thousand years from now, maybe. Or at least a hundred. But at any rate not now. Not today.

Even His most ardent followers who believe that He is coming soon, and will soon establish His Kingdom upon earth, preach that we today have nothing to do with the setting up of the Kingdom. That we need do nothing about our government. He'll take care of that, is their attitude.

And so virtually every time an opportunity is given to the people to decide whether or not they want anything of the Kingdom of Heaven working in our government, the churches vote No. They did so in this last election, when they voted against the FEPC. Oh, yes, the church federation decided in favor of it. But the members of those churches voted against it. And the largest church in the city, which claims to be especially close to God, instructed its members to vote against it. And it was defeated.

This is true about practically every measure which favors the people, the working people, as against the men of wealth, the big business men, the capitalists. They are branded as Reds, as Communists—anyone and everyone who favors that in the slightest degree the principles which Jesus taught should be a part of our government.

These would-be followers of the Prince of Peace decry Communism as a doctrine of the devil. Yet they cannot deny that Jesus Himself and the early followers of Jesus were Communists, and that the Church of today has gone far afield from the Rock from which it was hewn.

The majority of the Christians of today, or rather the majority of those who call themselves Christians, worship God in the same manner as did the inhabitants of Samaria whom the king of Assyria placed there after he had removed the Israelites.

"They feared the Lord, and served their own gods," is the graphic description of their hodge-podge religion.

Yes, our present day Christians will "fear" the Lord mightily this coming week—in anthems, in carols, in Christmas programs. They will send out Christmas baskets and serve Christmas dinners to the poor and underprivileged—going evidently upon the principle that dominates the camel in his drining—one square meal for a year.

But they nevertheless will serve their own gods—racial superiority and the private profit system. It is to them they offer incense every morning and evening. It is their high priests they obey. Without knowing it, without realizing what they are doing, they have erected images of these gods in their churches, in their homes, in our schools. They have given them fair names, and have made them appear outwardly beautiful.

But underneath their bright exterior they are ravening wolves, and unless they are destroyed they will some day destroy us. Their end seems imminent at present, however, and we speak hopefully of the "dying capitalist system," and of the new world that is being created where the term "race" will be unknown—the Kingdom of Heaven which Jesus preached and which will prevail when the government shall in truth be upon His shoulder.

But that Kingdom will not come, that government will not be established unless you and I work for its coming. Had the people of the world really wanted it, it would have been here thousands of years ago. It can be established today, tomorrow, any time we wish. If we want it badly enough not only to pray for it, but to work also and fight for its coming.

W. J. Wheaton Says

We had just come home from a meeting on self-government for the African colonies. It was a very enthusiastic meeting and the speakers waxed eloquent as they recounted the many indignities and hardships encountered by the African peoples through the mercenary greed and dictatorial manner of their "protectors."

After leaving the meeting and having time for sober thought, we began to weigh things. Naturally, we were in sympathy with everything that had been said; our feeling is ever on the side of the oppressed whether the oppressed be in Africa or in Mississippi, U.S.A. But the thought kept creeping through our mind of the picture of an armless man trying to rescue a drowning man from the ocean or a one-legged athlete competing, successfully, in a race where his competitors were not handicapped.

Unless a people are in a position where their influence is acknowledged and pressure can be brought to bear, the words of protest are as "the tinkling of a cymbal." The point of the argument is, let's strengthen our position here at home, so that we can more efficiently battle the tide of world oppression and the colonial peoples. The plight of the American Negro is known throughout the world. Even the people whom we are seeking to rescue from the "heel of oppression" know. They know of the barbarous murders and mob orgies that have claimed the Negro as victims, and wonder why we don't seek to remedy those matters while trying to assist others. When the Negro here, in the U.S.A., can say with impunity that he is a full fledged citizen with every right guaranteed under the constitution, I can cast my vote in any commonwealth of the nation without fearing the faggot and rope; then can we speak effectively for the oppressed of the world, and speak with a voice that the world will hear and understand. There must be a concentrated and unified effort to obtain a full and complete citizenship here in the U.S.A. if we hope to challenge successfully the oppressors of peoples abroad.

Contrary to the minds of most people the African colonies have developed leaders. Among the leaders who are planning for self government is a recent visitor, Robert K. A. Gardiner, prominent in African affairs and a planner for the economic betterment of African colonials. In a recent speech in New York, Gardiner said, "What is needed is a planned transition from an agricultural and cheap labor economy to an industrial and balanced economic system, and from racial and political servitude to conditions of self-government."

There is no dearth of native leadership among the African colonies. Many of them have been educated in the universities of France, England and Russia. Even the most conservative of these leaders realize the importance of educating the natives to the responsibilities of self-government and seeking to place them on an economic basis which will challenge the oppressors.

Returning to conditions in the United States, the Negro—the greatest sufferer among the minority groups—must have a full, unrestricted citizenship. Just so long as a free, unrestricted, untrammeled citizenship is denied here at home we shall be handicapped in our efforts to aid our brothers abroad. The fight, then, must be on two fronts, with the emphasis naturally on the home front.

Situated in the heart of the world's most powerful imperialist, the Negro occupies a strategic position; he can be a decisive factor in the struggle for colonial liberation. But to attain that power, we must strengthen our position at home. Let us then close ranks, present a solid phalanx, and assist in the fight being made by the decent citizens of Georgia to ferret out the murderers of those two couples who were brutally lynched last summer. Let our support be given morally and financially to the fight against the vicious Columbians. Let's get solidly behind the movement to keep Bilbo from occupying the senate seat he won through terrorism of Negro voters in his state. Let's join with all groups which are seeking to break down the barrier of race and creed.

Soon the anniversary of a great Christian event will be observed. It has many different names, and is celebrated under many different customs, yet the spirit of the Christ dominates all. It not in practice his wisdom and peace are remembered throughout the world. Even in the midst of battle men have ceased to kill and lying in the muddy trench have looked in the sky for the Star of Bethlehem and wondered: Wondered why men who held the teachings of the Christ to be the salvation of the world should so forget that they sought to kill and maim each other for reasons that the panacea of love, the love which He enjoined all men to observe, could so easily rectified.

Even in our daily lifes, we, on this day stop to ponder, and wonder if, after all, we have journeyed so far from the Stone Age. Our murders are more refined; our duplicity less observable, and crude living has given way to luxury. But still there does remain the things which dominated the characters of primitive man, hate and love. But hate has supplanted love. Hate sown the seed of distrust. It has caused more misery and turbulence of mind than any other thing in life. So to the California EAGLE and its many readers; We wish you a Merry, Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

LABOR ON THE MARCH

ISAAC PRATT

As science moves forward and the nation grows more progressive, it is hoped that capital will meet labor halfway. It seems that orders for new trackless trolley coaches placed during the past 12 months total more than the entire production of the industry for 12 years before the war, all of which means some curtailment of labor involved. As business for capital increases, some provision must be made for the equalization of the status of those who must labor, many times for salaries which continue to diminish as the volume of business steadily increases.

Many labor unions and various organizations have sent in written requests to their various senators and representatives in Washington, requesting that they vote "no" on the seating of Senator Bilbo, of Mississippi, in the U. S. Senate. The consensus of opinion seems to be that Mr. Bilbo's unAmerican activities and campaign record make him an unfit member of the United States Senate.

Ralph's Market, 35th Place and Vermont, has been the object of a picket line for the past two Saturdays, with members of the Carver Club of the Communist Party making forthright demands for the employment of Negro workers, since the market is located in a Negro community.

Beginning with five people at 10:00 a.m., Saturday past, the picketers were happy to report that the number of demonstrators increased to eighteen during the afternoon, with volunteers coming in from the Home Owners' Protective Association and other progressive organizations.

A goodly number of customers refused to break through the picket line in order ot trade at Ralph's Market, Saturday, and there seemed to be some indication on the part of the managers that they were considering the group's demands.

On next Saturday, volunteers are being called from the International Workers' Order, the National Negro Congress, the Civil Rights Congress, and from any and all other organizations who would like to take a part in this just protest.

A group of volunteers from "People's Song" have also promised to be present this coming Saturday to lend a bit of spice to the picket line in the form of some very pointed entertainment, as only they can furnish.

The picket line will form each Saturday until some definite results are obtained. According to one of the supervisors, when he called into see the manager, he was told that if they continued to turn away trade something would have to be due. This gave the picketers some hope that they were making headway.

Landlord strikes may break out soon, commented George Engler, president of the National Apartment Owners' Association yesterday, because of the administration's failure to approve a proposed 15 per cent increase in rents.

Why can't we learn to live and let live!

Letters To The Editor

December 16, 1946.

Dear Mrs. Bass:

This is the proper time of the year for a friend to tell a friend that he appreciates the helpful things that were done for him in his recent campaign for re-election.

It is also appropriate to wish you and yours a Merry Christmas and a most Prosperous 1947.

Thanks for everything. I appreciate the kind of a friend you have always been.

My best, as always,

PULPIT VOICE

By Hamilton T. Boswell

NO ROOM YET

The gospel of Luke in relating the Nativity narrative of Jesus wrote this as the seventh verse of the second chapter: "And she brought forth her first born son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn."

Evidently there was a housing shortage in the city of Bethlehem, very similar to what we experience in Los Angeles today. Instead of Bethlehem being crowded because of a wartime immigration, Bethlehem was crowded because of the order of an autocratic Ceasar that all of the inhabitants of the far flung Roman Empire should be counted that the per capita tax might count for more in the Imperial treasury. Therefore every man went with his family to the city of his lineage that none should be overlooked or missed in the taxing. Joseph therefore made his way with his espoused wife Mary to the town of Bethlehem.

People have not changed much since the advent of human society and neither has greed. Perhaps it was that Joseph was a poor man, he met the same plight that the poor are meeting today when they come into Los Angeles and find that although there is a housing shortage that their poverty lessens still further the opportunity to secure a roof over their heads. Then, too, Mary was an expectant mother, and what profit minded landlord wants the liability of renting to people with children? No, the experiences of Joseph are no different from Joseph Jones and Mary Jones today. There was no room for them in the inn, and they were thankful for the stable.

Regardless of the reason it is known according to the gospel narrative that Jesus was born in a stable with a manger as his first crib. He was born outside of the warmth and hospitality of Bethlehem, and that shadow of ostracism followed Him to the cross, and although a religion bears his name, still is He and all that He stood for in the lives of men outside of the warmth and acceptance of modern society. There was no room for him in Bethlehem, there was no room for Him in the span of history which thought he had ended on the cross; there was no room for Him in the inception of organized Christianity; there was no room for Him in the dark ages of medieval ecclesiastical tyranny and there is no room for Him today.

Jesus has always been an outsider, accepted in sincerety and placed in the center of things by a very small minority. Jesus did not mince words with people, He cut open their false pride, they felt naked and unclean when He penetrated deep within their motives and purposes. He preached in a disturbing manner to those who were smug in their pet sins and wrong habits. He was not a smooth tongue politician, with a pepsodent smile and a vagueness about His principles. He spoke truth and with an authority which made the mighty afraid and insecure. If your life is one of deceit and greed, the presence of Jesus is most disturbing. The result was and yet is that when His way demands a clean heart and a sincere motive, people have no room for Him. It is with better understanding that we re-read the words of John that: "He came unto his own; and His own received him not."

Today that ancient world into which He was born has passed with the folding over of centuries. We can criticize the people of that day with a scientific objectivity, but the facts clearly show that there is no more room for Him today among the counterpart of the selfish and greedy than there was with them then. The illustration fits even closer for we too have the stable, the outhouse, the chicken coop on the fringe of things that in some way we might be identified with His noble cause. But He is yet excluded from the heart of things wherein lies the power of choice and decision.

We can not erase one line of the gospel narrative written by Luke, there is nothing that we can do to change that record of history, Jesus was born in a stable, and even our tears and sorrow cannot correct that wrong in history. In a very few days Christmas, the date which we honor in memory of His birth will be with us. Even now, the sentiment, and spirit is here; from the dusty racks of music and records, Christmas music is brought forth and played and sung. It indeed can be a time for self searching and personal analysis.

This Christmas can be a day of correction, we can determine that although there was no room for Him in the past, yet with God being our helper there shall be in the future, and we shall begin making room immediately in our hearts, that the son of God, so consoling in times of distress may be invited into the very center of our lives. There shall we honor Him with the authority which we have so denied Him these mny years, and if we do the confusing problems of our day shall pass away. Make room, make room.—Minister, Bowmen, Memorial Methodist church.

The Singing Measure

THE LITTLE BLACK DROP

By Georgia Douglas Johnson

They call me 'Nigger' tho I'm white as snow,
They dog my steps wherever I go,
You can't do this, you can't do that—
You've got a drop of black blood —remember that!

Somewhere, something must be wrong,
I think about it days along . . .
Why is the other blood denied,
So discounted—set aside?

Tell me where that black blood flows,
Everybody's guessing and no one knows . . .
But since that black drop bosses me
It's a mighty fine drop wherever it be!

(SCP)—Population in Los Angeles county is expected to reach an all-time high of 3,703,903 on Jan. 1, the county regional planning commission estimated yesterday. The city's total will be 1,877,811, as compared with 1,504,277 in 1940. Total in the county 7 years ago was 2,785,643.

'We Can Run—But We Can't Hide'

By VICTOR G. BRYTHER

There are three kinds of unionism: craft, industrial—and ostrich. Ostrich unionism has unlimited jurisdiction over the labor movement. Any card-carrier who has acquired the knack of burying his head in the sand can belong to the Ostrich Guild. Don't look now, brother, but are you a member of that unhappy club?

The typical rank-and-filer in the Ostrich Guild, A.F.L.—C.I.O. thinks that the labor movement is a slot machine You put in your dues-dollar at regular intervals, and keep trying until you hit the jackpot. The jackpot is a raise. Are we going to have another depression? Can we prevent it? How? What about full employment, year in, year out? What about unity in the labor movement? Can we build solidarity and attain the strength we need to lick reaction by excluding everybody we don't like, such as women, Negroes, Jews, Catholics? The Ostrich Guilder never asks himself questions like these. He just keeps riding the same old merry-go-round, keeps making grabs for that same old brass ring—another nickle in the pay envelope.

And then the world tumbles down around his ears. It happened here in 1929. It can happen again. But the stalwarts of the Ostrich Guild never learn. They figure if they hated the British or the Jews last year, they might as well keep hating them this year. They figure if the old prejudices were good enough for father, they are good enough for them.

Why seek new ideas? The old ones are lying around, waiting to be used. Why seek new roads? It's easier just to plough the old rut deeper. It's hard to look a fact in the eye, and admit you were wrong. It's easy to deny the fact, and keep those old, well-worn, comfortable notions.

But don't tell the Ostrich Guilder he isn't a good union man, or a good American. He may deny the right of a Negro to a job—to any job the colored man wants and is qualified for. He may tell himself and you that it's only logical—why should a black man take a white man's job? But don't try to tell him that the color of a man's skin has nothing to do with a man's need to keep body and soul together and to keep his kids in groceries. Don't try to tell him that the task of the labor movement is not to fence off jobs because there aren't enough to go around—but to demand that there be jobs for all, in winter, spring, summer and fall. Your friend of the Ostrich Guild isn't listening. He thinks you have your head in the clouds. The real trouble is, he has his head in the sand.

No wonder so many men who weild economic power over their fellows are cynical. They have watched these human ostriches perform throughout many decades of American life. They have watched hopeful and determined immigrants enter this land, only to fall back into snarling, suspicious, fear-ridden minorities, turning upon each other instead of upon the real enemies of their security. They have watched as Yankee turned on Irishman, as Irishman turned on Italian, as Italian turned on Pole, and as all of them turned on the Jew. They see white Americans making outcasts of colored Americans. They see not only a divided labor movement, but deep and bitter cleavages among workers organized and un-organized. And they have come to the cynical conclusion that the divisive power of bigotry and prejudice, superstition, ignorance and fear is greater than the cohesive power of common striving for common ends by men who are grown-up enough to recognize differences without losing sight of their common humanity.

The men who rule through economic power have cynically concluded that a man has his head buried in the sand of bigotry will never get a glimpse of the promised land. Industrialists fear the consequences of full employment. But they know that full employment will be just a slogan as long as trade-unionists are more worried about Jews, Negroes, or women getting their jobs than they are about fighting for jobs for everybody.

Ostrich unionism is no threat to entrenched privilege. But ostrich unionism is a threat to the labor movement and to every working man or woman who understands that the only hope of saving the free way of life lies in unity of the common people against those forces which make for depression and war.

Joe Louis, estimating the chances of one of his opponents, said, "He can run—but he can't hide." American working men and women are in the same predicament. We can run away from this problem of bigotry, the abiding curse of head-in-sand unionism. But we cannot hide. The problem will dog our steps and will ultimately trip us. All the pious convention resolutions we have ever passed are not worth one concrete action aimed at turning the labor movement into an open house for all who toil. This guilt of knowing that we have not done justice to minorities is an intolerable weight; we cannot carry it and march forward to better society.

We can run, but we cannot hide. So let's stand and fight, for brotherhood.

The Interim Government Of India Versus Jinnah

By R. LAL SINGH

On September 2, 1946, a new government was formed in India under the virtual leadership of the Indian National Congress, and with that old crusader Jawaharlal Nehru at its head.

To the world outside, this event seemed of great political significance in that it conveyed to well wishers the world over the idea that a radical change had taken place in the relationship between India and imperial Britain. Actually Britain's sovereignty over India remains unaffected. However, with the assumption of office by the Indian National Congress, India's largest political movement has the opportunity to use its limited power to win a truly national government providing it seeks to bridge the gap now existing between the Congress and the Moslem League. This gap now appears to be widening rapidly. The recent Round Table Conference held in London between Mr. Jinnah, Nehru and the British cabinet ministers has failed and Jinnah is enroute to Egypt to consult leaders of that little but powerful Moslem country.

WHICH DOES JINNAH REPRESENT?

It must be known at the outset that Jinnah does not speak for the approximately 100,000.000 Moslems of India, despite what is said to the contrary. The Moslems are divided into five sects. The two largest are the Momins and the Ahrars. These two comprise in numbers, 62 millions of the followers of Mohammet. They represent peasants and workers and back the policy of the Congress and not the Moslem League. They believe in a unified India and are deeply set against any attempt to divide India into two separate autonomous states.

Jinnah on the other hand represents the small but powerful landed classes such as the Moslem princes, landlords and industrialists. In this capacity, therefore, he is the ready tool of native and foreign reaction. Jinnah's reactions to the formation of the new interim government in India so far offer no evidence that his League is likely to revise its attitude of non-cooperation with the Congress both in the work of the constituent assembly or in the present interim government. The constituent assembly is now meeting and the seats reserved for the Moslem League remain empty.

Jinnah's charge against the British government is that they have broken solemn promises. These promises, he said, were given earlier by the conservative government led by Churchill, Amery and company, who held the view that no further step in the political evolution of India toward self-government would be taken unless and until the major political parties in India had come to an amicable settlement of their disputes. The major dispute in this unfortunate period of transition is the question of Pakistan or, a separate Moslem State to which the Congress has violently reacted. Jinnah on the other hand has threatened grave consequences coming from the Moslem world outside of India if his demands are not met, he has thundered that his followers will fight to the death if necessary to establish Pakistan.

Jinnah's unwillingness to compromise and cooperate with the interim government does not mean that the doors are closed on Jinnah and his Moslem League. The offer of five seats in the cabinet of 14 made to the Moslem League still stands with the promise from the Congress that additional seats will be added should these be found necessary during the historic deliberations in the constituent assembly and the conventions to follow, Jinnah's noncompromising stand, of course, threatens the future of India. Not only does it hold a threat of civil war in India; but gives cause for retention over a long and tiresome period of British power in India.

Nehru, as head of the present interim government, has appealed to Jinnah personally. "We propose to function as a corporate whole, as a cabinet discussing not only our own departmental affairs but discussing all important affairs together and coming to joint decisions with joint responsibility... and if we are to function as a popular government, we have to carry the people with us. We cannot function, even for their good, without the goodwill of the people. We are ultimately aiming at feeding, clothing, housing, educating and providing sanitary and health conditions for 400,000,000 of our people... these must be definite targets to be achieved during definite periods and in a concrete way."

The above is a challenge deep and sincere and to achieve them a coalition between government and the people is paramount. Only this form of coalition will enable India to establish a free and independent Indian government capable of achieving Nehru's goals.

The problem of India with which we are familiar, briefly, is one of large scale poverty due to low standards of agricultural productivity and to industrial under-development. Contributory problems are the low standards of education and public health which Nehru outlined in his world broadcast and the lack of proper communications throughout that great sub-continent. Another great land faced these identical problems not so long ago. The Soviet Union set the very goals as Nehru now sets them. The Soviet Union in the very beginning faced the future of a people's State hampered by saboteurs and dissenters. India today is faced likewise by a major party acting the role of the saboteur. Jinnah and his Moslem League have withheld cooperatlin in the new government of the country.

Sir Ardeshar Dalal, one of the authors of the Bombay Plan, states that, "Planning by its nature implies controls and restrictions, and interferes with some of the established customs of the people. A country can only submit to the restrictions and bear the burdens if they are imposed by a government which has its full confidence. It is therefore necessary for the successful execution of any plan that India should have a government enjoying the confidence of all important parties. She does not, unfortunately, possess such a government at present."

Despite Jinnah's opposition to the present government, the plans as outlined for the people of India will find support. They are basic and pressing. India cannot wait and do nothing. It is the duty of the present government to ctakle the many and grave problems facing India's people now. In doing this, the present government will be laying the foundation upon which succeeding governments may carry on.

Trail Blazers: Mahlon Cecil Cooley

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

To the general public Dr. Mahlon Cecil Cooley is known as a heart specialist. This is unfair both to Dr. Cooley and his profession but I suppose it can't be helped. For Dr. Cooley's name tends to become synonymous with diseases of the heart. While he is known chiefly for this, Dr. Mahlon Cooley wants this distinction made. He is a physician and surgeon giving special attention to cardio-vascular diseases.

Coming to California in 1914, he lived in Oakland during the period of the San Francisco earthquake and the World's Fair. He left California to study medicine at Meharry and Hubbard hospital in Nashville. After finishing he started his practice in a rich farming district of Texas but in 1918 returned to California to continue his practice here.

Dr. Cooley had the extreme good fortune to be the contemporary of such distinguished early physicians as Dr. Wilbur C. Gordon, Dr. J. S. Outlaw, Dr. Taylor and Dr. Frank Gordon, older brother of Dr. Clifford Gordon.

"I look back with quite a bit of pleasure on such earlyday citizens as the honorable J. B. Bass, Atty. E. Burton Ceruti, and Noah Thompson, who was at that time a reporter on the old Los Angeles Express." He recalls having worked with these trial blazers in such organizations as the Los Angeles Forum, National Negro Business League; and with others such as his old friend Monroe Elgin, E. W. Fisher, S. P. Johnson, and others in such fraternal organizations as the Forresters, the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, and the Elks.

He and Monroe Elgin bought the rights and exhibited in Los Angeles, "The Sport of the Gods," believed to be the first nationally known Negro motion picture. This picture netted them a heavy loss, which he asserted gratified many people who had sport in seeing them lose "the shirts off their backs."

But "you can't keep a good man down." This is certainly true of Dr. Cooley. For he has made intensive studies of the heart and its diseases at such fine institutions as Stanford university medical school and the college of Medical Evangelist. More recently, he returned from Mexico City, where he completed studies at the Institute De Cardiologia.

It is no secret that heart disease ranks first in the causes of death. Of the many kinds, the type that Negroes most frequently fall victim to is hypertensive heart disease, which is connected with high blood pressure. However, this Dr. Cooley says, is more common among women than men due to inadequate prenatal care. Another reason for the disastrous effects of cardiovascular diseases among Negroes is the unconcern about those diseases which do not produce pain or visual hemorrhage.

Of his associates in medicine he says, "Never before have there been in Los Angeles the number of thoroughly trained, thoroughly capable doctors as there are now. My fondest hope is that the public will recognize its good fortune in having these splendid doctors among them and that they will take every opportunity to avail themselves of their services."

Knowing what diseases the patient has before it develops and stopping it before it gets too far advanced is Cooley's idea of efficient medical service. Somewhat of an internationalist in viewpoint, he is sold on the idea that science should not be limited to national boundaries . . . that it is more important to be a citizen of the world community than of the national or state community.

Devoted to his work, he belongs to most of the outstanding medical organizations, which include the American Medical Ass'n.; National Medical Ass'n.; Los Angeles County Medical Ass'n.; Medical, Dental, and Pharmaceutical Ass'n. serving as chairman of public relations; American-Soviet Society and Inter-American Cardiologic Congress, international organizations. On the civic side his activities include the NAACP, American Civil Liberities Union, and member of the board of Los Angeles Municipal League.

Married to society matron, Susan E. Cooley, he is the father of two daughters and one son; grandfather of three grandchildren.

Even more impressive is the successful fight he waged to stop discrimination against Negro doctors in matters of mal-practice insurance, and his participation in the recent campaign to return Helen Gahagan Douglas to Congress.

The favorite retreat of the doctor on weekends and holidays is in San Gabriel, where he is making a "heart-breaking attempt" to build an avocado grove.

Los Angeles is proud to claim this Trail Blazer, who is a credit to his profession and the public he serves.

Analyzing the Situation

By DON LORING

Contrary to the probable expectations of my readers, I shan't continue my analysis on Central avenue just yet because I have not received enough public comment. However, I think it will cause quite a controversy, but the letters haven't had time to come in. It is causing a great deal of comment from my colleagues and those persons I know, who I would call 'Avenuers.' If you have anything to say in regard to last week's analysis then let me hear from you. I am interested in seeing something done about Central avenue. Next week I will let you know what the people are saying in regard to the findings I have made.

With this issue I shall venture forth in the realm of a broader field of knowledge and will use as my subject PEOPLE, POLITICS, and PLACES.

It seems the topic of every conversation of the present day is John L. Lewis, the president of the United Mine Workers, AFL and the coal strike. Because everyone is expressing his opinion about the controversy I won't feel at ease until I put in my two cents worth.

It is all played up so nicely in our daily papers and over the radio, to sway the American people from sympathizing with Lewis and the UMW. I feel confident, however, that the American people can see through these carefully knitted curtains of propaganda, and will take a voice in the controversy.

What John L. Lewis and the UMW is demanding is no more than what millions of organized workers have been demanding since the OPA began to lift its price controls and prices began to rise above workers wages. If prices continue to rise then it is absolutely necessary for wages to keep in step, BUT because the coal industry is such an important factor in our industrial economy and it would effect the entire nation, those finical 'wizzards' and politicians who are opposed to labor have pressed the government to intervene. By so doing it makes it unlawful for the miners to strike and is a spearhead for a general attack on the labor movement which has been quite successful in establishing itself during the New Deal administrations.

Those of us who have to earn our livelihood by the sweat of our brow can feel safe and secure on our jobs only when we have powerful labor organizations. Mangement can no longer terminate our services at will, unless they have a good reason. Our labor organizations set a wage scale for them to pay us according to our abilities and they can not employ us at the ridiculously low wages they would pay, if we didn't have powerful labor organizations.

BUT, how long can labor last? The decision of the supreme court in the coal strike will determine. If the court rules Lewis and the UMW guilty of the 'contempt' charge, then Labor can be prepared to face a savage offensive. Because the UMW and the coal operators could not come to an agreement the government saw fit to seize the mines. It is unlawful to call a strike in government operated industries, so the government defied Lewis and the UMW to strike.

With interest for his men and labor organizations as a whole Lewis felt the government ruling a distortion of justice and has appealed to the supreme court. As I see it, the Truman administration seems to be on the side of management and not for labor. Labor makes up the larger part of the nation and inasmuch as the government is the people then why didn't the government see to it that a settlement was made? Of course it is passed off that the government acted for the people, but I should think that the controversy could have been handled much more differently. As the situation stands it seems the government acted for the coal operators who probably pressed it for the seizure to prevent the strike. To rule 400,000 men guilty the government can at will rule 140,000 people guilty. The supreme court, made up of men who are supposed to be free from all pressure forces and whose duty it is to see that justice prevails over our land, must be sure that it reaches a just decision in this case. This is not just a case where an individual is being tried, but a case where the working people of our country are on trial.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), proposed for legislation that John L. Lewis and the 400,000 mine workers be inducted into the army and 'required' to produce coal under threat of court marshal. Sen. McCarthy uses required when what he really means is 'forced.' How can anything be in requirement when you're threatened of a certain penalty if you don't do it? Yes, Sen. McCarthy is asking for 'forced labor' in a democracy when there is only forced labor in a fascist dictatorship. Maybe Sen. McCarthy has decided that the people have too much to say how things are run in this country. Let's cut this foolishness of democracy and 'make' them do it and be done. Sen. Mc Carthy goes on to say that, "in the military services during the war, we were quite successful in 'making" men do their jobs. I see no reason why the same system could not be employed in this case."

A veteran of World War II, I certainly don't feel I was 'made' to do my job. Seeing the impending danger my country was in I volunteered my services. I'm quite sure the many thousands of GI's who also volunteered wouldn't want it said that they were made to do their job. It was only a natural reaction. We wouldn't stand idly by and watch our homes enveloped by fire when we had worked, sacrificed and saved all our lives to get the security, peace and happiness that home gave us. Of course there are many of us, who for any number of reasons, don't realize danger until it has struck us. The men who were drafted into the services come under this category. These men, too, soon realized that they also had a part in this big job, and went ahead and did their part. They knew as well as the volunteers that if they didn't do their share that that home or farm or store which they and their fathers had worked, sacrificed and sweated for all their lives would be engulfed by the flames of war.

No, Sen. McCarthy, we were not "made" to do our jobs, we felt there was a need and we acknowledged it. In saying this I can feel confident that I speak for the vast majority of veterans and men still in the services. Those men who were made to do their job, as you stated, Sen. McCarthy, are not important, they probably were more of a hindrance than help and are no less interested in their country and its people than Hitler was.

When asked, "Would you shoot the miners if they refused to work?" McCarthy replied, "I wouldn't want to suggest that to the board. We are still in a state of war, however, and I think Lewis would be made to realize that the penalty for continued disobedience is 'heavy.' This is a serious matter. I think the peril to our national welfare in this crisis is as great as it was during the war."

For once I agree with Sen. McCarthy. This "is" a serious matter. When the label "Case Closed" is stamped on the coal dispute, then we will know what turn our government shall take. Will we have a continued democracy or a budding dictatorship????

That is Senator McCarthy's proposal and if that isn't asking for a dictatorship for this country, then Germany was a democracy. Sen. McCarthy bears watching, he's the wrong kind of man for our type of government. Readers will take note he is a Republican.

Woman Gets $450 For Trolley Accident

Florestine Herlong, 4454½ Mettler street, received a judgment for $450 this week when she appeared in division 26 of the municipal court and pushed her case against the local railroad company.

Mrs. Herlong in her complaint charged that on August 22, 1945, at about 5:20 o'clock p. m. she boarded a street car at the intersection of Wilshire and Vermont and that the conductor of said car caused the door to be slammed on her ring finger causing the same to be bruised and crushed.

At the trial the attorney for the Los Angeles Transit Lines insisted that Mrs. Herlong's accident was the result of her own carelessness and that the street car company had done everything to insure the safety of passengers and that they were in no way accountable for the injury.

Attorney Everette M. Porter of the law firm of Attorney Walter L. Gordon Jr. convinced the court, however, that it was only because of the negligence of the conductor that Mrs. Herlong suffered an injury. Judge Galbreath granted $250 for special damages and $250 for her pain and suffering.

A Place for Unity

By HUBERT C. BAIN

Because the body of our social activities and economic well being rests, or depends, on the legs of our political and economic strength for its very existence, I feel that you will not only lend me your moral support, but your minds and willingness to cooperate as well.

For more years than we care to remember, we have watched the struggle of a people as they were disciplined in the torried crucibles of mighty nations. They at first lay prone, saddled with all the travails of infancy—forced to submit to the indignities of the more matured and strong. 'Twas thus they struggled to maturity, fighting and overcoming greater obstacles than frontier hardships. It has been their lot and duty to overcome the hate and organized bigotry of nations geared with all the accoutrements and machinations of a perfidious civilization.

Our growth today is even more imperative. We must survive the gigantic squeeze, both spiritual and economic, that is taking shape on the ramparts of every nation. The trend of the last political elections may be an indication of the danger that theatens.

The juggernauts of empire are again girding themselves to seize strategic holds on new and old world markets. It's that phase of industrial economy so closely interlinked with dominance and power.

They have long taken on the girth and proportions of huge utilities and combines. These monsters are breaking out into even more fearsome aspects; for they now embody the more omnipotent form of cartelism.

Complacency among minorities is no longer anywhere evident. The happy and ignorant peoples of 50 years ago are passengers—whether they will it or not—on a fast moving vehicle. The age of speed has dawned. We no longer have that feeling of security which proved so false to us in the past. Our sober judgment is telling us that we have reached manhood as a people and with it its multiple responsibilities.

We are being forced by inexorable laws to realize that in order to live with dignity we must have alignment of forces. We must unite. We must cooperate with our brothers, and our first steps shall be political unity. We can afford no compromise as we realize that the world has no use for the man or people with an excuse. We must produce. We dare not be inactive and impotent. Action and more action has become imperative.

Our economic and political activities must so reflect itself in world opinion that neither the public or the government may long withstand the impact of the moral obligation this Nation owes to 15 million of its citizens for the fruits of their arduous labors and supreme sacrifices to which they are so justly and richly entitled.

Because of our training—our mode of thought — the men of "Sigma" are highly qualified to dedicate themselves to the empty chairs of leadership that so need filling with men of integrity. It is but natural that we should look to this august body for such leadership.

Those of us who are now swimming valiantly on the surface, secure in our own immediate environment—and the realization that we are afloat—have begun to note that our efforts are expended in shallow water. We see in the distance ocean liners sailing in all their majesty carrying passengers whose progeny is safeguarded in a padded security for many generations. On the other hand, our vaunted security becomes immediately endangered whenever entanglement threatens.

We, too, must travel in the deeper waters of high finance, and to do this successfully we must first have greater political backing as well as greater economic stability, with enough solidarity and depth to launch the liner that would enable us to travel not only in security but in plush-lined and pampered comfort.

An Uncle Tom Philosophy

By CYRIL BRIGGS

An editorial in the current issue of a local newspaper ridicules Negro leadership in general, sneers at Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., as a "Congressman-Baptist preacher-political holy roller" and intimates a preference for a tough policy on the part of elected officials in their dealings with Negro delegations.

Were you to receive a clipping of that editorial, divorced from the masthead of the newspaper publishing it, you would inevitably attribute it to the Hearst press or some openly fascist sheet like the Los Angeles Equalizer, which was the object of an expose by the California EAGLE last week. But you would be wrong. The editorial referred to appeared in the Los Angeles Tribune of which Almena Davis is editor.

A news service report on an interchange between New York's Councilman Ben Davis, Jr., and Mayor O'Dwyer over Harlem's acute housing shortage is used by Miss Davis as a springboard for an attack on Negro leaders who dare demand remedial action for existing evils.

In that meeting, Ben Davis is reported to have described the situation in Harlem as "tense," warned Mayor O'Dwyer that the residents of Harlem "don't like disturbances or riots, but they can take so much." Again, according to the report, Ben Davis further declared that "unless Negro veterans are able to get housing within a few days, they are likely to take things into their own hands."

The mayor, according to said report, sensed an implied threat in Councilman Davis' warning, expressed his resentment, said law and order would prevail in New York City so long as he was running the city. Miss Davis goes the mayor one better, definitely considers Ben Davis' warning a threat of violence. And applauds Mayor O'Dwyer for making no attempt, as she says, to "cool the Negroes off." She then has Ben Davis "taken aback by the mayor's refusal to placate him," and "whining" that he had "merely wanted to call your attention to the situation . . . These veterans are walking up and down the street without a place to live. You can understand that since you are a veteran yourself."

Councilman Davis' intention obviously was to warn the mayor of an explosive situation calling for immediate attention. Such warnings have been made by white leaders in similar situations affecting white populations, most recently by white leaders of veteran organizations, and we have yet to see any attack on these leaders for their action in forcefully bringing a dangerous situation to the attention of our elected officials and of the public generally.

Miss Davis, however, has her own particular standards for Negro leaders. Any militancy on their part is, in her eyes, "cheap and demagogic." In Miss Davis' opinion, apparently, Negro leaders should never speak sharply to white folk. They should never make demands, but should appear before white folk in a properly submissive spirit, bowing and scraping, pleading for favors, never demanding rights. Thus, to Miss Davis, Ben Davis' warning words were "rash," "cheap and demagogic" and "in the tradition of Negro leadership." Says Miss Davis:

"To Calvin News Service's report that Councilman Davis had exchanged "sharp words" with Mayor O'Dwyer, we would add, 'and rash ones,' on Davis' part. And not only was he rash, but in the tradition of Negro leadership, and in the fashion of the day, Davis was cheap and demagogic . . ."

Miss Davis disagrees, as is her right, with Ben Davis' characterization of the Harlem situation as tense and dangerous. But Miss Davis goes further. She peddles the traditional racist stereotype of the Negro as slavish and docile, devoid of courage and the will to fight, if need be, in defense of his liberties; willing to submit forever to jimcrow oppression. She sees his occasional rebellions, as reflected incidentally in two outbreaks in Harlem in the decade of 1935-45, as instigated by agitators.

Says Miss Davis:

"The entire race is sick and tired of having its disposition characterized by the behavior of misfits and unfortunates. Harlem is no closer to riot than Hoboken. Where riot comes, it results from the deliberate propagandizing and belaboring of the injudicious and Machiavelian Ben Davises, who stay well away from the swinging clubs and flying rocks, and who have something to gain from the attendant notoriety."

That, too, was the interpretation which the Justice Department attempted to place on the heroic resistance of the Columbia, Tenn., Negro community when, instead of investigating the police instigators of the Columbia riot, the department placed the onus for the riot on "outside influences," on the NAACP and other organizations which went to the defense of the framed up riot victims.

Miss Davis' philosophy is neither new nor original. It is the philosophy of the Uncle Toms whose tribe has plagued the Negro people since and before the Emancipation Proclamation. It is not Ben Davises and the Adam Clayton Powells who are the misfits. The type of leadership they represent has won the respect of all decent people. The real misfit is Almena Davis in her present position as editor of a Negro newspaper.

SOME SIDELIGHTS ON UNAVA—

Every worthwhile organization, it seems, is born out of a really vital human need. So it was with UNAVA (United Negro and Allied Veterans of America), which was conceived in the minds of six veterans during a "bull session" at New York City's YMCA about a year ago.

The boys got to talking about the problems that were facing them, now that they were out of the army, and what was to be done about them. They remembered all the emergency promises that were made during their sojourn in the army about the job, and the nice little home for the wife and kids, which they did not find waiting upon their return. They also noted, first and above all the general problems facing the veterans that the had specific problems because they were Negroes. There were those ridiculous restrictive covenants which didn't allow them to live in the few homes that were available, and discrimination also kept them from securing certain jobs and any additional benefits that were available.

So as they sat, thinking and talking, the idea of this particular veterans organization was conceived. Oh yes, there were veterans groups already functioning—such as the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, etc., but none of these fitted their peculiar needs. What was needed was a new type of organization; an organization which would have for its main purpose, the solving of these "special" problems of Negro veterans.

The boys decided, however, that this group would not be limited to Negro veterans, for they remembered that in the battles overseas, when danger had come uncomfortably close, white and Negro soldiers alike had found that color made no difference. They had found that in the last analysis, what they all wanted most was to get it over with and return to their families, their homes and their jobs. At that particular time, Johnny wasn't worried about whether his neighbor would be black or white,—or vice versa. Neither did they discriminate against the women, but invited any and all former members of the Women's Army Corps to come in with them and take an active part.

The committee immediately began to function, sending out 50 letters to some of their buddies inviting them to a meeting for the purpose of discussing these matters at length. The response was overwhelming. On January 8, 1946, about 300 turned out. The same problems were discussed; virtually the same conclusions were reached—that there was no veterans' organization which attempted to solve the problem of Negro veterans, and that there was a need for one. So the framework for a New York State veterans group was set up.

Even as they thought in terms of this state-wide organization, the idea began to thrust itself forward that if Negro veterans in New York had these problems—how much more was this true of the veterans in the South and other sections of the country. This called for further immediate action and so a small group arranged a luncheon meeting for the following evening, January 9, at the Hotel Theresa to discuss problems facing the veterans on a national scale. At this meeting were some 50 veterans representing several states on the East Coast.

Ex-WAC Lt. Catherine Godfrey, of Birmingham, Alabama, was present at this meeting and made quite a valuable contribution. She could give firsthand information concerning the plight of the Negro veteran in the South, and she did. She explained how the GI Bill of Rights was worth less than the paper it is written on for Negro veterans in the South. Loans under the bill for the purpose of buying farms were not available to them, because persons who had anticipated the bill didn't want them to become independent farm owners, thereby breaking the vicious share-cropping system in the South. Neither could they take advantage of the educational provisions under the bill, because of the segregation in the school system. They were denied loans to build homes, too, because it just wasn't right for Negro veterans to live like other veterans. She told of the campaign of terror launched under the unreconstructed rebels of the South against Negro veterans. They had to admit that democracy in their own country was not a living thing.

Determined that immediate action was necessary, this group set up a Provisional Committee consisting of Bert Alves, chairman; George Murphy, public relations, and Lester Davis, treasurer, to lay plans for a nation-wide conference of veterans to be held in Chicago on April 6 and 7, 1946, to discuss the status of veterans in America and to put in motion the kind of machinery necessary to solve the special problems facing the Negro veterans.

Let it be said to the credit of GI Joes everywhere that this meeting was a great success, with a large number of Negro and white veterans in attendance, representing trade unions, community and church organizations from every part of the country. Following this conference, active organizations were set up in Chicago, New York, Los Angeles and several other key cities throughout the southern and middlewestern states.

Let it further be said to the credit of the boys that they desired the women vets to have an equal status in the building of the organization; they were not to be relegated to an auxiliary.

Well, the organization got off to a fine start and hopes were high. We understand, however, that the kids have found the going tough in many instances. They made a few gains, of course. Wherever there is unity of purpose something has to happen. But opposition has been strong, very strong indeed—especially in the South. Ex-WAC Lt. Godfrey "called the turn" all right, for the Bilbos continue to get away with "murder" in the South (and in the North as well).

Some of you who attended the April conference,—Ruth Freeman of Texas, George Murphy of Washington, Bert Alves of New York, Catherine Godfrey of Alabama, Lucie Owens of New York, Kenneth Kennedy from Alabama and Don Wheeldon of Los Angeles—to mention a few, are perhaps a little down in the mouth and wondering whether or not it's worthwhile. This is just a little prod to the ribs, boys and girls, in the event you may be drifting into a state of lethargy. Just a reminder that we have not all forgotten the fair promises that were made you, and many of us still intend to do our part toward seeing that those promises are kept. You had the right idea in January, and in April—at that time you were sure of your directions. You're good soldiers, I know. You can take it. For heaven's sake—kids! Don't surrender the Fort...

Jacqueline Dickerson Crowned Queen by L. A. Fretelli Club

Thrills and more thrills describes the newly elected queen of the campuses. She is the lovely Jackie Dickerson of UCLA, former student of L.A. High.

Jackie, quite the busy young lady, is a member of the Neophites, which are composed of 15 lovely Debs of UCLA and LACC, the Ivy Leaf club and the Euterpeans. As the queen of the L. A. Hi-Y, she will be honored guest at all socials and outings that the L. A. Hi-Y attends. Her first duties will come sometime in February, when the group will scurry away for a week-end in the snow. She won this coveted title for selling the most tickets during the popularity contest recently running for the past few weeks.

The L. A. Hi-Y wishes to thank those persons who gave their time and helped in making their tea a success. To Misses Ann Smith, Gloria Taylor, and Lorraine Norman, they extend hearty thanks. Ernest Whitman, Nicademus Stewart, Hattie McDaniels, Jimmy Baskett, Dorothy Dandridge, Anita Brown, Gracie Price and Leonora Moore, who made the program a success and an affair to be remembered for many years to come, must also be congratulated.

After the tea a large crowd gathered at the beautiful home of Dr. and Mrs. Dickerson Hawkins on Westchester Pl. What started to be a small and quiet party turned out to be one of the biggest affairs of the season. Seen mingling around with the guests from time to time was Queen Jackie Dickerson, who said she just dropped in for a sec., but Jackie stayed until the last man was gone. Sipping cokes at the lavish bar were Loretta Pruitt, Birdell Forrest, Gloria Crouch, Francis Jones and Teddy Williams. Among those present around the game table were The Twiners, Hugo and Kenneth Hill, Ann Smith, and Harriot Flowers, who swings a mean stick, Vaal French, Edward Flowers, and Gerald Strange didn't do too bad. In another part of the room I luckily gazed upon these lovely six—George Travis and Virginia McMorris; Thomas Green and Vivian Towns, Dickerson Hawkins Jr. and Jackie Lewis. Virginia, Vivian and Jackie were keeping close tab on their young men that night. Waltzing around with a teddy bear almost as large as they were Jerry Barnum and Merny Harding. Dr. and Mrs. Green, Dr. and Mrs. Hawkins, and Mrs. P. Lewis also enjoyed themselves.

JACKIE DICKERSON, UCLA beauty, won the title of "Queen of the Campuses" in a recent contest sponsored by the Fretilli club.

Carver Day Program Jan. At First Congregational Ch.

The setting for the mammoth Carver Day mass meeting is the First Congregational church, at Sixth, Hoover and Commonwealth. The date is January 5, 1947, at 3:15 p.m.

Rev. George Robert Garner III, chairman of the committee of arrangement announced to the press this week that "the George Washington Carver Anniversary Service will be interracial in scope. Answering criticism of the choice of the First Congregational Church, pastored by the notorious racist, Dr. Fifield, the chairman of the committee stated that "the First Congregational church is the setting for a number of cultural events held in our city, and whenever the occasion demands, we must be alert to opportunity for all inclusive programs."

The Carver Memorial Service will be held in the main sanctuary of the Congregational church. The musical program features conductors Arthur Leslie Jacobs, Albert McNeil, Warren Martin and Chester Ullum, supervisor of music for the Monrovia, Arcadia, Duarte high school district. Names Harlem Youth to Study At West Point

WEST POINT, N. Y. (CNS)—The United States Military Academy at West Point will be headquarters for Roscoe E. Young when he passes preliminary admittance tests. The 18 year old Negro youth was nominated for the honor last week by Representative Benjamin J. Rabin of New York.

Young is a student at the College of the City of New York, and he is rated as a top-grade student with an excellent personality. Although it is reported that the restraint exercised against Negro candidates has been eased at the Academy, it is expected that Young will be given some measure of the silent treatment shown other Negro candidates.

540 Teen-age Coeds Outline Program for Racial, World Peace

NEW YORK—When 540 teen-age boys and girls met at the Hotel Astor recently in the Youth Forum, they outlined a vigorous program for racial and world peace.

Urging that racial discrimination should be fought by action against colleges and schools that practice it, they proposed the teaching of common factors of various cultures; and the teaching of world concepts and psychology in the city schools.

For the prevention of juvenile delinquency they recommended more settlement houses and youth hostels, scouts, and the other community centers for education of parents. Stressing the need for more extra-curricular activities in the schools to include all students, they asked that sex education be taught in the city's high schools and that teachers be impartial politically in the classroom.

And they especially frowned on teachers who teach subjects in which they have not majored, just to suit the convenience of the school.

When the elders had an opportunity to speak, Mayor O'Dwyer told the youth that racial bias was one of the big problems left for youth to solve and he urged the delegates to work for a solution so that "in your time there will be no trace of race prejudice." He commended them for their interest in inflation, war, foreign affairs, and juvenile delinquency. Delegates represented 54 youth organizations.

DANCE CHAIRMAN—Popular Hortense Stevens, member of the Poly High school Y-Teen club will be chairman of the dance for graduates sponsored by the Inter-club council of the Woodlawn branch of the Y.W. on the night of December 27.

Republicans Reverse War Power Attitude

WASHINGTON (CNS)—Republican strategists have reversed themselves on the campaign issue about which they made the most noise during the last election campaign. As matters stand now, there will not be any curbing of the President's war-time emergency powers. The Republicans, figuring shrewdly with a sharp eye on 1948, plan to let Truman hold onto the war powers since most of the business curbs have been done away with, and only the authority to break strikes remains. The GOP bigwigs figure they can use the President to curb labor through his emergency powers, thus checking the unions and discrediting the administration at the same time.

New Marine Unit Named for Negro

BUFFALO (CNS)—From this day forward, the U. S. marines will not only be the nation's triple threat battle organization, it will also be slightly more democratic. Recently, the marine corps broke with the past when it formed an all-Negro detachment named in honor of the first Negro marine to die in World War II. The fallen marine so honored is the late Gulbert Frazier of New York City.

Roena sings classics, opera or Folk music with such clarity, sweetness and expression that she has been referred to as the "Mocking Bird of the West."

Following an appearance in Los Angeles, the Los Angeles Times wrote: "As an interpreter, Miss Savage is superlative in intelligence and sincerity of expression and her program, interestingly varied by wide diversity of school and style, gave her audience the opportunity to realize the rich merits of the composers represented."

During this month, Dec. 3, and 6, this artist appeared in recitals in Columbia, Missouri and in Jefferson City also. Both engagements were under the sponsorship of Elvester Williams—president of the Missouri State Ushers' association.

The first of the year will find the singer appearing in recitals through-out the east.

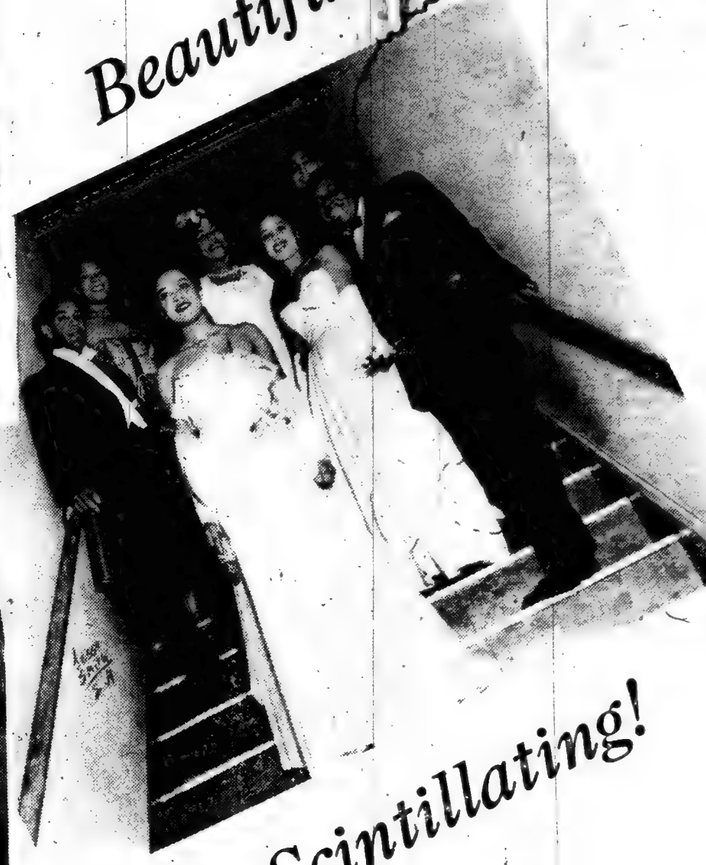
AKA FORMAL ADDS TO HOLIDAY SEASON

Cultured!

Vivacious!

Beautiful!



Scintillating!

THE CHEERINESS of Christmas and the Festivity of a New Year's celebration were wrapped in one, at the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority's annual Holiday Formal Monday night at beautiful Avadon Ballroom. This interesting group of pictures were taken by photographer Jesse Smith, while the ball was in full sway. Photo at left shows charming Ann E. Gordon, dance chairman and member of Alpha Gamma Omega chapter, taking time out during intermission with Society Editor Jessie Mae Brown of Alpha Gamma chapter. Top center shows a family unit of AKA's and escorts. Left to right, Mrs. Helen Boyd, wife of Dr. Howard Boyd, who flew in from Mississippi for the holidays; Robert Boyd, Ballinger Kemp, Ed Boyd, Corine Jones Kemp of Alpha Gamma chapter; Otis Bowdoin, Gwen Jones Simmons, Alpha Gamma Omega; Edith Jones Boyd, Alpha Gamma Omega, who recently arrived from N. Y. in time to attend the formal. Photo at right shows a group of guests on the stairway of the Avadon. In foreground, lovely Eloise Duke of New York. Lef to right, Charles DeMan, Albertina Robinson, member of the Alpha Gamma Omega chapter and dance committee; Edwin Sneed, in back at left; Fannie DeMan of the Doll League; Wilmer James, noted ceremist, and Victor Manuel. Looking like models from vogue, the committee members are shown in center photo, left to right, Georgia Payton, Kathryn Talbert, Ann Gordon and Gwendolyn Duseau; not pictured, Blanch Groggs and Lucille Gibbs. Lower left is a slight glimpse of guests attending. Vivian and Solly Wilson may be seen in front, Otis Rene, Sara Jones and Leonard Grimes are noticeable in the crowd. Lower right is a scene of sorority members in the traditional circle, singing "Oh AKA, Dear AKA," led by Ursula Adams Murrell, in center. The sorority waltz followed this number, and balloons were dropped from the balcony. The affair was one of the season's most beautiful. See story in social set.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

KEEPING THE PACE set by them during the Boule, Alpha Gamma Omega, Alpha Gamma and Sigma chapters of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, played hostess to one of the most exciting formal balls of the holiday season. The brilliant affair brought out exclusive society in force, in its most formal attire, with jewels, furs, silks and satins predominating. With a bit of Christmas cheer and a dash of New Year festivity, the holiday formal was held in the setting of Avalon Ballroom. Guests were greeted at the door with favors, (given out by members of the Ivy Leaf Pledge club) and they spent the whole of the evening dancing to the music of Sammy Franklin's orchestra.

All eyes were on lovely Ann Gordon, chairman of the affair, as she stepped on the dance floor, beautifully garbed in a gold brocade, featuring a leather jewel-spangled halter. Looking equally as lovely were members of the committee, representing the three chapters, Kathryn Tolbert, Blanch Groggs, Lucille Gibbs, Albertina Robinson, Georgia Payton and Gwendolyn Duseau. Promptly at 12:30, the familiar strains of the sorority song were played by the orchestra, the traditional circle was formed, and the sorors were led in singing their song by soror Ursula Pruitt Murrell, who was outstanding in a gown of black velvet.

Following the club song, the sorors were joined by their escorts, completing the clever introduction with a sorority waltz, while colorful balloons floated down from the balcony. Noted in the group were Dr. Shelby Robinson, waltzing with James Patton, Atty, Martha Malone Williams and escort Benny Carter, Supreme Anti-Basileus Dorothy Redd and escort, regional director Audrey Bradshaw Jones and husband, Edith and Ed Boyd, just back from N. Y. in time to take part in the affair, neophyte Shirley Rikestraw and Lorenzo Morris, Gloria Bunch and escort, R. B. Porter, Melonie and Ike Blocker, Josephine Burch and husband, Corine and Bal Kemp, and many another soror and escort.

Among the guests attending were Horace and Beverly Clark, Bev. looking pretty as a picture in a billowy blue net creation; Eloise Duke, New York socialite, enjoying her first L. A. affair; Phyllis Hoxie Allen, looking pretty in black, made on the newest order. She completed her evening of fun by inviting a few friends to her South L. A. apartment for wee hour breakfast; included were: AKA soror Charlotte Preston, visitor, Emily Smith of Santa Paula, the Lloyd Smiths, Angus Smith, and a host of others. Also attending the formal was Jerry Steward, as charming ah ever, in a creation of yellow crepe, topped by a yellow orchid in her coiffeur. Jewell Lockett was noted having much to chat about with her escort, Leonard Grimes, Alpha Phi neophyte, and Sara Jones were among those enjoying the evening, the Dewey Davidsons, Perry Parks, Emmet and Wila Jean Ashford, Paul and Evelyn Brown, the Benn Grahams (Katherine, a member of Alpha Gamma Omega Chapter), the Leon Stewards and oddles more.

BEFORE PARTY

Following the usual procedure of "Before" and "After," AKA Tressie Daniels, wife of Charioteer Howard Daniels, entertained with a cocktail party preceding the dance, in their hill top La Salle street home. Among those sipping were: the Mitchell Miles, George Beavers, Eddie Jacksons, Bill Williams, Cecil Murrells, Alan Woodards, Dr. and Mrs. Wyndon, Morman Houstons, Dr. and Mrs. McLeod, and a host of others.

The festivity of the whole evening brought down the curtain of activities for AKA sorority, who found 1946 to be a very busy year, highlighted by the Boule.

FROM FORMALS TO JEANS

The AKA formal was a beautiful harbinger to Xmas—the Crop 'n' Tail Riding club's barn dance will also serve as a forerunner to the 25th, however in a different vein. Tonight the club will take over at Alpha Bowling club attired in jeans and plaid shirts, with old time square dancing number one on the program. New additions in the club, Dorothy Dandridge Nicholas, Gloria Bunch and Erline Kemp, will make their debut as members, seeing that all guests have a perfect time. This marks the third barn dance to be given by the riding club. Another date red lettered by the group is Christmas, during the soiree hours, when they will play hostesses to an egg nog party. Invites are now in the mail.

Speaking of egg nog parties, so happens that I attended the closing part of the Cosmos meeting Sunday, learned from the group that their affair on the 29th will be a "Cos-Nog." Cute name . . . George Sturdivant was host to the popular club, and the dinner served was fit for a king. Turkey with all the trimmings, bar none, egg nog, etc., completed the menu, and Yours Truly joined the others in having a perfect time of it. By the way, George may take his stand with leading hosts of the city.

HERE AND THERE

Paulyn Garner Fisher will be spending Christmas in Washington, D. C. She arrived in the District via American Airlines t'other day, and will be guest of Dr. Mary Bethune, Mrs. Mame Mason Higgins, her first school teacher. Dr. and Mrs. John Goodlow and Mr. and Mrs. Todd Duncan . . . The grad chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity recently held election of officers. The first five officers were re-elected: Dewey Davidson, president; Arthur Mitchell, vice president; Edward C. Strong, secretary; H. Leonard Richardson, treasurer, and Samuel Brown, corresponding secretary. Dewey Davidson will represent the group as senior delegate at the convention in Columbus, while J. B. Isaacs, Jr., will go as junior delegate.

On Sunday, December 2, between 2 and 5 p.m., the First Anniversary of the Crystal Tea Room and Business Center will be celebrated. The Center has been one of the most popular spots for meetings, dinners and the like throughout '46. Am quite sure a large group will be in attendance to congratulate Mrs. Ruth Mosby, owner, on the success of the beautiful Center . . . The Phidelphian Semi-Formal invitations have caused much interest in the local younger set. The group is all ready to take part in the affair on Christmas Eve, and plans have been made for breakfast parties following. The Litphysonians have scheduled 3 a.m. Christmas morning for their affair, that will probably last until 6 in the morn.

WELL! WELL! WELL!

The Silhouette Coffee was listed as one of the successes Sunday morning. Many were in attendance . . . The Sunday Christmas Party for Kiddies will complete activities for both Doll League and Orchid Girls for the year . . . Invites to the Omega Frat formal are certainly attractive . . . Frank Dupas is busy as a bee, getting his cosmetics before a public that's all out for his brand. Dupas took chemistry at UCLA, graduated an honor student and is now doing something with his studies . . . Anna Griffith Morrow is eagerly awaiting Sunday night, when the annual Christmas cantata will be presented at Second Baptist Church.

Here's hoping that rumors concerning "things off" between Dr. and Mrs. Lincoln Shumate are all wrong . . . Jean Robinson will reign as queen at Samuel Houston college this semester. So happens that lovely Jackie Bunch, of Pasadena, held the honor last year . . . Fred Scott is on the go again, after a very serious illness. Making deadline. Here's hoping that ye chronicler of the social set will see you at the Crop 'n' Tail Barn Dance tonight.

'Til next week.

Wiley College Club Set For 'After Game' Affair

The last meeting of the Wiley College Club of Los Angeles before the Angel Bowl game will be held Sunday, December 22, at the 28th street YMCA. It is a very important one, and former graduates and students are expected to be there to make it the best attended get-together of the year. The old "before-the-game" spirit will prevail.

In addition to the special request that Wiley former lettermen be present, Perry Parks, president of the Wiley Club, asks that all graduates and former students of Wiley be present to hear final plans and details in connection with the Vesper Hour program December 29, at Hamilton Methodist church. The program will be under the direction of Rev. Hamilton T. Boswell, and will be dedicated to Dr. M. W. Dogan, president emeritus of Wiley college, who will be in the city at that time.

The after-the-game affair honoring the visiting teams will be held at Jack's Basket Room, 33rd street and Central avenue. Tickets for the occasion are in the hands of the President Perry Parks, and will be available at the meeting Sunday. Mrs. Mary Joseph, hostess chairman, asks all young ladies who will be available as escorts of the members of the visiting teams to contact her at PArkway 7464. The Wiley College Club will bear the expenses of the young ladies escorting the gridders to the dance.

COLUMBUS, Ohio—All of Columbus is anxiously awaiting the 32nd annual convention of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity starting December 27 and running through the 31st. The biggest event planned for the entire convention is the public meeting, to be held on Sunday, December 29, at Memorial Hall. The meeting will be featured by the presence of such celebrities as Paul Robeson, famous actor and singer; Dr. Channing Tobias of the Phelps-Stokes Fund and Dr. Raymond Logan of Howard university. An unusual fact is that this meeting will be open to the public and will be free of charge.

Another big feature of the convention will be the public meeting to be held on Friday, December 27 at East High school. Addresses of welcome will be given by the Honorable James S. Rhodes, Mayor of Columbus; Dr. Howard Bevis, President of Ohio State university and Albertus B. Conn, assistant Attorney general of the State of Ohio. The main address will be given by Dr. Charles H. Wesley, president of Wilberforce university and former general president of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity. This meeting is likewise free of charge and will be followed by a public reception.

It is planned to have the president of the fraternity, Attorney Belford V. Lawson, of Washington D.C., to speak on the "Tenth Man"—a program of the Urban League and to be broadcast on Saturday, December 28 at 12:45 p.m.

In attendance at the convention will be delegates from all over the United States, including many college presidents and leading citizens of the nation. While it is not definite at this time, it is expected that Congressman William Dawson and Congressman A. Clayton Powell, both members of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, will be present at the convention during some of the sessions.

E. Pluribus Unum Club Maps Program for Ensuing Year

One of Los Angeles' most exclusive clubs, the E. Pluribus Unum, has many plans of great interest, which will include the traditional New Year's Eve dancing party.

At the October meeting of the club held at the North Commonwealth home of Mrs. Ursula Stovall-Jacobs, installation of new officers was the highlight of the afternoon since all the offices were to be vacant for the first time in four years. Installing the new officers was Mrs. Marjorie Broady, who as president during all of the war years, did an excellent job. The roster reads as follows: President, Mrs. Verna Deckard-Bean; vice president, Mrs. Lulu Bendy, treasurer, Mrs. Aurora Hoskins; correspondence secretary, Mrs. Carrie Turner, and recording secretary, Mrs. Gladyce Clark.

At the November meeting with Mrs. Inez Johnson of 127 N. Virgil, committees were chosen with particular emphasis on the part the Social Service Commiftee will play during the next two years. In this connection, club members are to concentrate first on donations for the Outdoor Life and Health rest home.

The club is happy to welcome Mrs. Helen Wynne back to the "fold." Helen recently became the mamma of a 7-lb. baby boy. The club's treasurer for the past eight years, Mrs. Ursula Jacobs, is expecting to have a Christmas present that can't be bought in stores. It will be the Jacobs' first child.

The E.P.U. extend to all their friends a Merry Christmas.

Dr. M. Collins Addresses PTA Of Jefferson

On Thursday, December 2, Dr. M. Collins, a prominent clergyman of this city, addressed the P-TA of Thomas Jefferson High school. His inspiring message, "Peace Through Spiritual Understanding," was received with wholehearted enthusiasm. He pointed out that there was a need for more christianity in the peace conferences. Without it animosity and avarice are inevitable among nations.

To get into the spirit of the Christmas season, parents, teachers and friends joined together to sing Yuletide carols. Some students from the Jefferson Orchestra were called upon to play. The serious, as well as the lighter side, of the meeting was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Beulah Johnson's "Hat Box Revue," turned out to be one of the most successful events of the season. Serving as hostesses to the affair were members of the Alatar Guild.

Mrs. Hassie Pierce, a member of the Guild, was responsible for the largest number of guests attending the affair; her reward was a gorgeous "spring bonnet," created by Mrs. Beulah Johnson.

The Guild members and the guests in attendance were very pleased with the smartness of the Johnson creations. The charming milliner makes hats that would please any woman.

SHOPPING WITH DORIS

By Doris Austin

I, personally, agree with the writer who says: "Giving is a fine art"—this year as never before this phase of artistic perfection can be practiced by the very able, yet simple method of studying the personality of the person to receive the gift. Select the present to match and it becomes a satisfactory pleasure for both of you. Such is the art of giving at any time but especially now at Xmas when the tradition of exchanging gifts is a fundamental of family life.

May I offer a few suggestions for the names you have forgotten to include on your list until this late day?

Maybe the smartest idea you have for early and late shopping is to give a gift certificate. You may purchase these "rain check" gifts at any shop or they may be mailed directly from the stores (after you furnish the name and address and necessary finance) to the receiver of your gift and they may then purchase just what they wish—the only drawback being—no gaily wrapped package on the Xmas tree.

If she is hard to please and you wish to pamper her, give jewels. This is a bejeweled season—jewels are important to daytime wear but imperative at night. Costume jewelry make scintillating, lovely Xmas gifts of quality.

For that bit of artistic perfection in gifts—Nellie's Gift Shop, 1400 W. Jefferson blvd. Personalized gifts of napkins, matches, leather goods, Unusual bridge prizes, figuerines in ceramics, lamps from the House of Fantasy. Xmas hours, 10-9 p.m.

Don't give the usual gifts even though you feel the person will not appreciate anything else as well. Give lovely impractical gadgets to lift even the stodgiest nature to a height of gaiety.

LeDora Perfume Bar, 4824 So. Central ave., operated by Mrs. Thomas and son, Frank Dupas, who blends exquisite perfumes and cosmetics in shop; ceramics, lovely feminine gifts of blown glass, perfume bottles, costume jewelry.

Styles are changing; there is a new elegance to them, with black an ever-perennial favorite. Select hats and accessories to match the rest of your wardrobe—look well-dressed, feel well-dressed and be well-dressed. It's smart to select your wardrobe or additions to it with an eye to its fit—it should fit the occasion, and equally important, fit you. There are lots of accessories you may buy as gifts and they make a "welcome" addition to any wardrobe.

For shopping out of congested sections, rush and worry, Ireland's Ready-to-Wear, 1909 So. Central, has lots of nice selections to choose from—Men's Toiletries—convenient lay-away plan. Station for utility bills and money orders. Open evenings and Sunday 'til noon.

Dad and male members of the family play an important role in the Yuletide shopping; what with Dad practically upholding the financial end of this tradition, he should receive a large share of Santa's pile. A sure way to make him smile instead of grumble at after-Xmas bills is to give him the things he likes but often neglects to buy for himself.

Convenient delivery on approval service with no obligation to buy offered by Beason Men's Furnishing and Sportswear, Western at 29th st.—a boon to weary shoppers—Sport Shirts, Robes, Ties, Socks, Men's gift boxes of Toiletries and Brushes. Hours, 7-8 p.m.

The House of George—Ladies' and Men's Custom Tailors—5870 Hollywood blvd., has a beautiful selection of early spring materials. Visit these expert tailors, select your materials for light suits and topcoats now. Open evenings. Special attention given to all.

Do you feel a bit shaky at the coming festivals? Do you have a scared look in your eye; an awkwardness in your manner at meeting people? Perhaps this comes from an unsureness in your personal appearance—a desire to look and feel differently but not the right incentive has been found.

Perhaps a visit to "Cleopatra" at Cinderella's Beauty Shoppe, 1276 E. 46th st., CE. 2-9889, is just that incentive. Beautiful hair styles, satisfying facials, lovely hands give confidence. Make appointments early for your rejuvenation. Look your best; self-confidence will follow.

See your house become a home. Let Sadler and Sons do the job. Expert carpenters, paparhanging and painting. Free estimates. Catering to the people who appreciate and know good workmanship. Call CE. 2-0819 for all repair and building.

"The Place Where Nice People Eat"—Jolivet and Carroll, 1106 E. 40th pl. Specializing in good home-cooked meals and Spanish dishes—tacos, enchilladas, homemade chili and tamales. Expert preparation in a cheerful atmosphere. We encourage family groups.

Sportsman Barber Shop, 111 Weller st. C. C. Server and two efficient barbers specializing in courteous, personal attention to all. Featuring ladies' work, facials, gases—plain and scented. Conveniently located. Open Sunday 'til 3 p.m.

Patronize these shops and mention this column when you shop there.

James Davis is Oakland Furrier

The success of the recent Beta Pi Sigma sorority's fashion review, with furs as a main feature, is still being discussed in prominent circles. A brief error, in The EAGLE'S report on the affair, is up for correction. Mr. James Davis of Oakland, Calif., was the furrier and not Smith, as last week's article stated. Charming Mrs. Jane Nealy is business manager of the sorority.

The Charm of You

By NATALIE T. SCURLOCK
For the NNPA News Service

Out of all the millions of people everywhere, how many really stick to that day-before Christmas-promise that, "Next year I'm going to do my Christmas shopping early." It's a safe bet that those who do are rare people indeed.

Not only must you shop for gifts for loved ones but there are things to get for the house, apartment or room. A little holiday decoration always seems to help you get in the mood. Yes, and cards to buy, address and mail; the house to slick up and a million and one small chores to be performed.

Well, time is growing short which means that you will have to budget what time is left in order to finish all the things that must be done. Okay, so let's see if these suggestions and ideas will help in getting things organized.

First, the gift list should be made up and for heaven's sake, don't forget Cousin Jane as you did last year. No doubt you will be working within the limits of a budget. It might be wise, therefore, to write opposite each name the amount you wish to spend for that gift. You may also like to jot down an appropriate gift that may be purchased within that price range.

After toying with this list until you have things fairly well lined up you may find that you are planning over your budget. Do try to stay within it's limits on paper anyway. The temptation to over-spend will be much greater when you go to town and having a balanced list will do a great deal toward helping you wrestle with and overcome the urge to get something more expensive. When figuring remember to include extra taxes where applicable.

Of course, you will buy your wrapping paper, ribbon and other package decorations when you purchase your gifts. Remember to ask for boxes for your gifts if they are not suitably boxed when bought. If you find that you have a little money left over it may not be a bad idea to buy an "in case" gift—in case you failed to include someone on your list. Make it something that will be useful to a man as well as a women.

You may postpone wrapping gifts that will be exchanged personally but wrap and mail as soon as possible gifts going out of town to insure their arriving before Christmas. Be sure to write clearly, on both sides of the well-wrapped package, your address as well as the address of the person to whom it is being sent.

In all the hustle and bustle of shopping do make your purchases appropriate, useful and worthy of the recipient as well as the giver, and take a little extra time to wrap them, or have them wrapped, beautifully. By doing this you let the other person know that your gift is given not just because it's the thing to do but because you wanted to and enjoyed it.

One, two, three, four—Christmas is doing it again—sneaking up on us slowly but surely. So little time left and still a hundred and one odd things to do. Well, anyway, the gift shopping is done, packages wrapped and mailed, and cards all signed, addressed and ready to drop in the mail box.

Now, to slick up the living quarters. Whatever it is you call "home"—be it a house, an apartment, or a room—it just must be joined up and given a bit of Christmas atmosphere. The larger the home the bigger the job. Hooray for you if you can get someone to come in and take the whole business off your hands!

Most people like to start at the front of the house and work back, so drag out your mop and pail and get busy. At this point a man comes in very handy provided you can persuade him that your cause will be lost without some help from his reservoir of strength and might. He can wax the floors or wash the windows to the music of your carpet sweeper. Cozy little picture, isn't it?

Whether you are successful or not in securing his help, the job must be done. Plan your work so that there will be no necessity for going over something that has already been done. Brush off the furniture first and cover with newspapers. Wash off the woodwork, if you plan to do it, and then the windows and mirrors. Dust, polish the furniture and the floors, and sweep off the rug. After you have cleaned thoroughly, the curtains or drapes are hung. Following a similar procedure with the remainder of the house you will find that you are through before you know it.

While you are cleaning don't forget to sing because it not only helps you finish the job more quickly and makes your work more pleasant but it cleans out the corners of your heart as well.

Now you are ready to add the decorations. They can be as expensive or as inexpensive as you care to make them. If your front door is adaptable "hang out the welcome sign" by placing some sort of decoration on it. It may be a wreath of holly leaves and berries tied with a wide red satin bow or an arrangement of pine cones and Christmas bells that actually tinkle a welcome when you open your door.

Usually, most of the Christmas decorating is done in the living room and dining room, though this, of course, is up to you.

No matter what else you do in the way of decorating, there must be a tree—as large or as small as you like—but a tree there must be! If there are no children in the family you may want just a small tree to sit on the table though many grown-ups enjoy a large tree with all its trimmings as much, or more, than children. As well as giving you a feeling of good cheer and warmth, a tree provides a nice background for holiday entertaining.

If you use lights on the tree make sure they are in good condition. If they aren't they can be a fire and shock hazard, so repair old sets or buy new ones. The new soft-hued fluorescent lights with coral, maize, green, and blue bulbs shed a mellow, lovely glow.

A fireplace, if you have one, lends itself very nicely to decorations. Try an arrangement of evergreen branches, colored balls, and two cardboard Christmas trees on the mantel. Light from the back with a string of tree lights. If your mantel is low, drape a swag of greenery on the wall over it. The swag can be made easily by wiring or tying together evergreen, laurel or magnolia snippings.

Make a snow scene centerpiece for your table of sheet cotton, dime store Christmas trees and a cardboard doll house. Cut panes from windows of the house and paste tissue paper inside to cover the openings. To light it use a flashlight inside or a small-watt bulb in an upright, medium, screwbase socket. If you use the latter, run the electric cord inconspicuously under your own plate or the back of the table, and thumbtack it to the under side of the table so the house won't be pulled off.

There are just lots and lots of lovely ideas for decorating but remember not to overdo it. It is better to have too little than too much.

The correct responses to last week's quiz are as follows:

No. 1. With less than two honor-tricks rarely, if ever does a scientific player raise the level of bidding from one to two in any suit other than his partners, with less than 2 honor-tricks and a 5 card suit; so with a 5 card suit and less than 2 honor-tricks bid the suit that will not raise the level of the contract.

No. 2. With seven cards in one suit and a half honor-trick you may raise the level of bidding—hence the correct response is 2D.

No. 3. With 2½ honor-tricks and a biddable 4 card suit, bid it even at a higher level rather than bid 2 NT and contort the true value of the hand. In this case the hand has too much honor strength to give a single raise, so the correct response is 3H, however, one could not be criticised for a 2club response since all the requisite are present.

The correct responses to the above hands are simple to those who followed the instructions within this column for the past four weeks.

If Only My Spot

If only my Spot could talk
I'm sure he would tell everyone
Exactly how this murdering
Lynching was done.

In this heart of mine
I know this shouldn't be
Hate, bitterness toward the white
For they've killed part of me.

I don't know why they killed them;
Perhaps for a grudge,
But between heaven and hell
God shall be the judge.

They lie, they cheat,
Put us in chains;
They rob, they kill,
And say we are to blame.

But we are rising,
And this time not to fall,
For we have a just God
And he sees it all.

And they shall be punished
For all the wrong they did,
And that from God
Cannot be hidden.

PETE JOHNSON — Cafe Society in New York City and the irrepressible Boogie Woogie of Pete Johnson are synonymous, so it shouldn't be news to you that Pete has been moved from downtown, to Cafe Society Uptown for an indefinite stay. THE REALM OF RELIGION

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

Subject: A Message of Love. Devotional reading, Luke 2:1-20. Lesson Text and Outline John 3:16; Ephesians 3:14-21. Motto Text 2 Corinthians 9:15.

Introduction

God's message of love is presented in the angelic announcement of the birth of a saviour, which is Christ the Lord; in the availability of eternal life through faith in his only begotten Son; in the attainment of the greatest of the graces. Christian love; and in the ability "to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge."

Comments

Jesus Christ is the only begotten Son. This magnifies his love in giving Him for us, in giving Him to us; now know we that He loves us; when He has given His only-begotten Son for us, which expresses not only His dignity in Himself, but His dearness to His Father; He was always His delight. For the redemption and salvation of man, it pleased God to give His only-begotten Son. He not only sent Him into the world with full and ample power to negotiate a peace between heaven and earth, but he gave Him, that is, He gave Him to suffer and die for us, as the great propitiation or expiatory sacrifice.

2. When we draw nigh to God, we should revere him in our hearts, and express our reverence in the most suitable and becoming behavior and gesture. Here, having mentioned Christ, we cannot pass without an honorable encomium of His love. The universal church has a dependence upon the Lord Jesus Christ: of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named.

It is a desirable thing to have Christ dwell in our hearts; and if the law of Christ be written there, and the love of Christ be shed abroad there, then Christ dwelleth there. Christ is an inhabitant in the soul of every good Cristian. Where His Spirit dwells, there He dwells; by means of continual exercise of faith upon him. Christ dwells in the heart by faith. Faith opens the door of the soul to receive Christ; faith admits Him, and submits to Him. By faith we are united to Christ, and have an interest in Him. In our applications to God we should encourage our faith by a consideration of His all sufficiency and almighty power.

When we come to ask for grace from God, we ought to give glory to God. Unto Him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus. In ascribing glory to God, we ascribe all excellences and perfections to Him, glory being the effulgency and result of them all. The seat of God's praises is in the church. That little rent of praise which God receives from this world is from the church, a sacred society constituted for the glory of God, every particular member of which, both Jews and Gentiles, concurs in this work of praising God. The Mediator of these praises is Jesus Christ. All God's gifts come from Him to us through the hand of Christ; and all our praises from us to Him through the same hand. And God should and will be praised thus throughout all ages, world without end; for He will ever have a church to praise Him, and he will ever have His tribute of praise from His church. Amen. So be it; and so it will certainly be.

Comment on the Motto Text

The gracious gift is the Son of God Himself, our Saviour from sin, our Lord in time and eternity. Think of Bethlehem with its angel's song. Think of Calvary with its darkness and death. Think of Olivet with its ascension grace and glory. He is the unspeakable Gift. The generous giver was God our Father who so loved us that He gave His only begotten Son to redeem us from all iniquity and to purify unto himself a peculiar people zealous of good works. The grateful recipient accepts the gift, reciprocates the love, and dedicates himself with all that he has and with all that he can be and do to hasten that time when the kingdom shall be the Lord's.

Christian Science Text on Atomic Force

The question "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" will be the Sunday Lesson-Sermon subject in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. The Golden Text is from Deuteronomy: "Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is."

In a selection from Mark's Gospel Jesus "constrained his disciples to get into the ship, and to go to the other side . . . And when even was come, the ship was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land. And he saw them toiling in rowing; for the wind was contrary unto them: and about the fourth watch of the night he cometh unto them, walking upon the sea, . . . But . . . they supposed it had been a spirit, and cried out: . . . and were troubled. And immediately he talked with them, and saith unto them, Be of good cheer: it is I; be not afraid. And he went up unto them into the ship; and the wind ceased."

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures:" "The real jurisdiction of the world is in Mind, controlling every effect and recognising all causation as vested in divine Mind."

Rev. Henderson Defends Ousting Of 2 Trustees

A. W. Fisher was ousted from the board of trustees of the Second Baptist church because he was "rather contentious," Clarence S. Smith, former board member, testified this week in Superior Judge Alfred L. Bartlett's court.

Fisher and Rev. A. M. Brewer are suing for reinstatement on the board of trustees and for $100,000 damages each. The suit for damages is directed against Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, pastor of the church; James H. Hilton, chairman of the board, and R. A. Huston, secretary of the board. It charges the three church leaders with libelling the plaintiffs.

Rev. Henderson told the court the oustings were legal, under the church constitution. He added that Brewer was not a member in good standing, and that Fisher was not a capable trustee.

McNeil Choir Prepared For Professional Work

Often when mention is made of the Albert McNeil choir, many persons are apt to confuse the organization with the several other musical groups with which the director has been associated. The new choir, which already has been doing some excellent recordings for Decca Record company, is a distinct and independent singing unit prepared for professional work. Performances of the Albert McNeil choir have been so distinctive that the group has been mentioned for appearances with the San Francisco symphony along with such a soloist as Paul Robeson or Kenneth Spencer.

ALBERT McNEIL will direct the McNeil Choir in "An African Trail" at the Second Baptist church, Sunday, December 29, 4:30 p. m.

The choir will be heard Sunday, December 29, 4:30 p.m., at Second Baptist church, 24th street and Griffith ave., in a new and unusual composition. It is a cantata entitled "An African Trail From Manger to Cross," built on folk tunes with a poetic narrative. Clarence Hargrave will read the narrative.

The Euterpian instrumental ensemble composed of the city's most talented youths will appear through the courtesy of Mrs.

CLARENCE HARGRAVE, narrator of "An African Trail," will appear with the McNeil Choir at the Second Baptist church, Sunday, December 29.

Harold A. Garrison, along with instrumentalists Celestine Shambry and Don Lee White. Hazel Chatman, George Comfort, and Georgine Brown are among vocalists who will be featured. "An African Trail" is the work of several splendid musicians. The script was written by the narrator, who also has contributed lyrics and several original tunes.

Many of the melodies are traditional.

Director McNeil holds a Master of Arts in Music from the University of Southern California, and is working on his doctor's degree. He teaches in the city school system, directs music for the Independent church, and is president of the Los Angeles Musicians Association.

Narrator Hargrave was former commentator for the Eva Jessye choir of "Porgy & Bess" fame; once traveled as soloist with the Hall Johnson choir; has had featured roles in Broadway plays, motion pictures and radio, including starring roles in Arch Oboler psychological dramas. The presentation of all these artists in this special work at Second Baptist church is to benefit the Outdoor Life and Health Assn. The Pacific Service Bureau, which recently presented "Wings Over Jordan" locally, is arranging the program. The general public is invited. Donation cards are being offered to finance the occasion.

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

TWO YOUNG LADIES ENTER BUSINESS

One of the blessings which we have derived from the theft of our faithful jalopy some weeks ago, is that we have been thrown suddenly and completely into the brisk (to say the least) fight which the people have to make to get on a trolley car or bus and get a seat. In fact, four weeks on Los Angeles trolley cars actually gives one something to write about for as long as he finds the energy and interest to write it. One of the blessings we have derived from this much slower and vastly less comfortable but lots more entertaining method of transportation over this swell though crowded and sprawling city, has been the finding of several instances of individual thrift, energy and brains which have resulted into ventures into business by young Negro people. At this time we wish to share with you our discovery of two young and enterprising ladies.

NELLIE'S GIFT SHOP

While waiting, with plenty of time to spare, for the J car on West Jefferson and Van Buren our attention was called to an interesting show case display just behind the waiting spot on the South side of the street. We stepped back a piece and read the sign "Nellie's Gift Shop" and another one reading "Personalized Gifts." I looked into the shop and lo, to our surprise, the Nellie whom I saw was a young pleasant but business-like brown person. We walked into the store and looked around and were pleased to note that the store was well organized (as to fixtures, etc.) and that the shelves were full of good looking stock and the show cases were neatly and attractively arranged, giving the impression that a hand trained by experience had arranged them.

We then planned to return and learn more. Well, we did. And here is the story:

When William Gilchrist was brought to L.A. by the army several years ago he wrote his wife Nellie, who was back home in Toledo, Ohio, that L.A. was the place they were looking for. When discharged from the army William induced Nellie to give up her job in the gift shop where she had been employed for eight years and flee with him to Los Angeles where he would see to her getting a gift shop of her own. When they arrived in their new home town and had found a place of abode the first thing Nellie did was to go out looking for a place for her shop. And just like pennies from heaven did this little shop come to her attention. And it was closed and for rent. And exactly a month after their arrival, on one February morning 1944 Nellie's Gift Shop opened its door for business.

Miss Nellie Gilchrist was born outside of Toledo, educated in Toledo schools and Lincoln University, Mo. and so she hasn't let grass grow under her feet when it comes to intergrating herself into her new home town. They joined Trinity Baptist church and Mrs. Nellie is active with its Art and Organ Guild, which she says will bring Roland Hayes to the Philharmonic this season. She is a member of Les Dames Charity Club, which Lillian Randolph-Case organized. She plays bridge with the High Noon Bridge Club and, believe it or not, she is also vice president of the West Side Chamber of Commerce, which will soon deliver a business directory to your home. Our hat is off to this enterprising young woman and we hope to meet you in there buying Christmas cards and gifts such as Nellie personally personalizes for you.

PARKLON 5 & 10

We were awaiting a South bound Avalon trolley car, one afternoon, when our eyes beheld in large letter the words "PARKLONG 5 & 10". Beneath the sign we could see a face we had seen many times before, so we went over to investigate. The person was Miss Cordova Adkins, who after attending UCLA was until recently an agent of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company. We asked her "what does this mean?". She explained that several of her friends and she began saving money with which to go into such a business. She thought so much of the idea that she entered USC during the fall term of 1945 and took a course in managing a small business. There were five in the group over two years ago when they began saving for the idea but by the time they ran across a suitable building there were only three but despite the fact that they were not quite ready for the venture they took a lease in a shop which is on the corner of a building which had only recently been moved on the corner of E. 47th street and Avalon blvd. So Miss Adkins gave up her position with the insurance company and opened the Parklon 5 & 10 directly across the street from Fishers Mortuary. At first the stock and store fixtures were pretty scarce. But the neighbors began coming in and buying such as was there until by adopting the policy of putting all of their profits into the business they now have a store and show case full of Christmas and school supplies and such other household, yard and garage needs as we would not like to go great distances to secure. So the "Parklon" is now a going concern and beginning January first the second of the three co-partners, Mrs. Georgia Peters, also of the Golden State Insurance Co. staff, and whom we have had the pleasure of knowing for many years, will put in half time in the store, in the place of the hired clerk now employed. The silent partner, we suspect is another Golden Stater with whom we are well acquainted. Both of these enterprising young ladies are well known in Los Angeles and their friends and the neighbors of the store are sure to give them the support they so richly deserve.

LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

Well, the grid season is breathing its last and some pro teams wound up play here and out of town last Sunday. The championship game in New York City between the Chicago Bears and New York Giants found the Bears winning 24-14. That was in the National League. In the All-America Conference the Los Angeles Dons battled the Chicago Rockets to a 17-17 tie here at the Coliseum. Pacific Coast League games provided the following results: the Los Angeles Bulldogs swamped the Sacramento Nuggets, 57-7, and Hollywood defeated San Francisco, 17-14 . . . Marion Motley, Cleevland's pro football fullback, who made the Associated Press second team for the nation's all-pro selections, was picked by the United Press in its selections for the All-America Conference all-star pro grid team. Motley went to the University of Nevada. He was picked in the fullback position . . . A bulletin last Saturday said that Mike Jacobs, 66-year-old New York fight promoter, was doing okay. Jacobs, who has been seriously ill, was recently stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage and later, a heart attack. Joe Louis visited him in New York at St. Clare hospital recently . . . Mrs. Della Long, wife of Coach Fred Long of Wiley, will accompany her husband here when the Wildcats play Florida A. & M. in the Angel Bowl Saturday, December 28 . . . The beautiful Santa Anita race track opens Dec. 28 . . . Proposals to eliminate the point after touchdown and for playing of extra periods to determine the winner in all games were offered for consideration to National Football League club owners last weekend . . . In Southern League basketball games among the prep schools last weekend, Jefferson defeated Washington, 43-40; Los Angeles tripped Roosevelt, 44-27; and Manual Arts shaded Fremont, 39-37 . . . In the Jefferson High cafeteria Monday night the annual football stag was held with appropriate ceremonies . . . Listed in the Henry Armstrong fight stable now are Smuggy Hursey, a middleweight; Billy Reed, featherweight; Keith Nuttall, who is 17 now and will turn pro during 1947, and Sonny Boy West, also a feather. Harry Armstrong, Henry's foster-brother, and Pee Wee Beale are trainers for the stable . . . "Sugar" Robinson will be entertained at Henry Armstrong's Melody Room in New York City Friday night . . . Ice hockey is becoming the rage here now with the L. A. Monarchs exhibiting a splendid team.

THAT ANGEL BOWL GAME

Fast being fanned to fever heat by an ever increasing interest among the fans and alumni of Wiley and Florida A. & M., the Angel Bowl game which will be unveiled at Wrigley Field on Saturday, Dec. 28, bids fair to become an annual major sports event. Talk everywhere is on the game and surprisingly the socially-minded sex are going for it in a big way. Talk is being heard more among them as to what they'll wear rather than the probable outcome of the game. So besides looking like a sports event of note to the men-folk, this game will probably be a killer for new fashions for winter football. All in all it looks like a social as well as a financial success, because insofar as ticket sales are concerned reports escaping from the Central avenue office of the Bowl officials indicate a complete sell-out. For that reason may we sincerely urge you to avoid the lines at the ticket windows by purchasing those valuable ducats now at the places listed in an ad being carried this week and next on the sport page of the California EAGLE. You may be sorry if you don't. Anyway, we hope to see you there. It will be quite an occasion.

Wiley 'Cats' Due Here On December 27

By KERVEN CARTER

MARSHALL, Tex.—The Wiley Wildcats will leave here for Los Angeles on Christmas morning, where they will meet the powerful Florida A&M Rattlers on December 28 in the first annual Angel Bowl game. Twenty-eight players, Coach and Mrs. F. T. Long, Assistant Coach Marvin Comins and trainer Harold Daniels will make up the business end of the Wiley party. They will travel by special Pullman over the Texas and Pacific Railway to El Paso and Southern Pacific to Los Angeles, arriving at the scene of the battle the morning of December 27. A stiff workout is scheduled for that afternoon.

Accompanying them on their first trek to the west coast will be two additional Pullmans with East Texas supporters of the Wildcats. President and Mrs. E. C. McLeod of Wiley College, President-emeritus H. W. Dogan, Professor H. J. Mason, business manager, and Mrs. H. L. Bradford, registrar, will make the trip. Dr. T. L. Hunter, Wiley trustee and prominent Marshall dentist, will lead a group of business and professional men that includes Dr. Charles Patterson, successful drug store operator; Dr. F. E. Williams and Dr. G. T. Coleman, local physicians; Dr. H. W. Reid, Port Arthur; Dr. Mye Haddox of Shreveport, Dr. B. K. Knight and Dr. R. D. Douglas of Jefferson, Dr. Joe Brown of Longview and Dr. Holmer Brown of Dallas.

G-Clefs Defeat L. A. Police On Cage Floor

The G-Clefs, Lee Young's entry in the triple AAU, made their debut at the Pan-Pacific auditorium last Sunday night a winning effort, beating the Los Angeles Police basketball team by a score of 32 to 28 before a good sized crowd.

The Clefs started slowly on the offensive, having but 13 points at the end of the first half, with the cops trailing by 10 points. However, the boys quickly recovered and ran up 19 points to the beatmen's 18. In the second half, Chapman was high scorer for the Clefs with nine points, while Berg of the police, garnered seven baskets and one free throw for fifteen points.

RECORD GROSS for an indoor boxing match in Los Angeles was set when John Thomas fought California Jackie Wilson for the benefit of West View Hospital at the Olympic in September. They drew $34,652.

Lincoln University of Missouri will meet Prairie View in a grid game in Houston, Tex., on New Year's Day.

Cisneros Meets Grupico Friday

Larry Cisneros, ranked among the first ten in the nation's lightweight boxing division, will tangle with Vic Grupico, tough San Francisco battler, in the 10 round main event bout at Hollywood Legion stadium, Friday night, Dec. 20.

Cisneros, who made several good fights here, has been battling with considerable success in the east for the past few months. In his last Los Angeles bout he scored a t.k.o. over Memo Llanes. Grupico has beaten Jimmy Joyce and Charley Smith.

Testimonial Dinner Honors Joe Louis in New York City

NEW YORK—More than 700 people, including celebrities in sports, theatrical and professional fields, paid tribute to Joe Louis as a "great fighter and a great American," on Monday evening, December 16, in New York City.

The theme of the dinner, held on the Starlight Roof, was the "New South" with Clark Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Percy Green, editor of the "Jackson Advocate," and Jennings Perry, columnist, discussing the South's role in the nation today.

Frank Sinatra, chairman of the dinner committee, was master of ceremonies. He was assisted by Duke Ellington and Jean Muir who acted as his co-chairmen.

Verbal tributes to Joe Louis were made over radio station WMCA by Walter White, General John Reed Kilpatrick, Carole Landis, Ham Fisher, Burl Ives, Etta Moten, W. C. Handy, Duke Ellington, Frank Sinatra, and many others.

L. A. Bulldogs Play Hollywood Bears Sunday

Hottest football rivalry in the Pacific Coast Pro Football League starts Sunday at Gilmore Stadium with the burly Los Angeles Bulldogs facing the belligerent Hollywood Bears in their first game in their annual series.

The opening of the series was postponed from early season because of a conflict of dates. However, the delay has only added to the heat of the fray.

The Bulldogs are currently leading the southern division of the Coast League and the Bears would like nothing better than to drop the Los Angeles team a few notches.

Hollywood stars include Ezrett Anderson, famed pass catching end and Chuck Anderson, rugged Ohio State wing.

The Bulldogs have lost but one game so far this year, an upset affair at the hands of the San Francisco Clippers.

Don Barksdale Stars But UCLA Loses, 54-49

Don Barksdale led the UCLA Bruins in scoring with 16 points but it went to no avail late last week at Westwood when the Santa Clara Broncs blazed their way to a 54-49 cage victory over the clawing bears, with Dick O'Keefe in the rider's seat, ringing up 20 markers.

The half-time score found UCLA leading 28-23. In the preliminary game the Trojans defeated the University of Redlands 54-33. UCLA's Frosh won over Santa Monica City college, 39-29, in the preliminary to the preliminary.

Gene Kelly first learned to dance to win a part in a high school class play.

John Thomas In Close Win Over Barnum

John Thomas, 139, high-ranking lightweight boxer, had a tough nut to crack Tuesday night in the Olympic's closing boxing show but went on to nab a close 10-round decision over Joey Barnum, 142, after a hectic battle which found Barnum crowding the clever lightweight from round one until the end of the battle.

Barnum figured that his best bet was to continually crowd his foe and while this method was the most logical procedure, Thomas used a fast left to stab him as he bored in and garnered quite a few points without having to exert himself too much.

Freddie Beshore, 191½, scored a split decision over Babe Edwards, 176, in the six-round semi-windup.

Southern Ready For Tuskegee In Xmas Game

The game is a natural and every one of Dal-Hi stadium's 25,000 seats is certain to be filled with an overflowing crowd. Southern, undisputed champions of the tough Southwestern Conferenc, and Tuskegee, with a ten won and one loss record for the season, give the game championship flavor and the winner could rightfully claim the championship of the entire South. HIPODROMO DE TIJUANA.—Crown him king of the handicappers. Yes, that is the title that Cargo Ship earned by defeating the best the border course could offer in the feature event here last Sunday. The two-year-old Dark Air was second and Metaphan, third. The winner, a popular choice, paid $3.60 straight.

"The Nogales" allowance at 5½ furlongs, was won by that good sprinter Dinkum. The winner, overlooked in the betting, paid $12.20 for two.

When Wave High, a field horse, paying in the mutuels $9.60, and Crusabelle, winner of the third paid $22.40, the daily-double holders received $586 for two. The Quiniela with Bomb Shelter, the winner, and Sunday Boots, second, paid $37.60.

Four favorites greeted Judge James J. Murphy's charmed circle. Plans are now under way for the famous Dark Town derby which is staged by your writer every year. Moving pictures will be taken by one of the largest movie studios of this popular event and the best Negro jockeys in the country will have mounts. A field of ten horses will travel the mile journey for the prize that will be offered by president and general manager Agustin Silveyra. This is expected to be the most exciting derby ever run.

This Sunday, racing secretary, Judge Joe Walter, has arranged two big feature attractions for the fans with many horses from Bay Meadows competing in the two events. The feature will be "The Christmas Handicap" at one flat mile, and the secondary, "The Kris Kringle," one and one-sixteenth miles. Ten races will be offered with post time at noon. So until Sunday, keep smiling, and drive carefully. Be here to say Merry Christmas. So-long.

Scores of Visitors Due Here For Angel Bowl Grid Biggie

Distances means nothing to the rooting-tooting followers of the Wiley College Wildcats from Marshall, Texas, and the Florida A. & M. Rattlers from Tallahassee whenever and wherever the purple and white of Texas clash with the orange and gold of Florida.

They will not be left behind when their favorite teams journey to the West Coast to battle in the first Annual Angel Bowl game in Los Angeles, December 28, at Wrigley Field.

Dr. E. C. McLeod, President of Wiley College, will put aside other duties and travel two thousand miles to be with "his boys." With him will be Dr. M. W. Dogan, President Emeritus of Wiley; Registrar, Mrs. H. L. Bradford, and business manager, Prof. H. J. Mason.

A contingent of Texans lead by Dr. T. L. Hunter, Wiley trustee, will make the trip in large enough numbers to make known their presence at the game.

Word comes from Tallahassee that the Florida delegation will be just as large and strong, and the local fans, eager to be good hosts, are choosing sides and asking the locations of the rooting sections.

$400,000 Bid For Big Fight

to stage a Joe Louis-Joey Maxim heavyweight title fight in the town below the border and wanted Jacobs as co-promoter.

Manager Kearns said he was sure the bout could be staged in Juarez and suggested building a special arena in an old race track which has a seating capacity of 50,000.

A wire had been received from John Roxborough, Detroit, Louis' manager, by Kearns, indicating that the champ's mentor favored a Juarez championship match.

Cuban Protests Ball Monopoly

Organized baseball in the United States was branded a "commercial, imperialistic monopoly" by Cuban national sports director Luis Orlando Rodriguez, here in conferences with baseball commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

He accused Chandler of "violating the good neighbor policy." Rodriguez said he would protest to the Cuban ambassador in Washington against what he called Chandler's "severe blow to harmonious relations between our nations."

And a prosperous and Happy New Year!

JIMMY DAVIS will be the only Negro in the cast of "To the Living," a play which opened at the Las Palmas Legitimate theatre Monday night and which will continue for two weeks or more. Davis is cast in a group of 14 GI's who are cast in the role of captives in a German prison camp . . . PAUL ROBESON has a great role in the coming flicker "Freedom Road," starring Edward G. Robinson and Robeson and another male star. Fredric March was mentioned but he is unable to take the part, probably due to previous assignments . . . ALBERTA HUNTER had to cancel her engagement at the Apollo in N.Y. due to illness . . . Appearing in Henry Armstrong's Melody Room in the "Big Town" are IDA JAMES, Doc Wheeler and the Dickinson quartet . . . LIONEL HAMPTON and his blazing ork, featured five nights weekly over the Mutual network from New York's Aquarium restaurant, will be heard on the Camel program over CBS Saturday night and on the Teen Timers program over NBC Saturday morning, December 28. In addition to those big assignments Hamp is being carried on the front page of "Metronome," one of the leading magazines of the music world, in its current issue. A story on the "re-bop" king is also carried in the mag . . . SAMUEL BURKE, manager of Cab Calloway and Duke Ellington, has his eyes on the Wazirra Shoaregued dancers, who do Balinese, Cuban and African dances . . . All Los Angeles eagerly awaits the early appearance here of LOUIS JORDAN and his band.

GOSSIP LANE

Any male would be pleased to get EARLINE HOPKINS in his stocking Xmas morning. She's fine as home-spun silk . . . The AL EVANS, JR., family preparing to hold an open house for the holidays calculated to top all open houses . . . Ditto the JOE ADAMS . . . Ditto Yours Truly and many other celebrants . . . TOMMY THOMPSON, the dancer who had charged that Curtis Mosby socked him a couple of times last week withdrew charges in an out of court settlement Monday.

"FREEDOM ROAD"

This writer attended a press confab at the Villa Arlington Monday afternoon on "Freedom Road," the film which will feature Paul Robeson and Edward G. Robinson in starring roles. Present officially were Henry Blankfort, the producer; Leo Hurwitz, director, and Joe Gould, executive director, who explained in detail their ideas on the film and invited questions from the Negro press representatives present. For one thing "Freedom Road" has a budget of $500,000 and Negro investors in the picture are invited. The initial picture will not end the effort but will indeed just be the start of a new trend insofar as Negroes are concerned. "Freedom Road" is a story of a slave who, after many trials, became a congressman, and the role fits Robeson like a glove. In fact, Hurwitz explained, it was written with Robeson in mind for the portrayal of the role. We cannot elaborate too much here, but all in all we sincerely think that it is the most important step in pictures, insofar as Negroes are concerned, ever conceived and we can see nothing but a resounding success for it.

EARL DANCER for whom a gala party, celebrating his 30th year in show business . . a party that will include most of Hollywood's representative personalities will be given on Monday, Dec. 30, at the Club Alabam.

Billy Eckstine On New Record

NEW YORK—Billy Eckstine, the Bronze Balladier with the Golden Voice, sings with strings on his next National record, due for release Jan. 2, on which he revives the beautiful Jerome Kern ballad, "All The Things You Are," a song that is highlighted in the current MGM filmusical, "Till The Clouds Roll By." The romantic singing maestro's vocal is accompanied by the full Eckstine orchestra augmented with a 12-man string section.

On the flipover, maestro Eckstine sings Dizzy Gillespie's Re-Bop bombshell, "Oo-Bop Sh-Bam."

Billy has one hit record on the market, in his National waxing of "My Deep Blue Dream," coupled with his famous theme, "Jelly Jelly," which was just recently released and sold out to the tune of more than 250,000 platters in less than two weeks.

STAR—Ginger Rogers is starred in the "Magnificent Doll" which will be released by Universal-International.

"BORN TO KILL"

"Born to Kill" has been selected as the final title for the RKO Radio production previously known as "Deadlier Than the Male."

'Miss Fine Brown Frame' Is Basis for Johnson Battle

NEW YORK—The powers-that-be who control Atlantic City's traditional "Miss America" Beauty Pageant may have included in their contest rules a clause that entrants must be white only, but maestro Buddy Johnson, sponsor of the nation-wide "Fine Brown Frame" contests, indicated this week that he will carry his case to the highest courts of justice to win recognition in the "Miss America" Pageant next summer for the girl crowned "Miss Fine Brown Frame of America."

Buddy had no idea that he would encounter the obstacle of a color line in entering "Miss Fine Brown Frame of America" as a contestant for the crown of "Miss America" in the 1947 Atlantic City Pageant until the lily-white rule was called to his attention.

"Miss Fine Brown Frame of America" will be crowned by Buddy on Friday night, December 27, at the Golden Gate Auditorium in New York City when the young maestro will culminate his nationwide search for the girl with the finest brown frame in all America, as glorified on his smash hit Decca recording of "Fine Brown Frame." More than 200 bronze beauties from every section of America will compete for the coveted crown of "Miss Fine Brown Frame of America," who will win a $300 cash award, a silver loving cup, a screen contract with the Associated Producers of Negro Motion Pictures, contracts for a series of commercial endorsements, and a lucrative salary for a coast-to-coast theatre tour co-starring with Buddy and his "Walk 'Em Rhythm" orchestra.

"I'll use every resource at my disposal to fight this race issue in the 'Miss America' Pageant," declared Johnson. "If 'Miss Fine Brown Frame of America' is barred as a contestant, it will only be after my associates and I have exhausted those resources."

DALLAS, Tex. — (Special) — Muriel Rahn, concert star invaded Texas and Oklahoma last week on a triumphant recital tour that took the great Southwest by storm. Appearing in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Corpus Christi and Oklahoma City in City Auditoriums all the way, Miss Rahn lived up to all expectations and won excellent press reviews from Southern critics.

Typical of comment received was that of Patricia Peck of The Dallas Morning News. Said Miss Peck, "Carmen Jones can now give way to Muriel Rahn. The erstwhile 'Carmen' of Billy Rose's estatement of Bizet's opera, emerged here last evening as a gifted and intelligent concert artist with a big soprano voice, full and sure at the top, and with a rich dark quality in the lower range."

Miss Rahn returned to New York for the holidays but will be off again soon on a mid-western tour that will take her to Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Dayton, Indianapolis, Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City, Topeka and Chicago. On Easter Sunday evening she will appear in New York Town Hall, and follow this with Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and a few points south.

Star-studded cast of "Beggar's Opera" includes Alfred Drake, Libby Holman, Zero Mostel, Avon Long, and Mildred Smith.

'To the Living' Gives Timely Message on Futility of War

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

A speechless audience applauded four curtain calls of the Actors Lab production of "To the Living" on opening night at the Las Palmas theatre. The 24 year old playwright, Anthony Palma, stages his tragedy in a German prison camp where a dozen GI's, starved and disillusioned, are imprisoned.

Frustrated, quarrelsome, and disgusted with the folks back home, they hope against hope that some help will come to them. They begin to realize the futility of their escape when Allied Air Force bombs, seeking guns the Germans have placed close to the marked PW buildings, kill their own men, Jewish soldiers who have been segregated.

In spite of certain weaknesses in the play, Danny Mann, who staged the production, has packed it with strong characterization and movement. The first act, a little too bombastic to "feel" in the beginning, lags; but after one has caught the mood of the setting, the intense pitch of the second and third acts leaves one drained of energy.

Highlighting the play, several scenes displaying the unusual dramatic ability of the Lab actors were the physical attack on a hypocritical Christian, the violent murder of a traitorous comrade, the drawing of one to report for farm duty, the last supper scene, and the final bombing of the building.

William Cottrell as Pastor relieves the heavy melodrama with a bit of humor. Jeff Corey as the soldier embittered against the perpetrators of war and Philip Pine as the sensitive young bewildered soldier give impresionable performances.

Jimmy Davis, only two weeks in the production that has been in rehearsal four months, is given a small but important role, which he handles admirably well. In one dynamic statement, he gives the cry of the Negro people.

Theatregoers will long remember the timely message, the uselessness of war, which many have so soon forgotten. "To the Living" has been well rehearsed and excellently casted. All theatre-lovers interested in fine drama should see this production.

Mrs. J.T. Gipson's Candid Comments

Dear Mrs. G.: You mentioned some time ago in one your columns that "the Apple" (or N. York to those at are unhepped) feels keenly the drop in nightclub siness and entertainment. Well, I think you'd sure bet- add that the "Angel City" might well be included, for far as a Sepia nightclub is concerned, there isn't ONE at is successfully running with any worthwhile enter- inment . . . I see your friend Joe Louis has bought the himboogie in Chi (he owned most of it anyway) for a m of $12,000, and Leonard Reed now produces and ncees the shows . . . The fashionable Harriett Wadely, ho'se been bedded with ole man flu, is up again and ntertained her club at the lovely Crystal Tea Room . . . ay Mrs. G., how about this Chinese glamour gal (in the lollyw'd district), who often frequents some of the (ex- lusive) after-hour spots on this side of town, and who ost $5000 in gems and couldn't squawk (not only for the ake of a local entertainer on this side of town) but her utter-and-Egg-Foo-young man couldn't stand the spot- ight, ha, ha . . . On your file of "must attend" I see you ave the Hi-Hatters semi-formal bid dance out at the Riverside Rancho on Dec. 23 . . . You know Anita Turner idn't marry after all. She was just in another one of her 'playful" moods . . . Not just 'cause he's your doc, but I think Dr. Welles Forde is about the most PROGRESSIVE Negro doctor and surgeon on the coast, that medical lab- oratory located in the rear of his office stands equal to any I've seen yet . . . Saw attractive Betty Scott t'other day and she's completely out of that ole cast she's been wearing for an awful long time . . . "The Angel City's gift to women," Arthur Loggins, back in town, lookin' sharper than Carey Grant could ever look . . . With Dorothy Woot- son, Ruth Shelton, Corrine Ashby and Mae Gibbs a judge would have a heckuva time tryin' to pick a "sweater girl" . . . they all would rate highly . . . Lela Robinson's heart is as limp as a nightie, Paul White is the guy that cupidood it . . . Didja know that the lovely mom of cute Mable Brous- sard Stokes is in town? . . . The Flennoy Trio won't open out at the Streets of Paris as advertised on account of ($$$) trouble but are booked to open at a Central Avenue spot, which should help the situation at that lounge quite a bit . . . You know G.G., rumors are flyin' 'round town that Muriel Andrade and Joe Louis are as close as two coats of paint. At any rate, those diamond ear-rings and pin are a worthwhile gift . . . The Four Step Bros. now in the Windy City . . . SUDDEN THAWT: Will Claudell Hines please contact Mrs. G. . . . You were certainly right when you told me about the announcement that's being made over the radio about Negroes now being able to attend the Avadon ballroom, gee! after all the money they spend there or have spent there, they should OWN the place . . . but dig this, Mrs. G. . . . they say as long as you behave yourself you are always welcome . . . ARE THEY KIDDIN'? . . . The press agents definitely do not overrate Pearl Bailey when they say she is one of the nation's best entertainers today . . . I understand that Cee Pee Johnson has an offer to go abroad, but where in the heck is Cee P[illegible]e? . . . Songstress Mable Scott is wowin' 'em in "the Apple" with her version of "Every Little Doggie Has Its Day," just like she set nite-lifers here . . . Aside to Al Mon- roe: Mrs. G. wants you to know she never received your epistle . . . the railroad dope you sent it by lost it . . . J. D. Crawford has "softening of the hearteries" all over a "cutie of a beauty" who answers to the name of Erma Jean . . . Faye Wilson (Danuse to you) is doin' a "lotta hip hurlin' " at Cafe Society . . . Audrey Parker, who's still in town from 'Frisco, is ridin' 'round town in some awful fine rubber . . . I'm just like you, G., I can't seem to under- stand why I always get those chills up and down my spine whenever I hear Woody Herman's "In the Dark" . . . The sudden death of famed comedian Ben Carter stunned all the theatrical world and many others . . . Ben will long be remembered for his willingness to cooperate on any worthwhile affair . . . You know I think whenever a mu- sician begins slipping, he moves from band to band . . . Whenever you get a chance, Mrs. G., ask Pheuw John- son what he'd like for Santa to bring him Xmas . . . YOU'D be interested . . . Hey, boss, 'ja notice the revived spark in Jane Wilds' eyes since she's been keepin' saner hours? . . . We still agree with you 'bout the "Giddings Profes- sional Pharmacy"; it's about the most up-to-date phar- macy we've seen yet . . . You know in Hollyw'd Inez Hen- derson would be referred to as "the gal who has the kind of legs a doll needs to climb the ladder of success" . . . J. B. ($$$) Brown asked Jimmy Pitts if he liked bathing beauties. "Don't know," was the reply, "never bathed any!" . . . What's the matta with your Uncle Sid these days; he's awful quiet, or could it be that he's changed? Yeah! I'm jus' kiddin' . . . Cute and shapely Bettie Jean Allen strolled into the Clark lounge t'other noon hour in some beige creation exposing curves in "jus' the right places" . . . How's this for a sign-off? "A snob looks down on people because he hasn't the courage to look them in the eye."

Geechie Smith and Orchestra Sign To Cut Discs For Capital Records

HOLLYWOOD LOVES HIM—After three years in the South Pacific with the U. S. Army, Geechie Smith, singer and trumpeter, is back in civvies fronting a new band in Hollywood's exclusive Cricket Club. His band has not only created tremendous attention through his Cricket Club engagement but also from his new Capitol record of "Let the Good Times Roll," which is one of the season's top sellers.

Johnny Mercer of Capitol Records this week announced that Geechie Smith and his orchestra, who are currently proving a boffo box-office click at the Cricket club in Hollywood, have been permanently signed to a recording contract as a result of the success of Smith's "Let the Good Times Roll" disc, which was released two weeks ago nationally.

A noted trumpet player and singer, Geechie Smith only recently was discharged from the U. S. army after spending nearly three years in the South Pacific.

Smith's own composition, "Got You on My Mind," has also proved to be successful as the backing to "Let the Good Times Roll." His first four sides were made on a trial basis but his new contract insures him a steady flow of records from Capitol through 1947.

A native of Tulsa, Smith for several years before the war was a prominent member of Ernie Fields' powerful Oklahoma orchestra, which toured the country and played America's leading theaters. Smith comes from a musical family in Tulsa and his younger brother is also active in Oklahoma City as a musician.

Because of the success of his Capitol record, and a previous Capitol record which paired Geechie's own "T-Town Jump" with "The Kaycee Kid," Capitol this week handed him a new contract which will insure him and his band a build-up comparable to that which was given Louis Jordan several years ago on records. Geechie's orchestra is receiving the personal counsel and guidance of Johnny Mercer and Dave Dexter, whose new book, "Jazz Cavalcade," was published recently and who edits the "Capitol News" here in Hollywood for music lovers the world over.

Georgia Jury Acquits Planter of Peonage

ATLANTA.—(NNPA)—Roswell Pierce Biggers, 65-year-old white landowner, was acquitted of peonage charges in the United States district court here last Tuesday by a jury which, after less than an hour's deliberation, announced a verdict of "not guilty."

Biggers had been on trial for more than three weeks here on charges of holding five farmhands in virtual slavery on his 3000-acre Rockdale county farm. The wealthy farmer-businessman was arrested by FBI agents on his farm after complaints were made by the farmhands that Biggers had them arrested on misdemeanor charges, "bought" their release from jail, and then held them on his land to work out small debts.

The jury was charged by Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood shortly after 1 p.m., after hearing final arguments by United States District Attorney Neil Andrews and Defense Counsel Hal Lindsay. At 2 p. m. the jurors went out to lunch, and court was recessed until 3 p. m. Immediately on resumption of Court the verdict was announced by Foreman W. R. Simpson.

Biggers, who frequently had been mentioned throughout the trial as being "hard of hearing," received the verdict through his wife, who, sitting beside him, repeated the foreman's words in a whisper.

investment in such requirements as hospitals, high schools and other things. After a long period and by a big expenditure on the part of our municipality, and the sending of different delegates to Washington, we were granted $10,000,000 even though to date we have not seen the first dollar in circulation, in spite of the fact that the masses are in a starving condition.

"On the other hand, big sums were granted to Puerto Rico, and shortly after that the money was in circulation in Puerto Rico.

"The Virgin Islands placed in the Treasury of the United States far more than the $25,000,000 that was paid for the islands, and the president and every congressman should know that if today we are still in need, it is just because of the fact that such big revenues which could help to build up our island home, go directly into the Treasury of the United States and not our municipal treasury, as the greater part of continental may be thinking. As a result, we are forced to go on knees before congress and beg for a part of what is justly ours.

"Our next request was for a colored Governor. Again after a series of insults and much red tape, and because of the good spirit of the President to cooperate, our desire was granted, but now let's anticipate what may be back of the picture. Hastie's first experience will be that because of his failure to receive cooperation from Washington, money will not be in circulation to any extent as to help the starving masses for Christmas. We read of the governor's good intention to put 100 men at work, but 100 men in jobs will be like just one drop of water in the sea.

"There is one thing, however, that Washington must not lose sight of, and that is that every one of us have our eyes focused on Congress and the Department of the Interior, and that we are keeping check on the extent of cooperation that will be handed down to Governor Hastie as the first colored Governor. His color or his race must make no difference in receiving as much or even more cooperation from Washington than that extended to any white governor.

It's just because of the fact that he is colored that we are expecting the limit of cooperation and justice to him; he has the ability, and no doubt the ambition, to make his administration a success.

"Without honest cooperation and good-will from congress and the Department of the Interior, though, the governor can achieve nothing of any value for the Virgin Islands. Let Washington not forget that the people of the Virgin Islands are hungry, they are 75 percent penniless, and above all they want money with which to feed their wives and children and they are all willing to work for it. Will Washington hear their cry, will justice be done?"

same incident and disturbance which later spread to other parts of the big air base.

Testimony had been given to the mixed court that soldiers stoned autos, attacked officers and shouted threats of "taking over the army and running it."

Declaring "they treated me like a hostage," Lieutenant Colonel Russell G. May, commandant of Negro troops, testified that the men refused to obey his repeated commands to disperse.

Lieut. Colonel T. B. Sanford, a squadron commander, related that he heard one man shout, "We're going to fight for our righs and for our race. We dtid all the bad things (menial jobs editor) in the army and this is what we get. We have to ride in the back of buses."

The officer said the group later shifted to the main gate of the base where a white civilian was beaten down with an iron pipe and another unidentified men in "some kind of uniform" was "nearly scalped" with a broken beer bottle.

Colonel Sanford said the crowd finally "just melted away" after Brigadier General D. R. Hutchinson, base commander, spoke to them.

From Captain D. A. Bolger came an account of how the soldiers threw rocks at army and civilian cars, how they erected a barricade at a main gate and how army officers told sheriff's deputies to leave the scene and let the army handle the riot. A soldier in the group shouted, he said: "Give us guns too. We'll settle this thing. We won the war."

Private Treadwell, he continued, was "wild-eyed" and answered officers commands and pleas to disperse with "Yeah, you'll get us in the mess hall and shoot us."

Lieutenant John L. Pelensky said he heard some of the leaders say: "They were going to take over the army and run it . . . That they were tired of the way the army was being run."

When he addressed Private Treadwell and ordered him to leave the area, Lieutenant Pelensky said he replied: "At ease, lieutenant, I'm doing the talking tonight."

superior court and ordered a new hearing.

Charged with raping Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman, white, on December 24, 1945, Benton was convicted in Richmond county April 13 and sentenced to die in the gas chamber May 31. Benton was convicted solely on the basis of a forced confession, which he later repudiated. No other evidence was offered at the trial. The victim of the alleged attack not only failed to identify Benton, but was not certain that her assailant was a Negro. Evidence in the case against Benton was so weak that the all-white jury, given the case at 5:30 April 12, was hung 7-5 at 10 the next morning. At that time the judge called the jurors back and charged them to make a quick decision. A verdict of guilty was promptly rendered.

Filing of an appeal by the Civil Rights Congress brought an automatic stay of execution.

In view of the evidence submitted in the appeal, Chief Justice Walter Stacy in writing the opinion state, "the closing admonition by Judge Phillips invites thought that it must have impressed the jury with the strength of the State's case and the weaknesses of the defendant's.

"Ordinarily, standing alone, this would perhaps amount to no more than a harmless inadvertence. In this case, however, it may have given color and tone to the court's charges, especially in light of the prior references to voluntariness of the confession. The defendant is entitled to another hearing, and a new trial is ordered," the opinion declared.

MISS LILLY THOMAS, personal friend and housekeeper for the past four years for the late BEN CARTER, was very sad and heart-broken as I talked to her over the telephone Saturday evening. . . She said, CARTER was so thoughtful and always willing to help others. And he was the nicest person in the world to work for. . . I'll miss him and the theatrically world will also miss him. . . No truer words were ever spoken, because BEN CARTER was all those things and more. I first met CARTER about ten years ago. He had at that time, only a little hole in the wall for an office and living quarters on Mountain View near Temple st. Since that time, he rose to be one of Hollywood's most outstanding figures.

He said, I quote: "My wife is the finest woman in the world, but she didn't seem to know how to push me ahead." I couldn't help but laugh in his face when he made that lame-brain excuse—And I might add, I wasn't at all tickled. . . From where I stand it takes two people to separate, so I say to you both (MR. (Continued From Page 1) being to another. You are the only race of Blacks in the world who can help them, who can make their voices heard. This is a task for no individual but for a body of people.

"Whenever I talk to white and black Americans they say conditions in South Africa can't be worse than in the South. They are 100 times worse than in the South; the oppression of the African natives is 100 times more brutal, 100 times more savage. They don't have the right to own land in the town, village or in the city. They are denied the right to learn skilled trades, the right to decent jobs. You can call it what you like, but it is slavery—slavery in its worst form."

Ponting out that the majority of the peoples represented in the United Nations are colored, Senator Basner declared this was no longer a white man's world; the small continent of Europe can no longer decide the fate of the world. It has become urgently important that these colored peoples be heard. Yet to date there is no representative in the UN of the 150,000,000 people of Africa. The 8,000,000 natives of South Africa have no representative. The best they could do, he continued, was to send me. And I am not an African.

He called for implementation of the San Francisco Charter of the United Nations. "This charter says there shall be no discrimination because of race or religion. We've got to make this charter a reality. We have got to if we are going to have peace in the world."

He pointed out that while the Los Angeles daily press generally ignored the discussion in the UN general assembly on racial discrimination, those discussions were reported day after day on the front page of New York daily papers for three weeks. The New York papers also reported in detail the struggle against General Sumt's proposal to annex Southwest Africa; the complaint lodged in the UN by India on discriminatory practices against its nationals by the South African government.

"The nations of the world listened to the Indian government—they heard a new voice—they knew it was the voice of a giant and they listened," he said. "South America for the first time took courage and said the two great western powers—United States and Britain—we don't like your methods. We saw for the first time a revolt of the smaller nations.

"Nehru spoke to the United Nations: 'We come to the UN not to speak only for Indians but for all the colored peoples of the world."

Senator Basner, himself a member of a minority (Jewish), warned American Negroes that their own security is tied up in support for the colonial peoples and for the struggle to make the United Nations organization a living reality, implement its charter to assure the outlawing of discrimination throughout the world.

Senator Basner is in this country as a guest of the Council on African Affairs and a representative of 4,000,000 Africans.

stay, and he had a place." She is also alleged to have said that she had undergone an abortion just a week previous to Carr's death.

According to the arrested woman's story she had been visiting a girl friend and returned with the friend and the friend's escort, bringing a fifth of wine to the victim. She said the victim drank most of the wine before demanding that she "get up. I'm going to beat you up." It was at this point, Mrs. Gentry said, that her friends left.

After retreating all the way across the room, Mrs. Gentry said she entered another girl's room and, reaching in a dresser drawer, drew a knife in an attempt to halt Carr's advance.

Pinned in a corner of the room, the woman said "he was beating me and knocking me around . . . I swung at him . . ."

In her statement, Mrs. Gentry is also said to have charger Carr with beating her habitually.

1500 Properties Go On Auction Jan. 27

(SCP).—Following a sparsely attended auction of county tax-deede property yesterday at the Hall of Justice two more sales have been scheduled on accelerated schedule, Frank Murphy, tax sales division chief clerk, announced.

From 1500 to 4200 parcels of property will go on the block Jan. 27. Assessed valuation is $625,000, but real worth is over $1,000,000, Murphy said.

It had been the aim of General Bradley and Dr. Hawley to appoint, as nearly as possible, the most nationally prominent doctor in his respective area in order to have only nationally recognized doctors on the council.

In the Washington area, however, Dr. Charles Drew, head of the surgery department at Freedmen's Hospital, who was instrumental in organizing the blood bank during the war years, was passed over and Dr. A. C. Christie, a white radiologist, selected instead.

In New York, General Bradley and Dr. Hawley passed over Dr. Louis T. Wright, director of the surgical service at the Harlem Hospital, and first Negro doctor named as police surgeon of that city.

Dr. Wright, a former colonel in the Medical Reserve Corps, was a captain in charge of the surgical wards with the 368th infantry in France during World War 1. His surgical writings have won him membership in the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Wright is chairman of the board of directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Meantime, in Los Angeles, Langston W. Post, regional director of the Federal Public Housing authority, declared housing is no longer a problem, it's a crisis."

Addressing a meeting of the American Veterans Committee, Post urged passage of the Wagner-Taft housing bill, saying it is "the most comprehensive piece of legislation ever to be introduced in congress." He said passage of the bill would aid the nation of slum areas and provide decent housing for citizens in the low and middle-income groups.

Scrapping of the WFyatt housing program was bitterly denounced by Alvin P. Johnson, Los Angeles county chairman of the AVC.

Jackson said the action meant the government's promises of decent housing for the veteran at fair prices were false. He said the AVC would fight harder than ever for passage of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill.

LIFE

Sometimes, when we have things that are very hard to bear, and it seems that life holds for us only bitter fruit, it is encouraging to stop and think that this period is only a part of our charted life, and must be just what we need to help us appreciate the good in our lives.

If things run smoothly all of the time, we cease to appreciate it, but rather take it all for granted. It is said that our lives were charted before we entered them, and we should try to get out of each experience all that we can to enrich, strengthen and help us.

R. F.—Dear Prof. Herman: I haven't written to you for a long time, but I have been following your column each week in The EAGLE and find it just as interesting and helpful as before. I don't have any questions for your column, but I am enclosing three for a private reply which I hope you will answer in the very near future.

B. McC. — Will I ever see J. M. L.?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that you will be successful in seeing this person within the next six weeks. Illness has been the cause of the delay in contacting you, which they will explain when they see you.

C. J. G.—When will I have the luck I need to help me with my bills?

Ans.—After giving your question careful thought I find that your Lucky Stars and Guiding Planet indicate a change in your financial condition which will enable you to pay your debts and get a fresh start for the New Year.

W. C. C.—Will I ever be happy again?

Ans.—There is no reason why you should let this past experience have anything to do with your future, except to make you more cautious in that respect. Otherwise, I suggest you forget about it, and go right on as if nothing had happened. I see many pleasant surprises and your being made quite happy during the holidays.

Mrs. E. I. B.—Will my husband return to me, if so will it be soon?

Ans.—Concentrating upon your question I find that your husband has been away looking for work, but since he has been unable to find steady employment he will probably return home to you as he misses you very much.

Mrs. M. J.—Why can't my husband and I get along?

Ans.—It is revealed to me that you left your husband sometime ago, because of some trivial matter, taking your child with you. Now you would like to return to him and I see no reason why you shouldn't. If it is necessary to visit him first and have a talk and get matters straightened out first, do so. For you both love each other and the baby needs a home.

B. W.—What are the young man's intentions that I am corresponding with?

Ans.—A careful analysis of your question indicates that this young man is extremely fond of you and wants to marry you. He will no doubt ask you a very important question soon.

A. M. V.—What became of my suitcase?

Ans.—It appears to me that your suitcase was stolen. You left this case in a closet which was not locked and during your absence it was taken.

South Park District First to Go Over Top in Chest Campaign, With Adams-Central Close Second

The Community Chest campaign in two local districts whirled to a conclusion this week as both South Park and Adams-Central districts went over the top on their assigned quotas.

South Park volunteers, headed by Mrs. Mary Troy, were first in the city to go over the top on their $1687 quota, followed closely by Adams-Central volunteers, led by Mrs. Josephine Brown, with a quota of $5603.

Funds which put South Park over the top in a surprise move came from division 84, where Mrs. J. S. Peach is colonel. Division 84 is also over the top, and collections are still being brought in.

Both chairmen are expressing pride in work done by their volunteers, and are urging that those who have not yet completed their assignments do so immediately even though the district quotas have been met.

Mrs. Brown was assisted in the campaign by Lonzie L. Jones as vice-chairman, and Mrs. Earle Munford, Mr. Milton W. Alleyne, Mrs. Mabel V. Gray, Mrs. Marie Fredericks, rMs. Gertrude Reese Hicks, and Mrs. Leola B. Wilson, as colonels.

Leaders working with Mrs. Troy included Mrs. T. L. Johnson, vice-chairman, and Mrs. E. Myra Rhetta and Mrs. J. S. Peach, colonels.

Those who have not yet contributed may do so at headquarters at Avalon Community Center, a Chest agency, 4272 Avalon blvd., ADams 3-1200.

Calls for Pilgrimage on Nation's Capital Jan. 2 and 3 In Crusade to End Lynching

WASHINGTON—Seven national organizations, including the National Negro congress and the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America joined this week in issuing a call to culminate the crusade. To end lynching with a mass pilgrimage to Washington, D. C. on Jan 2 and 3.

The call follows:

A wave of lynchings and mob violence is sweeping across America. Though its roots are in the South, it marks the whole nation with the scourge of lawlessness, violence and race hate.

Little more than a year after our victory over Germa and Japanese tyranny, the wanton killings of innocent men and women in our country has become a national disgrace.

The total number of recorded lynchings during the last six months exceeds the number for the entire period of the war. At least 41 have been reported since B-J Day—in Georgia, Louisiana, Florida, South Carolina and Mississippi. The number has mounted monthly.

In almost every instance, the victim was a veteran, recently returned from service in a war to win freedom from fear. The lynchings are intended to strike fear into the hearts of Negro servicemen who have come back to their homes determined to vote and take an equal part in the birth of a democratic South.

These victims were all Negroes. But the pain and the shame of lynching rests upon the entire American nation. Lynching not only flouts and undermines the constitution, whatever our creed. This un-American state of affairs threatens the framework of our democracy, the civil rights of all citizens.

It is the duty of all of us to do our part in wiping out this disgrace to humanity.

At this moment, though there have been many victims, no serious concerted effort has been made by the authorities to stop lynching. Federal action has likewise been negligible and ineffective.

Lynching cannot be permitted to continue unchecked in a nation purportedly founded upon principles of justice and equality.

America must rid itself of the crime of unpunished lynchings. Join us in the American Crusade to End Lynching.

We, the undersigned, morally indignant over this lawless violence, call on the American people to join us in Washington, D. C., January, 1947. From all over the land, we will lift our voices, letting the responsible authorities hear and know that Americans want immediate action to end lynchings.

(Signed)

United Negro and Allied Veterans of America; National Citizens Political Action Committee; American Youth for Democracy; National Negro Congress; International Workers Order; Civil Rights Congress; American Veterans Committee.

Nisei Maid Lets Out With Jujitsu to Foil

(SCP)—The highly-touted art of jujitsu saved Kay Fujisaka, a housemaid, of 418 N. Vista drive, from a possible rape-assault by two white men last Friday.

Miss Fujisaka, 18, American-born Japanese, flipped one assailant on his back, kicked him in the face, and then slugged the other, she told police.

Special Policeman Arrested in Brawl

Obie Deaton, special policeman who shot at Roosevelt Reese, 1823 East 50th st., was arrested, along with Reese, on an assault with a deadly weapon charge. "He had a knife and was in an argument with another man. I told him to drop the knife, but he ran to the other side of the street. I was only trying to keep the peace. I tried to stop him," Deaton is reported to have said.

Arresting officers who happened to notice a crowd at Vernon and Long Beach last Friday night, said that upon investigation they found Deaton shouting and gesticulating at Reese, who was across the street, also screaming.

Reese is said to have defiantly demanded the police "see if you can find the knife."

Fears Riot in Chicago Area

NEW YORK (CNS)—Saul D. Alinsky, co-founder of the "Back-of-the-Yards" community agency in Chicago's stockyard area, reported here this week that Chicago is on the verge of a Negro-white riot of major proportions. Explaining the precautions to be taken in the event of a riot, Alinsky pointed out that the area involved is the same one in which the 1919 riot broke out. Violence flared in the section last week when Negro tenants moved into a housing project near the Chicago Airport.

Imports and domestic production of lead together satisfied only about 50% of America's demand for lead in July.

ANTI-LYNCH MEET IN CAPITAL JAN. 2

U. S. Groups Sending Delegates to Ask Bilbo Ousting, End of Lynching

On January 3, 1947, the 80th Congress of the United States will convene in the nation's capital, but on the day before a less spectacular but far more important event wil take place in the same city.

Immanuel Neumark, executive secretary of the American Crusade to End Lynching announced that on January 2, delegates from organizations, churches, unions and veterans' groups will convene in Washington to demand the ouster of Senator Bilbo and the passage of federal anti-lynching legislation.

Neumark indicated that a planning conference will be held with all delegates followed by meetings with congressional leaders prior to the opening of congress.

"The American Crusade to End Lynching," Nuemark stated, "organized a delegation of 2500 Americans to Wash-

Says Singling Out of Tan Yanks For Attack Unjustified by Facts

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Abolition of segregation and discrimination in the army would solve the whole problem of the Negro soldier, Marcus Ray,, civilian aide to the secretary of war, told a press conference yesterday in reporting upon the conditions he found in his recent tour of army installations in the European theatre.

While in the European theatre, Ray said, he observed nothing which warranted the singling out of Negro soldiers for misbehavior as was done in the report of a preliminary investigation of the American military government in Germany, made by George Meader, chief counsel of the senate war investigating committee, and released by Republican members of the committee after the Democratic majority on the committee had voted it down as based on "mere rumors."

Ray agreed that there was a possibility that the high crime rate charged against Negro soldiers in the Meader report may be due in part to individual prejudices of military police in Germany.

Irritation of military policemen from southern states at fraternization of Negro soldiers with German women, he admitted, might be reflected in the crime rate. It was ex-

On The Sidewalk

By C. A. B.

The California EAGLE was established in 1879 by John J. Neimore, a native Texan.

At the time of the establishment of The EAGLE, which was originally christened "The Owl," there were about 20,000 Negroes in the state.

I shall not attempt to show the part Negroes played in the covered wagon or pioneer settlement days of California. That is a chapter in itself.

But in order to bring my readers up to date, as to the role this newspaper has had in the historial and cultural development of this State, as well as its outstanding fight against any and all forms of racial discrimination, I first call your attention to the fact that in the latter part of the 19th century John J. Neimore, editor-publisher of The California Eagle, introduced the famous Dribble Bill in the State Legislature.

The Dribble Bill provided for the penalizing of persons who discriminated on account of color, against persons applying for accomodations in hotels, restaurants, barber shops, theatres, and similar places of public resort in California.

This blow was struck at the moment the monster, race prejudice, lifted its ugly head.

The early settlers who came the rugged way were not concerned with national origins, race, or color. They came to California to establish better living conditions.

But soon the California rush period brought to the State an influx of Negroes and whites from nearby Texas. The whites insisted upon bringing Texas customs in the treatment of Negroes, with them to the new country. The Negroes, on the other hand, came in search of freedom which they did not have in Texas.

The new editor, John J. Neimore, was immediately adopted as their leader.

Neimore, like John Brown, William Lloyd Garrison, and the other abolitionists, felt that slavery and involuntary servitude was a sin, and discrimination against any citizen or account of race or color should find no quarter in the new country.

Without any ostentation as to the part the first Negro newspaper was to play in the making of a great state, Neimore's introduction of the Dribble Bill was an effort to erase what he knew would be a menace to democracy in the State, and would contribute to the same sort of racial discrimination and friction that he and his people had left behind in Texas.

Under the leadership of Neimore The California Eagle charted its course. It has consistently fought for the rights of the Negro and all oppressed people.

In 1915 it lead the fight against jitney bus jimcrow policy, and called on the Forum and other organizations to go to the city council with the fight. The fight was won, and Negroes rode on jitneys the same as white people.

The EAGLE advocated the passage of the Allensworth School Bill, No. 299, in the State Legislature. The bill passed, and funds were appropriated for the establishment of a high school in Allensworth, a town in northern California established by Col. Allensworth.

It supported Sidney P. Dones, one of the first Negro candidates for the City Council. Although he failed of election, the fact that a Negro ran for the office of City Councilman opened the door for other candidates in later years.

The EAGLE lead the fight against discrimination directed at Negro students in several high schools in the city, and rectified the wrong.

NEGRO PROGRESSIVES COMING INTO THEIR OWN. This headline in The California Eagle in 1915 did not offend anyone in those days, and they were not investigated by any Jack Tenney Committee as being "Reds."

The California Eagle mobilized the citizens of Los Angeles in the first Booker T. Washington memorial celebration, and protested the making and showing of "The Clansman."

The managing editor of The Eagle personally traveled to Houston, Texas, and investigated the riot there of Negro soldiers who had rebelled against the treatment they were receiving at the hands of their white officers. Many were imprisoned, but later set free.

In 1919 the Eagle lead the fight against restrictive covenants when the State Supreme Court sustained a move of the Los Angeles Investment Co. to enforce restrictions against persons other than those of the Caucasian race occupying lots or homes in which the sale deed contained [illegible] a ban.

A demurrer was sustained in favor of the defendants

Murder Climax To Trimming of Christmas Tree

A room in which a Christmas tree had just been trimmed was the scene of the killing of Bert McKinley Britt of 249 E. Vernon, apt. 307. Britt was shot at 1:30 a.m. Sundy, by J. Wesley, of apt. 202, same address, who allegedly got out of bed at hearing Britt threaten to kill his wife, and fired six times at the victim.

Arrested immediately following the tragic climax to an evening of Christmas-tree-trimming, Wesley gave this picture of the Yuletide tragedy:

Mrs. Britt, wife of the victim, who had been in the Wesley apartment all evening, helping Mrs. Wesley trim her tree, went to her apartment to get her husband to "come look at the tree".

Entering the apartment with his wife a few moments later, Britt, who is alleged to have been drinking, is said to have drawn a knife nad announced: I'm going to kill you!" He then is reported to have proceeded to chase his wife about the room.

Wesley, who said he had retired, is alleged to have stated that he got out of bed at this point and emptied his revolver into the victim's body. Britt died almost instantly.

HAPPY FAMILY—Martinez and Rene Hewlett, their comely wives, Carmel and Dorothy, and their blossoming offsprings. Mrs. M. Hewlett is holding Baby Eilaina, born Dec. 4, 1946, while Mrs. R. Hewlett beams on Baby Laura Ann, born Dec. 9, 1946. Flanked by these charming ladies is "Butch" Hewlett (Martinez Jr.) who had his fourth birthday on Dec. 6, 1946. The brothers are veterans of more than three years' service, and have seen service overseas, Martinez in the Pacific theatre and Rene in the European theater. The Hewlett brothers were boon companions of the late John Kinloch, managing editor of The California EAGLE, who was killed in Germany shortly before the termination of hostilities there. The trio had planned a brilliant future for The California EAGLE before entering the service, and the Hewlett Brothers are trying to make the dreams of John Kinloch a reality.

Gunman Fires Three Shots at McGee; Escapes

By Edward (Babe) Anderson

BULLETIN

Melvin Blockshar, 20, of 1364 East 42nd St. was in the prison ward of General Hospital today charged with suspicion of attempt to murder Elihu McGee. Blockshar was treated was treated for a bullet in each arm.

A .32 calibre nickle-plated revolver was the only clue to the identity of the would-be killer who fired three shots at Elihu "Black Dot" McGee at 3:30 a.m. Monday, and who, when ordered to halt by patrolling police, fired two shots at the officers. All shots missed their marks and the gunman escaped by hurtling a fence at 617 East 27th street. The gun was found at the base of the fence.

According to the police, McGee, well-known sportsman and cafe owner, failed to name his attacker. Although he had faced the gunman only a few moments before police arrived, McGee gave only a general description.

The incident occurred at the doorway of the Casablanca Club, 2801 So. San Pedro. Joe Davis, doorman of the popular after-hours establishment, is alleged to have stated that he first saw

Helen Douglas Here; Praises Work of U. N.

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

Helen Gahagan Douglas, the only California member of the house of representatives to weat to weather the Republican hurricane that swept the state last November, came home last night with high praise for the work already accomplished by the United Nations.

Permanent peace, she said, is assured. Atomic control has been agreed upon by the 54 nations through their delegates to the general assembly, of which she is a member. This agreement, Mrs. Douglas said confidently, will speed up general disarmament throughout the world, and will serve as a guaranty against future wars.

What has been generally interpreted as bickering among the Big Three—the United States, Great Britain and Russia—Mrs. Douglas termed simply competition for leadership in junking the means of waging war.

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, Mrs. H. A. Reeves and Mrs. True Appleton motored to Dr. Leonard Stovall's Outdoor Life & Health Sanitarium at Duarte, Calif., last week, to present a check and a Christmas basket to Miss Ruby McNeal, Home Protective Association secretary who is convalescing there.

The group congratulated Dr. Stovall on the appearance and efficiency of the sanitarium. They noted that the health center was well organized and active and that the patients in the sanitarium were happy and contented.

Talmadge's Death Seen Setting Off Georgia Gubernatorial Fight

ATLANTA, Georgia—The Grim Reaper last week took a hand in Georgia politics, administered a definite setback to the hopes of the stat's racist organizations for a new golden era of racial and religious hatred and terrorism with the sudden death of Eugene Talmadge, governor-elect of Georgia, 23 days before he was to have been inaugurated to succeed liberal GovernorEll is Arnall. He was 62 years old.

Talmadge's death loosed a storm of political suppositions as to who would govern the state. There were three principal conjectures:

- That the legislature convening Jan. 13 would elect a governor to succeed Ellis.
- Governor Ellis would hold over for another four-year term.
- Lt. Gov. M. E. Thompson, scheduled to take office Jan. 14

People Must Find Common Ground for Unity, Editor Says

"Common people the world over must find common ground on which to achieve their common goals," Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, Editor-Publisher of the California EAGLE told the Resident Council of the Jordan Downes Housing Project at a meeting on Sunday.

In her speech, the editor stressed the necessity for community organization, pointing out that the community was the keystone of all progress in the world.

Using the celebrated Lovet Case as an example, Mrs. Bass showed the members of the Resident Council what could be accomplished by a small community group.

The Resident Council of the Jordan Downes Project is in the process of organizing the 500 families within the project into an active civic body.

Monday Deadline For Eagle Ads

All advertising copy, changes of ads, etc., must be in The EAGLE's office before closing time Monday, Dec. 30 to insure publication in next week's issue.

This is made necessary by the New Year day holiday. After next week, the Tuesday morning deadline for ads will be resumed.

USES Bars Girl, Rated Highest, For Training

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States Employment Services has refused to select a colored woman as a trainee in the United States Civil Service Commission's administrative interne program despite the fact that she stood highest in an agency wide competition with 400 other employes and received the recommendation of the agency's own certifying committee.

Marie Gurley, personnel administrator for the agency, who ordered the certifying committee to change its recommendation to a white runner-up, said she requested the change because the Negro woman was a war service indefinite appointee while the white runner-up was a permanent employe.

The Civil Service Commission, which sponsors the program, said yesterday that there are no regulations in the program prohibiting a war service employe from being selected on an interne.

The administrative interne program is a six month course offered to federal employes recommended by their agencies as being the best qualified for the program. While taking the course the employe is paid his regular salary by his own agency but spend time in other agencies learning various operations.

The experience gained in the six months course, it is said, can not be gained by the average government worker in ten years of government service. The course is designed to train future government administrators.

2 Probes Launched in Phila. Fire Which Killed Six, Injured 40 Persons

PHILADELPHIA—(NNPA)—Abe's Hotel, a 20 and 35-cents-a-night lodging house, in which six persons were killed and 40 injured in a fire last Wednesday night, had been given a clean bill of health after four different inspections, city officials disclosed yesterday.

Three investigations—two of them by the fire marshal and one by the coroner—are in progress.

Fire broke out in the lodging house at 1708 South Street, late last Wednesday night. Five persons perished last Wednesday and one died last Thursday morning.

The six men dead as a result of the blaze were identified by Carnegie Lester, night clerk of the lodging house, as William Cleves, William Price, Herman Wines, Herman Mims, Antonio Andrew and Charles Jones. They had been listed as residents of the lodging house for more than a year.

The cause of the blaze was still undiscovered yesterday, although Fire Marshal George J. Gallegher believed it started in one of the cubicle in which sleeping accommodations are located.

All the dead men occupied accommodations on the first floor. The fire, which started on the first floor, was confined there, but smoke filled the rest of the building.

The occupants, many of them partly clad, fled into sub-freezing temperatures outside.

The coroner's office announced that a committee had been

Did Almena Davis Inspire Mother's Letter to Eagle

Almena Davis continued this week to ignore the storm of criticism lashing at her in the nations' Negro Press, evidently in the hope that the storm would soon blow over, her Pegler-like attacks on her people forgotten.

Miss Davis' mother was not quite as discreet, however. Or it may be that the local editor is hiding behind the skirts of her mother, had her mother write a letter to Cyril Briggs, managing editor of The EAGLE, and one of Miss Davis' critics, protesting his criticism of the writings of her daughter.

That letter, quite interesting and revealing, will be the subject of our Managing Editor's next and third article on Miss Davis.

Slated for the next issue of The EAGLE that article is something you won't want to miss.

at the time, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gary, in the Superior Court, but a higher court reversed the ruling of the Superior Court judge.

The California Eagle helped send Frederic M. Roberts to Sacramento, the first Negro elected to the California State Assembly.

In 1919 the colored girls of Los Angeles got their first chance at nurses' training in the General Hospital, largely through the efforts of The California Eagle. The first entrants were: Misses Helen Gladden, Theresa Young, Adel Kemp, and Ethel Strother.

Who remembers this?

July, 1919. After a long bitter fight against great odds Police Officer H. L. Garrot won a notable decision from the high court which ruled that "any citizen has a right to buy land at will."

The Title Company appealed to the Supreme Court of the State.

July 10, 1919, the Appellate Court affirmed the decision formerly rendered by Judge John W. Shenk of the Superior Court of Los Angeles County and held with the Trial Court that the clause in the deed which forbade the selling or leasing to persons of color was a nullity.

The effect of this decision is that neither private individuals nor subdividers of tracts in cities in the State of California can insert clauses against selling or leasing to Negroes which the courts will uphold.

The case was decided upon common law grounds.

The courts held that the conditions against leasing or selling to persons of African decent violated the Common Law rules of which Section 711 of the Civil Code of California is declaratory.

"Conditions restraining alienation when repugnant to the interest created are void."

Federal Jury Fails To Return Indictments In Ga. Mass Lynching

ATHENS, Ga.—Indictment of one white witness for perjury was the only concrete result of a three-week probe by a grand jury into the Walton county lynching of two men and their wives. The grand jury ended its inquiry last Thursday and returned no indictments against the lynchers.

The jury's action left unpunished the shocking crime which occurred last July 25 on a lonely river bridge.

The mass lynchings had evoked nation-wide protests and spotlighted the little town of Monroe with one investigation after another. FBI agents by the dozens roamed the county looking for evidence.

It was the fruit of their efforts, plus the testimony of 125 witnesses, which the jury considered. But they filed into a courtroom empty of spectators except for four Negroes who had waited all day to hear the verdict to advise Judge T. Hoyt Davis that they could not establish the identity of the mobsters who dragged the two couples off the road, tied them to trees and riddled them with bullets.

Had there been federal indictments, they would have been only for violation of the victims' civil liberties.

The jury had earlier indicted George Alvin Adcock, of Monroe, on two counts of false testimony as a result of statements he made to the grand jury on Dec. 11.

In one count, the indictment charged that Adcock denied leaving his home, except to attend church, on the day that the two couples were lynched. The true bill said that Adcock in reality visited the town of Monroe.

In another count the grand jury charged Adcock falsely testified, "No, sir, I didn't go," when he was asked if he had accompanied others to Monroe Ford, the scene of the mass lynching.

In Washington, the Justice Department offered no comment on the Athens' jury failure to act, but said its own investigation of the case is continuing.

City Council Frowns on Franchise Bids of Two Eastside Cab Companies

(SCP)—Denial of franchise applications to three new taxicab corporations was recommended this week by the City Council, which referred the matter to the industry and transportation committee for action. Two of the companies affected are Negro-controlled.

The denial was recommended by K. Charles Dean, general manager of the Board of Public Utilities and Transportation, on grounds that (1) present companies be given first choice to operate more cabs as they are needed, (2) operation of two services in the same district would mean duplication of expenses that would be borne by the public, and (3) needs may be greatly reduced in the next few months.

Cabs, Inc., planned to operate a city-wide fleet of 500 cabs.

Two others, Eastside Jolly Cab Co., with 50 cabs, and Eastside Veterans Taxicab Assn., with 26 cabs, had planned to service the Central avenue district.

Officers of the Eastside Jolly Cab Co. are James Hale, president, of 259 East Vernon ave.; Albert Pace, vice president, of 1155 East 29th st.; David Evans, chairman, of 1326 East 27th st.; Joe Owens,, treasurer, of 407 East 43rd st., and Oliver Lee, secretary, of 632 East 22nd st.

"This group is composed of substantial colored citizens, most of whom are property owners and church members," Hale explained. "All of them have a good record in the community and have never been convicted of a crime.

"They also feel there is a very great need for taxi service for the people in that neighborhood; that no cab company in Los Angeles is equipped to serve this group. Since we have and can produce 50 cabs, we can serve a group of citizens who are greatly neglected and discriminated against at the present time, and who should have the same rights as any other group, regardless of condition, color or race."

President of the Eastside Veterans Taxicab Assn. is Andrew Willis, with Marshall Denton Jr., of 3429 South Central ave., as attorney.

Says Columbians Copied Insignia From Hitlerites

ATLANTA, Ga.—The "Thunderbolt" insignia of the Columbians, Inc., anti-Negro, anti-Jewish outfit, was copied together with the Columbian philosophy from the Nazis, State Attorney General Eugene Cook revealed in his official report to Gov. Ellis Arnall on the subversive activities of the Columbians.

Commenting on alleged plans of the Columbians to issue a publication titled The Thunderbolt, Cooke disclosed that this was the name of a Pro-Nazi publication in Canada. He submitted a German book which illustrated insignia of various German organizations, many of which he said featured the Thunderbolt insignia of the Columbians in one form or another.

Declaring that the Columbians sought to establish a Nazi-like government in the United States and had assembled a private arsenal, Cook recommended national and state legislation to prevent the formation of such groups.

Cook's report to Gov. Arnall, based on an investigation by the Anti-Nazi League, accused the Columbians of systematically planning to intimidate and injure members of minority religious and racial groups; conspiring to bring about the arrest of innocent Georgia citizens on false charges; assembling a private arsenal of deadly weapons; bombing a home in Atlanta; corruptly influencing minors to incite the commission of crimes, and restraining home owners "from the full and proper enjoyment of their property."

Minority Report Hits Red-Baiting AVC Resolution

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Franklin Williams, special counsel of the NAACP, is one of a seven-man minority of the National Planning Committee of the American Veterans Committee which opposed the AVC's recent embarkation into red-baiting as an answer to charges by reactionaries that AVC is a "Communist front" organization.

Williams signed a letter to the AVC Bulletin which stated that the resolution against Communism recently adopted by the National Planning Committee was "unfortunate." Six other members of the committee joined him in signing the letter. The letter stated in part:

"A resolution against communism is being sent out from the national office for chapter action.

"We deem the resolution unfortunate but the important thing is to get it over with—approve or reject it—and get on with our business: an action program of veterans service and the building of a more democratic and prosper-America and a more progressive world."

The same issue of the Bulletin contained another letter signed by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who evidently has forgotten that his famous father was also branded as a "Communist," and 12 other members of the Planning Committee commending the stand against Communism to the organiaztion's chapters. Among other signers were Charles Bolte, national chairman of AVC, and Robert Nathan, chairman of AVC's strong Washington chapter No. 1.

After having charges of being a "communist front" organization leveled at it from the American Legion and the Hearst press, AVC recently won wide acclaim in the reactionary press when its Planning Committee drew up the resolution against Communism.

The resolution has been submitted to the organization's chapters for approval.

Ups Cost of Dying

The Man They Feared

By MARK KEATS

His dark brown eyes, shining with the kindness he felt for his suffering fellow man, drew people to him as one is drawn to a lighted window shining from afar in the vast unfriendly darkness of night.

All who passed by him as he walked the streets of the ancient city, nodded to him, because his eyes seemed to say, "Hello, my friend," to each and every one, though many were seeing him for the first time. For his name had been lovingly passed by word of mouth until it had reached the most distant places of the land.

But to the greedy, the very wealthy, and the Romans, his eyes seemed to flash anger and hatred when he looked upon them. And they muttered in their threats in fear and rage.

His skin was a deep dark brown, and the beard that curled from his chin was as black and shiny as a raven's wing against the white garment that covered his body. His hands were shaped to the tools he worked with, for he was a carpenter, and the chosen leader of all the carpenters in the city.

It was simply enough to understand why he had been chosen their leader. He was fearless of tongue, and brave of heart, and defied the Roman tyrants, who, with a handful of traitors, ruled mercilessly over his people.

One day, he called his fellow carpenters together and they went into the Holy Temple. There, verily, his eyes blazed with anger, as he cried aloud! "This is the Temple of the Lord. Herein come our people to worship him and seek ways of delivery from our tyrant oppressors and the greedy of heart and mind. Out with the money changers who desecrate the sanctuary wherein our hearts and minds seek the truth. Out with those who sold their souls to our enemy. Cast out the money changers!"

His followers cast out the screeching, screaming money changers, and overthrew their tables.

When the Jews of Jerusalem heard about this, they rejoiced loudly. The leader of the carpenters had defied the Roman tyrants, and shamed the traitors in the Temple of the Lord. They shouted and sang for joy, releasing for a while at least the heavy burden of their sorrow.

But Pontius Pilate, upon hearing about this from Judas of Iscariot, to whom he had paid 30 pieces of silver, ordered the carpenter seized.

A great cry arose from among the Jews, and Pilate, fearing an uprising, ordered the carpenter crucified at once. His hands outstretched on a cross, were bound with stout ropes, as were his feet. To the left and right of him were crucified two common thieves so that he be shamed in the eyes of his people.

But far from being shamed, the people lamented loudly, cursing the tyrant, and the traitor, Judas, who crept off into the shadows of a barn and hung himself with a halter. And the carpenter called out above the pain of his body:

"My people shall never forget, oh tyrant. They shall strike back again and again 'til the end of time, until you, and all of your greedy selfish kind shall perish from this earth. And peace and good will shall reign among the people of all lands."

All-White Jury Awards Damages of $7000 Each To Two Ousted Deacons

By SOUTHERN CITIES PRESS

An all-white jury by a 10-2 vote last Friday awarded two former members of the Second Baptist church $7000 each in their suit against the church's pastor and two of his deacons.

Winners of the action are Rev. A. L. Brewer and E. W. Fisher who were ousted last October. Their removal, they alleged, was accompanied by "malicious, unprivileged and uncalled for words" intending to bring them "into ill-repute with their fellow members."

Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, popular pastor of the 1600-member church, must pay $500 each to Brewer and Fisher as exemplary and punitive damages. The other $4000 will be paid by Rev. Henderson, James H. Hilton and R. A. Hudson, deacons.

The defendants assertedly said Brewer and Fisher "hurt the prestige of the church" and were in collaboration with "one of Satan's choicest tools."

Brewer and Fisher also asked reinstatement to the congregation and Fisher's return to the board of trustees. This aspect of the matter will be decided at a later date by Superior Judge Alfred L. Bartlett, before whom the case was tried.

A. Brigham Rose, white, represented Brewer and Fisher. One of the church's members, Thomas L. Griffith Jr., represented Rev. Henderson and the deacons. The church located at 24th St. and Griffith avenue, is a defendant in the reinstatement suit.

Social Agencies Report Red Hot Issue in Capital

WASHINGTON, D.C. (NNPA)—Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, president of the Council of Social Agencies, said yesterday that the report of the Council's race relations committee recommending the end of segregation in the District of Columbia does not constitute the recommendations of the Council itself.

His comment on the explosive report, which set off a series of fireworks here the first day it was published, came at a luncheon meeting of the Council that heard Neville Miller, former Louisville mayor who prepared the report, state that President Truman should appoint a continuing committee to study conditions and facilitate appropriate community action" to end segregation.

Miller's statements were challenged by John Ihlder, a member of the Council and director of the National Capital Housing Authority. Said Ihlder:

"You're passing the buck. You're asking the government to do what local citizens should do. This is a responsibility of our citizens."

The luncheon meeting of the Council was held following a hurried meeting of the lily-white Federation of Civic Associations, which unanimously voted to "investigate" the report.

The report has been greeted with "acclaim and disclaim, views and counter views," Miller said.

Stating that he realized it is a "very troublesome problem," the Kentuckian said it is important that this community develop a "co-operative spirit so as to eliminate some of the tensions, forces and frictions which might lead to difficulties.

Mr. Miller said the committee had found discrimination in six important social fields here and added:

"The Negro does not have the full opportunity here to realize his full potentialities."

Union Wins Fight to Bar Bias in Transfer Of Former OPA Workers

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The decision of the Civil Service Commission governing the selection of employes of the Office of Price Administration to be transferred with its financial reporting functions to the Federal Trade Commission was hailed yesterday by Daniel Schwartz, regional director of the United Public Workers of America (CIO), as a clear-cut union victory.

The Commission ruled that the continuing jobs should be filled from the present staff of OPA's financial reporting division. Under the Commission's ruling, Negro employes in the division will have a fair chance along with all the others to be selected for the continuing jobs.

Schwartz said this decision is a clear cut victory in our union's fight against racial and other forms of discrimination in government personnel practices.

William Stafford, chairman of the OPA branch of UPW, explained that the 110 employes in OPA's financial reporting division, of whom 45 are colored, only 40 will be transferred to the Federal Trade Commission with the financial reporting program.

Reports to the union that the Federal Trade Commission wanted "no Negroes, Jews or women," however, coincided with a recommendation by Civil Service Commission officials that the selection of OPA employes should be made from the entire accounting program.

Stafford stated that the tentative selections made on this basis confirmed the union's suspicions since not a single Negro employe was included, even though there were several who were veterans and permanent status employes in the financial reporting division.

As a result, a union delegation, including Schwartz, Stafford and employes from the OPA's financial reporting unit, met with Civil service officials Dec. 9 and insisted that the basis of selection which produced such discriminatory results must be changed.

A Civil Seervice investigation and further negotiations took place from Dec. 9 through Dec. 13. When Commission officials refused to reverse their decision, the matter was taken to the Commissioners themselves, who sustained the union's contentions.

Watts Preacher Convicted of Peace Breach

Rev. Peter John Jett, 30, of Watts, accused of wielding a bull whip on passing motorists, was found no guilty on two charges of battery by Municipal Judge F. Ray Bennett late last Wednesday afternoon. He was convicted, however, of charges of disturbing the peace, and probation hearing was set for January 6.

Jett, who owns and operates a barber shop at 1705 E. 103rd street, accused two officers of beating him into unconsciousness with their night sticks.

Jett created quite a stir in the courtroom of Judge Bennett, not so much by his counter charge against the arresting officers, as by his costume.

Jett, who said he is pastor of the St. John Free Will Baptist church at 2206 East 103rd st., marched majestically before the bar of justice wearing, among other things:

A flowing robe topped off by a yellow toga;

Open-toed sandals (hand-made, that is) and a dozen ankle bracelets;

A skull cap the color of which could not be discerned because it was completely covered with beaded stars.

"It's God's will that I come dressed as I am," he said.

Fred Miles, a chauffeur, testified he saw Officer E. J. Collinsl strike Jett on the wrist with his stick, and that Officer G. L. Thomas followed through with a blow to the head.

Jett denied he cracked his bull whip at passing motorists, said he carried the whip to ward off vicious dogs.

Assn. of University Women Reaffirms Non-Bias Policy, Puts D. C. Branch on Spot

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — The national board of the American Association of University Women last Tuesday announced reaffirmation, by unanimous vote, of its racial and religious non-discrimination policy and also declared the same policy for its local branches.

The action of the board grew out of the denial by the Washington branch of reinstatement of membership to Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, widow of Judge Robert H. Terrell, and the first woman graduate of Oberlin college. The Washington branch uses a portion of the national body's headquarters as a clubhouse, under a lease.

While the national American Association of University Women admits Negro women without question to its membership-at-large, and a number of its local branches have admitted colored members, a number of local branches have withheld membership from colored applicants.

The resolution states:

"The Board of Directors of the American Association of University Women considers it imperative at this time to reaffirm its established membership policy that all women who meet the educational requirements are eligible to be members of the Association.

nder the national by-laws and under branch by-laws, which may not conflict with those of the nationals, there can be no authorization for any discrimination on racial, religious or political grounds.

"The board, therefore, takes for granted that the branches will practice within their own groups those principles which are in line with the Association's history, its expressed international policy, its membership in the International Federation of University Women and its deep concern with all agencies seeking to rebuild a world shattered through discriminations and intolerance."

Expands West View Hospital Inc. Board

The following well known community leaders have become affiliated with the West View Hospital, Inc., as members of the board of directors: Dick Cutting, radio executive in charge of special events at CBS; Rev. Baxter C. Duke, pastor of the Avalon Christian church; Rev. Grant Harris, pastor of the Zion Hill Baptist church; H. L. Richardson, attorney-at-law; Leslie Scott, president of the Postal Alliance; Rufus Simpkins, businessman; L. V. Stewart, pioneer citizen and president of the Cimarron Park Tract Property Owners Association; and Allen Woodard, III, real estate broker.

The West View Hospital project has made rapid strides, and the addition of these men is an indication of the increased community support of this vital project.

The acute need of the community, due to the complete lack of first class hospital facilities in the southeast section of Los Angeles, has spurred the members of West View Hospital, Incorporated to gerater efforts to erect and equip the hospital as quickly as possible. Judging from present indications, an early starting of the building program is in the offing.

Tenny Smears Anti-Fascists in Opposing Application for Radio License by New Hollywood Group

(SCP)—Senator Jack Tenney, head of the state senate's un-American Activities Committee, went before a federal communications commissioner yesterday to smear a progressive Hollywood group which is seeking a radio permit.

The hearing, conducted by Commissioner Ray C. Wakefield, became stormy as Tenney asserted that granting of a license to the Hollywood Community Radio Group, Inc., would be "creating a Charlie McCarthy for Joseph Stalin."

Turning to the organizations to which some of the group's leading lights belong, Tenney attached as "Communist front" groups the following anti-fascist, pro-democratic groups.

Hollywood Writers Mobilization, the League of American Writers, the People's Educational Center and the Hollywood Independent Citizens' Committee for the Arts, Sciences and Professions.

Tenney added that Alvin Wilder, president of the Hollywood applicant, is connected with the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, and formerly taught at the People's Educational Center.

The hearing recessed until after the New Year.

Special Cop Fails In Attempt to Frame Film Studio Pickets

(SCP)—Policeman John Bean was not fired upon by studio strikers, or anyone else, he admitted this week.

The shot, he reported, was fired at him early last Wednesday morning came from his own gun, and he fired it himself, the police department said in a formal statement.

The department said that Bean, an emergency officer assigned to picket patrol at Columbia Studios, made his admission after ballistics experts had checked the bullet which shattered the windshield of the officer's car.

Bean turned in his badge, the department said.

Blames Low Pay For Teacher Shortage Here

(SCP)—Los Angeles county is short some 5000 teachers because of the low pay offered during the "apprentice" years, the board of education was told yesterday.

More than 150 county teachers and school officials met to seek solutions to problems confronting the county's educational system.

Frank M. Wright, of Montebello said there is a serious shortage of qualified teaching personnel, and blamed the situation on the fact that normal recruitment was interrupted during the war.

He said he doubted if campaigns to interest more young people in the teaching profession would solve the problem.

General revision of the State Curriculum Commission was recommended by Dr. Kenneth E. Oberholtzer, Long Beach superintendent, who said that the public is entitled to know whether educators properly acquaint themselves with the benefits of existing methods.

L. A. Housing Group OKs Wyatt's Program In Letter to Truman

(SCP) — Support for former Housing Expediter Wyatt's home building program was voiced here by the Citizens' Housing Council.

In a letter to President Truman, the group asked continuance of building material priorities, curtailment of non-residential construction, rent control, and passage of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill.

Celestin Acquitted Of Robbery Charge

(SCP). — Flimsy identification resulted Tuesday in freedom for Charles Celestin, 24, of 1454 East 120th st. He was acquitted on grand theft charges because of insufficient evidence.

Attorney Martha Malone Williams represented Celestin, who was accused by Herbert A. Cruse, white, of 728 South Hendricks st., East Los Angeles, of lifting his wallet in a streetcar Oct. 6 in Watts.

Cruse testified he found his wallet missing after he alighted from the streetcar. An hour later he boarded another streetcar and identified Celestin, who was in a group of passengers, as the thief.

"It might well be a case of mistaken identity," Judge Brand said in dismissing the charges.

Matron Protests Lawless Entry By Policemen

(SCP)—Her home was entered without a warrant by police officers looking for a lottery, Mrs. Elva Boutte, 986 E. 51st street, charged yesterday in a protest received by the police commission.

She was humiliated, and her rights as a taxpayer were violated, Mrs. Boutte said, when vice squad officers entered her home without knocking on Dec. 2.

The protest was referred to the chief of police for investigation.

Faces Murder Charge For Fatal Wounding Of Cop in Gun Battle

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (NNPA) — Edmond (Tobe) Haynes, who allegedly went berserk while being questioned by a city policeman in Murfreesboro, Tenn., is facing murder charges as the result of the death Monday of Patrolman Herbert McClanahan, one of five white men felled by bullets before he was captured.

Haynes was brought here under state police guard to save him from possible mob violence.

Witnesses said that Haynes, without warning, opened fire in the Murfreesboro police station. He was not under arrest at the time and authorities were unable to give any motive for the shooting.

While undergoing questioning by Patrolman McClanahan, Haynes felled the officer with a bullet through the head, apparently after seizing McClanahan's pistol. McClanahan was taken to the hospital in critical condition.

As Haynes ran firing from the city hall, with a pistol in one hand and shotgun in the other, he wounded Police Chief N. W. Powers in the chest. Powers' wound was not serious.

Haynes ran to a house three blocks away where he barricaded himself. After exchanging fire with officers who poured volley after volley into the building for nearly an hour, Haynes came out wounded and with his hands raised.

During the blazing siege of the building Sheriff Earl McKnight of Rutherford county, Fire Chief B. B. (Buck) Qualls of Murfreesboro, and Ray Armstrong, a truck driver, were struck by shotgun slugs. None was hurt seriously although McKnight required hospitalization.

As the gun battle progressed in this community 31 miles southeast of Nashville, a crowd of between 150 and 200 joined the embattled officers around the house. Upon Haynes' surrender, he was rushed to the Rutherford county jail where a threatening crowd of several hundred gathered.

The state highway patrolmen men, with help from Murfreesboro police, got Haynes out of a side entrance and sped off to Nashville with him. At Nashville General hospital he was under treatment for multiple wounds.

Bulky Telephone Directory On Way Out: Company Plans Five Books on Area Basis

Because Los Angeles and nearby cities now require directories listing more than a million telephones, with a current growth of 100,000 annually, the Southern California Telephone Company next year will adopt a directory plan for the area similar to New York's, C. D. Hutton, manager, announced yesterday.

Hutton said that it is not practical further to enlarge the present Los Angeles extended area book. Five directories, therefore, will be used to cover the central, northeast, northwest, west, and south sections of this metropolitan area.

The plan results from an extensive study of the calling practices and directory needs of telephone users, Hutton said, and the distribution of the books will be adapted to the use of the average subscriber. Hutton's statement follows:

"All subscribers will receive the directory containing the listings for their own section of the metropolitan area. Those who need directories covering sections other than their own, will be supplied with the other books upon request. A liberal policy will be followed in providing additional directories. The present local identity of each directory will be maintained through the use of cover titles and introductory pages comparable with those used on present directories.

"An advantage to subscribers under the new plan is that the present bulky Los Angeles directory, which is becoming too large to use conveniently, will be replaced by regional directories, which are easier to use and will have the numbers the subscribers call most frequently. Studies show that when directories get too large and bulky, the size and long lists of similar names discourage telephone users from referring to them.

"The new plan will streamline the books and fit them to use of subscribers in one of the largest metropolitan areas in the United States. It will be closely tailored to the known calling needs of the majority of the subscribers. Listings of a number of exchanges, which now appear only in the home town directories, will be included in the new combined books serving each section."

Following is a description of the five directories as planned and the telephone exchanges they will serve:

Central—Los Angeles exchange.

Northeastern — Alhambra, Arcadia, Covina, El Monte, Montebello, Monrovia, Pasadena, Sierra Madre, Whittier.

Northwestern—Burbank, Canoga Park, Crescenta, Glendale, North Hollywood, Reseda, San Fernando, Tujunga, Van Nuys.

Western—Beverly Hills, Culver City, Malibu, Santa Monica, West Los Angeles.

Southern — Compton, Downey, El Segundo, Hawthorne, Inglewood, Lomita, Long Beach, Redondo, San Pedro, Torrance.

SANTA AT GENERAL HOSPITAL

(SCP)—Santa Claus is not going to overlook the child patients in General Hospital, according to Arthur J. Will, county superintendent of charities.

Every child will get a Christmas stocking and a present. Carols will be sung in each of the 85 wards where there are children, he said.

One of the important roles in "Gallant Man," the Don Ameche-Catherine McLeod starrer currently shooting at Republic, has been nameless, being designated throughout the screenplay as "The Blonde."

Stars to Take Xmas Cheer to Sick Veterans

(SCP)—The spirit of Christmas will reach all sick and wounded patients in the three veterans' hospitals in the Los Angeles area. Radio and motion picture stars will help brighten the season for the servicemen.

The programs for the 6000 patients at Sawtelle will begin with special religious services Sunday. That afternoon 7500 citizens of Glendale will form a 1700-car "Caravan of Christmas Cheer" and distribute gifts to all patients. More than 50 other parties and special events will be held to fill out the rest of the holiday at the center.

The 410 patients at San Fernando VA hospital began their observance Dec. 16, by decorating all wards, day rooms and recreation halls. A score of parties and programs have been arranged.

At Birmingham VA General Hospital, the choir of the Van Nuys First Baptist church will start a five-day observance with a recital Sunday morning. Four stage shows, ward tours, national radio shows and parties will round out the season's program.

Patterson Named to Governing Board of American Red Cross

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, has been named to a three-year term on the American Red Cross central committee by the Red Cross Board of Incorporators meeting in Washington.

The first Negro to break into the formerly lily white American Red Cross governing board, Dr. Patterson recently was one of 27 members appointed by Chairman Basil O'Connor to study the structure of the organization.

He has been active in Red Cross affairs for a number of years and is chairman of the Tuskegee chapter of the Red Cross. O'Connor, in turn, is chairman of the board of trustees of Tuskegee Institute.

After wearing voluminous petticoats in three succesive pictures, all on a historical outdoor theme, Vera Ralston, Republic's lovely blonde star, will get a change of pace in the picture that will follow her current one, "Wyoming," now in production.

New Housing Expediter Refuses to Comment on Minority Housing Future

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Housing for minority groups remained an open question this week as Frank Creedon, who succeeded Wilson W. Wyatt as housing expediter recently, continued to refused to see Negro newsmen.

Through his public relations office, Creedon said he would not comment on special housing problems until he has had time to further study the program left him by Wyatt.

Newsmen had sought to inquire of Creedon the future status of present racial relations organization headed by Frank Horne which has been the watchdog for minority groups in the housing program.

With Creedon being named expediter and Raymond Foley, anti-Negro federal housing commissioner, appointed national housing administrator, the question arises as to which of the two offices, both of which were held by Wyatt, will the race relations staff by administratively attached.

Although Dr. Horne and his staff have served not only the expediter's office and the National Housing Agency but also the Federal Housing Administration and the Federal Public Housing Authority administratively, the office has always been a part of the National Housing Agency.

With the lifting of controls in the housing program and a de-emphasis on subsidized public housing, informed circles believe that Dr. Horne and his staff can now best serve minority groups as part of the Federal Housing Agency, which, with its sister agency, the Federal Home Loan Bank Administration, automatically become the most important of all housing agencies as emphasis is placed on privately financed housing.

Wyatt left the NHA job with Negroes occupying 25,000 dwelling units publicly financed under the FPHA program. In addition 6000 colored veterans attending colleges and universities are being provided with temporary public housing accomodations under Wyatt's veteran's emergency housing program.

Of the 700 mayor's housing committees set up under Wyatt more than one-tenth already have minority group members and a few weeks before his resignation Wyatt appointed Miss Ann Mason, former newspaperwoman, as a liasin operator between his office and the mayor's committees over the nation.

Although Wyatt's program placed an emphasis on prefabricated federal emergency housing, many privately financed developments open to Negro occupancy also were started under his program. These include developments in Pontiac, Michigan; Gasden and Birmingham, Ala.; Dayton, Ohio; Lynchburg, Va.; Macon and Atlanta Ga.; Chicago; New York City; Los Angeles and Fresno, Calif.; Greenville, Chester and Rock Hill, S. C.; Washington, D.C.; Richmond, Va.; Columbus, Ohio; and Norwalk, Conn.

Gunman Fires Three Shots at McGee, Escapes

the suspect when he approached him and asked to "talk to the proprietor."

When McGee answered the summons, his supposed interrogator is said to have commenced to back away, reaching in his pocket to draw the revolver.

The first shot went wild as McGee dived back inside the establishment. His attacker followed, however, and two more bullets narrowly missed McGee as he scrambled about the foyer, seeking further cover.

Policemen Couts and Hewitt intervened at this point, having observed the last shot aimed at the victim. When ordered to stop by the officers, the fleeing suspect is said to have whirled and fired two shots at the patrolmen, again missing.

Though his marksmanship was off, the gunman's footwork didn't let him down as he proceeded hurriedly to 617 E. 27th street, where he hurtled a fence and disappeared. It was believed that the haste with which the suspect overcame the fence caused him to drop the revolver.

McGee, unhurt by the salvo of shots, had cause to rejoice that this unexpected Christmas gift was "improperly addressed."

named to study the entire lodging house situation, as a result of the fire, and possibly to make recommendations to the state legislature.

Charles A. Gill, acting chief engineer of the Fire Bureau, declared "lodging houses with cubicles, such as the one in this fire, are the headache of every big city department."

Fire Marshal Gallagher reported to the Mayor on May 9, last, that an inspection of the lodging house revealed no fire hazard. He said yesterday that fire escapes and halls were in conformity with the law. Asked if he thought the wood-partitioned cubicles were a menace, he said that was not a matter for him to pass on.

It was also revealed that the lodging house was found unobjectionable from a health viewpoint early this year. Dr. Rufus Reeves, director of public health, wrote a letter to the Mayor on February 18, in which he confirmed this.

It was said that Herbert Packer, chief of the Bureau of Housing and Sanitation, has opposed the cubicle arrangement for several years.

would file suit claiming succession to the governorship.

An immediate contest is expected to decide whether Arnall shall remain chief or executive, or whether the Talmadge-dominated State Democratic Executive Committee will attempt to name his successor.

The law under which Arnall was elected says he shall rule until his successor is elected and "duly qualified." Qualified is construed to mean inaugurated.

Involved in the outcome is the existence of the Georgia Ku Klux Klan and the Columbians, Inc. Both outfits are being prosecuted by the Arnall administration. Leaders of the two fascist groups have been engaging in dilatory tactics, seeking to delay a court decision until Arnall's term of office expires.

Fire Destroys Phila. Church

Flames leaped high above the roof and sparks were carried blocks away by the wind.

When the blaze was put under control, only the granite walls and twisted girders remained.

Firemen believed that the blaze was started by a defective heater in the basement. They said it must have smouldered for several hours before the flames were discovered.

Bishop N. S. Heastie, head of the Church of God, said he was in the church until 11 o'clock last Thursday night, but noticed nothing wrong.

The church was bought last May from the Mantua Baptist church for $50,000.

Suit Assails Racist Policy Of U. S. Army

PITTSBURGH—A father whose son was refused enlistment under current army racist policies this week filed an injunction suit which would ban all further enlistments in the army until racial segregation and discrimination are abolished.

Secretary of War, Robert P. Patterson and Lt. Col. Robert W. Springer, commanding officer of the Pittsburgh recruiting district, were named defendants, charged with refusing enlistments to Henry Dr. Stewart Jr., of Pittsburgh.

The bill asked that "all further army enlistments" be enjoined until Negroes are accepted on equal terms with whites, and also asked a declatory judgment against enforcement of rules that set up special enlistment requirements for Negroes and place them in jimcrow army outfits.

Stewart tried to enlist last June 30, the suit said, and was told that Negroes were being taken only in highly skilled categories.

He then tried to enlist Oct. 15, and answered correctly 50 out of 54 questions, but again was refused because standards for Negroes are substantially higher than for whites, the suit declares.

Attached to the bill as an exhibit was an army grade scale, indicating that Negroes must score two to three times higher than whites.

The suit charged that these "double standards" violate the preamble and fifth amendment of the constitution.

Four 'Rattlers' All-Americans

TALLAHASSEE—In the recent selections of All-American players for national Negro collegiate football, the Pittsburgh Courier named four Rattlers of the Florida A. and M. college squad to positions on the first two teams.

Nathaniel "Traz" Powell retained his position as first string All-American end for the second consecutive year. In view of his consistent and stellar performance, Powell, a Miami boy, was indubitably acclaimed as the outstanding end of the year. This represents the final season of collegiate football for him and and his fine exhibitions of pass-receiving and stalwart defense play during the season together with his record smashing run of 103 yards against Morris Brown college of Atlanta for the winning touchdown brings his football career to a fitting close.

Other Rattlers who were elected to positions on the All-American second team were Bradley Mitchell, end from Bartow, Florida, William Brewington, tackle of Goldsboro, North Carolina, and Theodore Montgomery, halfback of Jacksonville, Florida. Montgomery, in spite of injuries which kept him from participation in several games during the season, is generally acknowledged as one of the best brokenfield runners and consistent ground-gainers of the year. Twice in this season Montgomery, a senior, broke away for runs of 75 and 70 yards respectively to score touchdowns, and these facts together with his brilliant pass reception and defensive feats unquestionably earned for him this berth.

Protests against a new city incinerator at Avenue 21 and Lacy street were overruled by the city council yesterday.

plained, however, that no arrests are made of Negro soldiers for associating with German women or accompanying them upon the streets.

There are at present no Negro military police nor colored members of the constabulary force in Germany, Ray said. "I feel that many problems in the European theatre relating to colored soldiers," he added, "could be solved by the establishment of a colored military police organization and the assignment of colored soldiers to the constabulary force in order that colored soldiers may feel that they are a part of the army."

He said he had made such a recommendation to General Joseph T. McNarney, commander of the United States army in the European theatre and, as a consequence, he is informed two Negro companies of military police are being established in Germany. They are to be trained at Mannheim beginning January 1.

No adverse attitude on the part of the German people toward Negro soldiers was found by Ray. "I was very much interested in that," he said, "because rumors had led us to believe that there had been a large scale idea developed against colored soldiers."

The attitude of the German people toward Negro soldiers, he said, was quite different from that of the Japanese. In Japan, which he visited in August and September, Ray said white soldiers were responsible for the circulation of adverse propaganda about Negro troops.

Negro soldiers stationed in Japan, he said, felt that relations between them and the Japanese had been "worsened" by such propaganda.

Ray commented on the new army plan to discharge all soldiers who have a scort of less than 70 on the army general classification test. He said the percentage of men who are being screened out will run about 50 percent white and 50 percent colored. Negro soldiers at present constitute about 11 percent of the total army strength.

Reverses Position

Asked whether he would have higher standards apply only to Negroes while the army continued to enlist white men of low intelligence, some of whom, according to the Meader report, are not even high-grade morons, Ray said he would have the higher standards apply alike to both white and Negro applicants for enlistment.

This represents a change of attitude on his part. Authoritative sources in the war department credit him with recommending to the Army General Staff the adoption of the policy which requires a Negro applicant for enlistment to possess a high school education in order to be accepted, while a white man may enlist if he makes the minimum score of 70 on the army general classification test.

Contrary to the findings of the army inspector general, Ray said he found in the European theatre no evidence of anxiety on the part of Negro officers to enforce discipline among colored troops.

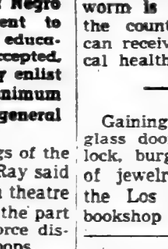
"The number of colored officers is small in proportion to the number of officers as a whole," he said. "I think the war department's effort to separate from the service men of low efficiency indices has tended to create an excellent group of officers, both white and colored," he added.

General McNarney gave no indication to him, Ray said, that he contemplates shipping Negro soldiers out of the European theatre. Meader, in his report, said General McNarney believed that the presence of colored soldiers in the European theatre added to the difficulties of the American military government and he favored their removal.

For the most part, Ray said, Negro soldiers in the European theatre are engaged in services of supply. He also said a majority of the white soldiers are similarly engaged.

In his prepared statement covering his tour of army installations in the European theatre, Ray said:

"In the European area from which I have just returned, the Negro soldier represents approximately 11 percent of the total troop strength. There are 290 Negro officers in the European theatre and 93 in the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations. The Negro soldiers are concentrated in Mannheim, Geisson, Graffenwohr, Nuremberg, and Munich. There are single units located in Berlin and Hanau. In the European Theatre the morale of the Negro soldier was far below the level of the other theatres visited. In talking with the individual soldier, I learned that this is due in part, to the fact that there are no Negro Military Police and no Negro members of the Military Government Constabulary Force. The recreational facilities were separated as to race; this included the American Red Cross in Frankfurt."



The bells ring out their melodious greetings for all far and near.

The Return of The King of Kings

The struggle of the colored peoples of the earth, especially those of South Africa, for a greater place in the sun comes as an awakening gleam of light to the whole world.

Symbolic of what is happening today and what will grow to greater fruition during 1947, is found i nthe triumphant return of Haile Selassie to his kingdom of Ethiopia after being torn from his home by the cohorts of Mussolini.

The tradition of a free Ethiopia had been one of colonial relationships throughout the East, and when in 1898 Italian forces were swept from the field at Adowa by native Ethiopian troops, the effect of that victory was felt around the globe. It was the first successful and decisive repulse of European empire forces by any native troops in Africa or India, and it resulted in an agitation for freedom by colonial peoples which has grown into the great movement for Indian and African independence today.

When Mussolini struck Ethiopia some years later—the prelude to World War II—Great Britain's failure to act or to request the League of Nations to act brought a blot of flaming injustice upon her position in international politics. Britain had pledged her support to Ethiopia in no less degree than she had pledged it to Czechoslovakia or Poland. The Italo-Ethiopian conflict which followed was the result of British diplomatic deceit.

So long as the submerged peoples of the East, was Britain's attitude, were not given the heartening spectacle of a triumphant Ethiopia it mattered little if the power of England's other enemies was increased or not.

But the clarity with which Emperor Haile Selassie analyzed this situation was near clairvoyance. Today it is amazing to review the prophetic statements made by Selassie.

The great powers had warily permitted the dispossessed Lion of Judah to have his say before the League of Nations. Delegates and visitors awaited his appearance with mixed curiosity and derision. What could this little man from the heart of darkest Africa tell the representatives of the greatest nations on earth? What sniveling plea could he present to the array of diplomats and political experts who met in Geneva to hear him? The foreign offices of France and England, of Belgium and Holland, of all the world-encompassing empires, had rendered their decision upon Ethiopia. Certainly these foreign offices had nothing to learn from the bearded sage of interior Africa. So they thought.

The concensus of opinion among newspapermen concerning Selassie's League of Nations appearance was that he would make a routine address, bewail the loss of his nation, present excuses, and plead for a last-minute League intervention. Their opinion was knocked into a cocked hat.

With dignity and quiet conviction Haile Selassie stood before the assembled representatives of the mighty of this world and predicted their downfall in a somber prophecy which has now become a tragic historical fact.

Calling by name Belgium, Holland, Czechoslovakia, Austria, and the Scandinavian countries, he warned all of them of the catastrophe awaiting them at the end of their blind international policy. He pointed out that indifference to the misfortune of one small nation by other small nations endangered all small nations. There was no pitiful cry of humiliation from the lips of Haile Selassie for the loss of his own empire. He spoke only of the fallacy which would lead to the disintegration of all the little nations and all little people.

The picture of this session of the League was a remarkable one indeed. On the raised platform in one end of the World Court Building stood Haile Selassie garbed in the familiar gown which has made his figure the object of world-wide caricature. In front of him, in somber formality, sat the delegates, the newspapermen, and the broadcasters, the great and the near great.

The delicate features of the emperor must have radiated his sincerity and the truth of his statements. The soft flow of Amharic, a language ancient as Europe itself, surely wrought some quiet spell over the assemblage. For after the speech and its translation, observers said that there had never been a League speech so attentively followed and considered with such silent awe. And when Haile Selassie had finished his doleful prophecy there broke out a storm of applause which lasted for minutes, and which was probably the last genuine display of enthusiasm by members of the League.

Emperor Selassie returned to his capital, Addis Ababa, years later, welcomed by his people as the king of kings. Czechoslovakia, Austria, the empires of Belgium, of Holland, who deserted him in the time of his need, were overwhelmed or are slowly disintegrating today. As he predicted.

But perhaps Haile Selassies' largest battle is still to be fought. And that conflict will be waged in the conscience of an empire. Britain has pledged no intervention in the domestic affairs of Ethiopia. But the affairs of Ethiopia are linked with those of Southwest Africa, of all the African colonies. As this Lion of Judah predicted before the League of Nations, the satastrophe that would follow the blind international policy the nations of the world were then following, so his prophecy will hold good today in regard to the policy being followed by Great Britain in the Union of South Africa.

South Africa must not be allowed to annex Southwest Africa against the wish of the citizens of Southwest Africa. To do so will bring disaster, even as the rape of Ethiopia by Italy incurred.

The return of Haile Selassie to his kingdom must be made a triumph that will extend to all the colored peoples of the world.

The Road To Health

By H. SHERMAN MANUEL, M.D.

Very few people understand the problem of allergies, even though it seems to be fashionable to have one or more. I often find it difficult to explain to a patient that something which does no harm to most people can be very upsetting to him. Even in the medical profession, allergy is known as a strange condition.

Every animal recognizes the harmful effect of fire and learns to avoid burning objects early in life. Civilized people also have learned about the microscopic enemies called germs and how to avoid them. The simple fact that a substance which is harmless to the majority of people could cause serious illness in a susceptible few was not seriously studied until recent years. However, it has long been known that many persons are peculiar in that they are made ill by contact with things which do not affect others. We have all heard the old saw, ::One man's meat is another man's poison." This peculiarity is known as allergy.

Ten percent of the population show signs of what we call major allergy: hay fever, asthma, allergic rhinitis, eczema and migraine headache. Thirty to 40 percent show signs of minor allergies such as hives, drug sensitivity, allergy to heat, sunlight, cold and food.

Food allergies are very common. The greatest offenders are eggs, milk, cereals, wheat, fruits, nuts and various oils used in the preparation of food. They are responsible for various discomforts such as headache and digestive upsets. However, all sorts of complaints—fever, fast pulse rate, fatigue and respiratory difficulties—have been laid at the door of food allergy. Many people needlessly place themselves on rigid diets which may lead to malnutrition.

No one should try to diagnose his own allergies. It may cause unnecessary troubles and waste valuable time. I recall a Mr. Johnson who came to see me to ask for advice on what part of the country to move to in order to cure his asthma.

"But do you know that your asthma is caused by the climate here?" I asked.

"Well, I thought people with asthma always moved to a dry climate," he said. I explained to him that few asthma patients need a change of climate, because the asthma may be caused by food, drugs, pollens, dust, dander from horses, cats, etc. A move across the country, the search for a new place to live and a new job might be very difficult. It not necessary, it would be very foolish.

"The thing to do is find out the cause of your trouble, and then try to cure it," I told him. "It may not be easy to find, and you will have to help me. You will have to turn medical detective and give me clues about your attacks. We must find the cause before any permanent damage is done to your lungs."

A diagnosis of allergy is made by the physician on the history of the patient and by skin testing with substances to which he suspects the patient may be sensitive. Some cases require many tests, but in most cases a careful history greatly reduces this. For example, Johnson told me he had attacks of asthma when he lived on his grandfather's farm as a boy. He had only a few attacks after moving to the city, but they returned in full force a few months before he came to me. I immediately suspected that some substances related to farm life was causing his asthma. I began to give him skin tests of extracts from such substances.

I set Johnson to trying to find what change had happened in his life at the time the attacks returned. I asked him to look for something that he might also have had contact with during his farm years. At last he came to me in triumph.

"It's the rabbits," he said. "I'm sure that's the trouble. I bought my boys a couple of rabbits a few months ago. They are supposed to take complete care of the animals. But sometimes they forget, and I have to feed them and clean out the cages. Every time I do that, a little later I get an attack. I choke. I can't breathe. It seems as if I would suffocate."

Skin tests proved that he was right. He was allergic to rabbit fur. In his case, it was not hard to prescribe a treatment. Avoiding the allergy-producing substance is the first and most effective treatment. Johnson quickly learned to keep away from rabbits.

However, many allergies are due to things that cannot be avoided, such as dust and pollen in the air. In those cases we try to hyposensitize the patient. We begin with an injection of a very weak dilution of an extract of the substance to which the patient is allergic. We gradually increase the strength until the patient is less sensitive when exposed to the substance and no longer re-acts in an allergic manner. We are still experimenting with these so-called allergens to hyposensitize the patient. We doctors are learning more and more every day about the recognition and treatment of allergies. It is still a comparatively new field in medicine and its horizon seems constantly broadening.

Letters To The Editor

'HAIL AND FAREWELL'

Dear Editor:

This is a "Hail and Farewell" letter.

First, I want to "hail" you for being so cooperative with the Southern California News Bureau of the Office of Price Administration. Without the help of the press, the general public would have had a sorry time in following the changing rationing and price regulations throughout the wartime life of this agency.

Your rationing "calendar" was, of course, appreciated by us, and I know was clipped and kept by every housewife in your community. This was but one of the many helpful hints suggested by us and followed through by the press.

Our work with the government has been very interesting and also very hard work. You might be interested to know that two News Bureau men, Ed Davis and Harry Mills, died "in harness." Both were very well known in newspaper circles throughout Southern California. Take our word for it, this has NOT been a soft government job.

This is the last item you will receive from this office. Future releases will be mailed you from time to time by the regional office in San Francisco.

Our last day of work is December 20, so it's farewell from the Southern California Information Division of the OPA.

Sincerely

IRVING ECKHOFF,
District Information Executive,
Office of Price Administration,
Southern California District.

P.S.: If you are wondering what is happening to us, we are happy to say that we are all returning to private business.

Christianity is not a theory or speculation, but a life; not a philosophy of life, but a life and a living process.

LABOR ON THE MARCH

ISAAC PRATT

President Morris Zusman and Secretary-Treasurer Mervyn Rathborne were unanimously re-elected at the ninth annual convention of the State CIO held recently in Santa Cruz. Thirty-three members of the state executive board were also elected.

Under the new constitution approved by the convention the number of members of the executive board was changed from 21 to 35. Each union caucused to name its candidate who was later elected.

A call for unity to beat down the coming employer offensive against unions and to get needed wages was one of the principal objectives stressed. The coming congress, it was predicted, would pass many anti-labor bills designed to weaken unions and destroy collective bargaining.

"We must keep our eyes on this main enemy," said Harry Bridges, CIO director of northern California, "and not waste any time on wild goose chases."

All sections of organized labor in the city of Los Angeles are urged to unite in joint action against the use of the injunction in strikes and to call upon the district attorney's office to drop all charges of "criminal conspiracy" against the 14 citizens involved in the Hollywood motion picture strike.

Protests have been sent to Mayor Bowron, the city council, the city attorney's office, and the sheriff's office against the partisan use of law enforcement agencies in connection with mass arrests of peaceful pickets.

Reactionary congressmen are marshalling all their forces to prevent the seating of Vito Marcantonio, of New York, when the 80th congress convenes in January. Marcantonio's record of fighting for labor's rights, for FEPC, anti-poll tax, anti-lynch legislation, and against the Wood-Rankin committee has won him the place of labor's champion in congress.

More than 20,000 Southern California residents have signed petitions to oust Bilbo. Citizens of other states have also circulated similar petitions. They will be presented to the senators of the various states upon the opening of the 80th session of the U. S. senate in January.

With one out of every three marriages ending in divorce, and with the immediate outlook termed "gloomier still," serious concern over the future of the American family is voiced in the December Survey midmonthly. Among the causes listed are: social maladjustments involving crime and mental breakdown, veterans' rehabilitation, unsuitable housing, disruption of childhood and youth, the lack of housing generally, etc.

The 83rd anniversary of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation by President Lincoln together with the 144th year of the independence of Haiti will be observed jointly at a meeting to be held in Liberty Hall, New York. M. Maonclair Zephrin, first secretary of the Haitian embassy, will be the principal speaker. The black people of Haiti and those of the United States have much in common, observed Zephrin.

The mass trials of strikers now being held in the Los Angeles municipal court seriously jeopardize the civil rights of the strikers to a fair trial, is the opinion of A. A. Heist, director of the Southern California branch of the American Civil Liberties Union. "It is difficult to see how a jury can be expected to distinguish the innocent from the guilty in prosecutions involving hundreds of defendants simultaneously."

Real wages since V-J day for California workers have dropped 17 per cent while the profits of manufacturing corporations in 19[illegible] are running at a level 39 cent above the profit-swe[illegible] years of 1942-1944.

The average worker in California earns $25 a week less than the minimum standard for health as determined by the Heller committee of the University of California.

These facts were brought out at the recent convention of the State CIO held in Santa Cruz.

Little Children Shall Lead Them!

The World Friendship Dinner tendered to the delegates to the United Nations by representatives of the one million school children in New York City, was an encouraging step in the right direction. For it is the children of the world, as citizens of tomorrow, who will have to carry on for a world of peace, and it is to these children that the nations of the world have pledged themselves to dig the foundation for that new world of peace.

The children of New York are already enthusiastic about their role in the great work. And their enthusiasm is spreading to other cities in other nations, and to other cities in our own nation.

The schools of New York are giving at least one hour each week to programs on world friendship, and several other cities of America and of Europe are following that city's example. Los Angeles, it is hoped, will soon be on the list also to promote actively in its schools the ideals for world peace.

Helen Gahagan Douglas, congresswoman from California, presided at the dinner, which was given in the Waldorf-Astoria, but later turned the meeting over to young Bob Losky, chairman of the World Friendship Council of the Future.

Part of the over-all program of the Council to promote world friendship is to hold simultaneously friendship festivals on December 15, and May 8; to exchange Christmas gifts with children of other nations, and other friendship activities throughout the year

N.N.C. Marches On

"The National Negro Congress has at last begun.

With the refusal of A Philip Randolph to run for the presidency of the organization this week, the first barrage was fired in a war which had been long expected by observers of the racial scene.

The National Negro Congress is in much the same position in which the NAACP found itself 25 years ago.

As this century passed through its teenage the NAACP was a young, struggling, and radical organization which the old rank leaders of Afro-America feared and disliked. At the time the black population of the nation was suffering a reaction from the conciliatory philosophy of Booker T. Washington. W. E. B. DuBois was the spiritual if not the actual founder of the NAACP, and for many years the Association reflected his hard-hitting extremist tactics.

However, as time passed the NAACP developed into a highly skillful, less blatant body. Its guidance fell out of the hands of the DuBois cliche, and it came under the sway of a group of astute young men whose brillance ran more to behind-the scenes manipulation than to the frank, old-time, rabble-rousing policies.

Meanwhile a new generation of "young radicals" was fast growing to maturity.

The youngsters found that NAACP sessions did not satisfy their youthful yearnings for fireworks. Strategy of procedure was a chief concern of the body, whereas young adherents wanted juicy mudslinging and fiery denunciations. So, the National Negro Congress.

It would be unfair to represent the NNC as purely an outgrowth of an urge for fireworks. The organization has grown to be the headquarters of progressive Negro thought.

In the period of its existence the NNC has made tremendous strides in power and influence. But like other successful organizations the National Negro Congress has suffered many setbacks. But none of these has slackened its pace or retarded its progress. It has grown with the growth of progressive thought of the Negro people, and will continue to expand as its exponent.

This was the national picture of the NNC a few years ago when it set sail in Los Angeles, but gave way to the same forces that could not accept its fighting spirit then even as they do not today.

But a chapter of the National Negro Congress is here to stay. The executive secretary, Helen Samuels, is a live wire. She has seen service on the battle line in New York's Harlem. She knows how to fight and the editor of The California EAGLE is at her side.

The National Negro Congress is in the thick of the fight to oust Bilbo. The local chapter will be represented at the national conference scheduled to meet in Washington, D. C. on January 2. The NNC is going places. And it won't be stopped.

Talmadge Laid to Rest

It is said that 10,000 people viewed the remains of the late Governor-Elect Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia. And among the passing parade were many Negroes.

Talmadge, who came to a certain type of fame, achieved his position as a lawmaker in his advocacy of "White Supremacy." He was opposed to everything that Negroes and other minorities were pleading for.

If the Negro group of Georgia made any considerable part of the sad procession that moved past the late governor-elect, it must have been for the same reason that the widow of a ne'er-do-well sent her small son up front to view the corpse of his father, whom the preacher was lauding to the skies.

"Jim," she whispered to her boy. "You go up there and see if they've got the right man."

The Negroes of Georgia probably wanted to be sure they had the right man in the casket.

There is considerable discussion as to who should be the next governor of Georgia. According to the Georgia constitution, the governor shall remain governor until his successor "Qualifies." Since Talmadge very evidently cannot qualify now, there is one group of the opinion that Governor Arnall, liberal friend of Negro and white, should continue to be governor.

The California EAGLE hopes this opinion will prevail.

Freedom of the Air

The same suppression of liberal thought which the Jack Tenney committee is waging in California, and especially Southern California including Los Angeles and Hollywood, is being felt in other parts of the country also.

In New York radio station WOR recently dismissed Frank Kingdom, liberal news commentator. His dismissal is being protested by liberal political organizations: the CIO Political Action Committee, the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions; and the National Citizens Political Action Committee.

They said this case was but one of many in recent months that point to a determination of the reactionary forces to bring about a "cleaning out of liberal commentators."

The liberal commentators are being refused the air, while such reactionaries as Fulton Lewis Jr., Henry J. Taylor, and Upton Close were retained, declared the representatives of the liebral groups.

Freedom of the air should be fought for even more vigorously than freedom of the press. A liberal newspaper or magazine can be published if one has the means to publish them. There is no commission to decide whether or not this can be done.

But on the radio, where different stations conflict and where a federal commission decide who shall speak and who shall not, the danger of suppressing the truth is far greater. A reactionary commission can refuse all liberals, Hitler-like, and flood the country with fascist propaganda.

It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that our liberal commentators be retained. Both sides must be heard over the radio as in the press, if American ideals are to remain untarnished.

PULPIT VOICE

By Hamilton T. Boswell

GOD'S GIFT MAKES CHRISTMAS

The spirit and story of Christmas are obtainable from many sources. There is a mystical feeling of greater consciousness of Christmas as we hear, especially, the children sing that beautiful Christmas hymn, "Silent Night," Holy Night." Something about their young high voices interfuses a meaning of Christmas that the mind cannot convey, only the spirit, the mystical spirit.

In a reading mood during the Christmas season, there is especially such literary gems as Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol, depicting the convert which the Christmas spirit made out of Ebenezer Scrooge, the stingy and gruff old money hoarder. Then there is the time honored Holy Scripture which in Matthew and Luke beautifully unfolds the nativity story. Ahrough its verses as a window is to be seen that crowning event in a manger.

All of us in varying numbers receive Christmas cards. A surge of joy comes in our hearts as we read Christmas greetings, receiving the expressions of interest and concern from our fellowmen.

But of all these sources which reveal the Christmas story and spirit none is so expressive of the religious meaning in its power, beauty and force as is the gospel of John. So dynamic is it until it has become one of the most familiar of New Testament statements. John wrote: "God so loved the world that He gave His only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Go so loved, begins the Christmas story and is expressive of the angelic hosts which sang, "Peace on earth and goodwill toward men." God so loved that He gave, conveys the spirit of giving which is of the essence of Christmas. God so loved that He gave His only begotten son, expresses the birth of Jesus in His divine mission among men.

God's Gift makes Christmas. A real Christmas therefore is only known when we receive our share of what God has given to men that this earth might be a better place on which to live. God extends His gift without any strings, Christ is free, given out of deep interest and concern from the Almighty who cares. Yet this gift will go unheeded by millions who actually need it more than anything else. There are people today who will not receive God's gift as a token of a real Christmas. Instead shall they on this greatest date in history, set their hearts to receive the little gifts of this world. In awe and joy they will acclaim the gifts received one from another, the little trinkets made by the hand of men and bought from the altars of the marketplace. Little things that moth and rust corrupt and thieves make ready to steal. This superficial and poverty-stricken drama of Christmas will be as close as many will come to the heart of the real Christmas. Yet God ever extends the real gift of Christmas to men everywhere.

The gift of God will receive the same fate of many gifts which will be received by people but will not be openly received. Any rubbish man can tell you of the many unopened packages which will be found in the rubbish the day after Christmas. People refusing to accept gifts from certain people for personal reasons. There are those who will seek on the day after Christmas to exchange the article for something else closer to their hearts' desire. Some, however, will put an unwanted present on the shelf in anticipation of the time when they will be obligated to give an anniversary present or the like.

In various ways many will dispose of God's gift, as unwanted or to be exchanged or saved to give to somebody else. John in writing the forementioned verse makes God's gift available to the whosoevers. Many will reject the babe of Christmas as they did from the first cold dawn of his birth. But it was the whosoevers who made Christmas then and it is yet this small but sincere and honest group of folk who accept in joy the gift of God which makes Christmas.

It was the shepherds, the common people, the little people all who make up the characters of that Christmas event. Although the commercialism of our day with its glittering showcases of trinkets has attracted the eyes of the many, yet the real Christmas shall be observed as always by the whosoevers, as they welcome the coming again of the babe of God, in the hope that Peace shall be a reality on earth, and that goodwill shall be known by all men.—Minister, Bowen Memorial Methodist church.

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

DR. M. W. DOGAN COMES TO LOS ANGELES

A great man will soon be the guest of Los Angeles. Of course many great men come to California but we have a special interest in calling your attention to this noble individual, who will be a special guest of Los Angeles in connection with the coming Angel Bowl football game, regarding which we wrote at length only a short while ago. At a well advanced age Dr. M. W. Dogan is coming along with "his boys", the football team of Wiley college, which team and college he has fathered for some 50-odd years. No team nor college has ever been fathered by a more loved and respected president.

TEST OF GREATNESS

We began by referring to the retired president of Wiley college as a "great man". The question which naturally came into your mind was "what does he mean by the term "great" as regards this person?" That is a reasonable question and we do not hesitate to reply that we have used the word advisedly. And by it we do not mean that he has set the world afire. However, when a man tackles a hard job, sticks to it persistently and successfully for the span of his useful years and while doing so retains the love and devotion of his family, the admiration and respect of every man, small and large, by whom he is known, and approaches the setting of his sun with a healthy faith in humankind, an optimistic outlook upon life and a smile that bespeaks the peace in his soul, we take it that, provided his accomplishments are worthwhile, he is a great man.

FOR FIFTY YEARS

Matthew W. Dogan arrived at Wiley college when but a young man. Although the practice during those years was to give the job of president to doctors of divinity, young Matt Dogan was a mathematics major at Rust (Mississippi) college and when he graduated he remained at the school to teach that science. He later went to Walden college, which was then in Nashville, as a mathematics professor.

With this background of experience he went to Wiley, which was a far cry from what it has become under his leadership, and started 50 years of service to a cause dear to his heart—even yet, preparing Negro youth for the great task of advancing the status of an all but defeated race.

We get some idea as to the man's vision when we learn that he changed Wiley's name from "college' to "university' even before it had achieved the status of a good school of any kind. He says that he did that because his plans at the start were to make it a university, so he gave it that name, by which, for many years, it was known—Wiley university. It became Wiley college only when such became necessary as Wiley sought for and won accrediting by the state and educational agencies.

THE MAN IN ACTION

Having spent some eight years at Wiley, along with Dr. H. C. Hudson of this city, Bishops E. W. Kelly and Lorenzzo H. King of the Methodist Church, we as well as every other student, had no difficulty getting unusually close to our president. There was never anything about this modest, friendly man to keep any one of his students away from him. He was ever busy with his work but never too busy to greet even "the least of these" about him nor was he ever too busy to listen to their problems or queries. He was never caught "acting" the role of president of a college. He was just an honest man doing a job that he loved despite its heart breaks and difficulties.

He loved his students and everything that interested them interested him. He loved to hear them sing. Wiley became the music center of the Southwest. He brought in Harry Weber, who "passed" for a Negro to work with him. He brought Carl Titon . . . always the best was never too good for his Wiley . . . even though they might not remain over a year or two. Wiley had good music because Matt Dogan was willing to pay the price for good music. He enjoyed their social affairs. Even their courtships. He looked on and his usually almost-serious face would break into dimpled smiles.

He loved sports. If you should knock a home run he would give you a dollar. If you were a good kicker, out of his own pockets, he would buy you the best known kicking shoes. Wiley teams always looked good on the field because "Kid" Dogan, as he was affectionally referred to by the students, would see to it. He would attend every competitive game. If his team got behind he would get out his knife and begin whittling a stick. If they would get ahead he would throw the stick away and begin smiling. If they would continue to lose he would silently steal away from the game. He could not bear to see them lose. But he never griped. Never complained.

He would go to New York on business and drop us a postcard simply saying "Saw Giants beat St. Louis today. MWD." Tears becloud our eyes as we recall these memories. There is no wonder that many of his ex-teachers went from Wiley to become presidents of other schools. He brought men like William Pickens, J. B. Randolph and the best kind of people possible to help him do that job of preparing young Negroes to serve in the advancement of their people.

He now has a home off the campus on the side of one of the red clay hills of Marshall, Texas, which has been the scene of his happy struggles for these 50 odd years. But if we should ever go back to Wiley and Dr. Dogan is not there it will seem like—for instance "Hamlet without Hamlet." And we are sure that we are not alone in this.

Matthew W. Dogan multiplied himself manyfold during those years at Wiley and he will live throughout many generations by this very fact, even though Wiley itself should some day cease to exist as a college dedicated to its noble purpose. He has built monuments to his memory in the hearts of all who have watched him walking thoughtfully over that campus which he loved so well. And it is hard to find a man whom Dogan has touched during his youth who is not deeply concerned about his people and their cause.

This column is honored to welcome Dr. Dogan to Los Angeles and to let him know that we haven't forgotten what he has meant to us and to countless others whom he has fathered through those problemsome years of youth. We want you to know that we mean it when we refer to him as a truly great man despite his unobtrusive, quiet, modest manner. And we hope you will see him while he is here. Saturday night, the 28th, at the Angel Bowl Game at Wrigley Field or Sunday morning, the 29th at Bowen Memorial Methodist church, East 36th and Trinity, and at Hamilton Methodist church Sunday afternoon at the Wiley club "Dogan Day" program.

Let's Close the Ranks

By R. LAL SINGH

We have come to the end of another year. Some of us have made great plans for the festive season which sees the old year fade away and the new one begin. For the majority of humanity there will be no occasion better suited for greater resolve than the end of 1946—filled as it was with intrigue and devices that continue to shake the foundation of the future peace and security of the world. And to this great majority of people, what arrests their eyes most? Their long quest has been and still is, peace, and an economic basis by which the brotherhood of man may be universally extended and the threat of war forever removed.

True, from the terrible crucible of this second world war great things have come. Nations large and small are participating in a world organization known as the United Nations Organization. The workers of the world have united into one body known as the World Federation of Trade Unions with a representation of 66 millions of people. It is a world mouth-piece that will voice the grievance of the workers from every land, and will draw up such legislation and resolutions and submit them to the United Nations for the universal benefit of the worker. Workers of the world are grateful to those leaders in progressive trade unions who have labored untiringly to establish this first step by which the standard of living in all countries might be raised, and through which greater opportunity for general welfare for the many shall become a reality.

FREEDOM OF OPPRESSED PEOPLES

At this writing, as we approach the end of 1946, I am informed that the Indonesian republic representing 72,000,000 people has been recognized by the Netherlands government. The Draft Agreement, which I was able to see, is indeed promising. Its third article, however, which speaks of the right of any part of Indonesia forming the republic to secede from the Indonesian republic leaves much to be desired. The main objective has been gained, however, and the misery and suffering of a great people is ended. The great contribution Indonesia has made to world civilization in the past, will now be greater in the future.

And right beside this new-born republic, another great country and people will celebrate the birth of the Republic of India. To the 400,000,000 people of India who have struggled for over 55 years to throw off the yoke of British imperialism, this is an event of great magnitude. India's Declaration of Independence delivered at an historic session of the Indian National Congress in 1929, is based closely on that of the United States and since then, the working committee of the Congress, has declared that a close study of the American constitution must be made so that the future Republic of India shall be guided thereby.

Throughout the long and bitter years of struggle for independence, India's leaders have committed themselves on the side of democracy. They have pledged India to support world peace and security. Recognizing her key position in Asia and at this historic moment in China, Nehru, as head of the present government of India, has reiterated his long and deep conviction that fascism at home and abroad must be completely destroyed if world peace and security is to be realized.

Nehru speaks from experience. He was in Czechoslovakia when that great country was sold down the river, He was in Spain and saw at first hand the struggle of the Loyalists against fascism. He was invited by Mussolini and Hitler to talk things over regarding India. Nehru never even replied. Today, he sees with a clarilty of vision as a great internationalist, the duplicity on the part of certain statesmen, to sabotage the principles of the United Nations Charter.

Nehru, therefore, as leader of an oppressed people about to be freed, and mindful of the continued threats to world freedom, has called together representatives from all Asia to a conference to be held in India in June of 1947. This conference is to be devoted entirely to the paramount question of world peace.

'PEACE TO MEN OF GOOD WILL'

Today, more than ever before, peace and good will must mean an expression of action, not merely to be uttered from the pulpit as an expression particularly adapted for the occasion. The people who are the pawns in time of war, must now take this expression meaningfully and resolve that it shall be interpreted to mean universal understanding and the true implementation of the brotherhood of man.

Peace cannot be a reality when one side across the table rattles the sword and the other, still bleeding from the wounds of a ghastly war, hammers alone on the anvil of peace, and is being constantly suspected of political duplicity. To the Soviet Union as to all those who have devoted their years of activity toward world peace, this is the moment of great decisions . . . decisions, not for war, but for peace. And why is this great land and people so desirous of building together with other nations the machinery which would guarantee peace and security for peoples everywhere?

Russia lost 7,000,000 killed in the last world war or, ten times the casualties on both fronts of the United States and Great Britain combined. Five million Russians, men, women and youths over 13, were shipped out of Russia into Germany to be used as slave labor, and fed as Dr. Rosenberg's document brought out at the Nuernberg trial, just "enough to sustain life for a limited period."

Twenty-five million Russians had their homes destroyed by the Nazi-fascists. Today, 17 million of them are still wandering homeless. One half of Russia's industrial plants, one quarter of all the farm animals in the land were either destroyed or carted out of the country. How can anyone contain the idea that Russia now seeks to promote another war?

The Soviet Union desiring peace, has lived up to the letter in the agreements made at Potsdam and Teheran. The Russian leaders of a great and heroic people are concerned chiefly with cementing that friendship for the future as it existed during the joint struggle for survival against the common enemy of all mankind. Russia remembers fully the hand of friendship extended her during the crushing days of war. Today, she seeks only understanding and mutual undertaking in the establishment of world security and the peace which she must have in order to heal the wounds she has suffered . . . to rehabilitate her wandering people . . . to reconstruct her devastated towns and cities . . . to bring her industrial potentials again into operation so that her people might live, prosper and contribute their share toward the welfare of all humanity in a world desiring peace and opportunity most.

That we, the people, shall not again be called upon to suffer the miseries of another war, it is necessary that we evaluate seriously the prospective peace offers for the future. It is necessary for us, no matter where we may be, to seek out those organizations that are devoted toward the betterment of relations between nations, and for the furtherance of world peace and security; to help in closing the ranks against reaction and intrigue and the devices that breed suspicion nad threaten the world with a third yarld war. To workers in fields and factories, there is a brother beside you who is also interested in peace. Seek him, let him help in closing the ranks against those who would make him another victim of hate and prejudices. Labor has a great responsibility that must be shared by everyone, no matter what his color or his creed. Together with him we can shape the future and guarantee "peace and good will toward men."

An Indictment

By HUBERT C. BAIN

The tendency to mollify a people by apparent concessions, but at the same time seeing to it that they acquire the shadow, but never the substance of their wants, is a flagrant distortion of democracy and is not in conformity with the progressive tendencies in the course of human affairs as they exist today.

Law and government are the quintessence or C-note of man's achievement in civilization. The steady hand of justice its mentor—to tear away the bandage from the eyes of justice, so that the scales may be biased, because pigment and certain geographical position is the heritage of one of its citizens, and not the other, is a desecration, and a sacrilege to the gods of reason, of law, and of government.

Many people in America, and they are in the majority, are shocked and shamefully embarrassed that the spirit of their fair constitution is a mockery, and that the democracy of which they boast is a farce made so by the leaders or elected representatives of the nation in high office. It is evident that the people who elect such representatives to office are in a large measure far ahead in the practices of democracy, and all that it portends than their so-called leaders are ready to admit.

If the would-be champions of truth and fair play are seriously desirous of alleviating the suffering of the people of minority groups, it is the height of hypocrisy to say that it must be done gradually. Any suffering that people are unnecessarily made to undergo is wantonly criminal.

It is inconceivable to imagine a dentist telling his patient that he has been accustomed to seeing him suffer so long that he would feel strange to see him suddenly without pain, and that in order to accustom himself to this idea he must relieve the pain gradually. Could you have that type of patience? NO! Or suppose your foot caught in the gang-like teeth of a bear trap, and as you stand yelling and calling for help, some moron bids you stop yelling, be patient, that the best that can be done is to relieve your suffering gradually.

In any court of law where injustice has been perpetrated over a period of time, it is only natural to assume that the injustice would be immediately corrected, and some way devised to compensate the sufferer for his being victimized. Justice can never be tempered with perversion, neither can we afford to sell our sense of moral values by making concessions with infamy.

Seven hundred million people have their eyes turned in the direction that is America. A new hope has been born in them. A new confidence is making itself felt. They are watching the nation that made possible the four freedoms. To them the United Nations conferences mean more than just the meeting of another committee. America, more than any other nation today, is in the unique position to outline to the rest of the world on what road the family of nations should travel for the next hundred years. Are these teeming millions to be incorporated in the economic structure of the world? Are they going to be denied the God-given right to equal opportunities, or are they going to be subjected to time-worn indignities that rob them of their manhood and their dignity. Do we have the men of courage and wisdom that would change this picture and make the millenium possible?

The world stage is now set for the greatest spectacle in melodramatics that it has ever dared hope to visualize. The atom has thrust upon us the possibilities of the greatest magnitude. and again as if symbolizing the ionic theory — the possibilities can either be negative or positive. If negative, and there are fools today, as there have always been in the past, who would dare travel this road because they allow the avidity of their natures to lure them into a false sense of security and believe that they could still get away with "it." They thus permit their low, mean and perifidious natures, fostered in Bismarckian and Count Ito ideology to ride roughshod over their victims, resulting always in a greater toll of destruction.

These people, if they succeed in traveling this path, would irrevocably lead to total annihilation of whatever claims we have to civilization and the possible end of the earth as a planet. Destruction, want, pestillance, and suffering would take on the girth of atomic bigness. Leaving nothing in its wake, not even a human being to pine or visualize the blessed "might have beens the blessed "might have beens" of the finer qualities in man, had he been given a chance to the expression and eventual fulfillment of our much-ballyhooed democracy.

Concessions can only come from the great is a truism. We have had and known great men in our time, men whom we revere and whom the world loved for their greatness, and because of their willingness to make concessions to and for the underprivileged. How many among us dare to be great? It is not that we lack the intelligence, neither is it true that we lack the opportunity. The sad truth is that we lack the intestinal fortitude—we lack the moral courage, yes, we lack the guts. Soon we will feel and know that the road we have been traveling leads to doom, and like people on a lost ship at sea, will lift up our voices in one great cry, "God, have mercy on us," but it will be too late!

Analyzing the Situation

By DON LORING

It would not be appropriate if I did not start my column this week with a few words about Christmas, and wish my many readers, happiness for the season. Christmas is such a wonderful time of the year, I'm sure all of us look forward to it, beginning the day after, until the next one comes. A time of giving and receiving gifts, big dinners, family reunions and no end to the celebrations we plan for the Christmas holidays.

But, if more of us thought of Christmas other than all the fare it brings, our cause for celebrating would be more sincere. What of its fundamental message. Peace on Earth, Goodwill Towards Men. As we look back this past year, has there been peace, has there been goodwill towards man?

Is it so hard for us to live in the spirit of truth and goodwill and sincerity? Is it so hard to live in goodwill towards our fellowmen? To accomplish these ends we, too, must make sacrifices and when we think it is too hard to make a sacrifice let us remember the one the Christ child made.

In closing this Christmas message to you I can find no words more appropriate to convey my wishes than this one which was inscribed on one of the many cards I received.

"May you have the gladness of Christmas which is Hope;
The spirit of Christmas which is Peace;
The heart of Christmas which is Love."

I wish I could just stop with this Christmas message, but I have a job to do in compliance with my desire to keep the public informed of existing conditions about them. Still interested in Central avenue here is some food for thought.

In practically every business community throughout the country the merchants got together and financed Christmas decorations such as you see all over the city. I bet many of you are wondering why there are no decorations in the Central avenue district. Well, I too am wondering. Is it because the merchants in that district don't take pride in their district? Well, I think they should in as much as they make their fortunes from your purchases throughout the whole year.

I don't think it's because their clientele is Negro, because the Watts district is decorated for the season and the majority of the clientale is Negro. All in all there just isn't enough public interest in Central avenue and I've been trying to stir up some interest because I won't accept any reason for the Central avenue district to be below the standards of other districts. So if you read this, discuss it with your friends and let me hear from you. Your letters will give me the assurance I need in my campaign to make Central avenue equal in appearance to other communities.

Did you know that there is one first class hospital in the entire southeast section of Los Angeles—a section that houses nearly a half million persons of various races, including Negro, Mexican and white! And that, of the 21 registered private hospitals in greater Los Angeles, not one accepts Negro patients except in private rooms at rates often beyond their ability to pay, that many physicians are barred from their staffs because of prejudice!

More than 100 well-known civic-minded citizens of L. A. are meeting this challenge with plans for a non-profit, non-sectarian, interracial hospital, called "West View." It's to be at 54th & Main streets. This project is recognized by the Social Service Department and a contribution will be deductible from your income tax. No matter how small your contribution, it will help materialize these plans for this much needed porject. All $100 contributors will receive honorable mention in this column. Think of the pride it will give you when you see this structure completed, know that you helped bring it about. Plant a stake in your community by contributing now to the West View Hospital Inc., 5334 South Main St., Los Angeles 37, California.

Men Must Be Men, Supervisors Rule

(SCP)—Clothes make the man, and that's what the sheriff's office wants.

Under a new ordinance adopted by the county supervisors yesterday men are banned from wearing feminine apparel, masquerading as or impersonating females.

Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz said the new law was necessary to cope with an increasing nuisance.

Trail Blazers: Ruth Mosby

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

"This place belongs on Wilshire boulevard," said Dean Simmons, Hollywood screen writer, to Ruth Mosby. He and his family had just finished their meal in an atmosphere of serenity and refinement which has been established throughout the building.

In her guest book I found similar comments by visitors who had dined at the Crystal Center Tea Room, 4818 Avalon boulevard, from every point in the country.

Its manager and owner is attractive Ruth Mosby, who is the only Negro woman that independently owns and operates such a building in the West.

A businesswoman for the past 25 years, she operated a beauty shop in Detroit during the early 20's. In Detroit she was a member of Bethel AME church. In 1929 she came to Los Angeles and opened Ruth's Beauty school. Thousands of the girls who studied cosmotology under her are now operating their own shops in Los Angeles or elsewhere.

She retired from cosmotology in 1944 and of the two years that she remained at home, she declares, "My mind was too active to stay put, so I planned and built this place, which was completed in December, 1945."

She had always visualized a business establishment that would be the pride of the community and, during her retirement she saw the need for such an undertaking. The Eastside needed a nice eating place where people of discriminating tastes could bring their friends and family.

From every direction she was dissuaded from venturing into this business. The community wouldn't support such a place . . . it would be difficult to get a cooperative working body . . . it would be financially unsound, they all said. Not to be discouraged, she proceeded with her plans. And today she not only has a beautiful building comparable to those on Wilshire boulevard but she has also rendered those predictions untrue.

This dignified Cape Cod building offers plenty of homelike atmosphere in arrangement and furnishings. In the dining room, oval mirrors with the right touch of green plants, an ivory Baby Grand piano, luxurious carpets, and magnificent lamps add the necessary grace and charm to make the rooms attractive.

The Tropical Room, where banquets are held, is styled in modern tropical motif featuring bamboo furniture, brilliant floral patterns on the wall, with indirect lighting from the ceiling. And something that everyone appreciates—every room is steam-heated and air-conditioned.

Too often the right solution to a problem is difficult to discern but that has not been the situation at the Center. All groups find the kind reception received at the Center inviting. Her clientele has included many notables of stage, screen, civic, fraternal, and social life from all over the country. And the church groups find it particularly enjoyable. Since it dispenses neith-liquor nor stage entertainment, people understand that when they dine at the Crystal Center Tearoom they are paying for food, service, atmosphere, and fine dinner music daily from 5-10 p.m. featuring Lilliam Jackson at the Solovox.

Setting a table for small banquets, luncheons, parties, receptions, and weddings is quite an art, which the Center is well equipped to do. Varying in price, the most expensive set-Louis XV silver, exquisite candlabras, and crystal fingerbowls.

When you visit the Center you will also find housed in this building individual businesses including a fur salon, florist and beauty shops, portrait studio, Community Health Association office, Institute of Religious Science, and gown shop.

This exceedingly busy woman manages to find time to give to her three dogs—Jackie, a cocker spaniel; Rusty, a chow; and Chili, a shepherd, to all of these she is very devoted.

Ruth Mosby, a lover of fine music, prefers the opera and concerts. She is a member of St. Phillips Episcopal church and belongs to these fraternal organizations; Eastern Star, Deborah chapter 13, the Elks, Household of Ruth, and numerous social clubs.

With the successful celebration of its first anniversary last Sunday, the Crystal Center Tea Room can look forward to a bright future because its gracious hostess, Ruth Mosby, has created an atmosphere of elegance and refinement appreciated by her guests.

Peace at What Price?

By EARL FRENCH

A civic-minded citizen who had been taught to believe that letters to his congressman or his senator carries weight is being told in no uncertain terms by these representatives of the government, to mind "his own" business.

But a civic-minded citizen is not an easy person to shake off. For instance, he still wants to know if the United States is at war, or at peace.

Here is why he wants to know.

One morning his car wouldn't start. It was the battery, said the mechanic summoned by the citizen.

"O.K.," said the citizen, "put a new one in."

Mechanic did as he was told. The bill was $21.50.

"What do you mean?" the citizen demanded. "Last year I paid $11.75 for the battery you have just taken out."

"That's right," the mechanic answered, "price control is gone, but at least we know that we are at peace."

At lunch time, the citizen remembered that he had promised money to his wife for her Christmas shopping. He took himself over to the bank.

The bank teller greeted him cheerfully. "Getting ready for Christmas shopping?" he asked, counting the money out.

The citizen nodded in the affirmative.

"War bonds would make someone a very nice present," said the teller, still holding the citizen's money in his hand.

The citizen raised his eyebrows. "War bonds? Surely you must be joking. We are at peace now."

"Oh, no," said the teller, with the importance of one who is "in the know." "Far from it. We have just begun. We have the atom bomb. These bombs cost a lot of money to produce. That's why we say that the best Christmas gift is a war bond."

Coming back to his office, the citizen's secretary informed him that Miss Food Relief was waiting to see him.

Miss Food Relief was the embodiment of kindness. "Mr. Citizen," she said, crossing her legs at the ankles, "wouldn't you like to make Christmas more cheerful for the poor Germans? You probably know how the Russians ruined their country."

"But aren't we still at war, or something like that?" asked the citizen.

"Oh, no." Miss Food Relief was very emphatic. "We are at peace with Germany." Then she added hastily, "Of course, we are at peace with everyone now. We stopped sending Lend-Lease and food to a lot of countries because we believe in peace."

In the late afternoon Mr. Citizen's wife called. "Dear," she said, "we have finally heard from Junior. The mailman just delivered his letter. I am so worried, dear. I am so afraid."

"Has anything happened to Junior?"

"No, dear. But do you know where he is? He is in China."

The pit of Mr. Citizen's stomach began to contract slowly. "But why should he be in China? He told us he was enlisting to get his education. You remember that, don't you? We are at peace now. We stopped shipping Lend Lease . . ." Mr. Citizen didn't know what else to say.

"Dear," his wife's voice was coming back as if from afar, "Mr. Architect was here when the letter arrived. He said that our boys were fighting there. Mr. Architect said that we are still at war."

"What was Mr. Architect doing at the house?"

"He stopped to tell us that the work on our new home will have to be delayed because he cannot get materials. He believes that the industries are not reconverting for peace production. He didn't think that they will reconvert, because the government is talking about compulsory military training and the atom bomb. I would give anything to have Junior back with us."

"You know, dear," said Mr. Citizen in a very firm voice, "we have a right to know where we stand. I'll be home a little late for dinner, but we will find out once and for all, if we are at war, or at peace."

The rest of the afternoon Mr. Citizen devoted to dictating letters to Mr. Senator, Mr. Congressman, Mr. State Department, and Mr. Truman.

The first answer came from the White House. As Mr. Truman was on a forced vacation because of the coal strike, his secretary informed Mr. Citizen that his letter was transferred to the "proper" authority, the FBI.

As Mr. Byrnes' arms were trying to keep the surprise packages handed to him by the Russian from spilling and showing their contents, the State Department answered for him. They told Mr. Citizen not to fall under Communist influences, but to continue to live the American way.

Mr. Congressman promised to look into the matter after the 1948 elections.

The letter from the senator was short and to the point. It said, mind your own business.

After reading all these replies, Mr. Citizen was ready to enter one of the numerous insane asylums built by the non-partisan governor of his state.

But his reason was saved by the colored Mr. Porter who found Mr. Citizen in his office late at night, in a state of delirium.

Mr. Citizen poured his heart out to Mr. Porter while Mr. Porter was cleaning the office.

When Mr. Porter's turn came to speak, he said the following:

"The government talks peace to business and war to the people. They give business back their excess war profits, and they still keep a war-time salary tax for the people.

"Business owns the atom bomb production and it talks war to the people so they will continue to pay their war-time salary tax to the government.

"But the working people are the only ones who talk peace, want peace, and will get peace. Let their mighty voice rise in their first concrete demand against the war-time salary tax. That will let the government, the banks, and big business know that the working people are four square behind the disarmament program. Such demand will stop their double-dealing - double-talk, and will compel them to disarm.

"Stop brooding Mr. Citizen, better get to work on that. There are more people on our side than there are on theirs."

We wish to apologize for the absence of "towntalk" in the last edition of the Eagle. We assure you that the negligence on our part was not intentional, but nevertheless graciously accepted by you. We would also like to take this opportunity to thank those of you who expressed interest in the column by inquiring.

Closing the year's serious activities and moving into the the lighter and mor entertaining phase, the Youth Council of the NAACP presented its second annual banquet and installation service Friday December 13 at the Friendship Baptist Church Banquet Hall.

Following a splendid meal, Madison Shockley, newly elected president of the organization, delegate to the 8th annual Youth Congress held in New Orleans, presented his report of the Congress; charging the young people to fulfill their duties in attaining true democracy by fully preparing themselves for the task that lies ahead.

John Muir Jr. College has become the new site of basketball games and dances. The Alpha chapter of the Phalanx fraternity and the Settlement being the first two clubs to provide entertainment for their many fans.

The weminine chapter of the Belle Sangue's gave a fashionable formal dinner party, Friday, December 20 at Garner's Center. One of the most outstanding couples present was Julian Mims and Beverly Couton who seem to be quite the twosome these days. Speaking of Mims—It's been a long time since we've heard from "little brother" Don, but it seems as though now he's coming out of hibernation — it is rumored that he will be seen in the company of the charming Miss Duncan at the Phalanx first annual pre-New Year's Eve Ball.

Christmas Eve found many a gay younger-setter from the Crown City joining in the fun and frolic at the Phidelphians annual Christmas Eve Ball, held at the Riverside Rancho. Noted Thelma Jackson, charming as ever, along with Bill Duncan, George Morrow, Juanita James—adding to the gaity of the holiday festivities—Dolores Carroll, Doris Prince togged in the latest yuletide attire also lending sophistication to a spiritabl atmosphere. Orchids to the Phidelphians for a really fine affair,

Pasadena party goers will revel in holiday spirits (both figuratively and literally) as the Yuletide season progresses. From all evidence, the social minded regards the coming Pre-New Year Ball, of the Alpha Chapter of the Phalanx fraternity, as the event "not-to-miss". Some keep constant vigil at the mail box; others are depending upon the phrase at the bottom of the invitation, "couples only", but from all information that can be gathered, regardless how the guest get there, it is certain to be a huge success.

Sunday night found many football fans standing in line at the Rose Bowl waiting to get tickets for the New Years Game between UCLA and Illinois. Due to some misunderstanding or just out-and-out dishonesty, only 1400 tickets were sold, instead of the original 7000. M. L. Jackson, Thomas Floyd and Reynard Cummins were among the fortunate ones to receive tickets while Ernest Griffin, Don Mims, and Winfred Eckley found themselves without. More proof that a minority can be better-off than a majority.

No doubt, many of you are anxious to see the results of the contest that was announced in the last issue of Dena Chit Chat. We thought that we had planned this little contest so carefully that nothing could possibly go wrong. But there was just one small item that we overlooked, some of our readers' integrity. Many of the letters that we received seem to be solely designed to build up some individuals, notwithstanding their deservance.. The thing that made this practice so evident was the fact that so many people wrote from two to four letters with indentically the same names in the same position. Among these we found a great deal of similarity in penmenship, and stationery that came from the same box. One letter, in particular, that was sent to Barbara Durham, went so far to enumerate such as: So and so is a swell girl, although she is conceited. I don't see why she is conceited because all she has is hair . . . " A group of sisters names were signed to this particular letter although they did not write it. Now, all of this and other incidents added up to something that certainly would not express the opinion of the great majority of people that read Dena Chit Chat. Rather than print these grossly false tabulations, we have decided to give it up as a hopeless undertaking and hope that someday that people will respect themselves enough to practice honesty.

The Charm of You

By NATALIE T. SCURLOCK
For the NNPA News Service

The holiday season will be more crowded with "get-togethers" this year than it has been in quite a long while. You will be renewing old friendships and making new acquaintances, therefore, in all things you will want to put your best foot forward.

Now is the time to let your poise, personality and all the little things that make you charming work their special wonders for you. Whether you are attending some one else's party or throwing your own, relax and forget yourself so that you may be able to give rapt attention and appreciation to other people. Rivet your attention on them and it will not matter greatly what else you do.

What do you bring to a party? Is it anything anyone would want? Do you bring poise, beauty, cheer, freshness, a story, some harmless gossip or a compliment? Surely you bring something. Anything is better than a negative, aloof, detached, unresponsive attitude. If you bring these latter things then you can be sure of being left out the next time.

Conversation is, of course, the backbone of any "get-together" and no matter if you are guest or hostess it is up to you to do your bit toward keeping the conversation going smoothly. Only constant practice will give you ease when conversing, so keep trying. The fine points of conversations are things we are always learning and never quite perfect. Therefore, never be discouraged by your small failures.

It is a difficult feat to start a general conversation from a dead silence but, if it seems necessary to do so, you can always say, "Did you notice in the morning paper that . . .?" mentioning something of general interest. This is usually an infallible way to start men talking.

To be honest about awkward moments is the best way to overcome them. Honesty can be ever so amusing and awaken more interest than any amount of pretense or tricks and it seems to eliminate stiffness. Honesty will cure any conversational panic you may feel and will usually be so human and amusing that everyone will relax and talk for hours.

In order to have something to talk about it is necessary to know what is going on in the world. Any woman, no matter what the demands on her time, can take two hours a week, perhaps 15 or 20 minutes at a time, to devote to reading a news magazine, an amusing magazine, and the book reviews in her favorite newspaper.

In order to be a success at anything you must honestly like people. Most of us do like other people but may fear them a little—fear their ridicule, fear that they will usurp the advantages we want ourselves, or the affections of someone we care about. All this fear is based on a sense of inferiority which a certain amount of training in correct thinking and acting will dissolve.

At this point I would like to get personal and wish you the very merriest Christmas and the happiest New Year you have ever known.

Must Do His Spending On Wife and Child

(SCP)—Despite his plea that "when a young man has no money, he goes out and robs a store or something." Court Commissioner Clarence E. Johns directed George M. Hammond, 21-year-old post office employe, to pay his estranged wife $60 per month temporary alimony.

Hammond, who lives at 2724 Raymond street, protested that his salary could not cover such payments, but Commissioner Johns pointed out that his wife, Janie B. Hammond, 20, cannot work since she must care for the couples' 7-month-old son, and is expecting another child.

Hammond, who has filed for divorce, charged that his wife hit him with an ash tray.

Mrs. Hammond, who is represented by Eva M. Mack, lives at 9720 Beach street.

CIO Leader Hails Truman's Action in Naming Group to Map New Civil Rights Laws

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Creation of the President's Committee on Civil Rights by President Truman was hailed this week by James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the Congress of Industrial Organizations as "recognition of the need for intelligent study and militant action on two major domestic problems — the threat to basic civil rights and the menace of racial oppression and conflict."

"I am delighted to serve on the President's Committee on Civil Rights," Carey commented. "At a time when our social fabric is strained from the pressures of postwar adjustments, it is heartening that President Truman has acted to give added strength to our constitutional liberties in this way.

"Appointment by Mr. Truman of this committee is recognition of the need for intelligent study and militant action on two major domestic problems—the threat to basic civil rights and the menace of racial oppression and conflict.

"I look forward with anticipation to the work of the Committee, and I am satisfied that a lasting contribution will be made in more complete recognition of human rights.

"The appointment of Mr. Charles E. Wilson of the General Electric Company as chairman of the committee was a particularly happy choice, since he has a long background of public service and unusual understanding of community problefs. Other members of the committee are equally qualified for outstanding service, in view of their personal backgrounds and experience or the organizations which they represent.

"In naming me to the committee, Mr. Truman has taken note of the pioneering work of the CIO Committee to Abolish Discrimination in seeking new formulas for interracial and interreligious unity and understanding. In behalf of the CIO and its anti-discrimination organization I promise full cooperation with the other members of the President's Committee on Civil Rights."

Federal Court Hears Arguments In S. Calif. School Jimcro Case

SAN FRANCISCO — (NNPA) — The ninth federal circuit court of appeals took under advisement last Monday the appeal of school authorities of Orange county in Southern California from a decision of the federal court for the southern district of California enjoining them from putting children of Mexican and Latin descent in segregated schools.

As "friedns of the court," the American Jewish Congress, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the American Civil Liberties Union, the National Lawyers Guild, the Japanese-American Citizens League, and Attorney General Robert W. Kenny of California were allowed to intervene in the case. They filed briefs attacking the legality of the segregation policy as violative of the 14th amendment to the Constitution. Counsel for the Japanese-American Citizens League participated in the argument of the case.

Judge Paul J. McCormick of the district court issued the injunction against segregation on March 21. He held the practice to be "unconstitutional, illegal and void." Regarding separate but equal facilities, heruled that equal protection of the laws was not provided through the furnishing in segregated schools of the same technical facilities, books and courses of instruction available in the other schools.

The school boards and superintendents of four school districts, including Santa Ana, the county seat, sought to justify the segregation on the ground that most of the children of Mexican ancestry came from homes where English is not spoken and that pupils of school age must be segregated for efficiency in instruction. Judge McCormick held, however, that the English-language deficiency of some Mexicans did not justify "general and continued segregation in separate schools," up to the sixth, or in two instances, the eighth grade.

Joel E. Ogle, Orange county counsel, and his deputies, George F. Holden and Royal E. Hubbard, argued that the district court lacked jurisdiction and erred in a motion to dismiss the case.

"We contend," Hubbard told the seven appellate judges, "that segregation of itself alone is not denial of equal protection of the laws."

David C. Marcus, who with William Strong represented the plaintiffs, all of whom are American citizens of Mexican descent and are taxpayers, contend that "If we accept the premise as laid down by the other side that a school board can do anything it desires and not be in violation of the federal constitution, a board can start segregation with children of Mexican descent, go on with Germans and other national origins and end by dividing with respect to religion, and we'll have the same situation we had in Germany."

Liberian Delegate, Howard U. Head See Western Powers as Block to Real World Freedom

By JAMES L. HICKS, NNPA Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Mordecai W. Johnson of Howard university last Tuesday joined with Atty. Gen. C. Abayomi Cassell, chief Liberian delegate to the United Nations General Assembly, in denouncing western powers for exploiting smaller nations and held up Russia as the new champion to fight the cause of the smaller nations.

Cassell hit at "powers that wish to bring an end to Negro government in Africa" as he presented a Liberian flag to Howard university on behalf of President W. V. S. Tubman and the people of Liberia. Dr. Johnson picked up the keynote in his speech of acceptance for the university, charging that Western civilization's primary contact with Africa has been one of "shameful exploitation."

Cassell made the presentation at ceremonies held in the Browsing room of the Founders' Library and witnessed by State Department, university officials and dignitaries of foreign governments.

Charging that western powers run the risk of being "morally outflanked" by Russia in the treatment of peoples who previously have been regarded as subjects for imperialistic exploitation, Dr. Johnson stole the oratorical spotlight from the eloquent Liberian as he lashed European powers for their encroachments in Africa.

Stating that no nation in Europe can look upon what it has done in Africa without trembling as it faces it's Maker, Dr. Johnson said today small nations are demanding "that the cards be laid on the table."

This means, he said, that the question of whether the greater powers are going to be agents in developing the economic freedom of the small nations or whether they will be their exploiters must be answered in the next ten years. All the while, he asserted, the smaller nations are turning more and more to Russia as the champion of their cause.

Liberia's problem grows out of its daring to be a free republic in Africa, Cassell said.

He told his audience he could "bring tears" to their eyes by telling of Liberia's fight against "powers who wished to swallow us up as late as the early thirties of this century."

He sought to correct two "misconceptions" about his country—"that we do not welcome men and women of our race and that we maltreat the natives or indigenous people of the country."

He labeled both these conceptions as "false and far-fetched" propaganda and said they were spread by propagandista, newsmongers and nations unsympathetic to Liberia.

Cassell extolled the work which the United States has done in Liberia during the past ten years but sought even further aid for his country. He said it would not be difficult for the United States to give Liberia $100,000,000 for her development and called attention to the huge sums of money spent by this nation on the atomic bomb.

Dr. Rayford W. Logan, chairman of the university's department of history, presided at the ceremonies, and Hilyard R. Robinson, technical director of the Liberian Centennial Commission, introduced the Liberian diplomat.

In the afternoon, the Liberian cabinet member and United Nations representative and members of his delegation led a memorial pilgrimage to the shrine of Judge Bushrod Washington, early supreme court associate justice and first president of the American Colonization Society, which was organized in the District of Columbia in 1816 and later sponsored the colonization of Liberia. Judge Washington died November 26, 1929, and is buried at Mount Vernon.

United Nations delegate Counselor H. Fayette Harmon, elder Liberian statesman and presidential advisor, placed a wreath at the Bushrod Washington monument during brief memorial services at Mount Vernon.

Members of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, trustees of Mount Vernon, received the Liberian delegation and their party at the Bushrod Washington shrine and joined in the memorial services for the early American jurist and nephew of General George Washington. Charles C. Wall, superintendent of Mount Vernon, directed the memorial ceremony.

Britain to 'Free' Burma Commons Told by Atlee

LONDON—The Labor party this week threw a bombshell into the ranks of Britain's Colonel Blimps with a proposal to recognize the right of self-determination of the Burmese people.

Announcement of the plan by Prime Minister Clement Atlee brought Winston Churchill to his feet angrily protesting against carving any such slice out of the British empire. Churchill charged that the Labor government "has in fact shorn Burma from the British crown" in the "process of the decline and fall of the British empire."

Atlee told the house of commons that the first step toward giving Burma "independence within or without" the empire would be taken soon.

Churchill assailed the "extraordinary haste" of the Labor government to get out of Burma so soon after "the enormous sacrifices" of British and Indian blood to "liberate" Burma from the Japanese.

Liquor Dealer Gets Beer Bath, Loses $300, Some Whiskey

The trio Sunday robbed Magnus, white proprietor of the Civic Center Liquor Store, 12 South Broadway, of $300 and several bottles of whisky after he was slugged, bound and gagged in the back room of the store.

Court Denounces Use By Police of Stooges To Frame Citizens

Jesse Val Verde, 745 South Stanford avenue, was found not guilty of having in his possession marihuana by Judge Clement Nye in Department 40 of the superior court after Judge Nye had severely criticized so-called stool pigeoning at sponsored by the Los Angeles police department.

Testimony at the trial revealed that Val Verde had left his home early on the morning of September 21, 1946, and that while he was gone a man whom he knew very well came to his home to visit him at approximately eight o'clock in the morning. That the man, after being in his home for a while, asked to use the bathroom and then hurriedly left.

Shortly thereafter, police officers arrived and went directly to the bathroom where in one of Val Verde's coats they found a Bull Durham tobacco can full of marihuana.

Later Val Verde arrived and admitted the coat was his. When the officers asserted that they were going to jail Val Verde's wife and his aged grandmother as well as one of his children, Val Verde admitted that the marihuana was his, however, subsequently he retained the services of Attorney Gordon.

After listening to the evidence Judge Nye stated that something smelled fishy in the case and made his comments on the stool pigeoning system, exonerated the bail and found Val Verde not guilty.

Homeless Vets Get New Kick in Pants

(SCP)—Thousands of veterans who had harbored hopes of federally-financed shelters are in for a sad disappointment.

The federal Public Housing Authority, which administers the veterans housing construction program, is fresh out of money.

Hence, the temporary construction program here will cease next week. This was announced last night by Langdon Post, Regional director of FPHA, who said to continue the program would mean going in debt above the limit set by congress.

2 Officials Hit Use of Names In Fascist Sheet

District Attorney W. E. Simpson and County Supervisor Roger Jessup yesterday informed the California EAGLE that they had not authorized the greetings which appeared over their names in the December, 1946, issue of the race-baiting fascist sheet, The Los Angeles Equalizer.

Both officials emphatically denied they had authorized the use of their names, Jessup in a telephone call, and Simpson in the following letter to The EAGLE:

Dear Mrs. Bass:

My attention has been called to the fact that in the December issue of "The Los Angeles Equalizer" there appears an article entitled "'Niggers' Slug Jews." My attention has also been called to the fact that in the same issue there appears a card bearing my name and entitled "Season's Greetings."

I take this opportunity to say to you and your readers that I most emphatically disapprove the article above referred to. The greetings card was printed without my knowledge or approval. I am not in sympathy with race-baiting, and until my attention was called to the article, I was not aware of the fact that there had been printed a greetings card including my name.

Very truly yours,
W. E. SIMPSON,
District Attorney.

It will be noted that the district attorney makes no mention of what his office intends to do, if anything, to stop such riot inciting activities of the fascist sheet.

Newsmen Assail Racist View Of Justice Dept. Spokesman

—Newsmen here took sharp issue yesterday with a Justice Department official who contended that the race question is "insoluble."

Speaking at the Weekly Capital Press Club luncheon at the Charles Hotel, William A. Coblenz, assistant director of information of the Justice Department, chided the press for its method of fighting race hatred and bigotry and declared the race question to be insoluble.

Although he emphasized that he was opposed to segregation, Coblenz cited a large Washington department store where Negro patronage is not solicited and suggested that colored people should "build your own stores."

Asked to explain why Attorney General Tom Clark had failed to invite Negro sportswriters to a national conference of outstanding sportswriters held here last week on juvenile delinquency, Coblenz said he had not handled that particular project in the Justice Department but that he felt sure it had been merely an "oversight." He added that colored people should not become aroused at such "oversights."

In a spirited session following his talk in which he had invited his audience to "pull off the gloves" and get down to facts, members of the club emphasized to Coblenz that they were at variance with many of his views and particularly stressed the point that the Justice Department should not be guilty of "overlooking" any one group.

The discussion became particularly heated over some "off-the-record" statements made by Coblenz.

Coblenz is currently engaged in arranging a special train which will carry historical documents including the Emancipation Proclamation and the Bill of Rights on a tour of the nation. The tour will be sponsored by the Justice Department and is designed to ease racial tensions and emphasize civil liberties.

Court Rules Carter Must Support Child By Divorced Wife

Generosity is fine, Court Commissioner J. B. Faulkner admitted, but he insisted that Floyd Carter's spending should be channeled into his divorced wife's pocketbook.

Protests by auto painter Carter that he had ignored a court order to pay $15 a week for their year old daughter because he was supporting another daughter by a previous marriage, elicited little sympathy from Commissioner Faulkner.

"You have to make your peace with the court here before you can get generous elsewhere," he said, sentencing Carter to five days in jail, suspended on condition he make up $245 back support and continue regular payments.

Walter L. Gordon Jr. represented Carter's ex-wife, Mottee, of 9420 Parmalee street. Calvin W. Murdock, white, was counsel for Carter, who lives ta 1256 W. Jefferson boulevard.

THE progress of local transportation was seriously curtailed in 1946 by economic and industrial dispensions which halted the flow of sorely needed new equipment.
The outlook for 1947 is not too encouraging.
But we have faith in American industry. We face the future, confident that what must be done WILL be done and that the day of a new era in transportation is dawning.

10 BEST DRESSED WOMEN NAMED

SUITS AND HATS are foremost in Mrs. Edith Bailey's wardrobe. Though she likes color, most of her clothes feature muted shades. Mrs. Bailey feels that the '46 fashions are the most fascinating ever worn.

LUXURIOUSNESS OF FURS is a fancy with Mrs. Lottie Martin, who wears a grey squirrel over a black gown featuring an inset of sequins and beads. Mrs. Martin is educational leader at the L.A. Telephone Company, and a member of the CHARM AND GRACE come with good taste, and Mrs. Ramelle Bagnerese has both. She favors the after "five" type dress, and finds time to make her own hats. In the photo, she wears a black satin cocktail suit complimented with deli-

HATS AMONG FAVORITES, especially small hats topped by feathers, says Mrs. Marion L. Ford, who wins comment on her excellent taste in dress from many. Most of Mrs. Ford's clothes are made by "Phoebe."

SETTING THE PACE, charming Mrs. Leontyne King favors simple and extreme lines. Some of her clothes are made to order, while others are purchased at different dress shops.

AFTER FIVE, dress is very important to Mrs. Virgel Brown, who poses prettily, in a white, strictly formal, gown. Mrs. Brown's hair is a light "honey brown"; most of her colors are chosen with this important factor in mind.

SEWING IMPORTANT, charming Mrs. Helen Watkins feels that every woman should know the art of sewing. A student of the Couturstat design she makes her own clothing, and is very pleased with the California way of dressing.

RICH COLOR is important to Miss Jane Criner, who is pictured above in a chocolate brown suit, with matching reptile bag and shoe set. Her hat is of chartruse ribbon and the Ascot tie is also of chartruse.

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

With California the mecca of style and Hollywood holding recognition as the world's seat of fashion along with Paris, we proudly point to ten women this week as the "Best Dressed in '46." They were taken from a large realm of well dressed women active in L. A. circles, before the people, and recognized by many for their outstanding clothes.

MRS. EDITH BAILEY, wife of Dr. W. E. Bailey, stands out as a well dressed club leader and house wife. Mrs. Bailey, who heads the Women's Auxiliary of the Dental Pharmaceutical Association, as president, feels that the styles for 1946 and the forecast of 1947, are simply beautiful. She prefers wearing suits, and muted shades are her favorite. Most of her clothes bought "ready made" feature simple lines. Hats are her weakness, and usually give the dash of color to her outfit.

MRS. LEONTYNE KING is noted for her all-around wardrobe, and favors dashes of color in accessories, especially in hats. Most of her apparel is made to order, and the new line of costume jewelry does much for one's wardrobe, she feels. Active as a member of the 13 Aids Charity club, she stresses simple lines for some occasions and extreme lines for others.

MRS. VIRGEL BROWN enjoys shopping for ready made apparel and has some of her clothes made to order. Her honey brown hair, usually coiffed by Eadwards, is a definite factor in deciding "just what color," to wear. Bright colors are very interesting to her, though the cocktail and dinner hours ususally find her in the somber black complimented by colorful accessories. She is the wife of Samuel Brown, Jefferson High School, Music Teacher, and hold's membership in the Alpha Wives club.

MRS. HELEN HARPER WATKINS, Lomita matron who spends most fo her time in Los Angeles, enjoys designing and making her own clothes. Informal dress with simple lines is stressed by the popular matron, who is past president of the "While Away Dinner Club," one of the city's oldest organizations. A student of the couturstat design, she feels that all young girls should learn the art of sewing, and is extremely pleased with the general taste, American Negro women on a whole, are exercising in dress. Hats are important to the wardrobe she feels. Being a career woman, suits and business dresses make up a goodly part of her wardrobe.

MRS. MARION L. FORD, popular young matron of the Doll League Charity club, is a native Californian, and has the proud feeling that California women are definitely in the lead when it comes to fashion. Mrs. Ford is very pleased with the fact, that the latest fashions feature longer skirts. The basic color, black is her favorite, and she feels the dressy type suit should be included in every woman's wardrobe.

MRS. LOTTIE L. MARTIN, favors furs and loves the luxuriousness of lounging clothes. Working as Education Supervisor at the Telephone Company a goodly part of her wardrobe includes suits and sport dresses. The date dress, minus too many frills and small hats meet with her most hearty approval. Most of her dresses are made by modiste "Phoebe" and her hats by "Madeline Josephine." Mrs. Martin is a member of the Doll League Charity Club.

MRS. RAMELLE BAGNERISE, president of the Orchid Club has a reputation for elegance, built on her understanding of what is the right thing to wear on each occasion. Due to her activity in club and civic life, suits are high on her list for day wear, though the "cocktail hour" dress is her favorite. Color, especially, in the different red hues and black are her features. As a hobby she makes her own hats. Mrs. Bagnerise is definitely in favor of the longer skirts, and feels that California women are beautiful dressers.

MISS JANE CRINER, popular young UCLA graduate and member of the Crop 'N' Tail Riding club, wears interesting creations for sport and formal occasions that win favorable applause from many. Shoes and bags are important items on her list, as well as rich colors. Miss Criner likes the feminine type dress, though the different sports clothing are her favorite. Aside from her club activities, she is doing research work for the Sociology Department at UCLA, and plans to enter school next semester as a pre-med student.

MRS. CATHERINE GARCIA, prominent organizer of the Metropolitan Council of the National Council of Negro Women, president of the Los Angeles Chapter of Iota Lambda Sorority and a member at large of the Business and Professional Women's Association, finds time from her many activities to make most of her clothes. Simple lines, muted shades give the trend to her wardrobe. Mrs. Garcia, who has traveled all over the country, definitely favors the California manner of dressing.

MRS. MAMIE ANDERSON, wife of Rochester (Eddie) Anderson, is constantly on the go, traveling to different parts of the country with her husband. Most of her clothes are purchased as she travels and her basic wardrobe features black, white and some shades of green. The scintillation of the 1946 styles are winning her whole hearted approval, especially the casual type California creations. No special type clothing is most important in her life. She likes evening as well as sport, etc. Though she wears hats, when the occasion calls, she doesn't like them very much. Mrs. Anderson feels that the style forecast for 1947 will do much to enhance the beauty of women the world over.

Clothes do not make the woman, but they do wonders for her. Our California women are by no means taking a back seat, and we feel that the named ten for 1946 are good representation of the Southland's Best Dressed.

The jury ordered operator J. E. Shramek to pay $735 in damages to a customer, Albert J. Edwards. Shramek had contended that statements on claim checks issued to clients relieved him of responsibility for the vehicles.

Sets Rules for Vets Beneficiaries

(SCP)—Close to one million dependents of 700,000 veterans in the Los Angeles area are concerned with federal pension laws, according to the Veterans Administration which Saturday issued a set of rules clarifying the rights and benefits provided for beneficiaries.

World War II veterans must have served some time between December 7, 1941 and the end of hostilities before their dependents can qualify for benefits and pensions, the VA said.

The veteran must have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable, the VA added. Compensation will be paid to dependents of veterans who died as a result of service-incurred injuries, or from diseases not contracted by the veteran's own wilful misconduct.

OPEN-HOUSE FOR VISITORS

It was a very merry group of friends who gathered at the home of the Jesse H. Grahams and Miss Pauline Slater on last Sunday evening to exchange the "Season's Greetings" to to meet their charming houseguests, the J. C. Cowans of Wichita, Kansas.

Much gayety and merriment was added to the evening by the surprise impromptus presented to the honorees by such great celebrities as Clifford Dixon, Edna Heard, Jimmie Cowan and Hattie McDaniels.

MARY A HOCKEY FAN

Hockey fan Mary Astor, who has attended nearly every Hollywood match in the past five years, was discussing the game with George Murphy on the set of "The Rich, Full Life" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "Take the children?" asked Murphy. "No," Mary answered. "I'm afraid it would make 'em too puckish!"

French Style Draping Holds Audience Spellbound at Review

Chic, custom-made ensembles by several Bay Area modistes highlighted the second annual fashion show of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority last Friday evening at Technical High school in Oakland.

Most brilliant of all the fashion forecasts presented, however, were those of the talented Los Angeles designer, L'Tanya, who modeled eight changes from her own exclusive wardrobe. In addition, the young dress stylist held the audience spellbound while she demonstrated French-style draping as a method of design, using only two pins and a flower with two lengths of material to achieve a cleverly draped effect on her model, Miss Charlene Dupree.

In addition to Miss Dupree, one of the models from her Hollywood salon, L'Tanya was accompanied by another charming model, glamorous Melba Foppe. Both models beautifully exhibited several L'Tanya originals.

Other models included the Misses Elberta Henderson, Bertha Marshall, Jean Young, Carreth Bomar, Myrtle Mann, Joan Adams, Valeria Jones, Vera Brown, Doris Allen, Barbara Jean Morris, Jacqueline Richard, members of the Bay Area subdeb set, who were featured in a skit by the popular Phi-a's, teenagers' organization.

Modistes and dressmakers whose fashions were worn in the show included Mmes. Audrey Allen, Juanita Ribbs Reid, Jessie Mason, Deva Tyler, Elizabeth Smith, Hazel Borman, Thelma Rae Butler and Ruby Wilson.

Mrs. Betty Reid, an accomplished model in her own right and graduate and holder of a certificate in modelling from a San Francisco school for models, introduced the fashion show models.

Mrs. Reid was introduced by Vernon McCalla, Oakland businessman, who also presented the entertainment features of the show. These included dance numbers by these students of the Carolynne Snowden School of Dancing, San Francisco; Louise Homer, Ruth Bremond, Rosita Meyers, Earline Gaskin, Ollie Mae Lake and Thelma Caldwell. Music was furnished by Jerome Richardson's orchestra.

Fashion show committee chairmen were Annie S. Henderson, Zenobia K. Payne and Martha S. Ramsey. Thelma Thurston Gorham was chairman of publicity.

Daffodil Girls Give Festive Xmas Party

On Saturday December 21, betwin the hours of 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. the Daffodil Girls were hostesses to their annual Christmas party. A large number of their friends attended, and the party was a grand affair.

The seting for the party was the popular Rumpus Room, which was artistically decorated in a Christmas motif. Dancing, cocktails and dainty "tidbits", were the condiments that provided the entertainment for the guests. Souvenirs were presented each, and an enjoyable evening was spent by all.

The Daffodil Girls wish to extend well wishes, and their appreciation for your support, which aided them in closing another successful year. To their public, a Merry Xmas and Prosperous New Year.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

"THE MESSIAH" was never presented more beautifully than it was last Sunday afternoon in the Second Baptist church auditorium. Under the superb leadership of Anna Griffith Morrow the 85-voice mixed choir, with Luvenia Nash at the console, reached its zenith, giving the musical dramatization. The men, correctly garbed in dark suits and the women in elaborate white gowns, made a beautiful sight. Anna Griffith Morrow was striking in a heavily-sequined black gown. The voices clearly rang out in the Christmas music, that gave the capacity audience a feeling of the real Christmas spirit. Solo leads were taken by Margaret Pett, Eloise Lee, William Stark and Seth Toney. The concluding numbers, "Hallelujah Chorus" and "He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd" brought the grand event to a perfect climax. The combined choirs of Independent and Second Baptist churches will present "The Messiah" again on Friday evening, December 7, 8:30 o'clock, at the Second Baptist church. This date should be a "must" on every music lover's list.

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

No place like home, especially at this time of year, so Delores Bell took the "City of Los Angeles" for the East, as soon as classes were out for the holiday at USC. Orchid Oliver, who has been studying at Wiley college, arrived in good ole L.A. last Friday, and has been enjoying the round of pre-yuletide events with her host of Angeleno friends. From the Berkeley campus of the University of California came Ivan Houston, so that he and Philippa might spend their first Christmas as Mr. and Mrs. together. Also taking the "Daylight" for the dear ole southland were: Clyde Grimes and Howard Grant, president of the Alpha Delta chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, a senior, who has forgotten about L.A. femininity, in favor of the lovely Cal co-ed, Julia Miles. Phyllis and Ernest Halloway brought their bundle of joy with them from Sacramento, so that their many friends might become acquainted with the little lady. They plan to stay until after Christmas.

OPEN HOUSE

Practically every house in the city will be "open," with Christmas cheer galore for all who enter. From 4 p. m. until 9, Sgt. and Mrs. LeRoy Black will celebrate their third wedding anniversary; eggnog and champaigne will be the main service. This will mark Sgt. Black's first Christmas in L.A. in four years. Sharing honors will be two visiting sergeants from Fort Ord, Calif.

The 12 members of the Crop 'n' Tail Riding club will hostess their eggnog party from 4 until 8, at the beautiful home of Erline Kemp. Exactly 100 guests will be in attendance, and the eggnog will be served from an appointed table, beautifully arranged by Frieda De Knight.

Forerunners and aftermaths to this great day are plentiful. Last night the Phidelphians' annual Christmas Eve party at Riverside Rancho left its impression on the minds of the many who attended. The gowns were colorful and the Christmas spirit held sway. The Roberts sisters, Evelyn and Norma, started the yuletide ball rolling at their party Sunday night, given in honor of their brother Fred's birthday. The affair was a big surprise to the honoree, and there was many a younger setter there to wish him a happy birthday. The Roberts' new Van Ness manse was a perfect setting for the affair, with a huge white Christmas tree beaming with blue lights, adding to the decorations. Among those present were Shirley Rakestraw and Frank Peterson, Vernel and Mildred Gauther, Leon Coleman and Myrtle Kenzie, Leonard Beavers, Gloria Crouch, Stanley Robinson plus.

The Original Cavalrette formal has been listed as one of the most beautiful of the season, given Saturday night at Elks Ballroom. Wilmer James and Tony Hill were co-hosts on Thursday during the soiree hours when their unique West Jefferson ceremic shop was turned into a showroom and party setting for a group of buyers and close friends. Tomorrow night's Delta White Christmas all, is a must on many a list, and the 29th has been circled by the lucky few receiving invites to the Comos club's Cos-Nog. Other events being looked forward to are the Les Charmantes New Year's Eve ball, scheduled to be given at the Masonic this year as a semi-formal and the Rose Parade and Rose Bowl game will just about complete the round of parties and what have you.

OTHER HAPPENINGS

Regardless of the season or time of year, Dan Cupid manages to steal at least a bit of the spotlight. Riding with St. Nick and all the Christmas excitement, we find several weddings and betrothals of importance to Los Angeles society. Coming as a surprise to many is the marriage announcement of Margaret Hopkins to Chester T. Thomas. The couple eloped to Santa Ana in May, and decided to let the secret out during the Christmas season. Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hopkins, the bride's parents, prominent in Santa Barbara social circles and L.A. circles, are making the announcement this morning.

In the throes of enjoying a northern Cal honeymoon are Blanch and Johnnie Merril, following their fashionable wedding Sunday evening at St. Philips Episcopal church. Blanch made a beautiful bride in the traditional white satin gown, and she was attended by her sister, Juanita Williams Lacey, Clara Dean Williams, Lois Prelieu and Mrs. Clifford Reed. Serving as best man was Charles Hill, and ushers, James Lacey, Jr., Geoffry Roberts and Roscoe Beck.

WELL! WELL! WELL!

Santa probably filled Dorothea Towles' stocking with everything her heart desired. . . . Lois and Walter Davis (Dr.) are just as thrilled as their kiddies with the idea of Christmas and all. A perfect family if there ever was one. The Richardsons, Maudell and Len (Atty.) are sure to have several additions to their sports collections beneath the tree. . . . Fellow fourth estater Libby Clark did all right, giving out the Christmas cheer at yesterday's party. . . . Eddy Burbridge is just about happy enough over the champagne and ?, sent him as a Christmas gift from Metro. . . . Wrenna Clark and Carl Peterson are just about happy enough spending the day together. Wrenna made it from N.Y. just in time. . . . Roy Loggins, Jr., and the lovely fiance have decided to forget the wedding bells in Mexico, as planned, until they get the little love nest. They will probably have to build. . . . Dotty Nicholas expects the better half home before the New Year rolls around. . . . Phyllis Scott can't get over Christmas without snow. . . . Dr. C. W. Hill and the men of Sigma are enjoying the holiday as they eagerly await Jan. 5, when they start the Carver Celebration. Joe and Emma Adams are Christmasing and waiting for the New Year together. Joe delayed his tour with Lionel Hampton to be with his bride at this time of year. He will probably take off for the East shortly after Jan 1. . . . Seeing that it's deadline, I wish each and every one of you a very MERRY CHRISTMAS and a HAPPY NEW YEAR.

P.S.: Thanks loads for the many, many season's greetings and gifts. Serving you during '46 has been a grand job, and believe me, you make a wonderful public. 'TIL NEXT WEEK.

Cavalrettes Xmas Formal

An outstanding event of the yuletide season was the Original Calavdettes' formal given Saturday night at the Elks ballroom.

The affair was highly successful and was enjoyed by many friends, including guests from San Diego and Santa Monica.

The girls were very attractively gowned in bouffant bangaline dresses of various hues, with corsages of Talisman rose buds, club flower.

Each member made her entrance through a horseshoe of red chrysanthemums in a garden scene of poinsetta, chrysanthemums and bird of paradise, with Christmas packages adding the seasonal touch.

Before and after parties were held by members Remy and Harding respectively.

At breakfast with Mrs. Harding, members exchanged their Christmas gifts.

Calvarettes are: Kathryn Paris, president; Marguerite Slayton, vice-president, Mary Bobo, recording secretary; Olivia Pettibone, financial secretary; Rose Lee Johnson, corresponding secretary; Mamie Remy, treasurer; Wilda Clarke, business manager; Thelma Meigs, Clothilde Woodson, Valerie Harding and Mozelle Herring.

CHRISTMAS STORY

I sat ~ eying my own handiwork—a beautifully-decorated Christmas tree. Adorning the window of my living room, resplendent with its vari-colored lights and brilliant ornaments, it seemed to give animation to the glorious message of "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

Even as this thought impressed itself upon my mind, there came over the airlanes the sound of carols—blessed Christmas carols of every land. It was not hard to visualize the men, women and children of every part of the world who are more closely drawn together at this season; when each, in his own way, celebrates Christmas or "Christ's Mass" as this season was originally designated.

We are celebrating the birthday of the Saviour-King, whose very advent proclaimed the spirit of Brotherhood. The twinkling lights from the millions of trees adorning the homes of rich and poor alike, proclaim again that perpetual message of hope. But somewhere along the road man seems to have lost sight of the true meaning of Christmas.

Iam reminded of His words: "It is more blessed to give than to receive. Three of these words at least—"give to receive"—must have indelibly impressed themselves upon our minds. For let us ashamdly acknowledge this to be a fact—that as the years have passed, we have lost sight of the true meaning of Christmas.

This sacredly beautiful observance has become the most highly commercialized of all, and the exchange of gifts has become for the most part, a travesty upon the true expression of unselfish love.

When the most beautiful song ever to be sung, "Glory to God in the Highest and on Earth, Peace, Goodwill Toward Men" was sounded; when the wise men, after seeing His star in the East, came bearing their precious gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh; when the halo above the infant head shone brighter than the noonday sun, there was a genuine feeling of gratitude and love in the hearts of those who were fortunate enough to receive the goon tidings.

Doubtless the custom of bringing gifts at Christmas originated then, and has come down to us through the ages; but the message of all-inclusive love has always been strongly entrenched in the background.

Should we give only in the hope of receiving? Surely not. We have already been recipients of the most priceless of gifts. Let us rather give our gifts out of humble gratitude for it.

If only we could catch the true spirit of Christmas and have Christmas every day! We dare not muse upon the mind of world this would be, if this should come to pass. Think of the Golden Rule being practiced daily by all the peoples of the world! Imagine, if you can, the cures that could be effected if men would dwell, even for a day, in the atmosphere of The Sermon on the Mount. It is almost incomprehensible, yet it is the high purpose for which we have all been challenged to strive.

Why are we so quick to admit the presence of enemies and prepare for war, and so slow to sense the presence of friends and prepare for peace? Ironic, is it not, that men talk so much about the Prince of Peace, while at the same time laying such intricate plans for the prosecution of war.

How timely were the words of Drew Pearson who in his yuletide message said: "We must bury our differences before we have to bury our dead." Not a pleasant holiday thought, but this business of living together as men in peace and love is an every-day job. We cannot relax even at Christmas. Rather, this season presents a very opportune time to bring about a spirit of harmony and good fellowship with our families, our neighbors, and humanity everywhere.

Let us broaden our vision on this wonderful Christmas Day. Let your mind's eye wander to the many countries of the world where little children expectantly await the arrival of Santa. Yes, to little children everywhere, Santa is the greatest of heroes. He braves every kind of weather, for he would not disappoint a single little one. It should be calamitous, indeed, if children should begin to doubt the existence of jolly Kris Kringle, or Santa Claus. It matters not by what name he is called. Christmas has lost its appeal for many adults, but let's pray that we may keep it for our children.

Musing upon the universality of Christmas, I seemed to hear the jingle of bells and the warm yuletide greetings of people everywhere. There were the holiday salutations and the glad handclasps—"Noel Joyeux," "A jawly yuletide, old boy," "Feliz Navidad," and many more which I could not understand, and yet they all add up to "Merry Christmas" in the same old way.

So, in closing, may I add mine. To the many friends and ardent readers of the California EAGLE, this 25th day of December, 1946, let me say—"A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU, ONE AND ALL!"

A BUSY THIRD ARMY CHAPLAIN IN GERMANY

CHAPLAIN CHALMERS F. GAITHER, a native of Los Angeleas and product of Second Baptist church, is shown in several shots taken at Heidelberg, Germany, where he is stationed with the Third Army. Gaithers has been most outstanding in his work during 30 months of overseas duty. He was an honor graduate of the Chaplain's School at Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass, in 1943, and has received 12 superior ratings as chaplain, officer and gentleman. In addition, he has been in most of all the important cities from North Africa to Europe. Chaplain Gaither says his father and his lovely girl friend are the contributing factors in his success. Pictured above at top left, he is shown on the football field. He is the coach of the great 644 AAABN grid team, which is a standout in the ETO, receiving front page pictures and news stories in the "Stars and Stripes." Upper right, Cpt. Gaither shakes hands with Cpl. William Benson, all-state guard from New York City, the 210-pound captain of the team, just before their all-important game with the Ninth Division Special Troops whom they defeated, 12-0, for the biggest upset in the ETO. The Ninth Division had won 7 straight games and were unscored upon until they met the powerful 644AAA. Lower left, Capt. Gaithers lays plans for his Christmas program; center bottom he is shown at ease and lower right, he discusses his sermon for Sunday Services.

Citizens Enlist Aid of PEC To Breakdown Jimcrow Policy Existing in Business Offices

Long interested in the program to break down the bars of racial prejudice existing in business offices against the hiring of Negro girls, a small group of citizens went to the office of Sidney Davison, 1717 N. Vine, to enlist the aid of the People's Educational Center.

In preparing for this program the Center will offer in its winter term, beginning Monday, January 20, an intensive shorthand course based on the Gregg system. The instructor, who has her own secretarial school in Santa Barbara, has taught shorthand for both the army and navy during the war. She has developed her own methods of teaching, vocabularies, etc., which accelerate the learning process.

The Center offers a great variety of courses for the winter term, including courses in Hot Jazz, Screen and Radio writing, Colonial Problems, and other courses in the social science, music, art, and writing departments.

WASHINGTON (CNS) — President Truman took personal command of a meeting of 50 sports writers and editors, who were called to Washington last week by Attorney General Tom Clark to assist in combating juvenile delinquency through sports.

"Fair play and sportsmanship", the president said, "have helped us to maintain the only republic of its kind in the history of the world.

"You gentlemen are making a contribution to the welfare of the nation when you encourage fair play in sports." The president and the sports writers hope to create sufficient sports enthusiasm in the youngsters throughout the country so they will have little time or energy for crime.

City's Schools Should Teach 'Sportsmanship' Democratic Living, Says Youth Panel

What are the health needs of the community?

How can the home, church, and school help curb juvenile delinquency?

These were the topics discussed in a panel of two students from Jefferson High school, Robert Portley and Shirley Janet Williams, and three Carverites, Elzie Emanuel, Evelyn Franklin, and Patricia Reed. This discussion took place in the Carver auditorium, at a meeting of the Co-ordinating Council, on Friday.

The summary of the suggestions that were made to improve the community follows: The basis of all moral training begins in the home. Homes should be made more interesting and pleasurable for 'teenagers, so they will not be encouraged to have all their recreation elsewhere. There should be more family activities, such as picnics and going to the movies or theatres together.

In the school the child should learn good sportsmanship, and how to live in a democracy. There should be more recreational activities in the schools, such as after school clubs, and every school should have its own 'teen canteen. School playgrounds should be kept open in the evening, with a physical education director.

The community could provide a more wholesome environment for its youth. There should be more malt shops for 'teenagers only, and less liquor stores. Businessmen should not encourage loafing on their property, and they could enforce the laws against selling drinks and tobacco to minors. The school could work with the businessmen in seeing that the child labor laws are enforced, and they should provide more jobs for 'teenagers that are less strenuous and that would be helpful in training them for their future careers. There should be more community centers such as the one at the Avalon Christian church, sponsored by the Community Chest.

There should be a more adequate police force, and more officers should be especially trained to work with children.

The church has a very vital part in training future citizens. It should encourage young people's attendance, by letting them take an active part in the services, such as ushering, and singing in a junior choir. Churches should also make their Sunday schools more interesting, so the youth will be encouraged to attend.

The health needs of the community are very great. There should be more adequate clinics, and health centers; and there should be health study clubs for both children and adults.

Miss Ann McGuffin, the registrar of Carver and the sponsor of the Leadership and Student Council Class, acted as moderator of the discussion. Rev. Boswell, president of the South Central Coordinating Council, presided at the meeting.

Sports and Social Mix For Wiley College Fete

Of much interest to local Wiley college and Florida A. and M. supporters, football fans and the public in general will be the Pre-Angel Bowl Game Jamboree Friday night, December 27, at the Elks auditorium, 4016 So. Central ave.

The Angel Bowl Association, sponsors of the Angel Bowl Game, Saturday night, December 28, at Wrigley Field invites the public to their open house pregame rally where the Angel Bowl Queen will be crowned, members of Wiley college and Florida A. and M. football squads will be introduced, and the public can take part in the customary carnival of fun and frolic preceding a game in which two colorful, popular and well coached college teams will play.

The atmosphere will be charged with the "old college spirit," while the men and women who remember the stars of the 20's and 30's when they were college students, will join the college graduates and former students of recent years, and the boys and girls of today in choosing their team for Saturday's game.

Members of the two squads will be introduced early in the evening. Between dances Coaches Gaither of Florida, and Long of Wiley will be interviewed along with the experts on the probable outcome of the game the next day.

Raisin Bowl to Provide Action

FRESNO, Calif—There will be a "T" party at the Raisin Bowl on New Year's Day when Wilbur "Bill" Hubbard brings his San Jose Spartans to Fresno to battle the Farmers of Utah State, coached by E. L. "Dick" Rommey, for the mythical state college championship of the nation.

Both exponents of the fast "T" system are alumni of their respective colleges. Each coach has piloted his eleven to a successful season using the "T" formations.

Flower Bowl Interest High

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Jacksonville, the gateway city of Florida is now anxiously awaiting the Sixth Annual Bowl classic which will pit the strong Delaware State college, C.I.I.A. representative against the Florida Normal College from St. Augustine. Both teams boast an aggregation of fast, shifty backs and strong forward walls. Coach Hinson the foxy mentor of the Florida team.

The Delaware squad is coached by a former Jaxon and one who played football at Edward Waters College. Victory for either team will be a victory for the coaches.

Why the Dove Mourned At the Nativity

By HARRY LEVETTE

(Editor's Note: Beginning with "Yule-flame the oracle" in 1926, Harry Levette, long-time former staff member, has each year written a special poem for the Christmas edition of The California EAGLE. This year's, which will be published in his forthcoming book, relates the Nativity from an unusual angle.)

* * *

A strange thing transpired that first Christmas dawn—
From far and near flew birds of every hue;
The lark, the nightingale, the oriole,
The thrush, the bluebird, chirping, warbling, new,
Sweet songs, while angels hovered in men's view.
But the dark "Wise Man" of the three who came
Had brought a dove among his presents rare;
Uncaged, it joined the feathered choristers
But while they sang, it mourned, so sadly there.
A sorrow note, while all seemed bright and fair.
A hush fell on the throng—"What omen, this?
The Wise Man spoke: "The bird brings prophecy!
This new-born King of Kings must sorrow meet;
Death on the Cross! Then twenty centuries more
He'll be re-crucified to pay man's score."

L'ENVOI.

Just as the year draws to a close we see,
A sign that Tolerance at last may be
The pattern that all races follow; this the key
To Peace on earth, one world; from wars all free.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

Subject: Paul Claims the World for Christ. Devotional reading, Psalm 47. Lesson Text and Outline, Acts 9:15; 19:21; 23:11; 28:28-31; Romans 1:13-16; 15:22-24. Motto Text Romans 1:14.

Introduction

Cosmopolitan consecration of his whole life featured Paul's love, labor, and loyalty as he claimed the world for Christ. Note his world assignment at Damascus, his world aspiration at Ephesus, the emporium of western Asia; his world assurance at Jerusalem, the metropolis of the Jews; his world ministry at Rome, the capital of a universal empire; his world message to the Romans, probably written from Corinth, the chief city of Greece; and his world mission as contemplated to Spain, the western extremity of the ancient world.

Comments

1. Paul was a vessel in which the gospel-treasure should be lodged, for its conveyance to many; an earthly vessel, but a chosen vessel. The vessel God uses He Himself chooses; and it is fit He should Himself have the choosing of the instruments He employs. Christ's name is the standard to which souls must be gathered, and under which they must be enlisted, and Paul must be a standard-bearer.

2. Whoever is against us, we need not fear if the Lord stand by us; if He undertake our protection, we may set those that seek our ruin at defiance. It is the will of Christ that His servants who are faithful should be always cheerful. Perhaps Paul, in the reflection, began to be jealous of himself whether he had done well in what he said to the council the day before; but Christ, by His word, satisfies him God approved of his conduct. Or, perhaps, it troubled him that his friends did not come to him; but Christ's visit did itself speak, though He had not said, Be of good cheer, Paul.

3. Ministers' doors should be open to such as desire to receive instruction from them, and they should be glad of an opportunity to advise those that are in care about their souls. Paul could not preach in a synagogue, or any public place of meeting that was sumptuous and capacious, but he preached in a poor cottage of his own. When we cannot do what we would in the service of God we must do what we can. Those ministers that have but small hired houses should rather prech in them, if they may be allowed to do that, than be silent. Paul received all that came to him, and was not afraid of the greatest, nor ashamed of the meanest. He was ready to preach on the first day of the week to Christians, on the seventh day to Jews, and to all who would come on any day of the week; and he might hope the better to speak because they came in unto him, which supposed a desire to be instructed and a willingness to learn, and where these are it is probable that some good may be done.

4. Paul's gifts made him a debtor; for they were talents he was entrusted with to trade for his Master's honor. We should think of this when we covet great things, that all our receiving put us in debt; we are but stewards of our Lord's goods. Paul's office made him a debtor. He was a debtor as he was an apostle; he was called and sent to work, and had engaged to mind it. Paul had improved his talent, and labored in his work, and done as much good as ever any man did, and yet, in reflection upon it, he still writes himself debtor. The excellency of the gospel lies in this, that it reveals to us, the salvation of believers as the end: It is the power of God unto salvation. Paul is not ashamed of the gospel, how mean and contemptible soever it may appear to a carnal eye; for the power of God works by it the salvation of all that it believe; it shows us the way of salvation, and is the great charter by which salvation is conveyed and made over to us.

Comment on the Motto Text

The world should be given the whole gospel. The entire human race is entitled to the good news of salvation, here and hereafter, through the revealed, revealing, redeeming, risen, reigning, returning, and rewarding Christ, our Saviour and Lord. Every believer in Christ is duty bound to spread everywhere the "good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." Like Paul he is "debtor" because of his own conversion from sin, his commission from the Lord, his capacity for service, his contacts with his fellow men, his consecration to the cosmopolitan cause of Christ.

SINGING MEASURE

JOHN 3:16

To the shepherds that were watching
Came a message from above,
Of a babe laid in a manger
Of a wondrous God of love.
And the guiding star that led them
To the precious babe so fair,
Is still guiding us to Jesus
To His mansions over there.

And the Holy Bible tells us
How the child to manhood grew.
How He suffered on Mt. Calvary
Died for me and died for you.
In return, Oh, let us always
Be submissive to His will
He's still waiting to receive us
Everlasting life to give.

On the resurrection morning
He returned to earth again,
Then ascended into heaven
But the Comforter remains;
And the promise to the faithful
If we pure and Holy be
We shall dwell with Him forever
Yes, through all eternity.

Msgr. O'Dwyer Issues Call for L.A. Housing Conference Jan. 18

Plans for a community-wide conference on housing to be held in mid-January were announced yesterday by the Los Angeles Citizens' Housing Council in conjunction with its release of a letter to President Truman deploring his scuttling of the Wyatt housing program.

"Our member organizations, constituting the principal veterans, labor and civic groups in Los Angeles, are alarmed by the worsening of the housing crisis through recent developments," Msgr. O'Dwyer, president of the Council, stated. O'Dwyer said that the Council is sending out a call to a conference to be attended by delegates of all local groups to formulate a constructive program of action.

Among the policies for which the Housing Council reiterated support in its lette to President Truman were: complete building material priorities control; curtailment of commercial and industrial construction to present levels; maintenance of rent control; maintenance of ceiling prices and rentals on new construction; and immediate passage of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft Bill to provide housing within the reach of low and middle-income families as well as to make a start on slum clearance.

"If the federal government defaults in the job of providing the necessary controls for ensuring adequate housing for veterans by severely limiting the allocation of building materials for non-essential and luxury construction, the cities and states must step into the breach," Father O'Dwyer said.

The delegated conference sponsored by the Citizens' Housing Council is scheduled for Saturday, January 18, at the First Unitarian church, 8th and Vermont. Organizations of 50 members or less will be entitled to 1 delegate; 51 to 250 to 2 delegates; 250 members or more, 3 delegates; and central or federated bodies will be entitled to 2 delegates regardless of membership. Additional organizations may affiliate upon application to the Citizens' Housing Council and payment of a $10 fee.

Honor Louis At N. Y. Dinner

By CARRIE MILLER
(Special To Eagle)

NEW YORK — Joe Louis, Worlds' Heavyweight Champion of Fistiana, was honored at a special dinner held on the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf-Astoria, swank New York hotel last Monday.

Highlight of the occasion was the auctioning off of the gloves with which Joe Louis whipped Tami Mauriello recently, with the proceeds to go to the coffers of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, a progressive group. This organization carries the fight for tolerance through an educational and legislative program in 13 states, south of the border of Democratic civilization as we understand it.

Frank Sinatra, chairman of the Dinner committee, cancelled several "command performances" before the Bobby-Sox League to arrange for and attend the dinner, acting as master of ceremonies. Burl Ives, folk-singer was the guest-star and Jenning Perry, columnist for P. M. and Aubrey Williams, book publisher were speakers.

This affair topped the one held December 13 by the same organization, at the 15th Regimental Armory in Harlem, also attended by many prominent guests and onlookers.

CIO State Convention Urges Locals to Expand, Defend Rights of Minority Workers

The recent CIO State Convention at Santa Cruz, California was remarkable in many ways. Not a bet was missed.

From hard hitting resolutions to the ouster of Senator Bilbo, the convention made clear the CIO objectives, with an attitude of complete integration of minority groups.

In all probability the most important role of the convention was played by John Dial, vice-president of the State CIO Council and a representative of the UAW.

He presented the second half of the minorities report which urged that each local union establish a minorities committee whose specific tasks should be: (1) To defend and expand the rights of minority workers; (2) to engage actively in integrating minority groups into the life of the union, and also integrating those other elements who have not been exposed to liberal thinking in terms of race relations; (3) to be vigilant and vigorously oppose any attempts by the employers to weaken our union by playing one group of workers against another.

Dial's report also urged the improvement of collective bargaining contracts to contain the following provisions: (1) Non-discriminatory hiring policy to be secured through the closed shop, and where possible through the maintenance of hiring halls; (2) the further implementing of a fair hiring policy by the inclusion in our contract of a clause guaranteeing against discrimination because of race, color, sex or political beliefs; (3) insistence upon promotions, layoffs and rehiring on the basis of strict seniority.

The first half of the minorities report was presented to the delegates by Hugh Bryson, chairman of the committee. The resolutions called for the (1) immediate enactment of effective federal, state and municipal legislation providing for fair employment practices; (2) the immediate enactment of a federal anti-lynching bill; (3) the enactment of federal legislation for the District of Columbia and state legislation outlawing discrimination and segregation; (4) the provision be made adequate safeguards against racial discrimination in federal appropriations for state aid; (5) the enactment of effective federal, state and municipal civil rights laws and of laws guaranteeing the right of suffrage; (6) the convention calls upon congress to remove the barriers which operate to exclude Negro newspaper men from the senate and house galleries in our nation's capital.

There were 22 Negro delegates to the convention but not a single incident of discrimination was reported in the town during the convention.

Court Rebukes Man Who Seized Disputed House

(SCP).—Swinging a cane in anger is no way to get legal possession of a building you believe is yours, a hobbling toothless cook was warned in court Tuesday.

The scene climaxed a dispute between Andrew J. McClendon, 74, and his niece, Roseanne Ferguson, both of whom claim ownership of a house at 9712 Alabama st.

McClendon had been living in a near-by furnished room because there was no room for him at the house, Miss Fergerson told Municipal Judge Eugene P. Fay. But on Dec. 8, while she was still asleep, he entered her bedroom, tore off the blankets, and drove her out with his cane.

When Helena Johnikan, who rooms with Miss Fergerson, came home at 5 p.m., the old man was still in a rocking chair. He chased her out before she could get her clothes.

Police were called, but convinced Miss Fergerson that McClendon should be allowed to stay. When they received a second call following another argument that night they arrested all three. Judge Fay sentenced McClendon to 90 days for disturbing the peace, but as a Christmas gift suspended the sentence.

He advised McClendon to live with one of his nine children.

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

MACKER MISSES BOAT

The L. A. Daily News of last Thursday carried a rather off-the-beam column on its sports pages by Gordon Macker anent the showing of John Thomas against Joey Barnum in their Olympic fight last week. Macker first inferred that he knew of a joint that served beer after midnight, a fact that seems bourne out as the column progresses. Salient points were that he (Macker) stated that Thomas had seen his best days as a boxer, should get with Jack Chase in the lawn cutting business, and a faint whisper that the fight may have been thrown. Your humble servant will attempt to correct Fellow Scribe Macker with the idea in mind that it may induce him to write about the horses due to run soon at Santa Anita. Nobody knows about race horses anyway, so our friend could hardly go wrong there. Surely he can write about horses with as much authority as he attempted to write about Thomas slipping. For our money John Thomas is still the best lightweight in the nation, bar none. Tuesday night's fight of last week found him fighting a man who evolved a plan of action calculated to give any boxer a busy evening. Barnum crowded John from the gong opening round one until the final clang ending round ten. He threw punches at every angle fast and furiously, with an inspired effort to win. He put up a splendid fight. He fought way over his head. To offset this John had to use every boxing trick he knew, had to battle every inch of the way and use plenty lefts to the kisser to pile up enough points to win. This he did and justly received the decision. He did everything a fighter should do to win a bout. He didn't have an off night; his timing, except for a few natural misses, wasn't off, and he was in great condition, as was amply proven when he stepped the tempo up in the final two rounds that had Barnum befuddled, so badly mixed up that he was throwing punches into the ropes where John had stood one split second before. You can hardly call that a picture of a man who's gone back. It gives me a belly-laugh to hear Macker exhort that Barnum doesn't belong in the same league with John. Barnum is an improved fighter and belongs right up there with the best of them. He drew with Willie Joyce, beat Johnny Bratton, both top-flight lightweights, and he actually beat Enrique Bolanos but didn't get the duke. Why? Because nobody gets a decision over Bolanos in this town if Bolanos is able to remain upright at the end of round ten. Barnum wasn't the only man to beat Bolanos and fail to get the nod. Frankie Moore whaled the daylights out of him but Bolanos was "given" the decision, a pre-Xmas gift. Every fight fan in L. A. has noted the amazing and positively miraculous way both Bolanos and Fabela Chavez always seem to get decisions, even though beaten. We think we know why, but we're not telling. There's such things as libel suits, you know. And while it wouldn't be libel if we could prove it true, we'd have a heck of a time proving it, simply because we couldn't get the right persons to substantiate our claims. We hate to digress, but it is a hell of a thing for sports when a man fights his heart out and earns a decision, only to see "mama's little blue-eyed boy" get it because somebody knows somebody. It's unfair to the fans, to the fighter, and to the boxing game in general. One parting word about Bolanos. He'll never be championship material if he lives to be as old as a piece of Chinese jade. He always enters the ring with the fear of God attached to his legs, and he does a backpedal throughout, striking back while in full retreat, from round one until round ten. That's how he wins fights and it certainly isn't inscribed in the annals of boxing that a man who runs backwards constantly, makes the good fighter. Tunney was this type of fighter and he never was popular with the fans. They like their fighters aggressive like Henry Armstrong and Joe Louis. The only time a fighter is supposed to back away is when he is hurt and wants a chance to recuperate. That's ethical, but this constant backing up sort of fight isn't. Back to Thomas, it isn't worth the space I use here weekly for my 50,000,000 readers, to comment further on Gordon Macker and his flight into the ethereal haze of smog enveloping Los Angeles. He missed the boat on Thomas and time will tell even better than I can at this time . . . by just how many miles he missed it. The future fights of Thomas will blaze the trail. Now, just to prove to him that he isn't the only one so privileged . . . I'll see if I have a cold bottle left on ice.

Local Citizens To Welcome Wiley, Florida and Rooters

Plans for giving the Wiley College and Florida A. and M. football squads and their followers a grand and glorious welcome to Los Angeles are near completion.

The visitors will be officially welcomed by county and city representatives. The local citizenry will be represented by committees from college and social groups, the churches, and prominent individuals. Hollywood celebrities will add the usual glamour and color.

The Florida A. and M. contingent will be the first to arrive Thursday morning, December 26. Coming to California with the Florida Rattlers will be two extra Pullmans carrying Florida rooters. The Wiley College Special will arrive Friday morning, December 27.

The Florida Rattlers are scheduled for a stiff workout behind closed doors on the day of their arrival. They are taking this game seriously and expect to be in top shape Saturday night.

It is interesting to note that on the Pittsburgh Courier's 1946 All-American team is Florida A. and M.'s brilliant end Nathaniel Powell, who is acclaimed as one of the best pass snatchers in the nation. His playing mates, Bradley Mitchell, end, and William Brewington, tackle and co-captain, were good enough to make the Courier's second team.

The Wiley Wildcats have been pointing to this game since the start of the season. Two or three of the Wildcats of first string caliber, who have been kept on the bench by injuries, will be ready for action December 28. Vernon Hicks, veteran quarterback, who gave the great Cromartie of Florida a lesson in forward passing in last year's 32 to 6 defeat of the Orange and Green from Tallahassee; Willie Moses, the one-armed sensation at guard; Jerry Keyes, the sophomore standout at right guard; John Peoples, the breakaway right half; Felix Cook, great tackle, and Louis Ritcherson and Woody Culton, who played opposite Florida's Powell and Mitchell in 1945, will again be facing the highly favored Rattlers.

As it looks at this point the game may be a sellout.

WILEY'S STARTING LINE-UP

Motley Shines As Browns Win

CLEVELAND—Marion Motley, hard-driving Negro fullback on the Cleveland Browns pro team of the All-America Football Conference, was a big star in last Sunday's game which found the Browns winning the All-America championship, by defeating the New York Yankees, 14-9, before 40,469 fans at Municipal Stadium.

During the game Motley ran up 98 yards for a total, part of which was a 51-yard dash down the middle of the field. With Cleveland compiling a yardage average of 102 yards on rushing during the game this made Motley's 98 just four yards short of the entire yardage. The great fullback, who has been selected on all 1946 All-Professional teams, also made one touchdown by going 14 yards in two tries to cross the final stripe.

Joe Louis In Mexico Exhibition

NEW YORK—It was announced Monday that Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis had been signed to box an exhibition in Mexico City Feb. 5, with Artruro Godoy of Chile as a possible opponent. The Champ also plans to go on a five-week exhibition tour of Central and South America.

The Mexico City date, for which Louis received an offer of $50,000, was originally scheduled for January but was set back.

Larry Cisneros Beats Grupico

Larry Cisneros, 135½, ranked eighth among the nation's lightweights, dealt out a terrible beating last Friday to Vic Grupico, 136½, of San Francisco, who tried gamely to make a fight of it but was thoroughly outclassed. As a result Cisneros drew down an easy 10-round decision at Hollywood Legion Stadium before 6000 fans.

In the scheduled 6-round semi-windup, Bob Castro, 155, scored a third-round technical kayo over Ernie Woods, 159.

Bruins Swamp Police Cagers

Don Barksdale rang up six of his mates 83 points as the UCLA Bruins trampled the Los Angeles Police Department, 83-18, in the Westwood gym last Friday night. West of the Bruins hung up 19 markers to become high point man in the game. The UCLA team left Saturday for Buffalo where they meet the University of Wyoming Thursday night.

SAN DIEGO—Rusty Payne, 185, San Diego, knocked out Willie Brown, 188, San Francisco, in the fourth stanza last Friday night.

Walter A. Gordon May Coach at UC

BERKELEY — The name of Walter A. Gordon was added this week to the suggested list of football coaches to be considered by the ASUC as it seeks a successor to Frank Wickhorst. Gordon, famous colored football player, scout and coach at California in palmier days, now chair-man of the California Adult Authority, was proposed to ASUC President Ed Welch by Harry Kingman, general secretary of the University YMCA and former wartime director of the federal Fair Employment Practice Committee on the West Coast.

King stated: "Walt Gordon's thorough knowledge of football and his ability to coach it successfully are well known to a great many Californians. During the years that he scouted opposing teams for California, he was generally considered the most analytical and astute in the business. He is potentially one of the greatest coaches in the game."

Among the others receiving prominent mention of late are Joe Verducci, currently very successful San Francisco Poly High School coach, and a graduate of California; Tiny Thornhill, three-time winner at Stanford; and Orin (Babe) Hollingbery, ex-Washington State.

Jackie Robinson Paces Cage '5'

Jackie Robinson, California's number 1 athlete, paced the Los Angeles Red Devils pro basketball team to a 44-34 victory over the San Diego Wizards last Friday night by ringing up 11 points. The game which took place at the Olympic auditorium was played before a small crowd of 400.

NO GAME SATURDAY

Cage fans who showed up at the Olympic Saturday night for the second game between the same teams were disappointed when they found the place locked up. None of the officials could be located for an explanation.

JERRY BROWN, 175, decisioned Benny Cardenas, 173, in the six-round main event at Whittier arena Monday night.

Dynamite Jackson Awaits Referee Assignment As Time Struggles On

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

As the waning days of 1946 gather up their tents and steal away we naturally turn to thoughts of persons of the race who made some notable achievement during the year. The subject this week is Ernest Bendy, or Dynamite Jackson, as he is better known to countless thousands. For during 1946 Dynamite became our first licensed Negro referee in the State of California.

It has not been easy sledding for Dynamite insofar as this appointment is concerned and even now this writer is marshaling forces to demand a better deal for the former heavyweight fighter. We think that Dynamite has refereed about two or three bouts during the year at small clubs and none at places like the Olympic and Hollywood Legion stadium. True, he has judged quite a few at both large clubs, but if qualified to judge, why shouldn't he be allowed to actually referee? The vote of a judge counts exactly as the referee's vote. See what I mean?

JACKSON

The first tale was that he had to wait his turn. Well, he's waited it several times over and still received no major assignments. Closest was a prelim he refereed at one of the big fights this year. He was wanted by the promoters for the main event for that one.

Mr. Bendy is a patient man. You haven't heard him squawk to the skies. He has been biding his time. That is well and good. Perhaps one of these days my grandson (yet to arrive) will help him into the ring and hand him his crutches over the top rope . . . and he'll get a chance to be the third man in the ring . . . . if he waits long enough. This writer has other ideas. We want to see him getting regular assignments as a working referee, because he is duly licensed by the state, during the year of 1947, and we'll carry it to Governor Warren if necessary.

Outside of the fact that he has been getting the run-around in referee circles, Dynamite is doing okay otherwise. His liquor store at 55th and South Central cleans up weekly and his hundreds of personal friends keep his beautiful Paradise Cocktail Lounge next door as busy as a beehive nightly. His pretty wife Lula, loaded with personality, helps cheer the hours he shoves into history while awaiting that first big referee assignment. Why doesn't Norman Houston, our Negro boxing commissioner, do something about it? Who is Norman Houston? Can't recall having ever heard of him. Is there actually a Negro on the state athletic commission? Well, whaddye know!

'Sugar' Robinson Nabs Welter Title

NEW YORK.—Last Friday night was bank night for Ray (Sugar)Robinson, 146½, Harlem belter, and he cashed in on a five-year ticket by scoring a blistering 15-round decision over Tommy Bell, 146, of Youngstown, O., to win the world's welterweight title at Madison Square Garden, before 15,670 paying customers. The gross gate was $82,948.

Though Robinson entered the ring a 5-to-1 favorite, Bell dropped him for a count of seven in the second and generally was master during the first five heats. Bell hit the canvas himself in the eleventh for an eight count and during the final rounds the "Sugarman" started coming on like a champion, finishing well ahead to grab a unanimous decision and the welter crown.

The winner received the unanimous vote of Referee Eddie Joseph and Judges Jack O'Sullivan and Artie Schwartz. The Associated Press gave "Sugar" 8 rounds, Bell 5, and called 2 even.

Johnny Bratton Defeats Joyce

CHICAGO—Johnny Bratton, up-and-coming 19-year-old Chicago youngster, was awarded a unanimous 10-round decision over Willie Joyce, Gary, Ind., an outstanding lightweight title contender, last Friday night at the Chicago Stadium.

The fast-stepping Bratton put on a dazzling boxing exhibition to garner the nod over Joyce.

BALTIMORE—Billy Fox, 174, kayoed Reddy Evans, 170, in the second round Monday night.

Aaron Perry, highly-regarded Washington, D. C., welterweight, and a great drawing card in the east, will make his Los Angeles debut at Hollywood Legion stadium Friday night when he headlines the card in a 10-rounder against the rugged Don Lee.

Advance notices and his workouts at the Main street gym indicate that Perry will score a big hit here. A Washington correspondent of the California EAGLE wrote that once Perry shows here there will be plenty demands for his services on the west coast.

SANTA ANITA PARK

What preparations have been made at Santa Anita for its 10th Anniversary?

In observance of the 10th anniversary meeting at Santa Anita Park, the Los Angeles Turf Club has made plans for the most brilliant season in its history.

This 10th anniversary meeting, which begins December 28th and concludes March 8th, will feature the largest stakes and purses ever offered in Thoroughbred racing. There will be two $100,000 races—the Santa Anita Handicap on March 1st, and the Santa Anita Derby on March 8th—and ten other major turf events, each with $50,000 added, to attract the outstanding horses of the world for the Winter season.

To add even greater color to the field of horses competing in major events, winners of outstanding international races are being flown to Santa Anita.

Visitors will see the greatest number of high-making foreign horses, American stake-winners and famous jockeys ever entered in major turf events in the 500-odd years of world racing history.

Santa Anita's famed gardens, noted as one of the great tourist attractions of Southern California, this year will be a blaze of floral beauty more thrilling than ever before. With the majestic and oft-times snow-topped Sierra Madre Mountains as a back-drop, the setting is truly of natural grandeur.

Again this season, Santa Anita will be a major source of the state revenues derived from Thoroughbred racing. These funds support the agricultural and livestock industry of the state through the 70-odd state, county and district fairs, and the schools and colleges maintained by the state for the education of our future farmers and ranchers.

A SINCERE WISH

May your gains be major, your troubles minor,
Your life ever-filled with cheer,
As you go down a flowered path,
To a Happy and Prosperous New Year.
—The Sepia Age.

The year of 1946 is drawing the shades fast and before you can say "vout - greenie," 1947 will be here. The New Year will mean plenty for some entertainers who have nice fat contracts tucked away in their drygoods. NAT (KING) COLE and trio will march merrily along with their juicy network program for Wildroot . . . . the DELTA RHYTHM BOYS are in solid with two top radio shows, viz; Amos and Andy and Joan Davis . . . . SLIM GAILLARD will still be enjoying a lucrative run at the Florentine Gardens . . . . LENA HORNE, it is reliably reported, will be salting away ten grand weekly at a Las Vegas night club for appearances . . . . DUKE ELLINGTON will still be presenting his "Beggar's Opera" on Broadway in N.Y.C. . . . . PAUL ROBESON will be working on his starring role in "Freedom Road" . . . HERB JEFFRIES, it is my personal opinion and prediction, will probably cut more discs than in any other previous year . . . BUDDY JOHNSON will try to enter "Miss Fine Brown Frame" in the Atlantic City Pageant which is held every year to select "Miss America." This should be an interesting case to keep tab on. No bronze beauty has ever appeared in the traditional pageant and with all the beautiful girls of sepia hue running around here these days we think that if one was selected and entered AND if the judges were fair . . . she might get some consideration. It's strange how America hates to exhibit her beautiful colored girls to the world. Although there are a few Negro models, the girls who follow this trade find it extremely hard, no matter how beautiful they are, to secure work . . . To get on with this preamble — JOE ADAMS will secure a fine announcing contract with some big radio broadcasting station, that's my prediction . . . LIONEL (POPS) HAMPTON with his new and amazing band will go on to even greater triumphs than he enjoyed this year . . . and that's saying plenty . . . IVIE ANDERSON will continue that fine comeback she's been making as a vocalist . . . ERNIE WHITMAN will get his "Jubilee" program going again . . . JIMMY DAVIS will advance further in the field of drama . . . EL HERBERT will increase the size of his band and start getting big dates because that guy has something on the ball.

GOSSIP BITS

The Crop 'n' Tail's barn dance was really on the beam, according to the socialites that attended. Sorry I was absent . . . couldn't find my straw hat . . . NAT and YVONNE BURBRIDGE, part of m' family due here to spend the holidays . . . BILL and MARIE HOLSTON and BONNIE McMILLAN of one of the nicest dining spots in South L.A. busy as busy can be out there . . . MRS. LULA BENDY and hubby ERNEST (Dynamite to you) busy during the holiday season trying to divide their time between business and pleasure . . . NELLIE, RUTH, BILL and DR. L.T.B. . . . did you get your Mission Packs? . . . Lots of people are still moving heaven and earth trying to get tickets for that Rose Bowl game where they hope to get in for the sole purpose of viewing Buddy Young in action . . . We might duplicate that assertion by stating that the initial Angel Bowl game between Wiley and Florida A. & M. is certainly attracting the social set as well as the regular football fans. This one takes place Saturday night at Wrigley Field and we advise you to get those tickets now. There'll be a queen and everything, in addition to a great grid game . . . Have you learned how to make Hot Tom and Jerrys yet, JIMMIE SHIFFLETT? . . . Assisted by her competent daughter, LYNNE, MRS. CAROLYN SHIFFLETT is readying her home for the usual influx of holiday visitors of which I will be one . . . GERTRUDE GIPSON promised me something for Xmas. Hope I get that gift because it's just what I want . . . A big MERRY XMAS to CECIL CARTER, who is still at Olive View recovering from an illness . . . Xmas is really just that at the TOMMIE HARPER home in So. San Pedro street. First TOMMIE HARPER, JR., an army man, blew into town from Alaska, in time to spend the holidays with the folks, which gladdened their hearts no end . . . then PAPPY HARPER rolled a 1942 Buick into the family garage all shiny and ready for duty . . . also in time for the holidays. Meanwhile, MAMA HARPER'S been baking fruit cakes for the grand occasion and JO, JERRY and "BABY" HARPER have been bringing a steady stream of Xmas presents into the household.

IN "ANNA LUCASTA"—Laura Bowman, one of America's finest dramatic actresses, returns to Los Angeles Feb. 17 to appear in the play "Anna Lucasta" at the Biltmore theatre.

Play to Open at Biltmore Feb. 17

One of America's finest dramatic actresses, Laura Bowman, will return to Los Angeles in February after an absence of more than a year when the sensational all-colored play, "Anna Lucasta," hits the boards at the Biltmore theatre Feb. 17 for a three-week engagement.

Miss Bowman, well known here, where she has been a resident for several years, created a sensation on Broadway several months ago with her portrayal of the mother role in "Lucasta." The dailies, including the New York Times, raved over her performances.

"Anna Lucasta" is the 101st show in which Laura Bowman has appeared since she first went on the stage 43 years ago. She has danced in chorus lines, sung in musical comedy, played straight roles on Broadway and in stock, trouped in every country in Europe, sung with symphony orchestras in Vienna and Zurich, sung opera in Milan, played with Helen Hayes and Amos 'n Andy on the radio and made the first talking picture tests in Paris in 1907.

Miss Bowman organized the Little Theatre Guild of Los Angeles here three years ago, a movement designed to further the training of Negro hopefuls looking forward to a career on the stage.

She last appeared here in "Ladies Room," at the Film City Playhouse in Hollywood two years ago.

Parts in college plays decided Spencer Tracy against becoming a doctor.

Doings at The LINCOLN

EARLE ADAMS, ye cheery and able publicity man for the Lincoln Million Dollar theaters and points west, through this column this week wants to sincerely and heartily wish every patron of the two above mentioned show houses the merriest Xmas ever enjoyed and a swell New Year.

THE LINCOLN is busy getting ready for the New Year with her pop stake shows, pop because they are liable to pop up at any time. First one out of the bandbox will be LOUIS JORDAN and his fine little aggregation with a splendid show. They start, a week's engagement on January 7. Following Jordan a few weeks later will be the one and only CAB CALLOWAY and orchestra. The king of hi-de-ho is expected to rock Central avenue.

REMEMBER for good solid entertainment any day in the week attend either the LINCOLN or the MILLION DOLLAR. You can't miss going to one or if you parlay them!

Little Harlem's Holiday Show To Be Exciting

For your dancing pleasure Will Rowland and his great little jump band will play. In addition there will be special guest stars. There is dining, dancing and two shows nightly.

Lucky Millinder Has Disc Hits For New Year

NEW YORK—Lucky Millinder, whose band has been responsible for a steady flow of hits on the Decca Label, will start the new year with a "full house" of potential juke box hits. The colorful Millinder aggregation will share the spotlight in each of the five recordings with Lucky's vocal headliners — blues shouting Annisteen Allen, and classical Paul Breckenridge.

LUCKY MILLINDER

The Allen lass appears on three wax discs, two of which are scheduled for January releases. The latter two jump tunes are both graced with titles of the weird variety. The one is called "How Big Can You Get, Little Man, Before You Blow Your Top"; the other simply "More, More, More". Expectations are that her third effort will provoke considerable comment. It is a blues takeoff of the sensational 92nd Division "Sound Off" which was a martial classic. Miss Allen has recorded the "Sound Off Blues".

Breckenridge makes his debut on wax with a much requested recording of his sensational "Lonesome Road" and a torcher in the style of "When The Lights Go On, etc" called "Tonight He Sailed Again".

Ella Fitzgerald Signs New Contract With Mgr. Moe Gale

NEW YORK.—Ella Fitzgerald this week inked a new contract with manager Moe Gale, who has guided the songbird's destinies ever since she launched her professional career with the Chick Webb band. The new pact is for a three year period.

When the Fitzgerald-Gale combine began back in '35 Ella was earning fifty dollars a week. Her earnings for the current year will exceed $100,000. This marks one of the most meteoric rises in the popular singing field.

Presently being heard on several top favorites in the juke boxes, she has been a consistent leader in the Decca record aggregation of stars. Her recordings have consistently been numbered among the most sought after jazz classics and collectors items. Also listed among her successes have been appearances on screen and radio. Both artist and manager have set their sights on a yearly income of $150,000.

'Macbeth' Will Close On Jan. 5

The 20th Century version of "Macbeth" is now in its fifth week at El Patio Theatre, the longest run for a Shakespearean play in the Los Angeles area in many years. The play will remain at El Patio until January 5.

Myrna Loy's first motion picture job was as a film cutter.

I COVER THE TOWN

And that (my dear readers) is my way of saying, many happy returns to you and you and each of you . . . THE CHRISTMAS BASKET MATINEE that was staged at the LINCOLN THEATRE Saturday evening was really something to rave about . . . It was a goodly cause indeed and so much talent, like I've never seen before (all in one group) was on hand to make it a gala affair . . . I can't ever remember shaking hands with so many important people (at one time) in my life . . .After the show, I went bacg stage and almost everybory was there . . . LEE (Delta Rhythm Boys) GAINES, shaking my hand as though it had been ten years . . . RED CALLENDER (Bass player) looking better than ever . . . MAGGIE (Mrs. Floyd Ray) LA'HATHAWAY, wearing a gown that every body was raving about. It was one of those kind that leaves the right places exposed . . . And shaking hands with HADDA (pretty thing) BROOKS for the first time in my life, just about knocked me out . . . "MY, MY," said Rochester, who was standing near by . . . Say, does anybody know LADY WILL CARR'S phone number? Sure would like to call her up and talk about some dance lessons . . . PRINCES STARLETTA, MICHEAL (Tulae) PHELAN, CECIL (I wonder) GANT, ESTELLE EDSON and many, many more, that space won't allow me to mention, were doing their bit for this truly great cause . . . And now, while we're still on the Eastside of town, dig this . . . MR. and MRS. A. J. HARRIS (my sister and Bro') sends a merry Christmas and a happy New Year to each and all of you . . . MR. and MRS. B. T. SNEEL, are also wishing you the best . . . And from 4026 Trinity, MR. and MRS. L. N. ROSS, the proud grandparents of a newly arrived grandson (7 lbs. and 11 ounces too) sends their greeting to each of you . . . MR. and MRS. EDDIE LEE JOHNSON is PAPA and MAMA to the new heir . . . Guess I better mention Jewell's name before he faints, hello baby'o . . . LOVELY VIVIAN DANDRIGE, told he that Gerald (Trumpet) Wilson has formed a sextet and will open at one of the local Eastside spots possibly by the time you read this . . . That lovely photo on display out front of CLYDE WOODS STUDIO is none other than "BABY PIE" pretty little girl over on Six Avenue . . . MRS. COOPER, that was the nicest letter I have ever received, thanks.

WESTSIDE VIEWS OF THE NEWS

MISS LOUISE (Two in a Bed) BEAVERS, sends a merry Christmas and a happy New Year to each of you from up SUGAR HILL way . . . PRETTY LITTLE LOUISE FRANKLIN (Also of "Two in a Bed") sends her greetings to each of you . . . And for MR. and MRS. JACK KOFFMAN, it's an 8 lb baby girl. And speaking of the Cricket Club, I dropped in t'other Sunday on one of the regular "JAM SESSIONS" and believe me, the joint all but takes off when GEECHIE SMITH starts out on that trumpet. GEECHIE just received another contract from CAPITOL through the courtesy of DAVE DEXTER. The Cricket Club feature two floor shows nightly. THE TRENIER TWINS, (CLAUDE and CLIFF) are the stars of the new revue. MAC and ACE, the only Jitterbug team ever to play the MILLION DOLLAR THEATRE, holds down a fast moving spot in the new revue. Then of course, LOVELY CAROLYN RICHARDS, and she's just pretty, she sings right along with you. You will be pleased with the mixed atmosphere the Cricket Club offers. It's West Washington at Vermont, take "V" car from the westside and "W" car from downtown. MISS ANNIE MOORE (she's the sister to JOHNNIE and OSCAR) told me t'other night that "THE BLAZERS" were making ready for their engagement at the Elks, Dec. 29 . . . Now this is yours truly RALPH C. WEAVER (the C. is for CASEY), your friend, your neighbor, your dance teacher and still your columnist who says, "You're not doing your friend a favor when you loan him some gold, you're only paving the way to lose friendship way on down the road. . . EARL DANCER FETES 30TH YEAR IN SHOW BIZ

Mrs. J.T. Gipson's Candid Comments

GIPSONETTE

When I asked her to wed, "Go to Father," she said,
She knew that I knew that her father was dead;
She knew that I knew what a life he had led
She knew that I knew what she meant when she said:
"Go to Father".

Notes From a Newsgirl's Private File

Leonard McClain (bailbondsman) and wife have decided it's no use . . . Doris Aker, according to an item, is suing Max Factor, the Hollywood artist . . . Why—because he couldn't make her look like Lena Horne, Hedy Lamarr or Lana Turner? His make-up works wonders but not miracles!! . . . Somebody wanted to know why I praise Walter Winchell so much . . . For the sample reason I think he's a fine fella, a GREAT columnist, and it's MY column, so there!! . . . Picked up on the coast-to-coast broadcast from N.York "Harlem Christmas" with Willie Bryant as emcee and 'twas pretty nice . . . Roy Loggins, Jr., says "there's no pad to be had" so his alleged marriage will be put off for awhile . . . Joan Eden awakened from a horrible nightmare last night . . . She dreamed John L. Lewis was elected president of the United States! . . . This isn't so funny, but our sis Lil will have a stroke if I don't print it . . . it's about a stammerer who went hunting with a guy who had the palsy. A squirrel scampered up a tree and the stammerer stuttered, "G-g-gimmie that g-g-gun." He aimed, fired and missed. The guy with the palsy grabbed the gun and, shaking like a leaf (the gun going up and down in piston-like rapidity), fired at and hit the squirrel. The stammerer looked at his palsied partner and groaned, "Y-y-you o-oughta h-h-hit 'im, y-you aimed a-a-all over t-the d-d—— tree!" . . . The dancesational team of Mack and Ace are now pleasing customers at a San Pedro night spot . . . Dropped in a Central avenue spot to hear the combo of George Washington; sounded awful groovy to me and was really knocked out when George sang (anyway, that's the idea) "It Pays to Advertise" . . . And before I forget it, in case you wanta know why Leonard McClain frequents the city of Oakland so much, her name is Ruth Scaggs . . . Bill Graham in town from "the Apple" and doin' the town in a BIG way . . . Bill is here in the interest of the new soft drink, "Joe Louis Punch" . . . Eddie Burbridge says, "Bilbo's biggest fear is that, should the Negro be given equal rights, one may marry his daughter . . . I saw her picture, he needn't worry" . . . SUDDEN THAWT: One of the nice things about being a newspaper reporter is that you DON'T have to divulge your source of information—and I wouldn't if I had to! . . .

WHAT SOME PEOPLE EXPECT SANTA TO BRING

Harriett Wadley—a mink coat . . . Harry Bigelow—a girl just like the girl that married Harry James . . . Anita Turner—a guy with a million or two . . . Dr. C. W. Hill—just more beautiful women . . . Paulette Coleman—something tall, brown and handsome . . . Ardie Graves—a blonde, Cadillac, and her bank book . . . Eddie Burbridge—a quart of some 100 proof whiskey . . . Jean Young—a fella they call Al . . . Angelle DeLavalade—a round trip ticket to South America . . . Lurena Wells—an intro and date with Joe Louis . . . Sid Dones—a redhead under twenty . . . Lillian Lomax—a square cut sapphire . . . Elihu (Black Dot) McGee—no worries or troubles . . . Emma Adams—twins . . . Gerald Wilson—a lengthy engagement payin' a whole lota money . . .

MEMOS OF A MIDNIGHTER

The "Melody Room" in N.York, of which Henry Armstrong is owner, is (so they say in Harlem) a showplace with some of the most beautiful girls in Harlem as chorines . . . Mable Scott, songstress, opened at a nite spot in San Diego . . . Aha, how about the this one dept.? A colored soldier wanted to leave camp one night. "Ya gotta 'ave a pass," said the guard at the gate. "Look, mister," the soldier retorted, "I gotta mother in heaven, a father in hell, and a gal in Harlem . . . and I aims to see one of them tonight!!" . . . See that Norman Granz is back in town after travelin' from state to state with his various jazz units . . . Jus' like we said, the Flennoy Trio is packin' them in nitely, thus helpin' business where they are appearing . . . It could only happen on Central: A supposedly hep playboy strolls down the stem wearing white flannels, black and white shoes (and spats) . . . The combo of Roy Elridge out at Billy Berg's sounds awful fine and that torrid blowin' of Willie Smith on that sax is "atomic gone" . . . We always enjoy the way Anita O'Day toys with any number . . . The Four Bits of Rhythm contribute their share but def, to make your evening an enjoyable one . . . Can't forget to thank all of you for the many, many Xmas cards . . . Aside to Nat Cole: I'll be waiting anxiously for my record album and thanks loads . . . Caught a glimpse of Alice Keys, Tricky Davis and party, ringsiding at Billy Berg's t'other even'g . . . I think we'd better bring the column to a close, wishing everyone a MERRY XMAS everywhere.

Monster Party Will Honor Showman at Alabam Monday

Suffering with the flu but determined to carry on despite his illness, Earl Dancer, veteran show producer, who is known wherever entertainers tramp the boards, has been busy receiving congratulations upon his 30th year in show business, heaped upon him by his host of friends and well-wishers.

Topping the honors now being tendered him, Dancer will be further honored when a monster party is staged for him at the Club Alabam on Monday night, December 30. Stars of stage, screen and radio enmasse are expected to make this the greatest entertainment finale of 1946. Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra and many, many others have been asked to participate and indications point strongly to their appearance.

Among the many successful shows produced by Earl Dancer were: "Africana," "Miss Calico," "Plantation Revue," all starring Ethel Waters; "Ebony Showboat," starring Cora Green; "Follow the Sun," which was produced in London, England, and starred Jeni Legon; and "Lucky Day," which starred Eddie (Rochester) Anderson.

When a man has turned in 30 years in show business it is a major achievement and the California EAGLE theatrical staff joins the multitude of persons who are paying tribute to Earl Dancer, a great showman and a gentleman.

Lana Turner had hoped to be a dress designer.

Stars galore of screen, stage and radio, with the possible inclusion of Bing Crosby, will help Earl celebrate at a monster party to be held at the Club Alabam Monday night, December 30.

J. L. Johnson Back In L.A.

J. Louis Johnson, who is well-known in musical circles throughout the nation, has returned to Los Angeles after a three-months trip to the east. The popular vocalist and reconteur visited his birthplace at Indianapolis, Ind., while away.

The singer says that he can well realize what the poet meant, who said, "Gee, but it's great just being back home."

On Sunday, Dec. 29, at the morning services at his church, First A.M.E. Zion, Johnson will appear as guest soloist. He wishes all a Merry Xmas and Happy New Year.

Republic has four large-budgeted pictures currently in production, and in each of the four, the equine influence is very much apparent.

NEW YORK—Count Basie, the "Jump King of Swing", will be highlighted in the soon-due 1947 "Esquire Jazz Annual" as the author of a 2500-word article, entitled "A Tale of Kansas City," in which the Count recalls the early years of his musical career in Kansas City, and makes a number of hitherto unpublished revelations.

Bandleader To Set Up Alabama Scholarships

ST. LOUIS. — Bandleader Hawkins, a loyal alumnus of Alabama State Teachers' College in Montgomery, has jumped smack into the middle of the red hot football usbsidation controversy with a dramatic offer to have his band play one or more benefits in the deep South with the funds to be used in setting up athletic scholarships at his alma mater and Tuskegee institute.

Hawkins became miffed last week when the announcement was made that Louisville Municipal College and Tennessee State college had been selected to play the famed Vulcan Bowl classic game in Birmingham. The selection of these two teams meant that for the first time no Alabama team would be represented in the New Years' day sports feature.

HERO AS HEEL

Robert Alda, who made his debut as the great George Gershwin in Warner Bros.' "Rhapsody in Blue," and who has portrayed heroic personalities ever since, makes his first appearance as a heel, a cheap gangster type, in "The Man I Love."

ON EAGLE STAFF—Ralph C. Weaver, dancer and dance teacher, who is known to many of you as "Casey" (or K.C. which is pronounced the same) has been recently added to the staff of The California EAGLE'S Theatrical section. His column is "I Cover the Town," so dubbed because of his methods of operation as a teacher of dance. For as Weaver says, "I do cover the town, and while I'm doing so, I'll write about it."

Army's Own Figures Cited by Noted Historian in Debunking Biased Classification Test

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The Army General Classification Test, which the army used to measure an enlisted man's "working level" and "ability to learn," was not only "merely unfair" but was "absolutely invalid" and "unscientific," declares Herbert Aptheker, Guggenheim Fellow in history, in the fall issue of the Journal of Negro Education.

Writing on the subject, "Literacy, the Negro and World War II," Aptheker pointed out that the results of the application of the test are expressed in terms of an intelligence quotient in which the mental score age is divided by a chronological score age on the false presupposition that the two scores possess a constant relationship.

Aptheker points out that between June, 1943, and October, 1944, the army placed approximately 180,000 "functional illiterates" in special training units, and of that number about 150,000, of whom 86,670 were colored, attained the equivalent of a fourth grade education.

"Of particular importance," says Aptheker, "is the fact that of the whites who entered these units during the aforesaid period, 84.2 percent successfully completed it, while 15.8 percent failed and were discharged from the army." Continuing, he states:

"Of the Negroes who entered these units during the same period 87.1 percent successfully completed it, and 12.9 percent failed and were discharged.

"'In other words,' as General (A. G.) Trudeau has stated, 'experience in the army indicates that a slightly higher percentage of the Negroes than the whites successfully complete the Special Training Program, i.e., achieve fourth grade standards in reading, language and arithmetic and demonstrate sufficient mastery of prebasic military subjects to warrant their being forwarded to regular training.'

"It may further be remarked that no great difference between Negro and white appeared in the speed with which this learning process was accomplished, for while 71.7 percent of the Negroes completed the training in less than 60 days, the comparable figure for the whites was 75.6 percent.

"The conclusion is clear. The learning accomplishment of scores of thousands of Negroes from all sections of the country over an extended period of time compares quite favorably with that attained by scores of thousands of similarly diversified whites, in this greatest experiment of its kind ever conducted by the American government. And the other striking characteristic of this experiment is the fact that the conditions to which Negroes and whites were subjected were fairly similar—certainly more nearly similar than are the conditions under which Negroes and whites live, work, and study in the conventional American civilian pattern.

"These data not only constitute a shattering blow at racists, but present a challenge to their opponents to urge and to demand that their government do in peacetime what it felt had to be done and what it at least began to do in wartime—namely, conduct an all-out, scientific and democratic assault upon the twin disgraces of illiteracy and educational inequality that remain as huge blights upon the lives of untold millions of its citizens."

Board of Trustees Stalls on Demand for Lifting of Color Bar at Washington U. Auditorium

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — The board of trustees of George Washington university yesterday postponed until February 13—the day after Lincoln's birthday—a decision on whether the color bar at the university's Lisner auditorium will be dropped.

Commenting on the failure of the board to act on the question at this time, Miss Ida Fox, executive secretary of the Committee for Racial Democracy, said:

"A university board that does nothing more than take under advisement the simple proposition of righting an obvious wrong is evading its responsibility to its students, the community and the nation at large."

"The facts in this case are clear enough to everyone in town," said Rev. Francis W. McPeek of the social welfare department of the Washington Federation of Churches. "So is the action that any democratic-minded university board should take. What I am wondering is—why the stall?"

John J. Motley, chairman of the Greater Washington Area Council, American Veterans' Committee, also criticized the university's trustee board.

Prior to the meeting of the trustee board, the AVC, which has spearheaded the fight against the color bar at the auditorium, distributed 25,000 pamphlets naming the trustees and urging them to act on a "democratic basis."

The eight-page pamphlet declared that the policy choice which the board of trustees would make respecting Lisner will be a choice of direction for George Washington university.

The choice "must vitally affect the prestige, as it mirrors the character, of the university, ranging it either among those which look always to the past, accepting things unquestioningly as they are, or among those that face the future, assuming leadership in the communities they serve," the pamphlet stated.

Analyzing the varied policies of Washington's theaters, universities, and hotels, the pamphlet concluded that there is no consistent or established community policy in respect to racial discrimination. "All barriers to colored persons are the personally adopted policies of the managers or owners of the building," it asserted.

At other universities a policy of non-discrimination has been followed without any complaints of a breach of community policy, the pamphlet declared.

"As veterans, we have a warranted interest in this matter. For we have lately played a direct part in a mortal struggle against forces dedicated to the proposition that men are created unequal and are born, in accordance with their race, to places of inferiority. As citizens of a free society which we helped to keep free, we have a right, we think, to plead that the mean and ugly practice of racial discrimination be uprooted here," Motley declared.

He pointed out that the trustees of George Washington had an opportunity to effect a change in the "pattern of racial discrimination which disgraces the capital of the United States."

U. S. Delegation Urged to Back Progressive Colonial Policies

NEW YORK—In a letter to members of the American delegation to the General Assembly of the U. N., the Council on African Affairs yesterday urged reconsideration prior to final vote of the General Assembly next week of the stand taken by American representatives on sub-committees dealing with the treatment of Indians in South Africa, the proposed annexation of South West Africa, and problems of trusteeship.

"We feel sure," the Council's letter stated, "that a large section of the American public has been deeply disappointed in the fact that the United States, instead of standing with those nations which urged unqualified repection of the proposal to annex South West Africa to the Union of South Africa, assumed a conciliatory role and brought about the adoption of a resolution which makes possible approval of the proposal at a later date.

"The same reaction of disappointment, we feel sure, resulted from the part played by the United States in supporting the South African and British demand for disposing of the Indian government's complaint regarding discrimination against Indians in South Africa by refering this matter to the International World Court, instead of taking an immediate and positive stand against the admitted violation of the Charter principles on racial equality."

Tallulah Bankhead Denounces Theatre Jimcrow in Capital

WASHINGTON, D.C.—(NNPA)—The economic boycott of the National Theatre intended by the Committee for Racial Democracy to compel the playhouse to drop its color bar may wind up in the courts as the result of a move by the theatre to break the boycott.

As a means of ending the practice of people who buy tickets to performances at the National and then attend in mixed parties only to be refused admission and have the purchase price of the tickets refunded, the theater management has decided to refund no more ticket money to such persons.

Commenting on this countermove by the theater, Miss Ida Fox, executive secretary of the Committee for Racial Democracy, said:

"If the next interracial group that goes to the National Theater is refused admission and denied a refund of ticket money, our attorneys are prepared to take necessary and proper steps to test the legality of the theater's position in the courts."

Miss Fox also said the same notice posted in the lobby of the theater has been printed on the advance notices of a play to open at the National December 23 and that tickets being sold in advance for the play also contain such a notice.

"It would appear that our program of having interracial groups buy tickets and present them at curtain time too late for resale has had the economic effect intended," Miss Fox commented.

Tallulah Bankhead, fiery star of "Eagle Rampart," also spoke out against the barring of Negroes from attending performances at the National Theater.

"I have spoken out against this for years as have other members of the profession," said the daughter of the late Senator John H. Bankhead, of Alabama.

"I think it is not only a national disgrace but an international scandal that our great country's capital should make a laughing stock of our Constitution and bill of rights by discriminating against any human being in any form.

"I hope Actor's Equity will soon act on the proposal that no actors appear here unless colored people are admitted to all performances."

Miss Bankhead said she believes the proposal would be unanimously adopted by Actors' Equity, but added that "if a few bigots vote against it, they do not belong in our profession."

Police Call for More Women

The Los Angeles police department, in its drive to recruit women as police officers, is holding another open competitive examination on January 18, the Civil Service Commission announced. Candidates must file applications in Room 11 of the City Hall not later than closing hours on January 8, 1947.

The minimum age is 23 years and prospective recruits must not have reached their 31st birthday by the time of the written examination. A valid California operator's or chauffeur's license, in addition to a high school graduation certificate, must be presented when making application.

The salary for policewomen is the same as for the men, starting at $240 a month and rising to $290 a month. This top pay, for the rank of patrolwoman, is reached at the end of three years, with a pro-rated salary increase at the end of each year. Promotions are on a competitive basis, with two years service necessary to establish eligibility for a promotion.

3 Leaders of Columbians, Inc. Indicted in Ga.

ATLANTA.—(NNPA) — ments charging unlawful possession of dynamite were returned last Friday against leaders of the Columbians, Inc.

Solicitor General E. E. Andrews of Fulton county said he had information that the organization whose activities were directed chiefly against Negroes and Jews had planned to bomb the Atlanta City Hall, the Municipal auditorium, police headquarters and the two Atlanta newspaper plants.

The Fulton county grand jury returned a joint indictment accusing Emory C. Burke, president of the Columbians; Homer L. Loomis Jr., secretary, and Ira C. Jett with unlawful possession on October 28 of five sticks of dynamite which were not recorded in the explosives register of the Fulton County Ordinary.

In another true bill, Burke and Loomis were indicted on riot charges in connection with an alleged assault upon Clifford Hines, a colored youth. The charges were made after the grand jury heard from Ralph Childers, former member of the Columbians, under indictment on the same allegation, who has bolted the organization and is said to be assisting authorities in their investigation of the brown-shirted order.

Burke and Loomis previously had been indicted on charges of usurping police authority.

La. State University Defends Jim Crowism

BATON ROUGE, La.—(CNS)—Arguing that under the public policy and laws of Louisiana governing segregation, guarantees of equal protection were taken care of by the provision of substantially equal educational facilities, B. B. Taylor, Jr., counsel for Louisiana State University, sought to defend the University against charges brought by Charles J. Hatfield and Viola M. Johnson.

Hatfield, a graduate of Xavier university, sought to enter the law school at Louisiana State, and Miss Johnson applied for admission to the Medical school. Both were denied admission, and they brought suit, claiming that they were being deprived of their constitutional rights. Taylor insisted that the university was within its rights in denying admission to Negroes, and he pointed out that Louisiana had a law which sets aside a fund to pay the difference in the cost for a Negro student to attend a college in Louisiana and one in another state.

West Indian Groups Hail Organization by CIO of Canal Zone 'Silver Workers'

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NNPA)—Two organizations representing West Indians and Panamanians now residing in the United States have announced their approval of the organization of 20,000 "silver" workers in the Panama Canal Zone by the CIO United Public Workers, it was announced last Tuesday.

Dr. A. George Daly and Herman P. Osborne, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the West Indies Conference Committee, in a communication to CIO President Phil Murray, stated that "On behalf of the long-suffering, besieged West Indian Negro workers and their descendants the so-called 'silver' employes of the Panama Canal... we send you sincere thanks and profound appreciation for the steps now being taken by the CIO to bring relief and some definite measure of social and economic justice into the parched lives of their kinsfolk working and living for all of forty years on the Canal Zone.

"Apparently, the American government has long since forgotten the historical contribution which these workers have made, and are still making, to the prosperity of the Panama Canal enterprise and the security of this nation... We applaud your fine sense of humanity and high-minded leadership."

Noel Austin, president of the United Sons of the Canal Zone, Inc., stated in a cable to President Murray: "May self-determination and spiritual guidance lead you and your members to assist in solving and adjusting some of the injustices imposed on the oppressed workers on the Canal Zone."

The UPW is engaged in a campaign to secure an adequate wage and retirement system for "silver" workers, the majority of whom average no more than 25 cents an hour and are confronted wit hextremely vicious practices of discrimination.

To Build $250,000 Interracial Baptist Church On Westside

(SCP)—The inter-racial Trinity Baptist church, under Negro leadership, has completed plans for a new $250,000 edifice, and aims to start construction in the spring, Dr. Jonathan L. Caston, pastor, announced yesterday.

It will comprise three units, and will face on Jefferson boulevard, Cimarron and 35th streets. It will be dedicated to serving the spiritual, moral and health needs of the whole community, which is composed of many races, including Negroes Japanese and whites.

There will be a sanctuary with a seating capacity of 3000, a church school, recreation center, outdoor playground and numerous other facilities designed to promote better race relations and combat disease and juvenile delinquency.

Plans for the project were drawn by Paul R. Williams, famous architect.

New York Names Jan. 6 Carver Day

NEW YORK— (CNS) —The New York City Council turned aside from an agenda heavy with controversal city matters last week and paid a unanimous tribute to the late George Washington Carver, eminent and unassuming scientist whose birthday falls on January 6th. Following short eulogies by several members of the body, the Council voted to set aside January 6 as George Washington Carver Day to be observed with fitting ceremonies in honor of the man who pursued a life of unselfish service.

Freed of Charge of Knifing Shop Mate

Reuben Helton, structure worker of 1610 E. 48th st., was given his freedom from charges of assault with a deadly weapon by Judge Wm. R. McKay in department 44 on a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus which had been filed on his behalf by Attorney Curtis C. Taylor.

Helton had been taken in custody on Dec. 4 by Officers Toole and Howsley of the Newton street detective detail on charges preferred by Monroe Braddick, a fellow worker who claimed that on the night of November 28 he was cut and beaten up by Helton in a free-for-all fight after a dice game in which he had lost a considerable sum of money.

Helton, through his attorney, denied the charges and investigation by the detectives failed to substantiate Braddick's story.

Louis 2nd in Athlete Poll

NEW YORK — Glenn Davis, three-time All-America halfback of Army's undefeated football teams, was named the male No. 1 athlete-of-the-year in the annual Associated Press year-end poll last weekend.

Joe Louis, the world's heavyweight champion, who successfully defended his title against Billy Conn and Tami Mauriello, was second with 78 points to Davis' 106. Jackie Robinson drew 3 points and Buddy Young 1 in the polling, which is participated on by 71 sports writers and editors.

Chuck Anderson, right end, and Ezzert Anderson, left end, Negro players of the Bears, played good football throughout the afternoon. At one point Ezzert caught a pass which had struck his fingers, bounced off, and been hit two two Bulldog players. He finally snagged it for an 11-yard gain.

HIPODROMO DE TIJUANA—It took an Hawaiian-bred horse from far away Hawaii to beat the border champion in the feature event last Sunday. Billed as the Christmas handicap at one flat mile, Cargo Ship, who had won five out of six starts, had to be content with third place. Bel Stock, a new invader, won the race. Overlooked in the betting, the winner paid the big price of $47.20 for $2. Dark Air, the only two-year-old in the race and whom the public made second choice, was fourth.

In the secondary feature, known as the "Yuletide," Bank Club, who had been going over a distance, came back in the sprint at six furlongs to beat some of the best on the grounds. The winner paid $14.60 in the mutuels.

The daily double backers received $29.80 when Baraq won the second race and Aunt Miriam the third. In the nightcap known as the quiniela, Ten Grand was the winner with Cleo Mic second, making the payoff for the lucky holders of the combination $81.80. A big plunge was made on Kelley, shipped here from Bay Meadows and trained by the Negro trainer A. Glover. Buy Her broke down in the race. Another hot favorite broke down in the sixth race after a flood of money showed for him. He was Valdina Dude. Four favorites succeeded in reaching the payoff wire out of the ten races. The feature event this Sunday will be the New Year Handicap with an added value of $1,200 at six furlongs. The secondary attraction will be "the Feliz Ano Nuevo" (meaning Happy New Year) at one and one-sixteenth miles. To all my readers I wish you a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. So until next year, so long and keep smiling, George.

Lincoln of Mo. Plays Prairie View on Jan. 1

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas—When Prairie View and Lincoln University (Missouri) meet in the Southwest's oldest football classic, New Year's Day at Houston, a unique clash will ensue. It will be a battle of tackles. Prairie View's famous Young twins (no kin) Arthur (204), and Haywood (208), will meet two outstanding tackles in Isiah Washington and Alvin Washington, both of Corcisana, Texas. Alvin is referred to as the extra man in the opponents backfield. In addition to these line clashes, there will be quite a bit of backfield rivalry for Lincoln will bring an athlete of rare ability in William Sims, her all conference triple threater.

Lincoln Man, War Vet, Passes Missouri Bar

Joseph Sylvester McDuffie, 3003 Caroline, mid-year senior student in the Lincoln university school of law, took time out from his studies to be sworn in as a member of the Missouri Bar.

Attorney McDuffie's studies were interrupted when he volunteered for the navy in 1942. He saw service in the Pacific Theatre of Operations, and attained the rank of Aviation Metalsmith 1st Class. Being a veteran and having completed five-sixths of his work with a high scholastic average he obtained special permission to take the bar examination under a recent ruling of the Missouri Board of Bar Examiners. He is president of the Lincoln University Law Student's Association, which is the student government body of the school.

The young lawyer is a graduate of Vashon High school and received his A.B. degree from Lincoln university. He is a member of Mt. Zion Baptist church. He will be associated with one of his teachers, Attorney S. E. Gainer, 11 N. Jefferson avenue.

Cootie Williams Stalks Man With Horn In Peace Mission

NEW YORK.—Cootie Williams, famous growl trumpet exponent, has dispatched two emissaries here in an attempt to snare Joyful John, trumpeter in the orchestra which was appearing at the Father Divine Peace Mission on Eighth Avenue.

A local newspaperman on a routine story coverage at the mission heard the sensational trumpet playing of the youthful whiz and mentioned it to a number of his friends in the popular music field. Within a week there was a steady trek to the mission to hear the unusual cornetist perform. He unknowingly did more unscheduled auditions than any stellar soloist in the past ten years.

Inquiry has revealed that prior to joining the divine cult, the youngster (he refuses to reveal an earthly name) played with several bands in the middle west and south. Williams has sent word to corral the man at any price.

Consensus in music circles here is that if Joyful John can be weaned from his heavenly music tasks that swing music will gain one of its most sensational stars in years. At present John insists that he is determined to remain in the Divine cult. It is estimated that his earthly age is about seventeen. His age in the kingdom is four.

Butterfly McQueen Received Poorly in Newark Stage Show

By CARRIE MILLER

NEW JERSEY—(Special to The EAGLE)—A new show opened at the Adams theatre in Newark, N. J., recently, with such headliners as Buddy Johnson and his band, Bud Harris, the Berry Bros. and Lillette, the new sensational pianist. Also held to be a feature attraction and looked forward to was Butterfly McQueen, the high-voiced comedienne of motion picture fame.

It was during opening show, that the audience indicated their disapproval of the film-star turning stage-performer and indicated such. I think too that Miss McQueen herself realized the situation was too far out of hand to be recovered and it wasn't but a matter of hours that the manager and agent, decided to pull her out of the show.

Butterfly's attempt at comedy on the stage with no former experience as to handling crowds of such an intimate nature, was a badly devised gesture and I should think her agents and bookers were more to blame than she. Her attempt was heroic but the results were devastating. All in all the experience makes for a situation wherein Miss McQueen's publicity in the east has gotten off to a very bad start.

The rest of the performance went over great with the team of Harris & Lillette receiving most of the raves.

HOME . . . AT CHRISTMAS TIME

The word "home" seems to take on a double meaning at Christmas time, for it is at that time that we all think of gathering at the fire-side. We come from miles around to be with our respective families and exchange gifts and partake of the lovely meal which has been prepared.

The spirit which reigns supreme is one of good cheer, and brotherly love. And since this is the first year that so many of our sons and daughters are home from the war, it is being made a jolly one. Good Olde St. Nick is calling upon all the children, filling their stockings and making their faces shine.

During this Yuletide Prof. Herman also wishes to extend greetings, and wishes everyone a very Merry Christmas.

T. D.—Dear Prof. Herman: I just wish to thank you for sending us that new book With God All Things Are Possible. I get so much enjoyment out of reading it. I am going to send for a few copies for my friends for gifts.

* * *

V. S.—I would like to know whether I will graduate next year?

Ans.—A careful analysis of your question indicates that you will graduate from high school, if you continue to study and apply yourself as you have been doing.

V. F.—Will I ever see my boy friend again?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that you will in all probability see your boy friend again in the near future. Don't worry, everything will come out alright.

Q. E. W.—What does the future hold for me?

Ans.—Many things are revealed to me at this time, too numerous to mention in the column. I suggest you write in for a private reply, and I shall be glad to advise you and enlighten you on your future activities.

Mrs E. L. R.—Dear Prof. Herman: I read your column regularly and find it very interesting. Would you please advise me as to whether my dream has any meaning in regards to my present condition?

Ans.—Your dream is evidently based upon your condition, but really has no meaning. I am sure you will be very proud of your baby and satisfied no matter what sex it is.

R. T.—What is a trust company?

Ans.—It is a form of fiduciary corporation, originally adopted in the United States under the state laws to accomplish financial objects not specially provided for under the national banking system. The function which gives a trust company its name is to execute trust for individuals, estates and corporations.

R. J.—What is a symphonic poem?

Ans.—This term covers the experiments in a new style of instrumental music. At present it implies a large orchestral composition which, whatever its length and changes of tempo, is not broken up into separate movements, and which, moreover, illustrates a definite poetic train of thought.

Helen Douglas' Christmas Message

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, Editor of the California EAGLE has received the following Christmas message from Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas:

Christmas, 1946.

Dear Friend:

The collective will of the peoples of the world will make our tomorrow. This prayer might well be America's prayer at this Christmas time:

Lord, make me an instrument of your peace!
Where there is hatred—let me sow love
Where there is injury—pardon
Where there is doubt—faith
Where there is despair—hope
Where there is darkness—light
Where there is sadness—joy.
Oh, divine master, grant I may not so much
Seek to be consoled as to console
To be understood as to understand
To be loved as to love
For it is in giving, that we receive
It is in pardoning, that we are pardoned
It is in dying that we are born to eternal life.

—St. Farncis of Assisi

Sincerely,
Helen Gahagan Douglas

Wilmington Druggist Elected Treasurer of GOP City Comm.

WILMINGTON, Del.—A man who faithfully stood by the Republican party even during the heyday of the New Deal under which his people derived more benefits than undr any administration since Lincoln's, last night won his personal reward when he was elected treasurer of the Republican party city committee to become the first Negro ever to be awarded a position of such responsibility in Wilmington Republican politics.

He is Dr. A. Roland Milburn, sixth ward Republican chairman for the past 20 years. He lives with his wife at 922 French st.

DR. A. ROLAND MILBURN

Milburn, a proprietor of the Ninth Street Pharmacy, was nominated by Frank Denny, Tenth Ward committeeman, and his nomination was seconded by committeemen from each of the city's 12 wards.

The election of Milburn, who is a brother-in-law of Marian Anderson, was expected because of his outstanding work among Negro voters of the city. He succeeds Ellwood S. Leach, white, who was elected chairman of the committee at the same meeting.

Dr. Milburn, who was born in Philadelphia, attended the public schools in that city, has been a resident of Wilmington for 40 years. He is a graduate of Howard university, where he was elected to membership in the Alpha Phia Alpha fraternity. He obtained his pharmacist's degree from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy in 1917.

The new treasurer got his start in politics through his uncle, the late Dr. Samuel G. Elbert for whom a Wilmington elementary school is named.

Dr. Milburn married the former Miss Pauline C. Fisher of Wilmington, whose brother, Orpheus Fisher, is husband of Miss Anderson.

Through marriage, Dr. Milburn is a brother-in-law of John O. Hopkins, owner of the National Theatre, who served 16 two-year terms as a member of city council from the sixth ward.

ASKS MORE POLICE IN WATTS

(SCP)—More police protection in the southeast section of the city was asked yesterday by the Watts Chamber of Commerce. The city council referred the request to the police commission for investigation.

Deadline Nears for Registrations of Hotels, Room Houses

(SCP).—Less than 10 per cent of the hotels and rooming houses in the Southern California rent area have filed supplemental registrations with the OPA office of temporary controls, Ben C. Koepke, area rent director, said yesterday. He reminded landlords that the supplemental registrations for remaining units now operating under the hotel and rooming house rent regulation should be filed by the end of the year.

The registration is required by the Price Control Extension Act of 1946, which provided for separate classification of transient hotels, residential or apartment hotels, rooming houses and tourist courts. The supplemental registration does not include houses or apartments.

Truman in Double Talk On China War

WASHINGTON — Somebody should tell the commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces that American warships and army transports were used to transport Kuomintang troops to Manchurian ports, thus actively intervening in China's civil war.

The President this week issued a 300-word statement that added up to a flat denial of generally known acts of American intervention in China during the past year, and a reaffirmation of the administration's non-existent neutrality in the Chinese struggle. He, at the same time branded the Chinese civil was as a threat to world peace.

He explained the government's armed and financial support of the reactionary Chiang Kai-shek regime as a determined effort to help Chinese establish a unified democratic and economically sound nation.

Indicts Palestine Policy of British

Britain was named responsible for the violence in Palestine in an address by Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R., New Hampshire) that the Jews be restored to their homeland.

"The formula of divide and rule is the British policy," Sen. Tobey told a crowd at the Shrine auditorium. Tobey's speech followed a pageant, "That We May Live", which indicted British policy in Palestine. Tobey had a role in the play.

Says Mechanized Cotton Industry Will Aid Negro

ATLANTA, Ga.—Arthur Raper, social science analyst with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, told a Morehouse forum audience on Tuesday that in a mechanized cotton economy the economic condition of southern Negroes could be improved, for with mechanization there would be greater opportunity for skilled and technical labor.

Yet, he pointed out, there is some question as to how fast mechanization, which has revolutionized farming in the West and the North, will come into the South because "the South tends to put a greater value on maintaining social stratification than in taking full advantage of economic opportunities."

Raper predicted that the coming generation of farmers is going to insist on machines and large enough holdings to use tehm, and that unless Negro farmers can become independent, and make use of the machines in some cooperative way, that great numbers of them will eventually be pushed off of southern farms.

The speaker was educated at the University of North Carolina and at Vanderbilt university. A former research secretary for the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, he is the author of Tragedy of Lynching, Preface to Peasantry, Tenants of the Almighty, and with Dr. Ira DeA. Reid Sharecroppers All.

Action on Plea to Revoke Dance Hall License Postponed

(SCP)—Action on a complaint to revoke a permit issued to George W. Ross, operator of a dance hall and cafe at 2711 South San Pedro st., was postponed by the city police commission this week.

John D. Stratton, white, of 650 East 27th st., the complainant, agreed to cooperate with Ross in settling the dispute, which arose when Ross allegedly permitted loud music and noise to emanate from his cafe last Aug. 24.

The commission continued the matter until next Feb. 26, when Ross' old license must be renewed. Issuance of the new permit hinges on whether Ross violates the municipal code again, the commissioners said.

HOLIDAY DRINKERS WARNED

"Tipsy pedestrians and drunk drivers are a traffic menace and will be arrested," Chief of Police C. B. Horrall said, as he alerted the entire force to curb traffic deaths over the New Year's celebrating period.
